8. "We Need Christ's Love." Song—"I Gave My Life for Thee" (all).

Call for a discussion on the topic.

Closing thought—Have two persons sing "The Light of the World is Jesus" or read the words of the first stanza.

Divide the society into two groups for the meeting. Have one group sing one song and the other the next one. Alternate all through the program, so every one will not get tired of singing. Notice the words of the hymns. The leader should call the society's attention to the hymns, and to the fact that our hymn-writers were inspired and wrote hymns that bear the gospel message. Try to make this program effective by the whole-hearted participation of all present.

Helps on the Talks.

1. (Rom. 3:9-18.) In what sense are all men sinners? How do we measure up when compared to Christ? How will Christ help us to live a better life? Will we find as much enjoyment in a life with Christ as in one without Him? Why?

2. (Isa. 53:6.) What are the dangers to a sheep which has strayed away from the sheepfold? How can this be compared to our relationship to God? How does Jesus help us to find our way back?

3. (Eph. 2:8-13.) Paul outlines the difference between life under the law or without Christ, with life with Christ. What hope can Christ bring to us?

4. When we do not know Christ and the message He came to bring to men, all of the universe seems to bump into our plans. Everything seems to go wrong for us. But once we know Him, we are at peace and things move smoothly.

5. (Acts 4:12.) Does simply wearing the name of Christ make one a follower of Christ? When can we say we are really saved? How may a Christian continue to be saved by Christ?

6. (John 14:1-14.) What new conception of God did Jesus give the world? How does this conception change our attitude toward our life? toward our work? toward our fellow-men?

7. (Rom. 8:1-4.) What do we mean by "Christ's spirit"? How will living in Christ's spirit give you power for your work?

8. (1 John 4:16-21.)

YOUNG PEOPLE'S BANQUET.

The Southern Christian Convention is inviting the young people of the South to meet in Raleigh, N. C., on May 1, 1930, for a banquet. This will be during the session of the Convention—perhaps the greatest session the Convention has ever held.

It is believed that the young people deserve the privilege of coming together to discuss the problems which they face in connection with the work of the Church, and that they will welcome this invitation by the Convention. Some are of the opinion that there should be a "Young People's Department" of the Convention which would carry on the work among that group in a similar manner to which the Woman's Mission Board carries on mission work among the women. If the young people themselves are sufficiently interested in this matter, plans could probably be worked out and the department function soon.

The Board of Christian Education has been given the responsibility of promoting the banquet and of arranging the program for the same, and plans are already under way. There will be interesting speakers to tell of the various kinds of work which young people are doing in Churches, plenty of music and amusement. The Elon Glee Club will be there.

All young people of the Christian and Congregational Churches who can possibly do so should be there for this first banquet of the young people of the Southern Christian Convention. It will be worth the trouble and expense.

The banquet will begin at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, May 1, 1930. The cost will be 50 cents per plate. Please remember the date and plan to be there.

Why not read this announcement to the young people of your Church? Watch for further announcements.

F. C. LESTER.

ABOVE THE AVERAGE.

The term "average" may have various meanings, but we usually think of it as meaning the happy medium between two extremes. When we speak of an average-size man we do not think of a man five feet high, weighing ninety-eight pounds, neither do we think of a man six feet and five inches tall, weighing 300 pounds. We say the five-foot man is below the average, and the six-foot-five-inch man is above the average.

As we think of great men of the past, we think of men who have been above the average. As we think of the great Greek philosophers, sculptors, and artists, we at once recognize them as men above the average. All great leaders of every age have been men above the average. The man who seriously tries to make the world a better place in which to live is the man above the average.

The average man tries to support his family and, if possible, lay up a little money for a rainy day. He loves and respects those who love and respect him. He wants the world to look upon him as a good man. Only the man above the average is willing to suffer persecution for a worthy cause, will treat his fellow-man as he would like to be treated, and love his enemies.

Christ chose His disciples from among the average men of His day, but by following Christ they soon became men above the average. So it is today—the man who follows Christ, and not "afar off," is above the average. The Church today is composed of average men and women, but the few who give regularly their money, time and talents for the advancement of Christ's kingdom among men are above the average.

The average Church is not serving the community in which it is located as it should. No doubt, it has a Sunday School, a young people's organization, and preaching once or twice each month. When an investigation is made, more people are found in the community that are not in Sunday School or Church than are connected with the Church. We wonder why people are so careless about the Church. The reason is simple. It is just an average Church. Why not get busy and make your Church above the average? It can easily be done. How can it be done? Through prayer, patience and perseverance. No amount of money can make a Church above the average. Money will make the house above the average, but nothing can make the Church itself above the average except the power of God and the practice of love one towards another.

The average Church does not have power like the early Church had. When the early Church prayed, prison doors swung open, chains fell off of prisoners. Many souls are bound today in the prison of sin by the strong chains of Satan, and the Church is not praying as it should.

We ministers often wonder why our efforts seem in vain, why our messages seem to have no effect, why we have so few conversions and additions to the Church, why our people care so little for the great cause of missions, and do not read THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The only reason is, we are just average ministers. May God help us to "study to show ourselves approved unto God, workmen that"—are above the average.

Roanoke, Ala. G. H. VEAZEY.

MISSIONARY RALLIES.

District rallies of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference will convene at 10 A. M., unless otherwise announced, and will be held as follows:

Guilford (Rockingham), Reidsville, N. C.—Tuesday, April 8th, Mrs. L. P. Wicker, superintendent, Greensboro, N. C.;

Halifax, Lynchburg, Va.—Thursday, April 10th, Mrs. A. Hayes, superintendent, Virgilina, Va.

Randolph, Randleman, N. C.—Saturday, April 12th, Mrs. I. H. Faust, superintendent, Ramseur, N. C.

Alamance, Elon College, N. C.—Tuesday, April 15th, Mrs. J. W. Patton, superintendent, Elon College, N. C.

Lee (Chatham), Sanford, N. C.—Wednesday, April 16th, Mrs. Ralph Ross, superintendent, Sanford, N. C., Route 5.

Durham (Wake) Catawba Springs, N. C.—Friday, April 18th, Mrs. G. H. Leonard, superintendent, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Vance (Warren), Pope's Chapel—Saturday, April 19th, Miss Margaret Alston, superintendent, Henderson, N. C., Route 1.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

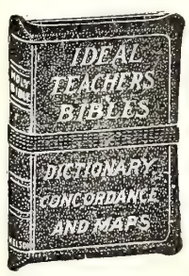
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

Conducted by H. E. Rountree
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

MONDAY.

Fifty-Fifty Religion.

"Give not that which is holy to the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet and turn again and rend you."—Matt. 7:6.

This chapter is like a string of beads without the beads. "It appears to be answers to questions which may have been asked during a discourse," which was customary, and these verses contain the answers.

While it is understood that verse six refers to meat offered in sacrifice, the spiritual interpretation of it is that no compromise should be made with evil in the hope to gain good.

The world enjoins Christian workers to "be a good sport. Do not be so hide-bound in Christianity. Loosen up. Join in with our game, our interest, and you will win hearts. The world will believe in you and you will win more souls."

It has been tried, and it is a base falacy. The devil has no favors to return. He is seeking whom he may devour. To compromise means not only danger; it is a total loss. "Resist the devil and he will flee from you."

Swine cannot appreciate pearls. The world does not appreciate religion. To compromise, they will only despise both the gift and the profferer. We must avoid holy things being profaned. Faithfulness is one thing and foolhardiness is another.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, give us possession of Thy spirit and strength and courage to stand for Thee if we have to stand alone. Amen.

TUESDAY.

Spontaneous Christianity.

"That the ordinance of the law might be fulfilled in us.—Rom. 8:1-11.

Christ is speaking of that experience which takes place in a soul and delivers one from all sense of the law, creating in him spontaneous fulfillment of the law. When this happens, it is "adoption" in God's family.

There is a great contrast between life "in" the flesh and life "after" the flesh, life "in" the spirit, our life "out" of the spirit, life centered in the animal nature, and life centered in the higher—apprehending God's side of man's personality.

The budding, blossoming and fruiting of a tree is an outward manifestation and the result of the power of life wihtin it. Our lives in Christ should be just as spontaneous.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, our Father, abide in our souls to make us naturally desiring and striving for good. Amen.

WEDNESDAY

Tempted in Spite of Ourselves.

"Satan hath desired to sift you as wheat, but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not."—Luke 22:31.

It is perhaps true that every person who has undertaken to follow Christ has found enemies who desire to make him fall and remain down. The more persistent is the effort to be true, the more the temptations that come.

On the contrary, the following is true: As an athlete develops physical excellency and an overcoming endurance by persistent practice in training, so a persistent Christian finds growing overcoming strength in his Christianity. All Christians are permitted, it seems, to be sifted in such a way as to purify them. Honor the resurrection, the presence and the prayers of Jesus for them, strengthen them for all their trials.

Peter loved the Lord, but he did not know how weak he was, nor how dangerous was his confidence in himself when left alone; neither did he know how dark were to be the days which his Lord was approaching; nor did he have the faintest conception of the nature of the trails which he himself must pass through. Therefore, he was not lying. He was serious. He did not know.

For this very reason we are warned against reliance on self, and exhorted most solemnly to put our trust in God alone. We cannot resist temptations of our own strength.

But the Lord prayed for Peter, and he came through with unflincing fidelity. Repeat the words of the psalmist, "Thou hast thrust sore at me, that I might fall; but the Lord helped me. . . . The right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly." (Psa. 118:13-16.)

Prayer.—Lord Jesus, let us be found always among those that are thine. Strengthen us, that nothing may cause us to deny Thee. Amen.

THURSDAY.

Hear the Lord Pray.

"He lifted up His eyes unto heaven and said."—John 17.

There is nothing in the whole Bible which, for simplicity and depth, is more marvelous than this prayer—Jesus God, Jesus Son, Jesus Holy Spirit praying to the Father. Here we are met with glory overwhelming, and at the same time a spirit so gentle and gracious that it melts the heart. He who can know God in the spirit of this prayer hath eternal life. As we hear Jesus pray, every fiber in us is stirred to worship and thank Him.

Prayer.—Blessed be Thou, Lord Jesus, who renounced Thine own glory for the glory of the Father. Oh, may we do the same, as far as we can; and give us, we pray Thee, the Holy Spirit, that we may see the trouble, see the Father, and have eternal life. Amen.

FRIDAY.

Can We Find It?

"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."—Rom. 8:28.

Paul is talking about the efficiency of divine grace in all the bitter experiences of life, and how to realize it. Read the whole chapter with that idea.

The insight of love alone finds God in every experience. He maketh even the evil to serve Him.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, our Lord come and dwell with us and make our homes, and our hearts and lives Thy habitation. Amen.

SATURDAY.

The Way.

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found; call ye upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake His way and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him: and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."—Isa. 55:6, 7.

These are mighty good words to remember. It is a voice full of the love of the Father calling to us. If we hear it we cannot fail to be drawn to Him. It sounds like the words of Paul spoken of Jesus, "Draw nigh unto God and He will draw nigh unto you."

Perhaps we have been astray and found ourselves walking without God. We are certainly familiar with many godless experiences. But in them, it matters not how far away we get, God never has lost sight of us. Today, if we hear His voice and turn to Him we will find mercy full and free, as always.

Prayer.—Lord, turn, Thou, us and we shall be turned. Draw us to Thee and do not let us go. We confess our sins; do, Thou, have mercy on us and pardon us, and lead us in paths of righteousness, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

SUNDAY.

How We Fail.

"They did not subject themselves to the righteousness of God."—Rom. 10:3.

To come into the possession of anything, we must expose ourselves to it. Study for education is exposure to education; search for pleasure is expcsure to pleasure. Application to anything is exposure to that thing, and the particular thing cannot be accomplished until we do apply (expose ourselves) to it.

Neither can we have Christian experience until we expose ourselves to it. We cannot know Christ until we expose ourselves to Him and His teachings. We cannot know God until we expose ourselves to Him through Christ. This is the method of attaining to the status of acquittal which God Himself has revealed, and it is the method of attaining the status of a Christian heart.

They who have not this experience have it not because they do not subject themselves to the righteousness of God.

According to Christ's teachings, according to Paul, and according to all experience, Christ is the end of righteousness. From God through Him came the fountain of life. From Him and Him alone is this glory to be had. What use is salt to decaying meat unless it is applied?

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Father, from each day's first thoughts until we lie down at night, through all the day's experiences, keep our minds and hearts fixed on Thee. Amen.

MISSIONARY CONTRIBUTIONS

(Continued from page 9.)

We are seeking 5,000 interviews in the hope of getting 4,000 gifts large and small, on the plea that only the interested and devoted few will make added gifts now. If we succeed in part, it will develop a vital argument to pastors and to Churches to lift their additional shares next fall.

In each State, the plan will depend upon the State board and superintendent, and the gifts will be scught on the percentage basis, so that all interests share. Beyond this plan is the permanent need of interesting each Church more definitely in a commitment of its own in foreign fields. The project, or assignment plan, will help. We may take up the regional educational plan by which foreign and home interests will once more cultivate a particular section or State, giving a greater chance to the particular message of each type of work.

Of course, at bottom, it is all a question of raising the spiritual devotion of our Churches. Missions thrive in spiritual earnestness; it dies in comfortable indifference. It thrives in obedience; it perishes in the atmosphere of modern humanism or of selfishness. Contact with Christ spells missionary loyalty.

Christian Orphanage

WAS IT CONTAGIOUS?

For thirteen years the Orphanage had not had a case of appendicitis. Last October your superintendent was stricken with appendicitis and had to undergo an operation. Since that time three of our children have had operations. One little girl in the hospital now. It certainly is not on account of food, as we were tested on our menu for three days a few weeks ago and received very high compliments on having such splendid, balanced food. It is really amusing sometimes how children will just imagine that they are sorely afflicted when they really have no trouble at all. One instance comes very vividly to my mind. Several years ago something got wrong with a little fellow's eyes. We sent him to an eye specialist and he fitted glasses to correct the trouble. He fitted the child up with those heavy frames which look so stylish. When the child came home and the rest of the children saw how important this child looked with glasses, about half the children had eye trouble, too. They caught the fever. They could not study in school because their eyes gave them so much trouble. We could not persuade them that they had no trouble until we carried several to the specialist and had them examined and found no trouble. It was really amusing. Appendicitis may not be contagious, but three children have had it in the last few months.

We have so little sickness and so few accidents that we have never felt the real need of a hospital, but if this thing keeps up we may need a hospital. We have quite a number of children that will have tonsils removed this spring as soon as school closes.

We would be very happy indeed if we could get each Sunday School to give us a monthly offering. So many schools go out of business for the winter months, and it takes some time to get them back on the list. In checking up our monthly record books for this first quarter, we find the following:

Conference.	Giving.	Not Giving.
Virginia Valley Central	13	10
Eastern Virginia	24	20
North Carolina and Virginia	25	12
Western North Carolina	21	10
Esatern North Carolina	24	24
Georgia and Alabama	3	10
Alabama	8	13
Totals	118	99

What if every Sunday School would join the 118 now giving! We would have 217 on the giving list. Every Sunday School should be on the list.

My dear reader, if your school is not on the list of monthly contributors won't you be a committee of one to see that it gets on in April? The fatherless cry to you for bread. What will your answer be?

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 3, 1930.

Brought forward		$2,557.17
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Reidsville	$ 9.00
Shallow Ford	2.11
		11.11
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Fullers Chapel	$ 2.30
Morrisville	2.00
Wake Chapel	7.21
Ether	.72
Chapel Hill	3.25
Henderson	4.51
Liberty Vance	5.58
New Elam	3.26
		28.83
Western N. C. Conference:
Liberty	$ 2.43
Burlington	65.67
		68.10
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Union, Surry	$ 3.00
First, Portsmouth	12.46
Holy Neck	10.00
Bethlehem	3.66
		29.12
Valley Virginia Conference:
Mayland	$ 2.50
Antioch	4.02
Bethlehem	3.14
Palmyra	4.84
Linville	10.00
		24.50
Alabama Conference:
Spring Hill	$ 2.30
Forest Home	1.00
New Hope	1.94
		5.24
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Richland		1.00
Special Offerings.
H. A. Carlton, expense on farm	$28.98
Sale of potatoes	1.00
Sale of potatoes	2.00
Cash item	1.12
		33.10
Grand total		$2,758.17

"THE FOOD'S THE THING"

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria

805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Opposite Richmond Hotel.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 I saw the Stars of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, there

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other.
11 Truth shall spring

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ---------- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

[a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1.
[2] or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x -- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [28]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed or Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x --------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave: death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible -------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

BE FAIR TO THE CHILD.

I have learned that most normal children will readily respond to sensible discipline. To my mind, a better understanding of child psychology among parents and teachers would be the surest cure for most of the unruly youngsters of our age. Most of us are too little concerned about finding out how the youth of our times can be trained to become efficient members of society and to be most happy with the least degree of personal injury in methods of correction. There has been a spirit of rebellion as well as of humiliation, begotten of many a youth because of unreasonable methods of correction and in punishment that was all out of proportion to the transgression. To me, a thoughtless thing for parents and teachers to do is to fail to grant a child's request without showing any reason whatever for their position. There are many ways, very often, in which one can convince the child that his way is a poor choice. Only a few days ago a little five-year-old girl, at my boarding-place, climbed on my lap, all out of humor because her pencil was not as long as the pencil of her seventeen-year-old sister; but when I made it clear to her mind that large girls needed large shoes and little girls little shoes, and large girls needed large dresses and little girls little dresses, and so on, I could easily make her see that large girls should have large pencils and little girls should have little pencils. To this she readily conceded and climbed down from my lap and went about her play feeling that she had been given a square deal in the matter of a pencil.

Now, a disregard for what this little lassie considered her legitimate right to possess would have left her with a spirit of resentment. Most children act toward a purpose in securing what they think is reasonable for them to have, and I have found that when an objection is raised to their wishes parents and teachers should furnish a sensible reason for their position. "Just because" is a poor reason to offer an adult, and much less to a child; but it has been given many a time. The child should be given something better. I have noticed that the best disciplinarians among parents and teachers are those who give the children wholesome employment.

There is nothing more susceptible to vice than an idle brain. The most unfortunate thing I know for a child is to have his life honeycombed by parents or grandparents until he is affected through and through with the lure of getting everything for nothing—and this is the class that furnishes most delinquent girls and sends most of our unruly boys to the chain gang.

A. R. Flowers.

WOMEN AND PROHIBITION.

I have just returned from a banquet given by the Rockingham County Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina, in honor of Dr. Harry W. Chase, the distinguished president of the university, who was present and made a great address. The civic clubs (Rotary and Kiwanis) of Reidsville, were invited, hence my presence.

During the banquet hour I sat diagonally across the table from a woman who appeared, outwardly, to be sensible; but once she opened her mouth, one changed one's opinion with no uncertainty. The woman in question has recently spent some time in Florida. The experiences of her travel soon brought the intelligence(?) that she had observed a very careless enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. All of which drew her to the conclusion that the amendment itself was at fault, and furthermore, that a modification of the law was the only remedy. Such a conclusion does not carry to the reader of this article any degree of the disgust which was felt by those of us who had to endure, for courtesy sake, a ten-minute discourse on the various points of the weakness of the law in question. The woman said, in effect, that the American people were entitled to a modification of the law, and that such a modification would no doubt stop the purchase of such "bad" liquor as the people "have" to drink—just as though anybody "had" to buy or drink it!

When one reflects upon such a type of motherhood, one wonders what, after all, we may come to. I gathered from the conversation, however, that the person had no children, and drew a sigh of relief. But I was left wondering how prevalent such an idea is among women.

It is not strange that outlaws, criminals, bootleggers, dram-drinkers, immoralists, and the like, would make such a statement; but to hear a woman, decent, respectable and apparently sensible, make such comment! It was disgusting beyond one's power to express.

Yes, they tell us that if the law is modified that people will cease breaking it. Nonsense! As though the violation of any law was testimony against the saneness of it, or that because it is broken it should be repealed. Enemies of the eighteenth amendment sight us to the number of arrests for its violation, and further declare that it is not being enforced—as though to arrest a violator was a hindrance to enforcement or a sign of the lack of enforcement.

It seems to me that one of the most hopeful signs of the times, so far as the prohibition law is concerned, is that an effort is being made to enforce it as never before—hence so many arrests.

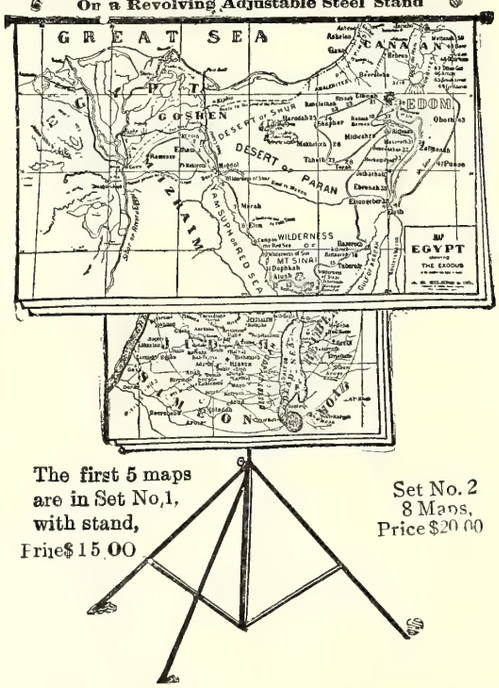
On the same argument, we should close the doors of the Churches. We have people who do not practice its principles; therefore, the principles of Jesus are unreasonable and out of place.

God, save us from such nonsense!

J. H. Dollar.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand



The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites the

Series No. 2—Eilers' Edition

Eight large Maps in six colors each, size 36x57. Greatest value for the money. Each set consists of the following Maps: Map of Egypt and Exodus of Israel, Palestine divided among the 12 Tribes, New Testament Palestine, Map of Western Asia and Bible Lands, Roman Empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's travels by colored lines, the Divided Kingdoms of Judah and Israel, the Persian control of Palestine and the Pathways of our Lord showing by colored lines each journey He made. This set of eight fine Maps which cover all Bible Geography in the different periods on adjustable folding steel stand only prepaid.

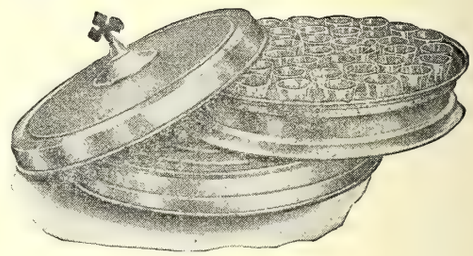
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

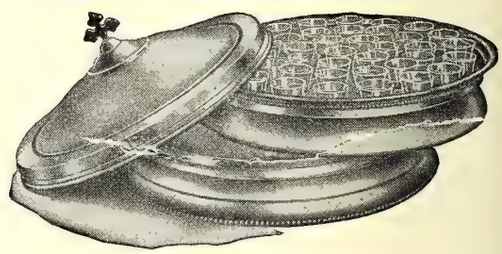


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim.....	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

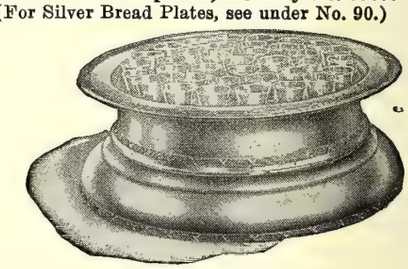
The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90..	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim.....	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

OBITUARIES.

THARPE.

Fannie Tharpe was born July 19, 1858, and died at her home in Edinburg, Va., March 2, 1930, at the age of 71 years, 7 months, and 13 days. Sister Tharpe was a faithful member of Palmyra Christian Church and a faithful reader of the Bible, and one who loved to talk upon religious subjects. The presence of the Lord was a great comfort to her during her illness of several months. She is survived by one son and one daughter. Funeral services were held at the home on March 3, 1930.

A. W. ANDES.

MARTZ.

Sallie N. C. Martz, wife of David R. Martz, was born February 12, 1854, and died March 4, 1930, making her age therefore, 76 years and 22 days. Sister Martz was well known among a large circle of friends, and was distinguished for her many deeds of kindness and her genuine Christian character. She was a faithful member of the Bethlehem Christian Church and a liberal supporter to all its enterprises. Surviving, besides her husband, are one son and two daughters. Funeral services were held at Bethlehem March 4, 1930, by the writer, assisted by Rev. Joe French.

A. W. ANDES.

FOX.

Armenia Erastus Fox departed this life March 13, 1930, being 79 years, 9 months and 15 days old. He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, three sons and one daughter, all of the Pleasant Hill community.

He had been a member and deacon of the Pleasant Hill Christian Church for a long time. He was a good man and will be much missed by his Church and community. May the Heavenly Father comfort his loved ones. Burial services by the pastor and interment made in the Church cemetery at Pleasant Hill.

T. J. GREEN.

JACQUES.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lola Marie Williams Jacques and infant son were conducted from the First Congregational-Christian Church, Newport News, Va., on March 9th, by the writer, assisted by the Rev. J. K. M. Lee, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Jacques was the daughter of the late Walter T. Williams and Mrs. Ada Williams. She was maried to Mr. Jacques on October 18, 1927, and is survived by her mother, one brother and her husband. She was born April 2, 1903, and departed this life March 6, 1930. She had been a member of the Christian Church since 1913, and was held in high esteem by a host of friends, which was evidenced by the many floral offerings and the large number who attended the funeral services. The Church was filled to overflowing, and more than one thousand people surrounded the grave. May the Lord sustain those who mourn.

M. F. ALLEN.

BOYETTE.

Mr. John T. Boyette was born in Isle of Wight County, Va., April 29, 1898, and peacefully fell asleep March 17, 1930, aged 31 years, 11 months, and 13 days. He was happily converted and joined Old Antioch Christian Church. When the Hopewell Church was organized in February, 1927, he became one of the charter members. Even after his health had failed, he was an inspiration to me, and he never lost faith in his Lord. He was unable to work for about three years. During that time he read the New Testament through thirteen times.

Bro. Boyette is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mollie Lucille (Bowden) Boyette, and three children—Nellie Lucille, aged 12 years; Lewis Edward, age 8 years, and Hazel Lane, age 6 years. Also his father, W. H. Boyette, Sr., three brothers —W. H., Jr., G. W., and W. L. Boyette— and two sisters, Mrs. Martha Baldwin and Miss Mamie Boyette, all of Hopewell.

His funeral was conducted by the writer. As our pastor, Rev. J. W. Barrett, was out of the city, I was assisted by Rev. L. C. Moore, pastor of the Methodist Church, and Rev. W. S. Leake, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The services were held in Hopewell Christian Church, and his remains were taken to Antioch Christian Church and laid to rest there by the side of his mother and sister, who preceded him about five and six years. The following acted as pallbearers: W. T. Newman, O. C. Powell, G. R. Belcher, L. P. Bradshaw, L. H. Horne, and H. M. Rouse.

DURANT D. NASH.

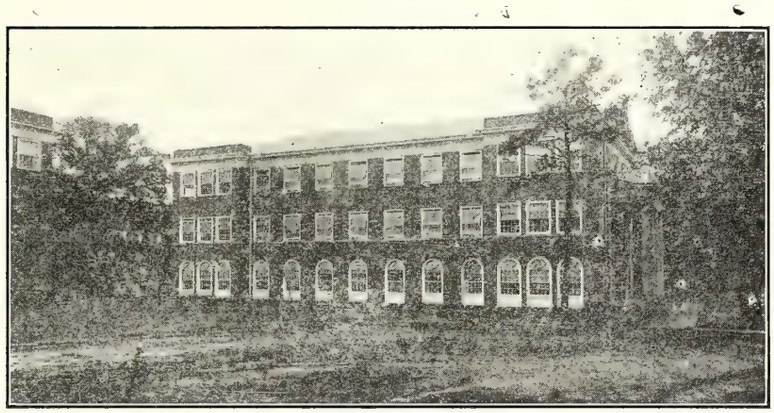
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

PIERCE.

We, the ladies of the Woman's Missionary and Ladies' Aid Societies of Isle of Wight Christian Church, feel very keenly the passing of our most faithful member and co-worker, Mrs. Evalina Darden Pierce, who departed this life February 23, 1930. While we mourn the departure of our sister, who has been a patient sufferer for some time, we feel that our loss is her eternal gain, and may we ever strive to imitate her example by being more faithful in our duties to God's cause.

We bow in humble submission to His will, and extend to her loved ones our deepest sympathy, and recommend that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy recorded on the minutes of this society.

MRS. M. T. WHITLEY.
MRS. L. H. WHITLEY.

GORDAN.

Henry Cleveland Gordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gordan, was born near Alton, Va., October 16, 1885, and died in Person County, N. C., March 9, 1930, aged 43 years, 4 months and 21 days. In 19[illegible] he married Miss Lila Mae Goode, of Virgilina, Va. This union was blessed with three children—Evelyn, Floyd and Alice Elizabeth. Besides a wife and three children, he is survived by his father, four brothers and two sisters.

The deceased had been a member of Olive Branch M. E. Church for twenty years. His life was consistent. He was honest, industrious, a kind husband, devoted father and a good neighbor. The funeral was held at the Union Christian Church, Virgilina, Va., March 10th, conducted by the writer, and the burial was in the town cemetery. A large crowd attended the services. The floral designs were beautiful. Many were the expressions of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

C. E. NEWMAN.

REAGAN.

Rubie G. Reagan, son of Thomas and Betty C. Reagan, was born September 20, 1893, and died at Christie, Va., March 13, 1930, age 36 years, 5 months and 21 days. On April 25, 1915, he married Miss Dora Pattie Treackey, and to them were born one son and four daughters. At the age of seventeen, he joined Christie M. E. Church, where his membership remained till death.

Bro. Reagan is survived by his wife, five children, mother, two brothers and three sisters. The funeral was conducted at the home, Christie, Va., on the afternoon of March 14, 1930, by the writer, assisted by Revs. Marsh and Hudson, of the M. E. Church, and the burial was in the family cemetery. A large crowd of relatives and friends were present.

C. E. NEWMAN.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE
WADLEY, ALABAMA
AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE
SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches, nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

Send your orders to
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY, 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1930. NUMBER 15.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Mrs N T Farmer 1-1

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

THE GIRL WHO SMILED.—

The wind was east, and the chimney smoked,
And the old brown house seemed dreary,
For nobody smiled, and nobody joked;
The young folks grumbled, the old folks croaked:
They had come home chilled and weary.

Then, opened the door, and a girl came in;
Oh, she was homely—very!
Her nose was pug and her cheek was thin,
There wasn't a dimple from brow to chin,
But her smile was bright and cheery.

She spoke not a word of the cold and damp,
Nor yet of the gloom about her;
But she mended the fire and lighted the lamp,
And she put on the place a different stamp
From what it had been without her.

Her dress, which was something in sober brown
And with dampness nearly dripping,
She changed for a bright, warm, crimson gown,
And she lokoed so gay when she came down,
They forgot that the air was nipping.

They forgot that the house was a dull old place
And smoky from base to rafter;
And gloom departed from every face
As they felt the charm of her mirthful grace
And the cheer of her happy laughter.

Oh, give me the girl who will smile and sing,
And make all glad together!
To be plain or fair is a lesser thing;
But a kind, unselfish heart can bring
Good cheer in the darkest weather.

—Selected.

RADIO AND STATES' RIGHTS.—

A very modern invention has precipitated an old, old question in a new form. It is the question of States' rights, as it is involved in whether or not a State has the right to erect a broadcasting station when the erection of such a station has been forbidden by the Federal Radio Commission. The State of Michigan has made plans to erect a radio station for the purpose of broadcasting information about crimes and criminals to the various police departments and officers throughout the State. Radio has become an important factor in the detection and arrest of criminals, and offers possibilities of even greater usefulness than is possible as radio broadcasting is now controlled and operated.

Michigan has not only made plans for such a station, but has appropriated the necessary funds. Application was made to the Federal Radio Commission for the approval of the plan and the granting of a license. The request was at first denied, and later a date was set for a hearing before the commission in May. The Governor of Michigan claims that it is a question of police power, which the Constitution has placed within the jurisdiction of the State. The Radio Commission claims it is a matter of interstate commerce, over which the Federal government is given authority by the Constitution. Governor Green has ordered that the work proceed. The commission threatens arrest if their orders are ignored. An unusual and interesting question of constitutional law will have to be settled.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AND WORSHIP.—

Religious workers are becoming deeply concerned about the non-attendance of Church members at the stated services of worship of the Church. There are, of course, large numbers of Church members who rarely, if ever, attend any service of the Church. They are indifferent to any and all plans and objectives of the Church. There is in many Churches a large per cent of the membership which is fairly regular in attendance at Sunday School, but as soon as the Sunday School is over, they go home and are rarely if ever seen at the regular worship services of the Church. Many of those who fail to attend the service of worship make the excuse that they must take the children home, since it would be too great a tax upon the strength and patience of the youngsters to stay through both Sunday School and Church.

It is more than a question of small attendance at the worship service. It is a question as to whether or not the Sunday School can meet all the religious needs of the individual. It is a question of whether or not the Sunday School can adequately present the claims upon the individual for kingdom service. It is a question as to whether or not the Sunday School can enlist and commit the individual to a lifetime program of religious service.

Back of all these questions is the issue as to whether or not many Protestant denominations may not have failed entirely to have trained the individual for participation in public or group worship. There is a feeling in many quarters that we have substituted the giving of instruction and the imparting of infromation in the place of true worship. Others feel that we have crowded into the Sunday School things that do not belong there, and that we are expecting of the Sunday School that which it cannot accomplish.

Upon certain facts, every one is agreed. One such fact is that the Sunday School has a legitimate and necessary task to perform. Another such fact is that worship is as necessary to the spirit as food is to the body. Only worshiping people maintain a vital religious life. It, then, should by all means be possible for the wisdom of Protestant bodies to work out the true relationship between training for service and worship.

COMPANIONATE CHURCH MEMBERSHIP.—

Some time ago Judge Ben Lindsey startled the more sedate minds of the country by his pronouncement in favor of what he called companionate marriage. His proposal was but a modification of what had previously gone under the name of trial marriage. And strange as it may seem, there are thousands of professing Christians all over the country who practice a sort of companionate Church membership. We list the two ideas under similar names because they are both actuated by a desire to get all the benefits and pleasures obtainable, and escape all the responsibilities of the two most sacred relationships of life.

It is a problem with which most Churches are familiar. Members move from the country to the city, or from one city to another, but they leave their Church membership in the Church from which they moved. It is generally the case that there is a Church available of the same denominational connection. And frequently the newcomers accept all the privileges and benefits that are offered by the Church in the place to which they move. They attend the services of worship. They place their children in the Church school and receive and welcome the fellowship that is extended them. But they either refuse or postpone entering into full fellowship in their adopted Church.

Many reasons or excuses are given for this course. Doubtless, some of them are sincere; but one cannot but wonder if the desire to escape the financial responsibility for the work of the Church does not generally play a large part. Our complex civilization offers so many advantages that can be had without paying for them that most of us have unconsciously lost the sense of obligation to pay for all that we get.

The financial loss to the Church is not the point that needs to be considered. Many of those who feel no sense of responsibility for the work of the Church soon begin to lose their interest in the Church, and eventually are lost to the Church, to Christ, and to the kingdom. We need responsibility to keep us true and steady. I once heard of a rich girl who married a poor man. She had sufficient means to meet the most lavish expenditures of both herself and her husband. But she ordered her style of living in keeping with her husband's income and built such a home as his earnings could maintain. She was not saving her money, she was maintaining her husband's self-respect, and so ordering her affairs as to hold his love. The Church may be able to maintain its budget without support from all, but no individual connected with the Church, even remotely, can develop the highest type of Christian character unless all the responsibilities of Church membership are met.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Of what are you willing to deny yourself now, that others may share with you to benefits and blessings of the gospel that means all to you?

Every minister and delegate and others interested in the Christian Church should make a special effort to attend the session of the Southern Christian Convention, beginning Tuesday, April 29th, at United Church, Raleigh, N. C.

Mrs. J. W. Patton, superintendent, urges all ministers in the district, and all Churches, to be represented in the Missionary Rally of the Alamance District, which meets with the Woman's Missionary Society at Elon College on Tuesday, April 15th.

The French infidel, Voltaire, realized that there is some stupendous force back of the Christian's weekly day of rest and worship. He said: "We shall not destroy the Christian faith till we have killed the Sabbath day." The observance of the Sabbath is essential to the preservation of the Christian religion.

Rev. J. F. Morgan, Norfolk, is a busy pastor. Both of his Churches, Rosemont and Berea, have on building programs; Rosemont to erect a new building out and out, we understand, and Berea to add Sunday School rooms. In both Churches, however, missionary period is being observed and the offering for missions will be taken either at or near Easter.

Apple's Chapel, Guilford County, was host on Sunday, March 30th, to the Washington Township Sunday School Convention. Several hundred people attended the convention, which was pronounced quite interesting and successful. Dr. W. M. Jay, of Elon College, was one of the speakers, using as his topic, "Young People and Their Responsibility."

The Southern Christian Convention meets in biennial session with United Church, Raleigh, N. C., at 2:30 P. M., April 29th, the Woman's Conference of the Convention being scheduled to meet with the same Church at 10:30 A. M. the same day. The Congregational Conference of the Carolinas is to meet Sunday, April 27th and adjourn on Tuesday, in time for the opening of the Southern Christian Convention.

The First Christian Church, Richmond, celebrated its tenth anniversary and home-coming last Sunday. The morning service was conducted by the pastor. Dinner was served in the Sunday School auditorium by the ladies of the Church. At the afternoon service, Mr. J. M. Darden spoke briefly, and Dr. J. O. Atkinson delivered the sermon. The services, dinner included, were enjoyed. Many out-of-town visitors and friends were present.

The field secretary has in her office some plays and pageants and other materials for Mothers' day (May 11, 1930) which she will be glad to send you upon request. Every Church may not be able to put on a big play or an elaborate program in honor of the mothers of our land, but surely every Sunday School or Church should have some program, simple though it may be, in honor of those who have guided us and loved us during the years. Every Church can find a program suitable to its needs.

The Sun editor was with Rev. Rev. Carl C. Dollar at Haw River on Sunday, March 30th, and found an interesting Sunday School and an attractive congregation. Bro. Dollar is senior in Elon College and is much loved by his Haw River Church. In the evening the editor was with Rev. J. H. Dollar and a large congregation at First Church, Reidsville. Our Reidsville congregation has enjoyed growth and activity under the devoted leadership of Bro. Dollar, the Sunday School being the largest in the city, and the services are growing in attendance. The pastor has on for three months "Church Loyalty" services, which have attracted attention and are of interest to many.

From the Virginian-Pilot, Norfolk: "Dr. Leon Edgar Smith, pastor of Christian Temple, has returned to this city after spending several weeks at Burlington, N. C., where he conducted revival services at First Christian Church. The services came to an end last Sunday night and were hailed as being outstandingly successful, being largely attended from beginning to end. At the concluding service Sunday, Dr. Smith preached in the morning and at night, his morning topic being "What are You Waiting For?" and at night on "Heaven." Sixty-two new members were received into the Church during the revival, fifty of these joining on the final day. Over eighty decisions were made."

News comes of the death of Miss Mary Brinkley, of our Berea Church, Driver, Va. Another truly Christian soul has gone to God and to glory. The Sun editor was once her pastor and has known her for years. She loved the Church and sacrificed for its work and worship. Unselfish, consecrated, in full sympathy with all that pertained to the kingdom of her Lord, she lived a life of beauty and blessings, and one that will be long cherished and loved by those who knew her. The funeral was conducted by her pastor, Dr. I. W. Johnson, assisted by Dr. W. W. Staley, in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Suffolk, Va. The bereaved father, three sisters and brother have our sympathy in their sorrow.

DR. RYAN AT ROSEMONT.

It was really a great pleasure to spend from March 17th to March 28th with Rev. J. F. Morgan and his good people at Rosemont, Norfolk, in a meeting. In all my ministry I have never found any pastor more universally loved by his people or any people more devoted to the interests of the kingdom than I found in this splendid suburb of Norfolk, Va. The pastor and his splendid wife know the folks, and they know God, and as a result things are coming to pass.

Our privileges while there were varied. I was permitted to preach (I called it preaching) eleven times in the Church, I spoke to the Woman's Missionary Society at their regular monthly meeting, and to the Christian Endeavor Society at their Sunday evening service. I also made an address to the Kiwanis Club of South Norfolk, and addressed the high school at the regular chapel period, and on Sunday afternoon brought the message at the regular preaching service at Berea (Norfolk County). I appreciated the presence and help of a number of my fellow-preachers, Rev. J. N. Cutchin, Rev. O. D. Poythress, Rev. T. N. Lowe, Rev. J. E. McCauley. Besides these, the Baptist pastor was present several times, and the pastor of the Holiness Church spent one evening with us. One week we were entertained in the home of Bro. Harry Gibson and his interesting family. Bro. Gibson is the very efficient mayor of South Norfolk. The last week, the homes of Bro. Ollie Mills and Bro. John Morrison were opened to us as our abiding-place.

I found that among the pastors and Churches of Tidewater Virginia there is most complete harmony and sweetest fellowship, and this is as it should be. Not one person asked me "to come and be their pastor," because they are all satisfied with the pastor they have, and not once did I say "If I was yuor pastor I would do thus and so," for I was not there to cause dissention, but to exact my Lord and Master.

All in all, it was a pleasant visit, and I trust a lasting good may have been done. The Church at Rosemont is witnessing heroic sacrifices just now, that they may soon have a much-needed new Church building. Yours,

Richmond, Va. C. C. Ryan.

MEN AT WORK.

The men of the Alabama Christian Conference have caught a vision of the "field that is white already to harvest" and are starting a movement that we feel is good seed sown on good ground, and no doubt will bring forth an abundant harvest in the not far distant future.

One year ago, at a meeting of ministers and laymen, at Noonday Church, Rev. G. D. Hunt suggested the need of an organized effort upon the part of the laymen. A committee was appointed to investigate the matter and organize the men of the Conference if they thought it wise. The First Christian Church in Roanoke was first to organize its men. The organization is not just what we would like to have it in every way, but much good is being accomplished, and we don't see now how we could carry on our Church affairs without the organization. This little group of men have decided that the men of every Church in our Conference should be organized, so we are going to the various Churches and presenting the matter, and we meet with a hearty response. We went to Antioch on the night of March 12th and found a group of men, mostly young men, very anxious to do something for the promotion of Christ's kingdom among men. They seemed to enjoy very much our little program and called a meeting for March 20th to perfect their organization. The young men readily accepted a challenge to render a program at this next meeting. We have no doubt of the success of the work at this place.

The Roanoke men went to Rock Springs Sunday, March 9th, and rendered an inspiring program. We think they will organize themselves soon.

There are two main reasons for the need of a men's organization in every local Church. First, that they may meet with each other and their pastor around the sacred altar and discuss the various problems and a way to solve them, and to let him know they are with him in prayer and sympathy. This will make a better preacher. Try it. Second, that they may discover the small percentage of the Church that is at work, the small amount of money that is being raised, and get under the burden with renewed energy and see that the Church is apace with anything else in the community. No group of enthusiastic men will be satisfied to worship God in the old house and old pews of their fathers when their children have the modern conveniences of the public schools. It's true, our fathers wrought well. They laid a great foundation, and unless we continue to build thereon, the foundation will be removed. Our ministers have wrought well, but they cannot do the laymen's work. Will we, as laymen, accept the challenge and rise up and build, or will we sit idly by while the banner of our Christ trails in the dust?

Roanoke, Ala. M. H. Stevens.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

CERTAINTIES OF CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Many of us have spent hours in wondering about the uncertainties of the world that is and the world to come. We have even stopped and wondered whether or not the moon was inhabited, and if so, who lived there and what of the civilization there? We have wondered whether or not they were interested in us. We wonder if yonder on the moon people who might reside there are ever troubled with questions such as perplex our minds—higher wages, law enforcement, and the abolition of war. We wonder about Mars. So great has been our thought concerning this distant planet that some of our scientific men who are well versed in the fields of astronomy and geology have considered the plan of sending a balloon high up into the air, and with the aid of a strong light, endeavoring to see the coveted territory, with which they might form commercial transportation by aviation. Some of us have speculated upon the manner in which the next world would come to an end. Some have thought that it would be drawn close to the sun and be burned up by the intense heat thereof. Most every one, at some time or other, has considered some of these great questions, and always reached the conclusion that nothing was known or could be known, and thus passed them by with the wave of the hand. All these are weird uncertainties, and it is folly to waste one's time upon them.

But not so with the religion of Jesus Christ. For when we talk about religion we talk about that which is real and certain. Dr. St. John Halstead has pointed out in one of his great sermons some of the certainties of Christianity. These certainties have and always will remain absolute and unmovable. We are truly aware that the genius of science has destroyed many seemingly established facts, for at one time physicians believed and declared that the blood within the human body was stationary. Dr. Harvey, a few years later, said that blood circulated, and he was made a joke for the statement. Today, we know that his theory is right. Infidels, by the score, have said that the Bible is a myth and that Christianity is an unscientific speculation. Time has proven and will continue to establish facts that the word of God stands sure and true. Indeed, life is so short, even at the most, for us to spend much time in theoretical speculations. Let us, therefore, confine our thinking and investigation to some of the great certainties of Christianity. It is most certain that Christianity offers us the greatest certainties of life. Let us see. It is certain that there is (1) a personal God, (2) a plan of salvation, (3) a loving Saviour, and (4) the immortality of the soul.

1. There is a personal God. "And God said, Let us make man in our image and let him have dominion over the fish of the sea, etc. And God created man in His own image and said, Be fruitful and multiply, replenish the earth and subdue it" (Gen. 2:27).

The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork. All of creation proclaims the presence and power of a personal creative God. Down deep in the human heart there is a longing cry after a higher power. There is in us all a yearning after the infinite. From the earliest history of the race there has been a reaching up after a higher creative power and a belief among men of all times that there is most certainly an Almighty God. Man has always felt that this God, who to him is one of the most certain of all certainties, has power to bless and to help. By His infinite resources, He feeds the hungry and cures the sick. He is everywhere and ever helping.

The creation story, recorded in the second chapter of the first book in the Bible, tells us of the personal relationship between man and God. It goes so far as to tell us that God made man in His own personal image, and that He breathed into him the breath of His own life. Hence, God and man became personally akin to each other. God created man with the desire for bread and water. He created fins upon the fish for the water in which he was to live, and then He created the water for the fishes' fins. In like manner, God created in man a desire and longing for God—because He was God: thus the provision for all mankind for a personal God. To Him the educated and the unlearned may go; to Him the black and the white may come; and from Him all may know that He cares because they are His children.

Every design in the world must have a designer. The watch with its delicate springs and small wheels, must have a watchmaker. Every poem must have a poet; every editorial an editor; every picture a painter, and every musical composition a composer. It is evident that every child of God must have a Creator, who is a personal God. "Yet the fool hath said, in his heart there is no God." Every wise man and every follower of righteousness knows that there is a God, and upon that certainty he is willing to stake his life and his all.

Back of this universe is a plan. Things did not just so happen. From the first to the last of the Bible, the idea of a personal God is most certain. Such a God is revealed as Jehovah to the Hebrews and to the Gentiles as Father. The God about whom we speak is man's greatest friend, for He is to him a loving, Heavenly Father.

2. Christianity presents a saviour ("Thou shalt call His name Jesus" (Matt. 1:21)). The most certain thing about Christiantiy is Christ the Lord, who came into the world for the specific purpose of saving people from their sins. He came not to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance. He ushered in His kingdom by calling men to repent and be saved. Some men in all ages have called him a philosopher, a safe and a great teacher, and He was all of these; but He was more—He was a Saviour. Now, there have been other saviours and teachers, but no one has ever come into the world in such a way as He came and with the same mission. Confucius, it is believed, came to save the Chinese; Buddha came to save the people of central and eastern Asia; Mohomet to save the Hindoo. But Jesus came to save the world.

All through His teachings He presents Himself as Saviour of the world, as the only begotten Son of God, who came into the world that the world, through Him, might be saved. He states that all power is given Him and with a commission of authority. He sends forth His followers to carry on the gigantic task of salvation. He refers to Himself as being the bread of life, the water of life, the light of the world, and the way, truth and the life. He is even the resurrection and the life to come. His teachings about God and the love of a Heavenly Father have completely revolutionized the world. This alone is enough to lead us to know that of a certainty He is Saviour.

There have been many writers during the past nineteen centuries that have tried to prove that this fact is not true. The ancient Emperor Julian, back there in the fourth century, tried it and boasted that he would make a coffin for Christianity. Today Julian is dead, but Christ the Saviour lives on and maketh intercession at the Father's throne for mankind. In order to accomplish his threat, Julian went about killing Christians, with the hope of overthrowing the newly established kingdom of God on earth. At last, when he lay dying on the battlefield, he grasped a handful of sand, stained with the blood of his own body, and hurled it heavenward and exclaimed, "Thou hast conquered, O Nazarene!" Julian made a coffin, but was buried in it himself.

Napoleon at one time dazed the world with his military genius. It seemed as if nothing could stand before him. Armies melted before the vicious onslaught of his victorious armies, and even kings became victims of his military crusades. But at last, when conquered and banished to St. Helena, where he had time for much thought and meditation, he exclaimed: "I have conquered and controlled millions with the sway of my scepter; my word has been law to many nations, but among all those now, not one would die for me. But there is Jesus Christ, the Son of Joseph, who lived but thirty-three years upon earth, a life of brotherly love and kindness, and today millions would die for Him."

Voltaire, in his room in Paris, wrote, "In a year from now, God Almighty is going to see some sport in France." He prophesied that Christianity would soon be overthrown in France, because it was a myth, and that France would not tolerate such folly. He organized his forces to go out and drive Christianity from the land. Yet in less than thirty years from that time, the room in which Voltaire wrote the above was used for a Bible-study room and the printing press which was used in printing his blasphemous words was later used to print Bible tracts. Truly Voltaire built a coffin for his own burial, while Christianity, the greatest certainty of all certainties, goes marching on.

In the capital city of our nation stands a mighty shaft, which towers over five hundred feet into the air. It stands as a memory to our statesman and President George Washington. But some will ask how we know that George Washington ever lived. In reply, I say, "Behold the monument." Truly sensible Americans would not be so foolish as to erect such a monument to a myth. Behold, millions of people gather into the Church year after year. They come to the Communion table, they hold in their hearts a reverence for the house of the Lord, which is a monument to Him. Do you suppose these people of today and millions of past ages would be so foolish as to build Churches to a myth. Would they have built them if our Christ had not lived and died for us?

The great missionary enterprise, with its world program, is evidence that Christianity is of a certainty, a religion based upon unselfish motives. Its program is a testimony that Jesus lives and is to be Saviour of the whole wide world.

One cannot read His great commission as recorded by St. Matthew and not know that Jesus is the Saviour of the world. No other individual ever sent men forth to preach, teach, heal, to live and love others. No one else ever said, "Do unto others as ye would that men do unto you." No one, save Jesus came that the world might have life, and have it more abundantly. No one save He had the grace of God so profoundly in His heart as to say, "Love your enemies," and then love them even to the extent of asking the Father to forgive those who placed Him on the cross.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

EASTERN VA. MISSIONARY RALLIES.

The Woman's Missionary Rallies of the Christian Church have come to be quite an epoch in our missionary and Church history. Last week the women of Eastern Virginia held theirs in four districts.

Mrs. H. C. Caviness, Portsmouth, Va., presided over the rally which assembled with First Church, Norfolk, Rev. J. E. McCauley, pastor. The session was exceedingly interesting, entertaining and largely attended, one hundred and forty-five delegates and visitors occupying seats at the luncheon table at the noon hour. Every Church in the district save one was well represented, and all the pastors of the district were present, save one. The theme of this and all the other rallies this year is, "Builders in the New Day." Mrs. Caviness read a very suggestive paper in presenting her message as superintendent. Mrs. J. W. Manning, of Norfolk, conducted the devotionals in a spirit of due reverence and solemnity, profitable to all. The posters on display were beautiful and striking, and we understand that Mrs. Manning was responsible for this very valuable feature. Mrs. Martin, president of the Baptist State Board of Missions, gave an interesting address. There was special music on the program and a discussion as to how to organize the four societies of every Church was very helpful. This is that for which the rallies are held, mainly to increase interest in the societies that exist, so as to be able to reach Churches and groups that are not organized and interested.

The Nansemond district met at Oakland Wednesday, April 2nd. Mrs. B. D. Jones is the superintendent, and her paper on "Building" is presented in The Sun elsewhere. Mrs. W. C. Hook, of Holland, Va., conducted the devotionals impressively and brought the audience to realize that if we are to build safely we must give prayer a large place in that building. Messages were read from missionaries in Japan and Porto Rico, as well as in the home field, and Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, of Suffolk Church, gave an informative address on the new points in the foreign field, of which we Christians are to be a part, along with the Congregationalists. Mrs. Joyner, of Norfolk, a returned missionary from India, gave a talk that was very suggestive and helpful. Mrs. R. T. Bradford read a paper which The Sun is to print on "Plans and Specifications for Our Building." Practical discussion and reports were pointed and helpful. Every Church in the district, with an organization, was represented.

The Franklin district met on Thursday at Mt. Carmel, with Mrs. W. D. Harward as superintendent. The day was very rainy and disagreeable without, but a group of about seventy-five, representing all but one or two of the organizations in the district, assembled. Mt. Carmel Church, with its accustomed hospitality, spread a bountiful dinner, and the regret was that the abundance of food could not be turned into missionary assets to feed hungry souls, as there were not enough hungry bodies there to consume hardly a fractional portion. Mrs. E. B. White led the devotionals, and there was special music for the day. There was a very interesting and lively discussion as to how to organize in the Churches not having missionary organizations. Mrs. E. L. Beale, of Franklin, discussed "Plans and Specifications," using a chart of her own design, which was helpful to all. Mrs. J. A. Williams presented "Life Membership and memorials," which The Sun carries elsewhere.

Bro. J. M. Darden, Assistant Mission Secretary, gave a very suggestive and inspiring address on "Hope," showing that if we are to succeed in our missionary and all Christian work, we must not despair, but go at our task constantly with hope. Bro. Darden attended three of the rallies, and with his fine enthusiasm greatly encouraged the women in their work. He has made a challenge to the women of the Eastern Virginia Conference that he will give to missions, through their Board, this year dollar for dollar for all that they will give over and above their goal of $7,000. For example: if they raise $7,500, he will give $500; if they raise $8,000, he will give $1,000, thus making the increase for missions in the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference 20 per cent this year, if the women will increase 10 per cent.

The rally at Dendron was presided over and beautifully conducted by Miss Louise Pittman. Miss Pittman worked very faithfully to get societies and ministers of her district to be present, and also adapted the program to local conditions. The special music was beautiful and inspiring. There were messages from our mission fields. The Sun has for print that by Miss Virginia Cockes. Rev. F. C. Lester gave the address on "Plans and Specifications," with the use of a large map showing plans that we have in the foreign field, and the methods we must employ to support them. The Mission Secretary received much inspiration from this and the other meetings, as the women were so much interested and so enthusiastic in their work.

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, treasurer of the Conference, attended all the rallies. Mrs. L. W. Stagg, secretary, attended three of the rallies, and in each rally there were those who attended some of the other rallies, bringing greetings and good-fellowship. The meetings were wonderful, and the women are more determined than ever to reach their goal this year, even through adverse circumstances.

The Mission Secretary had as the subject of his address at each of the rallies, "The Solitary Builder in a New Day."

These rallies enable the Woman's Board and the annual Conference to carry their message to smaller groups, and to the local Church, and have grown into larger meetings and a real institution. The Woman's Missionary meetings are spirited because they are engaged solely in a spiritual task—making known their Lord and His life to those who do not know Him. J. O. A.

FINANCING THE KINGDOM.

God has chosen and adopted His own plan for financing His kingdom on earth. It is simply the plan of self-denial. This was exemplified in the crucifixion of His Son. He did not spare His beloved. He laid upon Him the necessity and the awful ordeal of absolute and total self-denial. On the cross, He gave all and suffered all.

God will establish, promote, finance His kingdom and the work of it in no other way. If we are to have a part in helping to finance His kingdom, and it requires finance and a great deal of it, we must practice self-denial. We are an indulgent and luxury-loving people. Thirty-seven per cent of every dollar we spend, we are told, goes for luxuries. What if the people of the Christian Churches would deny themselves for fifteen days of ice cream, cold drinks, candies, tobacco, meat for two Sunday dinners, week-end pleasure trips, the gas and oil necessary to carry them: and give the saving to missions! We would have all our mission money and much over our goal. And we would be better off for the experience, besides being happy in the thought of having shared with our Lord in financing His kingdom. Doing God's will and sharing His program always bring joy and happiness.

Why not select some items we are accustomed to use and spend our money for, deny ourselves of them for fifteen days and give the results to missions? This is a practical way of denying ourselves for the sake of our Lord. J. O. A.

THE GUSHER.

Oklahoma's largest gusher has been tamed! It was a spectacular event. The "well" got active March 26th by spouting into the air 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Soon the gas spout was succeeded by oil, and 2,000 barrels of oil per hour were shooting into the air, and for more than a week defied all efforts at being tamed, capped or conquered.

On April 4th the press carried the news that the gusher was tamed, but that "a wide territory around the gusher is knee-deep in oil and the earth has soaked up many thousand barrels." With immense and ponderous steel hoods over the gusher, they will be able to at least save the oil and pump it into gas lines as it gushes forth at the rate of more than 48,000 barrels of oil per day.

The earth is abundant in riches, and the resources of God are past computation and past finding out. There are no limitations to His creative powers. The artist works with brush and paint, and after hours, maybe days, beautifully colors a piece of canvas 20x30 inches. God lets His earth sleep over night or through a few winter months, and then floods fields and forest, lawns and gardens with a wild revelry of color—acres and miles and stretches of it.

God is abundant in resources, and the cattle upon a thousand hills are His. He has blessed His earth with abundance, and only the wickedness and waste and ignorance of man limits Him in His rich provision for our needs. J. O. A.

IS THIS TRUE?

"Now is the best and most opportune time we have ever had for a missionary offering," said a minister recently. "When times are prosperous, there is little or no sacrifice, no self-denial, in giving to the cause of righteousness. Now, when there is a feeling of financial depression, there must be sacrifice, crucifixion, self-denial, if we are to give. When Jesus looked out on the unsaved multitude, He said, 'How plenteous the harvest.' The difficulties before Him and the obstacles in His way were His invitation and opportunity. This is why God sends and allows depression—that He may have His way with us, through our crucifixion, through our self-denial."

Was Jesus Christ correct in His inference? Is it a time of testing? Is the opportunity now for self-denial the best we have known in a long time? If so, who and how many will stand the test and will deny themselves for the sake of their Lord? J. O. A.

THE PREACHER'S PREPARATION.

The divine call to the ministry is the birth of the preacher. If the matter stops there, the pulpit suffers loss. The apostles had a divine call —Jesus called them. Then followed their preparation to carry on without His personal presence. But they had three years with Him as their Teacher, their Example, and their Helper. Now, just a three-year course of preparation!

Three years to develop spiritual contact with Jesus in His thought, His mission, and His methods. Spiritual life can be developed as well as physical life, and intellectual life. The Christian way of living, of thinking, of praying, and dependence upon God, as Father, should become a part of the experience of those who feel called to preach. Three years are not too much to settle the matter of the call and to satisfy the heart that no mistake has been made in that deep inner conviction that "woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel" (1 Cor. 9:16). That conviction is strengthened by the cultivation of a willing surrender to the will of God. No great lifework should be entered into hastily. It takes time to mature any great question, and the question of a divine call to preach the gospel is a great question. Contact with Jesus Christ through His word and His spirit for three full years will settle the question within the life of the one called.

Three years with the people. Jesus spent three years going about among the people. His contact with the people drew them to Him, increased His interest in them, and laid the foundation for His useful ministry. It tested His work among the people. The publican in his office and the fishermen with their boats and nets did not know much about the folks in their daily life, their temptations, their sufferings, their sins, and the longings of their souls for something beyond their homes and their work. But by association with Jesus they entered into a new experience of what it meant when He said, "Follow me."

Out in the country, down the streets and lanes of the city, they came in contact with the people in ways that increased their sympathy for them and their love for men. Fishing was honorable and interesting as a business, but entering into the experience of men deepened their sense of human values and their obligation to human needs. Man is never his best till he loses himself in other people and shares with them his best experiences.

Life with Jesus and the people is the work of the preacher. These are the two personalities that unite in a spiritual ministry. In this preparation, education in schools, in books, and especially in the Bible, build up a well-balanced pulpit ministry and pastoral service. When the preacher and Jesus go together and work together, sinners will be converted, Christians built up in their most holy faith, and the Church grow in numbers and spiritual influence. The matter of preparation embraces all the rest until the work for life begins as a pastor. A pulpit with the Bible, the divinely called preacher, Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit, is a power that Satan cannot overthrow. W. W. S.

PORTO RICO.

By Miss Virginia Cockes.

(Presented at Dendron, Va., Missionary Rally.)

There are three missionaries—Rev. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett and Miss Victoria Adams; five native pastors, and three women helpers working in Porto Rico. We have seven main stations and ten outposts, with a total of one thousand and fifty in Sunday School and a Church membership of 447. The Porto Rico Church raised one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six dollars and eight cents for the work this year. And we're not forgetting the children of Porto Rico. Their need is greater than ever because of the hurricane of 1928, which has left many of them undernourished in both body and soul. Mr. Minton says, "It is a glorious thing to realize for the first time in our history that we are now supporting work in a dozen different countries." In a very true sense, the Christian Church has the opportunity to go into all the world this year with the gospel of Jesus Christ. First Corinthians, 1st chapter and 20th through 27th verses, asks us: "Where is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this world? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? For after that, in the wisdom of God, the world, by wisdom, knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. For the Jews require a sign, and the Greek seek after wisdom: but we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness. But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God. Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men. For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called. But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty."

It is through Rev. D. P. Barrett, one of our first missionaries, preaching what Paul called "foolishness of the gospel," that we have the privilege of reading to you a message from one among the great number that have been won thereby.

GREETINGS FROM JUAN R. ROMERO.

Salinas, P. R., March 19, 1930.

To the Women and Young People of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference:

I was pleased when your secretary wrote and asked me to let you know how I feel you have built in Porto Rico. I have to make a great effort for I am afraid to make too many mistakes in a language not my own. My message will be poor, and I would be glad if all mistakes were suppressed. But I do love the English language even if it is hard for me.

You, dear people in the States, have built well on our little island. Under unfavorable conditions, Rev. and Mrs. Barrett came thirty years ago when the people's minds were "blank" in regard to Christian knowledge, for only the Roman Catholic Church had prevailed here. Although they almost could not understand the Spanish language, they soon gathered a little group around them, and people made the comparison between the cold, formal Catholic Church and the vivid, spiritual Christian services.

By this time I was eight years old. I was born in Ponce from Roman Catholic and Spiritualist parents both at once; so you see my spiritual environment was not good at all. When I went to the Roman Church I wondered why people worshiped and depended on images. This did not satisfy me. With a little friend, I went a few times to the young Christian Church. He is now an able man living in the States. I loved to hear the message of salvation. Soon I became a regular attendant, and Rev. Barrett baptized me when I was twelve years old. I was so happy, and a great passion for souls grew in my heart. I worked and studied hard. My first pastorate was at Santa Isabel, where your young people helped so nobly. By the grace of the Lord, I was used here, and some of the best people in the town were converted while I worked there. I am not boasting, for I am nothing at all except what the Christian Church in Porto Rico made me.

We are too much obliged to you people, of course, and grateful for your constant interest in our behalf. Both the native and American workers are showing a fine spirit in building on the sound foundation you good people have started. Our people love to give, but they are so poor, the widow's mite is all some of them can do.

Yes, dear co-workers, many precious souls have been and are being saved through your efforts to serve, give and send.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Juan R. Romero.

THE SUN LETTER.

On February 1st the circulation manager offered a prize of a nice $15.00 handbag to the pastor who would send in the largest list of new subscribers and renewals by the first of March, and a $10.00 gold coin to the one who would send in the second largest list. We were delayed in getting out a copy of the mailing list to the pastors, and to make it fair to all, the time was extended to April the first, and the contest closed on that date. Those who were active in the contest were as follows:

Rev. R. A. Whitten, Reidsville, N. C...$119.00
Rev. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va..... 114.00
Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.... 94.50
Rev. R. E. Brittle, Cypress Chapel, Va.. 70.00

The first prize will be awarded to Rev. R. A. Whitten. The second prize will be awarded to Rev. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va.

We appreciate the splendid work these brethren have done, as it has been quite a help to us in financing The Sun. We are going to make another offer next week. Look out for it.

Chas. D. Johnston,
Circulation Manager.

R. O. T. C. GROWS.

In spite of considerable efforts to arouse public opinion against military training in American colleges and schools, the enrollment of the reserve officers' training corps in educational institutions shows an increase, according to a report of the Committee on Militarism in Education, an organization, with Prof. George A. Coe as chairman, formed to oppose military training in the schools. The figures, as quoted by the committee, show that in June, 1923, the enrollment of the R. O. T. C. was 92,851; in September, 1927, the figures had grown to 124,833; in 1929 it reached 126,453, and 1,825 army officers or men are assigned to various educational institutions to give instruction in the various units of the R. O. T. C.—Federal Council News.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

On a brief call at the home of Col. J. E. West this morning, as I was leaving I said, "I must go, it is Saturday, and I have not written for THE CHRISTIAN SUN; give me a subject." They said, "Go on and write your Suffolk Letter." I replied, "I usually write on paper." Then I thought of the paper world, and I am now writing this letter on "Paper." The name of paper is derived from papyrus, an Egyptian plant from which writing paper was first made. The paper was made from thin pellicles lying between the rind and the pith. Slices of these were laid down, and others across them, the same being moistened with Nile water, pressed and dried, and then smoothed by rubbing with ivory or a smooth shell. About the middle of the nineteenth century, remains of classical Greek authors were found in a subterranean passage at Dein el Bahari, near Thebes. Among them was almost the whole of a lost but famous work of Aristotle on the "Constitution of Athens."

The material out of which paper is made at the present time may be divided into three classes —(1) rags, composed of cotton, linen and hemp fibers; (2) esparto (a grass), straw, and bamboo; (3) jute and wood. The first manufacture of rag paper in Europe was in Spain, under the Moors, and in 1154 there was a paper mill at Jatira. Then followed paper-making in Italy, France, and Germany. A mill at Stevenage, in England, in 1460, but little is known of paper-making in England till 1558, when there was a mill at Dartford. When it did begin in England, it developed rapidly. On account of the cold climate of England and the use of woolen cloothes, it became necessary to import esparto to make paper. In 1861, 891 tons were imported; in 1880, 191,229 tons, and 248,839 tons in 1888. This shows the increase in making paper in England. Then followed the use of wood pulp, and that is now used in large quantities. This was discovered in 1867 by Tilghman, a Philadelphian chemist. Fir, spruce, and pine trees yield cellulose suited for making paper. In 1909, 4,002,000 cords of wood were used in making paper, and it has been on the increase from that time until the present time.

The first paper mill in the United States was in Philadelphia district in 1690, and in 1770 there were forty mills in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, and only three or four in New England. In 1830 there were 426 mills, and in 1872 812, and in 1902 there were 945 paper mills in the United States. The manufacture of paper is a vast business and on the increase all the time.

The use of paper is measured by the manufacture of paper. In 1911 this country imported 869,955 cords of wood for pulp, to say nothing of the wood used from our own land. It is too vast for us to comprehend it. Now, when you think of the paper used in printing books, newspapers, advertising, and for blank-books and letters, you will see that I am writing "on paper." Think of just one use of paper in printing Bibles in more than seven hundred languages and dialects, published in larger numbers than any other book and sent to all parts of the world! Think of the letters sent through the daily mail, and the stamps are made of paper, too! Then think of the printing presses, manufactured, the type and typewriters, and you will see that paper is one of the biggest things in the world. Think of the paper boxes and what they contain, and how they are sent by train, ship, and mail, and you get into a world of great business; and think of the people paper employs in mill, train, store, office, Sunday School, and home.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The Elon commencement for 1930 begins on Saturday evening, May 24th, with the oratoria by the department of music. On Sunday morning, Dr. Fred B. Smith, co-moderator of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, will preach the baccalaureate sermon. Prof. C. J. Velie will give the organ vesper recital that afternoon, and at night the undersigned will give the annual baccalaureate address.

Monday morning at 10 o'clock the senior class, sixty-two in number, will give their class-day program. That afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the juniors will give their essays or orations as representatives of the literary societies. At night Rev. Wm. T. Scott will give the alumni oration. That afternoon President F. F. Myrick, of the General Alumni Association, will preside over the annual meeting of the association, and at 6 P. M. will be toastmaster at the alumni banquet. It is hoped that a great number of the alumni will return this year for the home-coming.

As usual, Tuesday, May 27th will be commencement day. Degrees will be conferred and the literary address will be delivered by Dr. W. D. Hooper, president of the University of Georgia.

We invite our friends to come to the commencement and help us to make it a glad and memorable occasion.

W. A. HARPER.

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE LETTER.

In the imagination of every intelligent citizen there are images of two Americas. There is the America of experience, marred by vast ignorance and folly, disfigured by every form of iniquity and wrong-doing, ugly with vice, crime, cruelty, and inhumanity. Besides this image, there is another—that of the ideal America, in pursuit of truth, lifting up its vision to the highest ideals, heart and soul a believer in those ideals, the great prophet of the humanity of man, the sublime servant of God in God's world.

If our educational institutions are to justify their existence, they must implant images of a better and worthier America in the minds of boys and girls, young men and young women, that a mightier harvest of nobler citizens, nobler in intellect and purpose may result. All education is fooling for Americans that does not have this straight, solemn, sovereign issue and should have no claim on our support on any other ground.

We have here the judgment day for our Churches. In the World War many Churches failed to see that the contest was between humanity and inhumanity, freedom and bondage, the serfdom of the race and the sovereignty of its manhood. This was a calamity for the nation and a calamity for the Churches; for there is one sin that society remembers against the Church longer than anything else, and that is infidelity to the country in its distress, by moonshine talk about a "higher ideal." All religion worth anything must stand, in our country at least, as the interpreter, illuminator, inspirer, and prophetic servant of the State.

After our relation to the Infinite comes our relation to the American republic. Just as surely as the life of a great Atlantic liner is dependent upon the iron plates and the structural strength of them, so the American republic is dependent finally upon the intellect and the character of our citizens. All educational institutions come here for judgment, all citizens and all individuals come here for judgment. All citizens are concerned with the mind and conscience of the American people.

All American citizens are concerned with the feeling of the American people, whether the store of feeling is enmity, cruelty, inhumanity, or whether this store is good will, brotherly feeling and hope. And all American citizens are concerned with the will, the ultimate power in the American people, that which makes character, either good or bad. To say that the political life, not in the partisan sense, is outside of the range of the pulpit is simply superlative nonsense. The life of this country is the sphere of ethics and religion, and the preacher who does not preach nonpartisan politics is a traitor to his highest cause.

Wadley, Ala. S. L. BEOUGHER.

VALLEY LETTER.

A group of five ministers and thirty-one delegates from the various Churches in the Virginia Valley Central Christian Conference met at Bethlehem Christian Church Thursday, March 27th, with a committee of five laymen appointed by the Conference to consider the grouping of the Churches of the Conference into convenient pastorates. Talks were made showing the unnecessary loss of time and money sustained by the various pastors in doing their work on account of the scattered field now being served by each country pastor, and also the loss to the work itself. While it did not seem possible to complete the grouping at this meeting, steps were taken in that direction which it is hoped will in due time result in a grouping that will benefit both pastors and Churches.

With the passing of winter and the coming of the balmier days of spring, we are trying to speed up again in our Church work. It is always my purpose to spend as much time at home as I can during the worst of the winter, trying to catch up a little with reading and study. However, so many extra duties have come along this winter that I have not gotten much done in my study.

It was my privilege recently to be with Rev. B. J. Earp in a good meeting at Whistler's Chapel. It was a great pleasure to meet with the people there again where I preached years ago when I was a bran-new preacher and for some years after the newness had worn off.

For the past three weeks, it has been my privilege to be associated with Rev. R. A. Whitten in making a canvass for Elon College in my field and in some other parts of the Conference. Bro. Whitten is a fine fellow, very agreeable and reasonable in presenting the claims and needs of the college, and makes friends for the college and himself wherever he goes. The general financial depression has made his work here rather hard, and sometimes a little discouraging, but I think, as a rule, the response of the people has been in proportion to their ability, considering the many other urgent calls that must be heeded. Bro. Whitten secured something over $500 in cash and pledges during his visit here. I am so sorry it could not have been at least twice that amount. I know the college stands in dire need at this time and great issues hang upon the financial response of our people. It would indeed be a calamity to let the college lose its standing in the Association of Colleges, and allow its credit to fade. I am also anxious that our people shall stand loyally by every great enterprise of the Church. We cannot afford to let one of them suffer, even though it requires sacrifice on our part.

We are now in the midst of the mission period of our Church. Missions is another one of our great enterprises. Among the many great and worth-while calls that come to us, surely there is none of greater importance than this. Those who are starving spiritually must be fed soon or they die without the gospel. How shall they hear without a preacher? How shall they preach unless they are sent? How shall they be sent without self-sacrifice and self-denial and loyalty on the part of our people? I am deeply interested in the outcome of this mission period in our Church, and do hope that the people of this Conference will do their very best.

A. W. ANDES.

HISTORY OF RICHMOND CHURCH.

The First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., came into being in the year 1920. It was at a time when Churches generally were enthusiastic and exercised over the raising of money. Amongst us the "Men and Millions Forward Movement" was at high tide. Soon after our organization, the Southern Christian Convention apportioned $650 as the amount to be raised by this Church, to be paid within five years. We felt so prosperous that we voted to make the amount $1,000. And availing ourselves of this so favorable opportunity, a canvass for a building fund was made, which resulted in pledges to the amount of $6,924, but the canvass was continued a short while and the amount increased to between $9,000 and $10,000.

In September, 1920, representatives from the Church were sent to Suffolk, Va., to meet the Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention at the Christian Church in that city. At this meeting, after the preliminaries—calling to order, calling the roll of the Board, welcoming the visitors and petitioners—it came our turn to lay before the Board our plans and needs.

Now, this Mission Board was composed of dignitaries both of Church and State. It inspired us with awe and reverence. Picked men, the flower of the Church, were petitioners and suppliants. We proceeded to make our wants known, somewhat after this manner:

Our lot will cost $20,000, and we shall need $50,000 for Church building; a total of $70,000, in addition to our own pledges of $10,000. Nothing less will give us standing in the community.

The chairman of the Board dropped his face into his hands, and afterwards remarked that our presentation and statement absolutely took his breath.

At the quarterly conference of the Church, held September 29, 1922, arrangements for laying the corner-stone were made, and the ceremony duly followed. The address on this occasion was delivered by Dr. W. A. Harper. Our first building and grounds cost, in round numbers, $100,000. From the Woman's Mission Board the Church received about $30,000.

This Church building was opened September 30, 1923, with an all-day service. The speakers on that occasion were Dr. R. C. Helfenstein, Dr. L. E. Smith, Governor Lee Trinkle, and others. The first quarterly conference was held in the new Church October 3, 1923, with fourteen members present.

Plans for the Sunday School annex were submitted and approved January 23, 1924, which later were revised and executed. And as a result, we now have our commodious Sunday School equipment. The Sunday School, as per specifications, cost $40,000. Thus, the whole Church plant stands the congregation more than $150,000.

In the meantime, during the year 1924-1925, Mr. P. J. Carlton presented the Church with a substantial parsonage, located at 3206 Grove Avenue, at a cost of more than $10,000. Our Church plant, with equipment and furnishings, will easily make the valuation $175,000.

This Church, up to this time, has been served by two pastors—the first, five and a half years, and the present pastor four and a half years.

The Sunday School enrollment is now 150, with Rev. H. G. Robertson superintendent and director, and the membership of the Church is 150, with Dr. C. C. Ryan, pastor.

The usual auxiliaries in connection with Church work have been reasonably sustained. The Church has been regularly represented in the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference since it became a member of the Conference, and has met the financial requirements imposed by the same.

P. J. K.

"DOLLS" FOR ROYALTY.

In Tokyo, on March 3rd, Viscount Shibusawa presented to the Empress Dowager of Japan and the Princess Takamatsu, wife of a brother of the Emperor of Japan, especially bound copies of "Dolls of Friendship," according to a cablegram received by Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, of the Federal Council of Churches. The occasion was the annual "Doll Festival Day." The volume tells the story of the reception in Japan of the 13,000 American doll messengers of friendship that went from the United States in 1927 under the auspices of the Committee on World Friendship Among Children, to attend the doll festival that year, and were distributed to nearly 13,000 primary schools. It also tells the story of the fifty-eight superb doll ambassadors of good will that came to the United States from more than two million Japanese children to express their good will to the young people of America.

The distinguished persons to whom these volumes were presented took significant parts in that unique adventure in international good will through the mediation of dolls. The Empress Dowager took keen interest in the project and her distinguished patronage had much to do with making the nation-wide receptions so enthusiastic. Princess Chichibu, then Miss Matsudaira, living in Washington with her father, the ambassador from Japan, represented the young people of her country in presenting "Miss Japan" to the children of the United States at the official public reception of the Japanese doll ambassadors in Washington, D. C. Princess Teru, the young daughter of the emperor and empress, was given "Miss America," and in that connection forty-eight American dolls went to the imperial palace as "Miss America's" retinue. They remained there an entire week while Princess Teru and the various members of the imperial family had opportunity to see the exhibit. Princess Takamatsu, then Miss Tokugawa, took a leading part as representing all the children of Japan in the official reception in Tokyo to the American dolls.

The Committee on World Friendship Among Children had four copies of the volume, "Dolls of Friendship," especially bound in deep-red leather with golden trimmings for presentation on the annual doll festival day as a reminder to some of the principal Japanese actors in the episode.

—Federal Council News.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 — The three wise men

carrying away into Băb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Băb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅝x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

MY SELF-DENIAL.

(If the following appeals to our SUN readers, let him or her keep the paper, mark with X the article or articles he will deny himself of for fifteen days and give the result to missions.)

According to current statements, thirty-seven per cent of every dollar we spend goes for "luxuries," such as ice-cream, candies, tobacco, banquets, desserts, theaters, fancy clothing, week-end and pleasure trips, automobiles (used for pleasure trips), gasoline, radios, tennis, golf, etc. It is true, that I do not indulge in all of these things, but I do in some of them. My Church needs more of my money than it is getting. The kingdom needs a larger and a more generous support. I need to practice self-denial for my God. I need to live more economically than I do. I need thorough self-denial to come closer to my Lord.

Therefore, in order that I may be able to give more largely and see if I can live more economically, I agree to deny myself for fifteen days, beginning ..... and closing..... of the articles marked X below. I will keep a correct account of my savings by such denials, and will, the Lord helping, turn in the same at the Church.....Sunday of....., the same to go to missions, that is to help give the gospel to others. I do this solely out of love to, and for the sake of, my Lord.

I will practice self-denial, God helping me, for the fifteen days indicated above, in the articles I mark with an X below: ice cream.., candies.., cold drinks (Coca-Cola, ginger ale, etc.).., tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, etc.., meats for Sunday dinners.., desserts for Sunday dinners.., moving pictures.., theaters.., clothing such as I can well do without for the time.., week-end trips, gas for Sunday trips or afternoon drives.., pleasure trips.., golf games.., automobile expenses.., or ..... (Signed)....., (Address).....

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING APRIL 5, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$2,323.24
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.....	2.41
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.....	1.00
Wood's Chapel, New Market, Va.....	1.00
Parks' Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.....	6.78
Richmond, Va.	13.41
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
Reidsville, N. C.	8.29
Auburn, N. C.	3.40
Henderson, N. C.	5.55
Wadley, Ala.	1.82
Lebanon, Milton, N. C.....	1.50
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.....	6.00
Total	$2,399.40

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 597.31
Member Cary Church, Cary, N. C.....	1.00
Total	$ 598.31

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$6,633.89
Sunday Schools, regular	76.16
Individual and Church collections.....	1.00
Total to date	$6,711.05

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS AND MEMORIALS.

This department of the Woman's Missionary Convention might be divided into three parts, and we can well call them love, service and joy.

First let us consider the love that comes of these memberships. We read Gal. 5:13, "By love serve one another." In the Woman's Missionary Society, how better could the members show their love and appreciation for the service of their president, treasurer or the pastor's wife than to present her with a life membership certificate entitling her to be a voting member of the Woman's Missionary Convention as long as she lives? Or suppose your society wishes to memorialize a beloved member who has passed on to the great beyond. There is no better way than, perhaps none quite so good as to pay into the treasury the fee of $10.00. Along with the fee goes the name of the person to be honored and so memorialized. The name is entered on the roll of the local society and on the roll of the Woman's Board of the Southern Christian Convention, either as a life member or as a memorial to some member, as the case may be. If it is a life member, she receives a certificate of membership issued and signed by the president of the Woman's Board and the superintendent of the life membership and memorial department. If it is a memorial, the family or nearest relative receives the certificate.

Second, service (read John 15:13). The department of life membership and memorials is exceedingly appealing. The money contributed for this purpose is to be placed into an endowment fund to be used when needed to take care of our retired, aged or disabled missionaries. Those courageous ones who in young manhood and womanhood have heard the call of the Master, "Go ye," left home, loved ones and every thing which seems to us so dear in our beloved country, choosing to take up their cross and follow Him to distant lands, where they are spending their lives in sacrificial service, doing their work and ours.

Third, joy. What a debt we owe our missionaries! What a joy we can make this department, both to them and to ourselves; to them the joy will come when they return home, and no doubt they will need some assistance in their declining years. May we seriously consider this department, remembering "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Surely the givers will receive great joy, for honoring the life members and memorializing their deceased members, and they will have the blessed assurance of comforting our missionaries. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these ye have done it unto me."

MRS. J. A. WILLIAMS.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONVENTION MEETS TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1930, 10 A. M., WITH UNITED CHURCH, RALEIGH, N. C.

Forenoon Session.

Convention Called to order 10 A. M.
Song Service.
Worship.
Roll Call, and Enrollment of Delegates.
Announcement of Committees.
Treasurer's Report—Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle.
Report of Finance Committee—Mrs. L. W. Stagg.
Report of Executive Committee—Mrs. J. A. Williams.
Report of Virginia Valley Central Conference—Mrs. R. A. Larrick.
Report of North Carolina Conference—Mrs. C. H. Rowland.
Report of Georgia and Alabama Conference—Mrs. T. F. Roquemore.
Report of Eastern Virginia Conference—Mrs. M. L. Bryant.
Report of Alabama Conference—Mrs. V. E. Kitchen.
Address—Miss Mary Preston, New York.
Special Music.
Address—"The Call for the Intensive," Mrs. John Ferguson, New York.

Afternoon Session.

Opening Service—Dr. W. P. Minton.
Report of Cradle Roll—Mrs. I. W. Johnson.
Report of Young People's Conference—Mrs. R. T. Bradford.
Report of Literature and Mite Boxes—Mrs. C. H. Caviness.
Report of Life Membership and Memorials—Mrs. M. J. W. White.
Report of Spiritual Life—Mrs. W. H. Carroll.
Report of Convention Editor—Mrs. W. M. Jay.
Address—Mrs. Clark P. Garmon, Japan.
Address—Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.
Reports of Committees.
Presentation of Banner.
Miscellaneous Business.
Reading of Minutes.
Closing Service.
(Banquet 6 to 7:30 P. M.)

Franklin, Va. MRS. J. A. WILLIAMS.

QUESTIONNAIRE.

(The following questions were presented to the rally of the Norfolk district last Tuesday by Mrs. M. L. Bryant, and each member had a copy, on which answers were finally written.)

When was the Woman's Board of the S. C. C. organized?
Name the committee that organized this board.
The first president.
The first definite foreign work.
The first definite home work.
How has the personnel of our work in Japan changed within the past ten years?
The same of Porto Rico.
Which of our four mission points in the U. S. is supported by the S. C. C.?
How much money was raised by the Woman's Board the past biennium?
How much money was raised by the Woman's Board of the E. Va. Conference the past year?
What special offering of the E. Va. Woman's Board created so much interest two years ago?
When and where was our first rally held? Our first missionary conference?
Have the rallies been worth while?
Which Church in the S. C. C. supports Miss Martha Stacy?
Which Church in this Conference supports two missionaries?
How many new fields have been added to our work since last October?
How many present take the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty?
What proud distinction does this combined paper hold?
How many Churches of this district were on the honor roll at Conference last fall?
Is there a president of any society present who feels it was a mistake to have her organization?
Shall we be content with having just half of the Churches in our district fully organized for missionary work?
What is preventing the other five from organizing?
Which department in the individual missionary society has done the most constructive work?
Do you think of missions as a duty or privilege?

IWADEYAMA PROGRESS.

Can you build a Church and parsonage in America for one thousand dollars? No, I do not mean ten thousand, nor twenty thousand; I mean one thousand. As a missionary, I had no idea it could be done in Japan until I saw it happen. But it cost more than that. It cost prayer and faith of a devoted pastor and twelve members of the Iwadeyama Christian Church. Only twelve, I said—come over and count them.

So far as the missionary end of the story begins, we need not go further back than January of 1929. At about that time I received a letter from Rev. U. Tanaka, of Iwadeyama, asking me to come for a conference on an important matter. Arriving in Iwadeyama, I found that the important matter was a plan to secure a more convenient building for Church services.

Mr. Tanaka received little encouragement from his missionary friend. With budgets cut to the limit, at the beginning of a very dubious financial year, I told Mr. Tanaka that I knew of absolutely no way that the mission could help, but that I would keep my eyes open and pray.

The first budget drawn up by the Iwadeyama Church people was constructed with the idea of purchasing a larger house than the one formerly rented. The plan was for the Church members to raise five hundred yen and solicit seven hundred yen from other sources. To put this into United States money means that the budget was six hundred dollars.

Five hundred yen was quickly pledged by the earnest Church workers, although, in the words of one of the fellow-pastors of Mr. Tanaka, "This was not given out of an abundance, but out of conditions from which many beautiful stories of sacrifice could be made." The "seven hundred yen from other sources" was brought to the attention of the mission and eventually to the attention of the foreign mission secretary. Three hundred dollars was dropped in from the mission secretary out of a building fund that the missionary involved did not know existed. With the advantage of exchange, this amounted to more than six hundred and fifty yen. The remainder of the seven hundred was made up from the rent that would have otherwise been expended this year on the old location.

About the time that this all got to the point of realization it was discovered that the purchase of the larger house could not be arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned. A tenant in the house refused to move and promised trouble if legal measures were resorted to in the effort to force removal. Besides, a canvass of the village resulted in pledges from outside parties of two hundred and fifty yen. A new idea came to the minds of the Church people and their leader. Why not build? A friendly contractor assisted in drawing up plans that looked much better than the building formerly considered. A house nearly as large as the old Church-parsonage that had been rented for a score or more of years could be built for the pastor and family, and a chapel quite large enough to house the congregation, Sunday School, kindergarten and other activities could all be built for approximately eighteen hundred yen, or $900.

Of course, building propositions usually run into larger figures than the original estimates call for. The Church and equipment finally required a budget of two thousand yen, or $1,000.

A kindergarten was opened in the new building in September. It now enrolls fifty Iwadeyama youngsters, with Mrs. Tanaka and a young woman of the city in charge. Sunday School and Church attendance has increased, and the good people of Iwadeyama are just as happy as this situation should make them.

To the missionary, the encouraging feature of this story is the fact that whereas the people of Iwadeyama first planned their budget in such a way as to ask seven hundred yen from the mission and to give five hundred yen themselves, in the proposition finally put across less than nine hundred yen came from the mission directly while eleven hundred yen or more was raised in Japan. We believe this indicates progress toward self-support.—Wm. Q. McKnight, in Missionary Herald.

MISSIONARY PROGRAM FOR APRIL.

Women's Societies.

Theme: "Kindness."

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Song—prayer—business.

1. Devotional period (Rom. 12:9-21).
2. Talk, "After School—What?"
3. Talk, "Whither Bound?"
4. Current news.
5. Poem, "Did You Give Him a Lift?"
6. Heart-to-heart message.

The talks, "After School—What?" "Whither Bound?" are both leaflets and found in the envelope of helps. If you do not have this envelope, you may secure them from Mrs. Emma S. Powers, Dayton, Ohio. These leaflets should be given in the speaker's own words, and much help for the first one may be secured from the article by Miss Helen M. Brickman in the March Herald of Gospel Liberty magazine number. It is entitled "The Jesus Road for the Young Indian." No. 5—this poem is found on page 18 of the Herald. No. 6—this heart-to-heart message comes with the envelope of helps.

Be sure to read Mrs. Morrill's suggestions for this program in the magazine number of the Herald. They are fine.

Young People's Societies.

"What is the Non-Christian World?"

Purpose: To discover in what area Christianity is still not being lived.

Program:

1. Hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign." Scripture, John 1:1-17. Hymn, "O Zion, Haste." Prayer by three members.
2. Project committee.
3. "What is the non-Christian world?"
4. Phases of the problem.
5. Special music (sacred).
6. "The Christian World and Politics, Industry, Peace and War, Race Relations."
7. "What is the non-Christian World?"
8. Sing again first verse of first hymn.
9. Benediction.

Suggestions:

Poster—at top write, "What is the Non-Christian World?" Below that sketch is a map of the world outlining the continents. Time, date.

3. Leader questions group as to their definitions of the non-Christian world.

4. Illustrations as to what the non-Christian world may be. Assign those found in chapter 7 of Y. & W. O., or any others that you have found in your reading. The Herald of Gospel Liberty for April will contain further helps.

5. Be sure that it fits the spirit of the service.

6. Ask four people to speak on these topics, allowing each person five minutes. Is Christianity applied in these fields? If it is not, what has been the result? How can it be applied? etc.

7. Leader sums up the thought, comments on connection between topic and Scripture lesson and asks the group to co-operate in formulating a definition of the non-Christian world and the Christian world.

Juniors or Willing Workers.

Theme: "Easter."

Song: (use Easter songs this month).

Call to worship: Awake, O north wind, and come thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out.

Response: For lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone, the flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come.

Prayer: Psa. 19:14.

Offering response.

We thank Thee, Father, for Thy care,
And for Thy bounty everywhere;
And so to Thee we bring our gift,
While grateful hearts to Thee we lift.

Song.

The Easter theme, and the thought of Christ's resurrection fits into the idea of carrying the good tidings, just as the early disciples did after the first Easter.

Stories: Finish study book, complete map work if possible. If an Easter story is desired, tell the story, "It Will Live Again," or other Easter story.

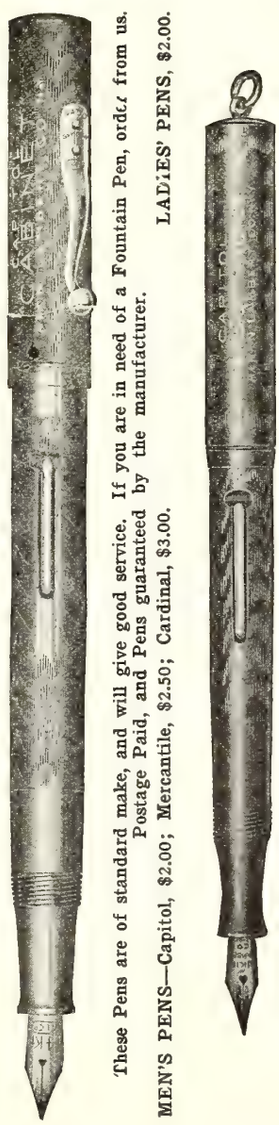
Closing song.

"THE FOOD'S THE THING"

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria

805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Opposite Richmond Hotel.



SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson III—April 20, 1930.

Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

Golden Text: "Forgive us our debts, as we have also forgiven our debtors."—Matt. 6:12.

Lesson: Matt. 18:15-35.

The problem of forgiveness is a very practical problem in actual life from two standpoints. First of all, there is the problem of forgiving those who have wronged us. People do not always practice the Golden Rule toward each other, and there is inevitably the problem of our attitude toward those who have wronged us. Should we forgive those who wrong us? If so, how often should we forgive them?

Then, there is the other problem of our being forgiven, both by man and by God. Especially must we consider the problem of forgiveness by God of the wrongs we have committed against Him. The matter of forgiveness is, therefore, a very practical matter.

It is a rather insistent problem, too, for man is so constituted that he craves that peace which can come only from living on right terms both with man and with God. The man who is conscious that he has not been forgiven for wrongs he has committed is dissatisfied and restless and unhappy, no matter how much he may have or where he may go.

Now, Simon Peter was concerned about the matter of forgiveness. He came to Jesus with the question as to just what were the limits of human forgiveness. "How oft," said he, "shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him?" Peter probably knew that the rabbis suggested that a man ought to forgive another at least three times; but he thought that he would go the "second mile," and more, and he added, "till seven times?" He probably felt rather well pleased with himself that he was willing to go so far. But, alas! Peter had missed the point entirely. Forgiveness is not a matter of calculation. It is not limited by numbers. As oft as a man sins against another and turns again in repentance, he is to be forgiven. "Until seventy times seven"—an unlimited number, says Jesus.

And then Jesus told a story in His inimitable way, a story that had tremendous point. It was the story of a man who owed a hopelessly unpayable debt who was called to account, and who because of a plea for mercy and a promise to pay, was released from his obligation. Here, of course, is the situation in which every thinking man finds himself in relation to God, and here is the attitude which God takes toward such as are of a contrite spirit. God hath not dealt with us after our sins or rewarded us according to our iniquities.

This man, who had just been forgiven of a debt of nineteen or twenty million dollars, as he went out, saw a man who owed him sixteen or saventeen dollars. He immediately grabbed him by the throat and demanded payment. In spite of the fact that his debtor made the same plea which he himself had just made, and in spite of the fact that he had just been forgiven, he had the fellow cast into prison till he should pay his debt. He who had been so freely forgiven was unwilling to forgive others. It seems like an overdrawn picture, but Jesus knew what He was talking about. There are those who have been forgiven freely by God who have later held grudges and an unforgiving spirit against their fellow-men. They refuse to give to others the forgiveness which God gives to them. And the ratio is just about what Jesus put it at—in terms of millions.

Jesus ends His story with a rather strange and striking statement: "So likewise shall my Heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every brother their trespasses." It looks arbitrary and cruel. It looks like a denial of what Jesus has just been saying about the forgiveness of God. But it is a fundamental principle lying at the center of forgiveness. Forgiveness is not a mechanical thing. It is the adjustment of personal relationships. If any one wants to know what it costs God to forgive sins let him look at the cross of Christ. Now, God is willing and eager to grant forgiveness to all His children, but forgiveness, even from God, is dependent upon an inner attitude, the possession of the right kind of spirit. Just as long, therefore, as a man is unwilling to forgive others, no matter what they have done, God will not, because He cannot, forgive such a man. The man automatically and effectively makes it impossible for God to forgive him, because his unforgiving spirit is a denial of the spirit that makes possible forgiveness. And after all, when we look at the matter clearly, does not God have to forgive us of far more than we are ever called upon to forgive our fellow-men? And is anything that keeps us from experiencing the forgiveness and the grace of God worth what it costs? Of all the short-sighted men, there is none to compare with the man who does not and will not forgive.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, April 20, 1930.

By Jewel Truitt.

Topic: "Why We Believe We Live Forever."

Scripture: John 11:23-26; Mark 12:26, 27.

Topics for talks:

1. The problem of life after death.
2. The belief in the resurrection in the early Church (read Acts, also Paul's Epistles).
3. The belief in the resurrection on the battlefield (read literature and poems connected with the World War).
4. What the resurrection means to us.

Helps on the topic—"A Song of Easter."

Sing that the winter is over,
Sing for the coming spring,
For the showers and flowers and beautiful hours,
And as flask of the robin's wing.
Sing for the gladness of Easter;
Lift up your voices and sing.

Deep in the heart of the forest,
Down at the roots of the trees,
There is the stir of violets coming,
And smile of anemones;
And many a kiss of fragrance
Goes out to the fragrant breeze.

Go, carry the tall white lilies,
And the roses brimming sweet,
To the Church where aisle and altar
Are sought by hastening feet.
Sing to the Lord of the Easter,
Who is coming your songs to meet.

—Margaret E. Sangster.

The word "easter" means dawn—the dawn of a new life in nature. Life is never so beautiful as when it is fresh in the springtime. Around us today the earth is waking from the long sleep of winter. The cold, biting winds have passed; plants and flowers are coming up and budding forth in search of light. The blossoms that we see today tell us that the miracle of spring is here and that death is giving place to a more abundant life.

As we see nature coming to new life in the springtime, the question of Job comes to our minds. "If a man die, shall he live again?" This question comes to every age; it is a question that each heart asks. Let us seek some answer to our question.

If we ask science the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" we get the answer, "Yes, he may live again. If God can bring life to the tiny seeds that lie buried in the earth, will He neglect the soul of man?"

Philosophy says that man hopes to live again. Death cuts man off in the midst of his labors. Surely, God will let man finish the work he has begun.

Ethics says that man ought to live again. Man suffers much for the right; man does not live to see his hopes realized. God ought to give a time for recompense.

Finally, Jesus gives us a full assurance for the hope of a future life. "He that heareth my word and believeth on Him that sent me hath everlasting life" (John 5:24). "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" (John 11:25). "Let not you heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also" (John 14:1-3).

Just think how the resurrection of only one Man has lightened all the darkness of the world! When the ideal Man went to the grave and came back unchanged, a crushing burden was lifted off every heart. Consequently, Easter is the great festive of the Church. It is a time of great rejoicing.

"Instead of being surprised that there was a resurrection on Easter morning, let us ask ourselves if it would not have been more surprising if there had been no resurrrection. Would it not indeed have been amazing if the life of Christ had come to a full stop on the day of the crucifixion? Of course, if that life had come to such a stop, we should never have heard of the life at all; but how amazing to think that a life like Jesus' could stop! Peter had the right angle from which to view the resurrection when he declared that it was impossible for death to hold Christ."

—F. J. McConnell.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY.

Plans for the young people's banquet on Thursday night during the Southern Christian Convention are well under way. Several young people and leaders of young people have been invited to speak. Miss Pattie Coghill, former field secretary to our Board, a real leader and an eloquent speaker, is to be present and to speak for us. Miss Marguerite Davison, a charming young woman, who is a field worker for the Congregationalists in Georgia and Alabama, also has accepted an invitation to speak. And there will be others.

Then, think of the music, stories, and eats! It will be an evening long to be remembered.

The time has come for young people in the Chrsitian Church of the Southland to get together and work together. They are doing a fine work in missionary societies and Christian Endeavor, but there is a much larger work that can be accomplished. Up in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois the young people are doing wonders. It gives one a real thrill to read the bulletins sent out by some of these groups. (If you want a copy, send me a request.)

Our Southern young people are just as good as any. You can do things for Christ and the Church, too. The Convention has given the challenge. How many of you will be at the banquet? This is your chance to begin a bigger and better program for youth in our Church. Meet me in Raleigh, N. C., May 1, 1930.

F. C. Lester, Ch'n.

NEWS NOTES.

A letter from Mabel Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Barrett, of Porto Rico, to the field secretary last week is brimful of good C. E. news. So that all may get the benefit of the news and profit by it if we are Endeavorers, her letter is quoted in part:

"As the music committee was in charge of the program last Friday (they have their meeting on Friday evening in Ponce), we decided to emphasize the musical part of the program. About a quarter of eight we were all assembled in our regular meeting room. Singing 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' we marched into the larger room. The platform was arranged so as to represent a living-room as much as possible; floors and table lamps, chairs, tables, a radio, plants, flowers, and a rug. It really looked cozy. We remained standing for a minute of meditation, and after a prayer we continued with the program.

"The topic used was, 'Why and How Win Others to Christ?' Each question was answered by two of our most capable members, who along with the leaders were, in the course of the program, having a 'quiet evening at home' in the 'platform living-room.' One of the ways in which the gospel can reach others is by the radio, so we turned our conversation off and tuned in on Station C. E., broadcasting from Ponce, to see if we could get anything worth-while. After listening to Jesse Crawford playing 'Meditation' on the Wurlitzer organ, several other members took part in the discussion of the topic. Examples of how and why win others for Christ were given. Questions, assigned before the meeting, were answered by some of the young folks in a way that showed they were really interested and had given the topic more than a mental glance. We had these talks and music alternately from our radio, so that no one was tired of either thing. The last number over the radio was a trio, 'Since Jesus Came Into My heart.' We all stood and sang the chorus with the singers, after which the benediction was pronounced.

"You may wonder if we have a radio. Not exactly (!) We had fixed a broadcasting station in one of the class-rooms. The organ, singers and victrola were the performers. The radio (a pasteboard box) looked its part. In spite of the make-believe, every one was impressed. Even though it would be tiring and monotonous to have every meeting along this same line, we truly believe that this experiment will be one more step toward our goal, which is a Christian Endeavor Society which is really serving Christ."

On Friday evening, March 28th, the boys and girls of high school age of the Waverly Christian Church enjoyed an "April Fool's Party." These boys and girls have not been organized for Church work. After an hour of fun and singing and games, the question was raised as to whether they should organize themselves for work in the Church. They voted unanimously to organize a Christian Endeavor Society then and there. And on the following Sunday they met for a regular C. E. meeting, having entire charge of a very splendid program. Twenty-five were out for the Sunday evening meeting. Several of these boys and girls understand C. E. work because of training they have had in the Junior Society. They plan to "edit" one-half page of the regular Church bulletin and to organize a C. E. orchestra. Great things can be expected from such an enthusiastic bunch of consecrated young people.

Jewel Truitt.

TO OUR PASTORS.

I have been doing evangelistic work in High Point for about two years and am at the service of any Church needing and demanding me. I enjoy and am ready to do evangelistic work in which God seems to be using me, and in this I rejoice. Should any Church or pastor desire my services, I will be pleased to go and to serve as the Lord may direct. W. J. Edwards.

High Pt., N. C., 211 Ward St.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

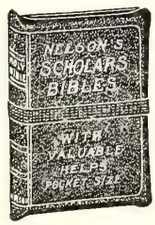
2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1¾ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

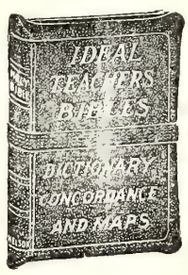
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8½ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.

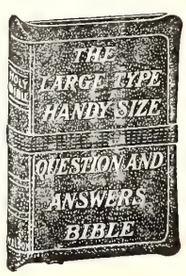


Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.



1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

Conducted by H. E. Rountree
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

HOLY WEEK.

(April 14th to 20th.)

MONDAY.

Hearty Christianity.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And a second is like unto it: thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Matt. 22:37-39.

There is a slight difference in the apostles' quotations of these words of our Lord, but the differences are insignificant. The great idea is that of love. All that we are is to be given in devotion to God, and that devotion does not count for very much unless it extends to our neighbor. The Lord recognizes our close relation to those by whom we live. However, He makes it plain (John 13:34-35) that our neighbors are those with whom we come in contact, as the parable of the good Samaritan teaches. When we recognize that God is God of the whole earth, Father of all, we must conclude that humanity is a great brotherhood and that genuine Christianity expands our sympathies to mankind.

It is deplorable to realize that there is so much personal Christianity merely nominal. Where is there "hungering and thirsting" for God and his enthronement in human hearts? Who "seeks first the kingdom" and builds his life's program around that? Who "presents his body a living sacrifice acceptable unto God"? Think and thank God for all of them.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, who art able to do all things, have mercy upon our faithlessness. May we feel the yearning lacks we may have of Christ first, and may we yearn to be filled. Amen.

TUESDAY.

The Way of the Cross.

"Get thee behind me, Satan!"—Matt. 16:21-23.

Satan seemed to lie in wait for Jesus at every turn, and often where least expected. It is believed that you and I have found that when special preparation is to be made for a special work, the devil is there making use of whom he may. In this case, it is the faithfulness of Peter.

But Jesus recognizes the deceiver and resists him. The victory is one. The power of the devil is destroyed, and before mankind is laid the way of the cross leading straight through the tomb to the open gate of heaven.

The path which Jesus trod is a symbol of the self-denial we must make. If we would live from the beginning of our Christian living until the tomb claims us, the old man in us must be crucified and must die. This is what Christ meant when He said, "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall find it."

Prayer.—Lord Jesus, we thank Thee that Thou hast given us a way which is the way of life. Give us grace to follow it. Correct us, but do not reject us. Help each of us to take up Thy cross and follow Thee, that we may save our souls. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

Forgiveness.

Lesson: Read carefully parallel passages—Matt. 26:1-13; Mark 14:3-9; Luke 22:1-6; John 11:55-57; Luke 7:37-50; John 12:1-11.

Jesus seems to be at rest on this the fourth day of His passion. Only one incident is recorded, that is the anointing by Mary.

The love and penitence of this woman is in strong contrast to the treachery of Judas. This act of Mary's is understood to be the outcome of her sense of forgiveness. Her forgiveness is represented by Mark distinctly as the cause and not the result of her loving action. Much has been said about this passage as to the relation of faith and love in winning forgiveness. However, it appears that there is little doubt as to the meaning of Jesus, which is, that faith which does not inevitably issue in love is no real faith. Throughout his ministry again and again He welcomes acts of love as indicative of Christian character.

It is rather significant that this lesson of forgiveness should have received such prominence in the teaching of the Saviour's last week. It is the only thing recorded that He did on this day. It is, as it were, in a few words and by a solitary act, He set the facts of forgiveness, faith and love on a pinnacle and left the remainder of the day in silence, that all they who heard might reflect upon its significance and importance. It seems that the meditations of these silent hours made an echo which has not ceased to be heard, and it is still ringing in the message of the gospel throughout the world.

In His final message to humanity, His own spirit was a supreme example, when in His last moment He said, "Father, forgive them." "I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more" (Heb. 8:12). It would be well could we all remember always the Wednesday before "Good Friday" as the day of the kingdom's forgiveness and man's faith and love toward God.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, help us to put ourselves in the place of Mary and to have our souls cleansed from all unrighteousness. Make us rich with truth. Cover our unworthy lives with garments of white and enable us to see. Amen.

THURSDAY.

Christ Our Passover.

Lessons: Matt. 26:17-19; Mark 14:12-16; Luke 22:7-13.

This, the fifth day of the Saviour's passion week, is the well-known day of silence. According to the Passover customs, the feast must be made ready. It began at sunset and it probably took all day to get ready for it. Were it not the Passover day, as some say it was not, and only a last farewell meal when He and the disciples would be together the last time, it remains that it was patterned after the Passover fashion and given a Paschal character; it did anticipate the Passover as being converted by our Lord into a symbol of the sacrifice of Himself, and henceforth recognized Him as the true Passover (Paul in 1 Cor. 5:7).

Today's silence gives us three thoughts: Christ is our Passover, He is sacrificed for us, and His passion is ours. "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world."

This is the day of divine acknowledgment that we belong to God. As Jesus gave Himself a perfect Gift, so this to us is the day of calm, perfect giving of ourselves to God. In Him, perfect submission to the Father's will and meek acceptance of all to which God appointed Him. He is the truest representation of what we would be, perfect submission to the Father's will and a meek acceptance of all to which God appointed Him. Hereupon hinges the whole life of the followers of Jesus. It means putting sin out of the heart and life, not for an hour or a day, but forever. It means that we have a passover in our hearts and lives to prepare for and observe constantly—wherefore, feed upon Him.

Prayer.—Dear Lord Jesus, may the meditation of our hearts lead us today into a full realization of Christ our Saviour and enable us to submit to Him as He did to Thee. Amen.

GOOD FRIDAY.

The Paschal Supper.

Lesson: Matt. 26:19-29; Mark 14:16-25; Luke 22:13-33; John 13:1-35.

This is Jesus' last day on earth. Beginning with the day before, the following incidents take place: The dispute of the disciples over the first place, and He washes the disciples' feet as an example in settlement of the dispute; He points out the traitor; He tells Peter of His coming temptation and fall; He institutes the memorial of the Lord's Supper; He prays in the quiet of the olive grove; He suffers the agonies of Gethsemane; was betrayed and made prisoner, tried and condemned, mocked and led away to be crucified; is taken down from the cross and buried.

Each one of these incidents has its own significance in our salvation. A careful reading will reveal this. The "new covenant" is the one engaging thought here. At the Supper He instituted the bond, or the "new covenant," by forever doing away with blood sacrifices and the primitive offerings and substituting Himself as the offering. Since His blood has not yet been "poured out," "He gave Himself with His own hands," of His own free will and accord. As the disciples are to understand later, it is by partaking of Him in faith and not by observance of the Paschal Feast that pardon and new life is to be realized.

All earthly joy will find its fulfillment in obedience to and the completion of this new covenant. This was not the blood of oxen. It was the blood of the Mediator of the new covenant Himself. As we feed our souls on Him, by His knowledge shall we be justified. In this sense, the kingdom of God comes with the passion, the resurrection and the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Prayer.—Dear Heavenly Father, we pray for our thoughts to enter more deeply into the last meanings of the Last Supper of our Lord, that we may take in ourselves the Christ Himself unto a full salvation. Amen.

SATURDAY.

Making Sure the Tomb.

"They went and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, setting a watch."—Matt. 26:66.

It is hard to imagine how the disciples felt the day after the burial of the Lord. We who have turned away from the graves of loved ones can imagine something of their sorrow. In addition to this sorrow, the disciples suffered keen disappointment, for they had believed Jesus to be the Messiah and that His kingdom would be on earth, setting the world free. Now, this Saviour and Deliverer was dead and the whole plan of salvation seemed a failure to them. He had closed the gates of Hades, to be sure, but the shadow of death had fallen on it all. It had not yet entered into their minds that He would rise again from the dead—at least, in our accepted sense of it.

There is a meaning to this day of the sealed tomb. The earth trembles, the seal is broken, the

(Continued on Page 15.)

Christian Orphanage

Two years ago we had the pleasure of being entertained in the home of our good friend Edward Herrin, near Elkton, Va. We will always remember this visit with a great deal of pleasure. He and his entire family did their best to make us feel at home and did everything for our comfort. Bro. Herrin asked many questions concerning the Orphanage and its work and accomplishments. He expressed a deep desire to visit the Orphanage and see the little children and the Orphanage plant, and at that time thought he would be able to make the trip to the Orphanage, but owing to ill health since then he has not had the opportunity to carry out his desire in the matter. He told me then that he had made up his mind to do something for the Orphanage in a substantial way, but wanted to visit it first, but not being strong enough on account of his feeble health and for fear that he would not have the opportunity to pay us the visit which we would appreciate so much, he, deep down in his loving haert, wanted to help the little children who are fatherless and motherless, homeless and helpless in the world, sent us his note for a thousand dollars, to be paid out of his estate after his death.

Bro. Herrin has a tender heart, full of love for the Orphaned children, and shows it by this generous act. We wonder if we do not have a number of friends in the Christian Church who would like to do a kind and generous deed like this. You would have the use of your money during your lifetime, and it will be useless to you when you close your eyes in death; but could be a great blessing to the Christian Orphanage in carrying on its work of love and charity. How many would like to follow Bro. Herrin's example?

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 10, 1930.

Brought forward		$2,758.17
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Apple's Chapel	$ 3.40
Mt. Bethel	2.02
Greensboro, First	12.48
Elon College	6.25
		24.15
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Mebane	$ 2.00
Auburn	4.50
Pleasant Hill (J)	2.75
		9.25
Western N. C. Conference:
Graham	$ 3.61
Parks' Cross Roads	5.57
		9.18
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Newport News	$20.03
Suffolk	30.00
New Lebanon	6.00
Barrett's	1.45
		57.48
Alabama Conference:
Mt. Zion		4.33
Special Offerings.
R. J. Miller, support children	$50.00
Member Cary Christian Church	1.00
C. A. Penn, N. Y. City	50.00
Mrs. Margaret Wilkins, McLeansville	5.00
Sale of potatoes	39.50
		145.50
William P. Showalter, Harrisonburg, Va.		500.00
Grand total		$3,508.06

YOUNGSVILLE.

The field to which I am directing my attention this year is composed of seven Churches. An interesting field it is, from many angles. At the present, however, the matter of getting started for the year is drawing our attention. Many of our people made almost a failure in crops last year, and some do not know what they are to do this year, and this condition of farm interest comes into the Church. I am beginning to wonder if it is true that most of us could be "active" Christians if we had the money. Are we undergoing "the acid test." Well, to say the least, it seems to be making an experiment and depends very largely upon our ability to counteract.

We have remodeled our building at Youngsville and have now a very neat and comfortable house. Our congregation is small, but you scarcely ever find a membership more harmonious. The expense of remodeling was $1,150 and is all paid except just a fraction more than one hundred dollars. We could never have done the work had it not been for our Woman's Missionary Society.

We are glad to have the missionary rally to convene with Pope's Chapel Church, and we are hoping every Church in the district will have delegates.

On February 19th we lost our good friend and brother, Simon Young. Brother Young was a charter member, and so long as his health would permit, he was always faithful to the interest of Church, and until the last he would rejoice in every success as was reported to him.

E. M. CARTER.

NOTICE.

On Tuesday night, April 29th, from 6 to 7:30 o'clock, in the basement of the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., the women are to have a banquet. All delegates and visitors are invited, and any of the gentlemen present who would like to join with them will be welcomed. The price of the banquet will be $1.00 per plate. Any one wishing to attend this banquet will please send their remittance to Mrs. Ernest L. Beale, Franklin, Va., and upon receipt of same a ticket will be forwarded.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. 2 or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x-- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed or Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x--------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

THE VALUE OF BELIEF IN IMMORTALITY.

By H. H. Smith.

In Dr. Snowden's splendid book, "Can We Believe in Immortality?" there is an interesting chapter on "The pragmatic value of belief in immortality." In this chapter he refers to Dr. Leuba's book, "The Belief in God and Immortality." Among other things, Dr. Leuba is quoted as saying: "The modern belief in immortality costs more than it is worth. Its disappearance from the most civilized nations would be, on the whole, a gain. It would be difficult to overvalue the harm done to humanity in the past by the conviction that the real destination of man is the world to come."

The true Christian does not live for one world, but for two—the present world and the world to come—and this belief in immortality has had a most salutary influence upon mankind. As Dr. Snowden says: "Men have died for it; and countless millions have been sustained by it through temptations, trials, sorrows, through all the tragedies and blood and tears of this world, and have died triumphantly in its hope. Literally, this faith in multitudes of believers has abolished all fear of death and turned this last great enemy into an angel of light to bear them home." The case of the late F. W. Myers is cited—a man who seems to have had a firm conviction of immortality after considerable struggle and investigation. As a result of this conviction, William James says: "Myers' character grew stronger in every particular. Brought up on literature and sentiment, something of a courtier, passionate, disdainful, and impatient naturally, he was made over again from the day when he took up psychical research seriously. He became learned in science, circumspect, democratic in sympathy, endlessly patient, and above all happy. The fortitude of his last hours tuoched the heroic, so completely were the atrocious sufferings of his body cast into insignificance by his interest in the cause he lived for. When a man's pursuit gradually makes his face grow handsome, you may be sure it is a worthy one. Myers kept growing ever-handsomer and stronger looking."

Another illustration of the same truth is found in the great scientist, Louis Pasteur. "Absorbed as he was in his daily task, he yet carried in himself a constant aspiration toward the ideal, a deep conviction of the reality of the infinite and a trustful acquaintance in the mystery of the universe. Absolute faith in God and in eternity, and a conviction that the power for good given to us in this world will continue beyond it, were feelings which pervaded his whole life."

The responsibility that immortality lays on the individual is well summed up by Dr. Slattery, who is quoted as follows: "Immortality throws upon the individual at least four commanding responsibilities—the responsibility to be master of himself in all temptations, the responsibility to be courageous in all the hard places of experience, the responsibility to detach himself from the mere things of life, and the responsibility to buckle to himself a task so great that only eternity is long enough to complete it. If he fulfills these responsibilities, he has already passed from death into the endless life. He already stands firmly in the high and beautiful country of immortality."

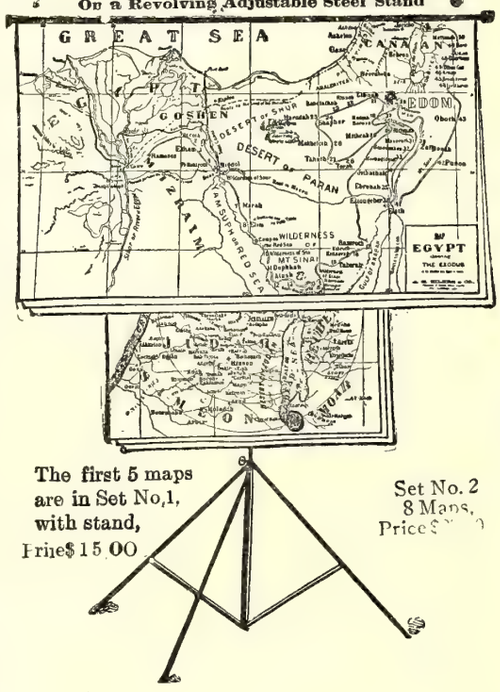
The writer was once the pastor of a Christian man who had been bedridden for more than ten years. He was entirely blind, and so afflicted with rheumatism that he could not raise his hand to feed himself, but it was an inspiration to visit him. Believing in a future life, he triumphed over physical infirmity and was always bright and cheerful. Through faith in immortality, multitudes throughout the world are conquering in the same spirit.

It is this firm conviction that man is an immortal spirit, capable of infinite joy or sorrow in the world to come, that has led multitudes to conquer self and become helpers of their fellow-men. It has led thousands of men and women to renounce a life of ease and pleasure and suffer persecutions and perils to carry the gospel beyond the seas. In a missionary journal before me is a picture of a fair young lady holding in her arms a black infant child. Believing in the teaching of Jesus Christ and the infinite worth of the human soul, she delights to minister to these benighted children. It is such a faith in immortality that caused a missionary to say at a convention: "In my labors for those among whmo I worked I have been compelled at times to eat the flesh of the rhinocerus, and even ants; but I'll go back and do it again for the glorious privilege of proclaiming the gospel of Christ."

Was it not a firm belief in man as an immortal soul that impelled James Chalmers to say, "Recall the twenty-one years, give me back all its experiences, give me its shipwrecks, give me back its standings in the face of death, give it to me surrounded with savages with spears and clubs knocking me to the ground; give it me back and I will still be your missionary."

Ashland, Va.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.
On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand



The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $...

Fine large Maps, In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelitesthe

Series No. 2—Eilers' Edition

Eight large Maps in six colors each, size 36x57. Greatest value for the money. Each set consists of the following Maps: Map of Egypt and Exodus of Israel, Palestine divided among the 12 Tribes, New Testament Palestine, Map of Western Asia and Bible Lands, Roman Empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's travels by colored lines, the Divided Kingdoms of Judah and Israel, the Persian control of Palestine and the Pathways of our Lord showing by colored lines each journey He made. This set of eight fine Maps which cover all Bible Geography in the different periods on adjustable folding steel stand only prepaid.

NOTICE.

The Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Christian Convention will meet Tuesday, April 29th, at 10 A. M., in the United Church, Raleigh, N. C. All delegates are requested to be on time for the roll call.

Mrs. J. A. Williams, Pres.

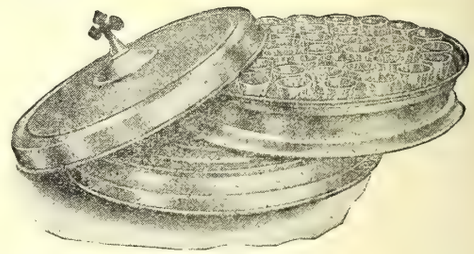
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

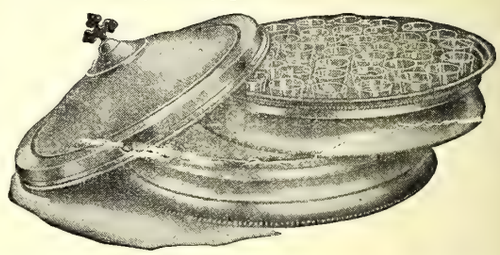


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

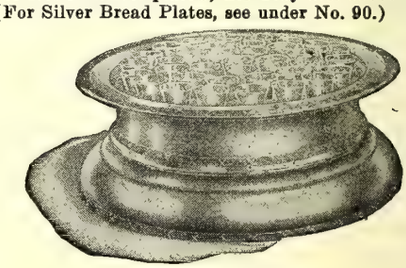
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) .$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from Page 12.)

stone is thrown aside, and angels are found to be guards there instead of the Roman soldiery. This is heaven's final stroke to convince the world that Jesus is the Son of God and that the power of man is nothing. All that man could do to Jesus was to crucify Him, bury Him, and seal up the stone. It took a day to do this and to set over their work the proper guard. And in that same day the saints of heaven make ready for the resurrection jubilee. It happens, and all power of man over the body of Christ is at an end.

To unbelievers, death is terrible and the grave full of horrors. They are forced to tell themselves that the dark, cold tomb is the end of their course. It is the end of the comfort and reward of their labors and struggles. It is the unutterable, sad and hopeless answer to all the questions of life. They must go further than this, and tell themselves that beyond the grave there is something more dark awaiting them as a consequence of a life of sin.

But, believers may rejoice. Our grave is the grave of Jesus. His grave is ours. What is our burial, then, but the laying of our bodies to rest in the grave of Jesus? What is it but the end of earthly souls and the beginning of heavenly souls? What is it but the laying of all that we are, life, body and soul, into the lap of Almighty God, where life is freed from all incumbrances of the flesh?

Prayer.—O Lord, when we walk through the darkness, reveal to us Thy will and Thy way. O meek and patient Saviour, give to us Thy gentle spirit. Many dark days shadow our understandings, and we see no escape, but Thou, Lord, are still with us. Release not Thy hold on us, and let us not release our hold on Thee. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE RESURRECTION.

"Come see the place where the Lord lay."—Matt. 28:6.

"Behold the place where they laid Him."—Mark 16:6.

And coming, what did they see? Not guards, but angels; not a sealed tomb, but an open one; not the works of man, but the work of God; not the end of life, but the beginning of eternal life with the glory of immorality; not the silence of the grave, but a voice with a message from heaven speaking; not death, but life; and it was life in the garden of this world, for He was still with them. Not lost hope, but confirmed hope with a personal commission to "go into all the world" and tell everybody about it, that the world might believe His gospel and be saved; not weakness, but power, for they were to perform miracles and speak with new tongues.

This is what we ourselves are to see and hear at the empty tomb today; and the same commission is ours. How much of it do we appreciate? How much of the commission commands our honest efforts?

Through the empty tomb, humanity has been given a spiritual dominion and glory, according to the prophecy of Daniel (7:14), and by it is pledged the power of the angels of heaven to give us victory. It is wonderful to realize that "all power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." These were the words of Christ, but He says, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he (ye) do also, and greater works than these shall he do."

The whole mission of the Church rests on obedience to this command. If it is not obeyed, the devil has an open course to prevent the conversion of the nations to the Christian faith.

Prayer.—O Lord, teach us to know our commission, Thy power and Thy glory. Lead our hearts to Jesus, and teach us this day to say rightly, "Blessed be the name of God, who is our strength, our salvation and the salvation of the world." Amen.

MISSIONARY RALLIES.

District rallies of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference will convene at 10 A. M., unless otherwise announced, and will be held as follows:

Guilford (Rockingham), Reidsville, N. C.—Tuesday, April 8th, Mrs. L. P. Wicker, superintendent, Greensboro, N. C.;

Halifax, Lynchburg, Va.—Thursday, April 10th, Mrs. A. Hayes, superintendent, Virgilina, Va.

Randolph, Randleman, N. C.—Saturday, April 12th, Mrs. I. H. Faust, superintendent, Ramseur, N. C.

Alamance, Elon College, N. C.—Tuesday, April 15th, Mrs. J. W. Patton, superintendent, Elon College, N. C.

Lee (Chatham), Sanford, N. C.—Wednesday, April 16th, Mrs. Ralph Ross, superintendent, Sanford, N. C., Route 5.

Durham (Wake) Catawba Springs, N. C.—Friday, April 18th, Mrs. G. H. Leonard, superintendent, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Vance (Warren), Pope's Chapel—Saturday, April 19th, Miss Margaret Alston, superintendent, Henderson, N. C., Route 1.

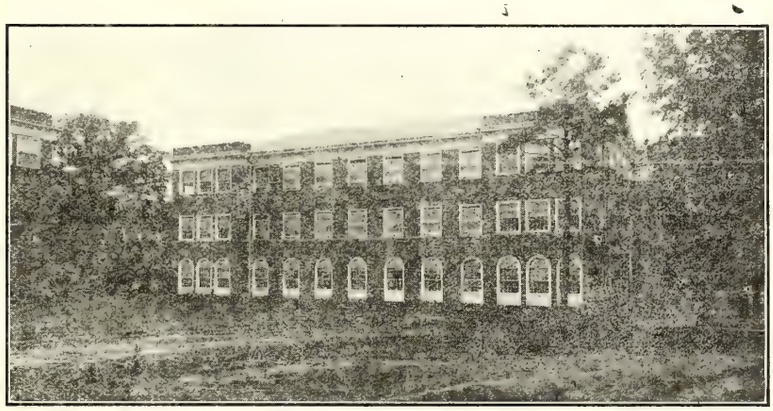
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

DOLLAR.

Mrs. Amanda Dollar died at her home near Lineville, Ala., March 24, 1930, and was buried at Rock Spring Church March 25th. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. D. Hunt, assisted by the writer. She was a faithful soldier of the cross for a long period of time, having reached the ripe age of seventy-seven. She was a faithful member of the Christian Church at Shady Grove.

In her passing to her reward, her community realizes that it has lost one of its most highly honored citizens, her Church has lost one of its most consecrated members, and her family has lost a devoted mother. She leaves to mourn their loss a companion, J. D. Dollar, Sr., ten children, a large number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and many other relatives and a great host of friends. She bore her suffering with patience, and said she was perfectly reconciled to the will of Him who doeth all things well. May God comfort the bereaved and help them to imitate the good example lived by this sainted mother, and that we may all see her again.

G. H. VEAZEY.

BLOSSER.

Sarah Jane Blosser died March 11, 1930, aged about 75 years. In early life she united with old Mt. Zion Christian Church. That Church ceased to exist some years ago, but she remained true to the Christian Church, and a few years ago had her name placed at Leaksville. She was a good Christian woman and highly respected by all who knew her. She is survived by three daughters and one son. Funeral services were held at Stanley Adventist Church March 13, 1930.

A. W. ANDES.

GOCHENOUR.

Claude W. Gochenour was born February 14, 1890, and died March 13, 1930, at the age of 40 years and 29 days. He united with Leaksville Christian Church at the age of 16, and lived a faithful Christian life till death came to release him from afflictions which had kept him in bed for several years. He was fully resigned to the Lord's will and expressed himself a number of times as ready to meet the Lord. Funeral services at Leaksville March 14, 1930.

A .W. ANDES.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

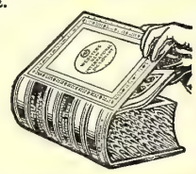
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

DURABLE FLEXIBLE BINDINGS — THE BEST EDITIONS OF THE WORLD'S BEST BOOK — WILL NOT BREAK IN THE BACK

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ [m] From that time Jē´ to preach, and to say, [n] I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches, nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ [m] From that time Jē´sus began to preach, and to say, [n] Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

Send your orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN 1536 East Broad Street Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1930. NUMBER 16.

Mrs N T Farmer 1-1

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

THE EASTER TIME.—

There is a joy, a beauty, and an exhilaration about the Easter time that ought to arouse a responsive thrill in the heart of every human being. The first awakening of the spirit of life in the vegetable world ought to arouse a quickened heart beat within us. Attention has been called to the many elements of the spring festivals of pagan religion which have been incorporated in our observance of Easter. Sometimes it has been assumed that the introduction of these elements of nature religion has debased our Easter observance. But may it not have been a part of God's plan and purpose that the Christian religion should lift these elements of nature worship to a higher plane, remove the baser things that had defiled them, and impart to mankind a realization of the fact that God had created the natural world for the purpose of its ministering to the spiritual side of man.

We are more aware of the natural world in the spring-time than at any other season of the year. But nature holds a potent influence over the spirit of man at all seasons. And when one reads the message of the gospels, Christ is found to be completely in tune with all the forces of nature. Thev are ministering to the strength of His imperturbable spirit; and His spirit in turn is molding and shaping the natural world and making it contribute to the glory of spiritual things.

But it is in the complete triumphing of Christ over the forces of dissolution and decay that we find the Easter message at its highest and best. We have read into the record the idea that Christ is to destroy the natural world, while all the content of Scripture points to the conclusion that Christ does not destroy, but that He transforms and makes the natural the ministering servant of the spiritual.

Herein lies what seems to me to be the sublime challenge which shall meet the Christian who is one day to walk the earth. Man is today bending his efforts largely toward the mastering of the natural world, to the end that it may contribute to the material welfare of humanity. When some degree of success has rewarded these efforts, it would seem inevitable that man should face the task of making the natural creation minister to the spiritual glory and perfection of the human family. Then indeed is there the possibility of the kingdoms of this world becoming the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ.

LAYING FOUNDATIONS.—

The religious forces of our city, Durham, N. C., have this week been engaged in a campaign of visitation evangelism. The work has not been completed, and it will be Easter Sunday before the immediate results of the campaign can be measured. Most of our readers are doubtless acquainted with the general plan of visitation evangelism. It is to have two Christians, going together as a team into the homes to seek to lead those who are not professing Christians to make a definite commitment of their lives to Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord. This form of evangelistic endeavor requires a very high degree of faith in the winsomeness of Jesus Christ and the power of His gospel. It does not have the aid of the atmosphere that is created in a mass-evangelistic meeting. There is no preparation of the individual to be interviewed, save such preparation as may be made by the Holy Spirit in answer to prayer.

One fact has become increasingly obvious as a result of the efforts which have been made along this line. It is that the winning of an individual by this method depends mainly upon the religious background of the early life. If the early life has been spent in a home where there has been a strong religious environment, there is a strong possibility that the efforts to win the life for Christ will succeed. It is of course impossible to make definite measurements of the possibilities, but it seems that Sunday School training in childhood ranks next to the influence of the Christian home in laying the foundation for a definite appeal in later years.

The work of the Sunday School has received a great deal of criticism, both at the hands of its friends and its enemies. It has to be conceded that much Sunday School work is imperfect and inadequately performed. But we are learning now that those who have labored in the Sunday Schools in years that have gone have builded more wisely than they knew or we have suspected. It has been pointed out that so many of those who have been in the Sunday School during the formative period of their lives have failed to make a definite commitment of themselves to Christ and the Church. We know that this is true, and we have referred to them as lost to Christ and the Church. We are learning now that it would be more nearly correct to describe them as not yet won to the Christian life.

It should be a source of everlasting encouragement to the teachers and workers in the Sunday School to know that the work which they are doing may, after a quarter of a century or even longer, serve as a foundation upon which may be begun the building of a Christian life. It is perhaps a weakness of our American Protestantism that we always expect immediate results.

AN EXPERIMENT EXTRAORDINARY.—

The experiment which has been undertaken by Mahatmi Gandhi in India is one to catch the interest and intrigue the fancy. His personality is unique and his policy is astounding. It is easy to understand his passionate desire to free his country from British dominance. No race nor people has ever taken very kindly to the idea of being controlled by other peoples or nations. The weak and defenseless have sometimes submitted to such a situation with the best possible grace. There have been the dauntless people who have chosen to die bravely fighting for their liberty, even when they have known the cause to be hopeless.

In Gandhi, India has a leader that is as passionately patriotic as any individual who ever espoused a nation's cause. But he is the avowed enemy of the use of all physical force. He seems to believe that his country can be made free by suffering, but not by the spilling of blood in fighting those who oppress them. His idea is to defy the authority of the British government and to pay whatever penalty may be meted out to him and his followers, and to continue this policy until his rulers are sick and tired of punishing.

His is the first conscious effort to liberate a people and build a national solidarity without the aid of guns and armies, soldiers and battleships. His ideals stand in striking contrast with the so-called Christian nations which have sent their representatives to London to find a basis of agreement upon which they may lighten the burden of armaments. Here is a meek little man, with about as many followers as Christ had when He set His face to go to Jerusalem, who openly defies the greatest empire of modern times.

We may say if we will that his efforts are ridiculous and impossible, and that such a course can never avail worth-while results. But the fact remains that a man who is the champion of millions of people dares to undertake them. Even if Gandhi did not admit that his policy is that taught in the New Testament, we could not but know that that was the source from which it came. And yet he does not profess to be a Christian. He merely declares that he is willing to stake his own and his country's cause on the method of procedure recommended by the Christ.

At the very time that Gandhi was making his march to the sea, Christian nations were maintaining gunboats in Chinese water to safeguard Christian missionaries and other interests. His course seems fanatical and beyond the bounds of reason only because the majority of the world has said that physical force is the most and only reasonable thing upon which to rely in an emergency. One hesitates to make a prediction when confronted with an unprecedented situation. What will probably happen when all the elements of the situation have been considered is that Gandhi will lose, and his cause will eventually win. And from what one can learn of this most unusual man, that is exactly what he is striving to accomplish.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Carlton, and Miss Sadie Boyd, all members of our Richmond Church, have recently moved to their new home near Paces, Virginia. Many and sincere have been the regrets caused by their going.

Here is devoutly hoping that every Church call upon its membership through self-denial to make an offering this year in the name of our Lord for the sake of our Christ. No Church should regard the mission enterprise as an institution of a Mission Board, but the institution of our Lord, who said to the Church, "Go ye into all the world; and lo, I am with you." His presence is promised on condition that we obey, and if we desire His presence we must carry out His command.

Dr. G. W. Haddaway, secretary of the Mission Board of the Methodist Protestant Church, gives these words to the Methodist Protestants of America, and we could wish with all our heart that every Christian Church would make these words their sentiment and their dynamic on Easter Day: "Altogether in prayer and effort for a great Easter ingathering of members and money! The Church needs recruits, and the Board of Missions largely increased funds with which to carry on the responsible work committed to it by the Church. Let us worship and give liberally, indeed hilariously, on Easter Sunday, as the Scripture enjoins upon us. Easter, the most joyous season of the year, should inspire every one to express his deep gratitude in effort and offerings. Yours for the greatest Easter Day in our history."

The Mission Secretary rejoiced greatly in the splendid service, First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., tenth anniversary, Sunday, the 6th. It was a glorious day for the Church, and the Mission Secretary can but exclaim, "Behold what great things our Lord hath done!" He vividly remembers the night at a hotel in Richmond when he had invited a dozen persons to meet him at his room to discuss even the advisability or possibility of beginning a Christian Church. About ten came, and about six of the number said, "We can"; about four said, "We can't." Later, under the direction of the Mission Board, Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, now of Durham, was asked to spend a week in Richmond and make a report to our Board of prospects there. The report was favorable, and Bro. Harrell was asked by the Board to become first pastor and to undertake the task. He had already accepted work and had to forego this privilege. The Board then instructed the Secretary to find a pastor and to pay his full salary for a period long enough to get together a nucleus who would be willing to begin to contribute, not to the pastor's salary, but to a prospective lot for building. And the Board further instructed that it would go half and half with the Church in paying for any lot in the city that the young Church might agree upon and organize. From the beginning, a most enthusiastic and liberal response and loyalty were manifest in the Richmond Church, and this liberality and loyalty have never departed, but have been the joy and the inspiration of the entire denomination. Later, when appropriations for building became necessary, the Mission Board invited the women to make Richmond a "special," and this they did, loyally and faithfully acting with the Mission Board and through the Mission Board, that together might be expressed the gratitude and the enthusiasm of a whole Convention in finding a Church that was so willing and ready and loyal and liberal that Richmond was proving itself to be and is proving itself to be. The Church has a splendid equipment, both for Church purposes and Christian education purposes, and is doing a mighty work for the kingdom in Richmond and throughout the denomination. Their tenth anniversary was a joy and a source of gratitude and inspiration.

BURLINGTON.

The Burlington Christian Church has just closed a very successful evangelistic campaign. Dr. L. E. Smith, of Norfolk, Va., in a splendid and helpful manner assisted th epastor.

The interest on the part of the membership and of visiting friends did not wane during the two weeks. The attendance is said to have been the best ever noted at a revival of the Church prior to this one. The attendance, however, was not the only visible sign of interest, as every one seemed eager to help the work along and showed a beautiful spirit of co-operation.

Spiritual results are very pronounced. The large number of new members received into the Church partially measures these, but can in no wise be taken alone to judge the helpfulness of the inspirational and soul-searching messages brought by Dr. Smith. Sixty-two persons were added to the Church during the meetings. Of this number, thirty-eight were received on confession of faith and twenty-four by letter of transfer.

A field of labor for personal work has been opened, and new laborers inspired to go forth as reapers and as a continuation of the work already begun. The Church plans to systematically and persistently be engaged in soul-winning.

E. M. C.

FRANKLIN CHURCH PROSPERS.

Dear Church Members:

The Church of which you are a part realizes that the gifts of God are bountifully poured out upon us all. In addition to our health and strength, food and raiment, Churches and schools, God provides for us about 285 working days per year. From the wages earned on these days by our talents and opportunities, we lay up for ourselves, provide for our families the necessities and enjoyments of life, and as a congregation pay around $3,000 yearly to provide a Church home where we may constantly hear the word of God proclaimed.

Our Mission Secretary is urging us to give liberally this year toward the support of our extended mission fields, that they might hear the gospel preached also. We are asked to pay an equivalent of one-third the amount of our local minister's salary to the great missionary enterprise of the Congregational-Christian Church.

Next Sunday, March 30th, each member and friend of this Church is asked to bring or send the equivalent of one day's wage and place it in a treasure chest at the Church door. Remember the Scripture says, "God giveth us the power to get wealth." Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel to every living creature." And how shall they hear without a preacher, and how shall they preach except they be sent?

As we approach the Easter season, let each of us realize the sacrifice the Master made for us, and gladly sacrifice for Him just one day's wages for missions. This money will build schools, erect hospitals, train nurses and maintain Churches. Will you be one of the members of your Church that may be depended upon for a day's wages in order that others might know the love of the Saviour who died for all. If you are not receiving a daily wage at present, you can easily estimate the value of your services and contribute accordingly.

We want every person to bring or send the specially provided envelope containing the special gift of one day's wages for missions. If you did not receive envelope Sunday, use the inclosed one.

Very sincerely,

J. W. Fix, Pastor.

E. P. Jones, Mission Treas.

THE RALEIGH MEETING.

In answer to communications relative to the meeting in the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., April 27th to May 4th, the following general outline is now announced:

On Sunday, April 27th, at the United Church, 11 A. M., Dr. W. E. Gilroy, editor-in-chief of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, will preach. We wish to invite all the ministers and members of the Christian Churches, especially in the vicinity of Raleigh, to attend this service.

There will be three other meetings following: A conference at 3 P. M., with Dr. Bloom and Dr. J. O. Atkinson as the leaders; at 6:30 P. M., a young people's conference, with Miss Pattie Lee Coghill as leader; at 7:30 P. M., an evening service of worship, with Dr. Elbert Russell and Dr. John Brittain Clark as speakers.

The Regional Committee of Congregationalists and the Conference of the Carolinas will hold session Monday. The Woman's Board (Christian) will have Tuesday. The Southern Christian Convention will begin Tuesday afternoon.

On Sunday, May 4th, Dr. Malcolm Dana will preach at 11 A. M., and Dr. Fairfield, of China, at 8 P. M. The Woman's Board will have supper together Tuesday evening, April 29th, from 6 to 7:45 o'clock. The Felloyship Banquet Wednesday evening, April 30, 6 to 7:45 o'clock, with Col. Holland, of Virginia, and Dr. King, of Florida, as speakers. The young people's supper, Thursday evening, 6 to 7:45 o'clock. Noonday lunches will be served at the Church Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

All desiring hotel accommodations, please write us. Those desiring entertainment in homes, write Prof. E. W. Boshart, Woodburn Road, Raleigh, N. C. Each organization represented in the meeting has its own program of speakers. Please consult each organization.

We have a cordial welcome for all, and we want you to come. All our Christian leaders in the South will be present and representative Congregationalists will be Dr. Burton, Dr. Holliday, Miss Preston, Dr. Jenkins, Dr. Campbell, Dr. Raymond, Dr. Gillette, Rev. Geo. N. Edwards, Dr. Thrall, Dr. Dana, Dr. Fairfield, besides those already announced taking part. The Congregational Conference in Kentucky will be represented by Rev. A. O. Stevens and wife.

It will be a week of strenuous work and consecrated purpose, with the thought and prayer of a forward movement in all our Churches and schools.

J. Edward Kirbye.

NOTICE.

On Tuesday night, April 29th, from 6 to 7:30 o'clock, in the basement of the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., the women are to have a banquet. All delegates and visitors are invited, and any of the gentlemen present who would like to join with them will be welcomed. The price of the banquet will be $1.00 per plate. Any one wishing to attend this banquet will please send their remittance to Mrs. Ernest L. Beale, Franklin, Va., and upon receipt of same a ticket will be forwarded.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

THE CROSS AND THE RESURRECTION.

Christian Certainties.

Two of the most certain things about Christianity are the facts of salvation and the assurance of a life to come. About these two values, let us think for a while.

1. Christianity offers man a plan of salvation that is certain to save.

From the moment that Adam and Eve became victims of sin and fell from grace, God purposed in His great heart to bring them back unto Himself. Through the prophecies of the Old Testament, God prepared the way for the coming of His Son into the world to save the world.

In order that the words of the prophet might be accomplished, in the fullness of time God sent forth His Son into the world to redeem them that were under bondage and sin. He came that all men might have life and have it more abundantly. The certainty of His plan of salvation is all-inclusive, even unto the ends of the earth. Hear thou Him as He invites all to come, saying, "Whosoever will, may come." In His plan He included me; yes, He included me. "He came, that all men might be saved, and made no distinction between Greek or Jew, Roman or Gentile, bond or slave, male or female." "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:28). Today His appeal is "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30).

The fact that Jesus included all who lived in sin is illustrated by the parable of lost sheep, in which He goes forth to seek and save. He said that there would be greater rejoicing in heaven over one lost sinner that had repented than over ninety and nine just persons which needed no repentance. On another occasion Jesus sat at meat when behold many publicans and sinners came and sat down with Him. When the pharisees saw it they said unto His disciples, "Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners? But when Jesus heard that, He said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." When Jesus saw how great was the multitude of folk that lived in sin, He was moved with compassion and said, "The harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Jesus is a world-figure. He is greater than any sect, greater than any creed, and too mighty to confine to any race of people. He came to save the whole world. Christianity offers the only plan for world salvation that has ever been proclaimed.

2. His plan included a cross.

The entire realm of Christianity hinges upon the significance of the cross. Especially do we stress the meaning thereof as we approach the Easter season. The cross signifies the newness of life which follows the resurrection. The cross is the way, the truth and the life. The cross is the most certain thing about Christianity. The cross is made of two pieces of wood. One is placed upright, the other horizontal. The influence of the cross is two-fold—God-ward and man-ward. It removes the burden of sin and redeems men by its power. Jesus said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." The grace heals disease. It cancels the debt As the bitter waters that produced disease were healed when the God-provided tree was for the healing of the nations. The cross supplies what men lack in themselves. It provides a new motive power in man's inner spirit. The cross is to him a sign by which He may conquer, and by it we are more than conquerors through Him who loved us and gave Himself for us.

History tells us of an ancient king who granted pardon to some criminals who were under sentence of death, but when they came to the palace gates for help, he refused them of his bread, saying, "I gave you freedom but did not promise you bread." Jesus not only gives us life, but gives us the bread of life by which our souls might be sustained and fed. He not only saves us from destruction, but opens to the soul rich sources of thrown in, so the cross of Calvary is the remedy strengthening satisfaction. He puts a new power in our lives and implants in us new impulses, new desires and new affections. "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature." Let us say, with Paul, "I am a new man; I am not what I once was. I love the things I once hated and hate the things I once loved. God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me and I unto the world." "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life I now live in the flesh I live by the faith in the Son of God who loved me and gave Himself for me."

The cross is both the means and the power that saves men, for as the motive power of an automobile lies in the operation of its cylinders, so the power of the cross touches the phases of life of man, i. e., the physical, the mental, the social and the spiritual.

A little child, when asked by her mother how much she loved her, replied, "All the way to the stars and back again." Christ loved us all the way from earth to heaven and His love went by way of the cross. And yet—

"The cross on Golgotha can never save thy soul:
The cross in thine own heart alone can make thee whole."

Wilt thou be made whole? Will you add to your minus life this unfathomed power of strength and peace which passeth all understanding? If not, then you must forever remain a minus quantity, for Jesus said, "Without me ye can do nothing." When Mr. Spurgeon was traveling in Italy he saw a cross upon the highway bearing the inscription from the Latin, "Spes Unica," which means, "our only hope." The cross of Jesus is the hope of the world. It is our hope for a new world. Yet there must be a love and sacrifice accompanying every cross. Men must realize that more than belief in the historic cross is necessary. "If any man will be my disciple, let him deny himself, take up his cross daily and follow me." And that is what we have failed to do. We have glorified the cross in architecture, art and song; we have emblazoned it on banner and shield; we have fought for it and slain our enemies in the name of the cross. We have lifted it high on spire and dome and have stamped it on prayer-book and Bible. We have beaten gold into its shape and worn it as an ornament. We have made a wrangle over it in dogma and in theology; we have even worshiped it as a fetish; in fact, we have done about everything with it except do the thing which Jesus requires, i. e., we have not been crucified on it with Him.

"Christ can make me what I ought to be,
His blood can cleanse my heart and make me free;
His love can fill my soul and I shall see
'Twas best for Him to have His way with me."

3. Christianity includes an eternal hope and assurance of immortality.

In his distress, Job asked, "If a man die shall he live again?" The question of Job is the question of all mankind. Something in life cries out after an assurance of eternal living. Christianity is the only religion that gives man the certainty of that of life evermore. In response to the question of Job comes the answer from the sacred lips of Jesus of Nazareth, "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth on me, even though he be dead, yet shall he live again." Jesus proved the possibility of the resurrection by coming forth from the grave. Listen to the words of Paul: "If Jesus did not come forth from the grave we are of men most miserable." But the very fact that He did come forth takes away the misery to which the apostle referred and makes us one and all happy in the hope of life always.

William Morris has said in a most delightful way concerning death, "I am going your way, so let us go hand in hand. You help me and I'll help you. We shall not be here very long, for soon death, the kind old nurse, will come and rock us all to sleep." Its a fine thing to think of Christian death as merely being rocked to sleep by one's nurse, and yet the true, sincere follower of Jesus knows that there is nothing to fear. He cries out in joyous faith, "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

In all ages men have hoped for that faith in immortality. It was Seneca who said, "It is a doctrine much to be desired." Socrates said, "I hope for immortality." But no one could bring him that hope save Jesus Christ. To take away the hope of a hereafter would cause the human heart to weaken and life would drop to a very low level. The fact of immortality marks the distinction between man and beast.

Let us suppose that some of us would go to Norfolk, and for the first time walk down to the dock from which sails the great ships to the distant parts of the world. We would ask the captain, "Is it really possible for these ships to sail out upon yonder sea?" He replies, "Most certainly, for they were not made to stay in these docks." In amazement we stand and watch the great ship as she glides down the docks and sails away into the blue waters. So it is, my friends, as I look at the soul of man, with its yearnings and its desires after better things, I cannot help but saying, "It was not made to stay here." There is something better for the soul of man than this world of sin, with all of its temptations, despair and remorse. Christianity comes with a certainty and knocks the props from under us. Christianity cuts loose the stays of the dock and the Christian boat, the soul of man, sails away with Jesus on the sea of eternity. Beloved, the soul of man was not made to stay here.

Franklin, Va.

The other day I met a friend, a prominent member of a Church of another denomination. We talked first of mutual interests and then, incidentally, he showed me the printed budget of his local Church. It showed a total of $75,000; about $25,000 of it going for the general benevolences, their three foreign missionaries, etc. Quite a problem to work it through. And then, "I do not make a practice of talking about my giving, for I give far beyond what could be expected of my income, and in fairness to other intimate interests. A tithe would be easy. The fact is it runs closer to 60 per cent." Is it nothing to you, all ye that read!

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE GLORIOUS RESURRECTION.

On the Sabbath they rested in obedience to the commandment. And, on the first day of the week, at early dawn, they came to the tomb, bringing the spices they had prepared. But they found the stone rolled back from the tomb, and on entering they found that the body of the Lord Jesus was not there.

At this they were in great perplexity, when suddenly there stood by them two men whose raiment flashed like lightning. The women were terrified; but, as they stood with their faces bowed to the ground, the men said to them:

"Why do you search the dead for Him who is living? He is not here. He has come back to life. Remember how He spoke to you while He was still in Gililee, when He told you that the Son of man must be betrayed into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again."

Then they remembered His words, and returning from the tomb they reported all this to the eleven, and to all the rest (Luke 24:1-10, from Weymouth's translation).

The resurrection declared and proved three facts vital to salvation and to the welfare of mankind:

1. The all-sufficiency of Christ. By rising from the dead, Christ proved that He was sufficient to meet and to conquer the worst that evil could do. Unless He had arisen from the dead, the world henceforth would have known that sin and cruelty had conquered. The world knew of His crucifixion. That was in the open. There was no secrecy about it. They had gone through a trial with Him. Pilate sat on the judgment seat in the name of the king's court, and the Jews on every hand had clamored for His crucifixion. They were fully aware, therefore, that they had put Him out of the way. Unless He had arisen from the dead, their dreams would have come true and wickedness and sin, cruelty and hatred would have conquered. But when Jesus arose from the dead and showed Himself openly to His disciples and to many others, His all-sufficiency was established, and even the gates of hell were powerless against Him. Since the morning of the resurrection, Christianity has never gotten away from the fact that ours is an all-sufficient Christ, the Father, the embodiment of love incarnate in His Son.

2. The resurrection is the greatest single event in the history of mankind, because through it the plan of salvation was completed. Up to the resurrection, the worshipers of God observed the seventh day of the week, thus honoring the event of creation and showing that up to that time the creative act was supreme. From this time forth, as the magnitude and the logic of the event began to grip the mind of Christians, they began to deliberate with their sacred assemblies, not the seventh day in honor of Christ, but the first day of the week in honor of the redemptive act, thus declaring that redemption is more essential than creation. It may matter very little as to whether you and I were born in the world. We come upon the scene, act our little part and soon pass off. As to whether we should have been created or not may be left as a question, but it cannot be left as a question as to whether, after being born, we shall be redeemed. It would be far better for us never to have been born than, having been born, never to be redeemed through the power of His glorious resurrection. Christ's birth is essential, and His coming into the world is necessary, but that which gives hope eternal in Him is the fact of His resurrection by which He proved the validity of His claim that He was in the Father and the Father in Him.

3. His resurrection came after and by way of His crucifixion. On the cross He demonstrated that self-denial made the resurrection an event of certainty that was to follow. Just as day follows the night, the resurrection follows the cross. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself." If we are to share the joy of His resurrection, we must in His name and for His sake share the crucifixion, the hardship, the trial by way of self-denial symbolized by the cross.

This is why it is necessary, if we are to share the joy of Easter, for us to bring our gifts through self-denial in His name and for His sake and lay them on His altar to proclaim His gospel and the power of His salvation and resurrection in the world. If we are to share spiritually the blessedness and the glory of His resurrection, we must pay the price by denying self, taking up the cross and thus, through the crucifixion of ourselves to the world and the world to ourselves, come into the glorious fellowship with Him and the resurrection. J. O. A.

INGATHERING.

Easter is, as it should be, the season of ingathering—the ingathering of members that the Church of the living God may have recruits; the ingathering of money, that the Christ of the resurrection may be proclaimed to the world. Easter Sunday should, indeed, be a day of real worship by bringing to His altar that of which we have denied self for His sake and bowing down in His sanctuary, there pouring out the heart in adoration and in praise to Him who has blessed us through the year, permitted us health and hope and the willingness to deny self for His dear sake. If we are to worship in deed and in truth, we must show willingness to share with others that power of the resurrected Christ; and this we can show by consecrating our efforts and our offerings on His altar, singing His praises in His sanctuary and giving glory in gladness to Him who has made the event possible. "Come, let us worship together," should be on the tongue of every Church member on Easter morning, and when we come to Him we should be sincere enough to express our gratitude, not only with our words which may be shallow, but with our faith and with our hope—our faith in Jesus Christ, that He is the world's all-sufficient Saviour and Redeemer; the hope that His name shall be carried to all peoples everywhere, that all may have the glorious opportunity that we of the Christian name enjoy and magnify. J. O. A.

THE PREACHER'S PREPARATION.

When Jesus had any great lesson to teach or any great work to do, He went apart for prayer. On the night before Jesus chose the twelve apostles He "went out unto a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, He called unto Him His disciples; and of them He chose twelve, whom He also named apostles" (Luke 6:12, 13). It was a simple matter of selecting twelve from the whole number of His disciples, and He prayed all night that He might select the right men to be His apostles. The minister has many things to decide beside preaching, and prayer is the only way by which he can secure divine help. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering" (James 1:5, 6). Jesus not only prayed for help in His work, but when in trouble. When they came into a place called Gethsemane, He saith unto the disciples, "sit ye here while I go and pray yonder. And He took with Him Peter and the two sons of Zezedee, and began to be sorrowful and very heavy. . . . He went a little farther, and fell on His face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as Thou wilt" (Matt. 26:37, 39). He received His wisdom and His strength in prayer. Preachers may pass all the schools, all the presbyteries, and have the best positions, but they can never come to their best in the pulpit except by real prayer.

He "went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil: for God was with him" (Acts 10:38). His example urges ministers to go about helping those who are oppressed by the devil. This can be successful only to a preacher of prayer. Human wisdom does not reach the sin of man, and the devil is too smart to be thwarted by the skill of man; but, "resist the devil and he will flee from you"; "submit yourselves, therefore, to God" (James 4:7). By submission to God, the preacher is in a position to get help by which he can help others to resist the devil and get into a spiritual experience that makes them "strong in the Lord and the power of His might." It is this spiritual might that qualifies a preacher to do his best work. Prayer is useless unless it is put into work. Jesus never prayed just for ease and peace; He prayed for strength to bear affliction and do work.

A prayerful study of the word is important in preparation for the pulpit. "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine" (1 Tim. 4:2, 3). That time seems to be now in some parts of the world—Russia, for example—and in some pulpits in this country. It is not enough to have the Bible on the pulpit; it must be in the head and the heart of the preacher, and it can get there only by prayerful study, and the prayer of preparation should be as long as the sermon. W. W. S.

PROGRAM OF TWENTY-NINTH SESSION.

Following is the program of the Twenty-ninth Regular Session of the Southern Christian Convention, to be held at the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., Rev. J. Edward Kirbye, D. D., pastor, April 29th to May 3, 1930:

FIRST DAY—TUESDAY, APRIL 29th.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Convention called to Order by President L. E. Smith, D. D.
Afternoon Worship—Dr. J. E. Kirbye, Pastor Convention Church.
Enrollment of Delegates.
(a) Credentials—E. T. Holland, W. C. Wampler, W. C. Carpenter.
(b) Press—C. M. Cannon, P. J. Kernodle, L. L. Vaughan.
(c) Auditing—W. R. Sellars, J. P. Dalton, Dr. W. H. Boone.
(d) Nominations—D. R. Fonville, Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. W. Andes.
(e) Resolutions—Rev. J. W. Fix, Jessie F. West, Jr., Dr. J. W. Manning.
(f) Apportionments—Dr. W. W. Staley, W. B. Truitt, K. B. Johnson.
6:00. Woman's Board Banquet (continuing to 7:45).

Evening Session.

8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
8:10. Devotions—W. M. Jay.
8:20. Address—"The Persecution of the Church," Dr. L. E. Smith, President.
8:50. Address—"The Function of the Church," Chas. E. Burton, Secretary N. C. C. Churches.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30th.

Forenoon Session.

9:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Morning Worship—Rev. J. Lee Johnson.
9:20. Roll Call; Reading of Minutes; Enrollment of Delegates.
9:30. Treasurer's Report—Dr. W. C. Wicker.
9:40. Report of Executive Committee—Dr. L. E. Smith.
9:45. Report of Committee on Finance—Dr. L. E. Smith.
9:50. Report of Board of Superannuation—Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Chairman.
10:00. Orphanage Report.
Address—J. M. Darden.
Address—C. D. Johnston.
11:30. Sermon—Rev. Alfred Hurst.
12:00. Communion Service—Dr. J. Bramard Thall, Dr. W. W. Staley.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Afternoon Worship—Rev. M. F. Allen.
2:15. Address—W. E. MacClenny, Convention Historian.
2:30. Missions—Report of Mission Board—Col. J. E. West, Chairman.
Discussion—Led by J. M. Darden, Acting Secretary.
3:00. Address—Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
3:30. Discussion of the Report and its Recommendations.
4:30. Report of Committee on Evangelism—Rev. H. C. Caviness.

Evening Session.

6:00. Fellowship Banquet (Christian-Congregational, Continuing till 7:45 o'Clock).
Speakers—Elisha A. King, Col. E. E. Holland.
8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Evening Worship—Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.
8:15. Address—"Church Women and World Leadership," Mrs. John Ferguson.
8:45. Report of Woman's Board—Mrs. J. A. Williams, President.
8:50. Address—Mrs. John Ferguson, N. Y. City.

THIRD DAY—THURSDAY, MAY 1st.

Forenoon Session.

9:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Morning Worship—Dr. C. C. Ryan.
9:20. Reading of Minutes.
9:25. Report of Committee on Nominations and Election of Officers.
9:55. Discussion and Vote on Report of Committee on Finance.
11:30. Report of Committee on Christian Unity—Dr. W. A. Harper.
Address—C. Rexford Ramond, C. H. Rowland.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Song Service—J. F. Morgan.
Afternoon Worship—Rev. G. D. Hunt.
2:15. Report on Education.
2:30. (a) Board of Religious Education—F. C. Lester.
(b) Board of Education—W. A. Harper, Ch'n.
(c) Address—"Our United Education Plans," W. A. Harper.
(d) General Discussion and Vote on Reports.
4:00. Miscellaneous Business.
4:15. Report of Committee on Social Service—Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.
4:40. Reading of Minutes and Adjournment.
6:45. Young People's Banquet—F. C. Lester in Charge.

Evening Session.

8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Evening Worship—Prof. S. A. Bennett.
8:15. Address—"At the Switch," Dr. John Brittian Clark.
8:45. Address—Dr. A. T. Allen.
Address—Dr. W. A. Harper.

FOURTH DAY—FRIDAY, MAY 2nd.

Forenoon Session.

8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Morning Worship—Rev. W. C. Hook.
8:20. Report of Committee on Temperance—Dr. G. O. Lankford, Chairman.
Report of Board of Publications—Prof. L. L. Vaughan, Chairman.
Report of Managing Editor—Dr. P. J. Kernodle.
Report of Circulation Manager—C. D. Johnson.
Discussion and Vote on Reports.
11:30. Reports of Special Committees.
12:00. Miscellaneous Business.
Reading of Minutes.
12:30. Closing Service—Dr. N. G. Newman.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONVENTION.

TUESDAY, APRIL 29th.

Forenoon Session.

10:00. Convention Called to Order.
10:10. Song Service.
Worship.
10:20. Roll Call; Enrollment of Delegates.
10:25. Announcement of Committees.
10:30. Treasurer's Report—Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle.
10:40. Report of Finance Committee—Mrs. L. W. Stagg.
10:50. Report of Executive Committee—Mrs. J. A. Williams.
11:00. Report of Virginia Valley Central Conference—Mrs. R. A. Larrick.
11:10. Report of North Carolina Conference—Mrs. C. H. Rowland.

(Continued on page 14.)

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

OPTION

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Circulation Manager.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Progress and prosperity have generated a condition that thinks in terms of finance or commerce. The age seems to measure almost everything in terms of money. Individuals, chambers of commerce, legislatures, governments of States and the nation think of prosperity or adversity in terms of financial conditions. This nation thinks more of being the richest nation on earth than of being the best nation in the world. More is said about money failure than man failure; more about commercial success than human success. Even the Church, through its many agencies, is placing the major emphasis upon the need of money to win success. The main question in all corners is, "Will it pay?" and that question refers to business and not to character. This condition is not confined to the business and political world, but it is in the social, educational and religious world. It is not in others only, but in us. It affects our homes, our schools, our Churches, our neighborhoods, our cities, our country.

It is easy to raise questions, but it is difficult to answer them. What is the remedy for this financial and commercial disease that is contagious and world-wide? Christ is the real answer. He had not where to lay His head, yet His influence today is the greatest in the world. His mission was to others, and not for Himself. His idea seems to have been to be rather than to possess, to give rather than to receive. In His nature as well as in His teaching He was missionary through and through. In other words, what is needed for a solution of this question is more religion of the Jesus kind—faith in God, love for man, denial of self, work for others, and faith in others.

The world will not go on the rocks in its greed for gold. Hard times, riots, sickness, disasters, and a hundred other things really sober society and turn the thought and desire for better things. Gold is good in its place, commerce is essential to human progress. Money is necessary to carry on the work of the Church, and the missionary offering at Easter should be generous, and it will be if members have the spirit of Jesus, who gave Himself to save the world of sinners. The Corinthians "first gave their own selves to the Lord, and to us by the will of God" (2 Cor. 8:5). Business alone, prosperity of itself, money by itself, will not build up the Church and save the world. Self must be given first willingly and freely to the cause of the Church and missions.

It is the function of the Church to preach Christ to those who know Him not, and not to carry American education and civilization to them. If they know Christ and obey His will, they will work out a civilization suited to their condition and their needs. Civilization, with its great blessings, always follows in countries that receive Jesus Christ. The emphasis in America is too much on prosperity and not enough on Christ.

W. W. Staley.

"If every man and woman in the country," says James H. Emery, council for the National Association of Manufacturers, "realized that they are working between six weeks and two months of every year to meet State, local and national taxes, we would soon develop a tax consciousness necessary for a reduction in our States and communities."

PASSION WEEK AND A NEW LIFE PHILOSOPHY.

By Dr. W. A. Harper.

Certain dates are associated with great upheavals in history and the life of man. There is no period that can compare in consequence with Passion Week, the 1900th anniversary of which we are now celebrating. It was on the final day of this week that the greatest Spirit that ever inhabited a human body was cruelly crucified on a cross. Crucifixion was common enough in those days, but the reason for the death of this Man is in indictment of human leadership. He was crucified because He brought good news to the world and introduced a new philosophy in the organization of life.

I wish to speak briefly about some of the outstanding characteristics of this philosophy which has been as yeast through the centuries, gradually molding and transforming the thinking of men and their relations with one another.

1. Perhaps we should place first in the category of the philosophy of Jesus His teaching as to the nature of the universe. There was a note of fresh, buoyant optimism in His attitude toward the universe in its entirety. There was no pessimism in His outlook or concept. He considered the world to be for the use of man and capable of progressive conquest in that direction, and most of all He looked upon God, the Author of the universe, as kind, friendly and affectionate in His attitude toward His offspring, man. It is difficult for us, having this conception of God constantly held before us, to visualize the situation in which the world of His day found itself. The universe was conceived to be hostile to human interests and God was not thought of in terms of a loving Father. No wonder the common people whose life was sad and tragic heard this good news gladly.

2. A second item of great import in His life's philosophy is found in the view He entertained with reference to men in their social relationships. If God is Father, it inevitably follows that men are brothers. The Divine Fatherhood and human brotherhood are two of the great truths that we need to emphasize in this day of enlightenment, in this day when person is arrayed against person, class against class, and nation against nation. We today are not members of a brotherhood, but of a section of humanity. We must adopt the viewpoint of this princely Teacher of Nazareth and be the kind of brothers to one another which the common Fatherhood with which we are honored obligates us to become. We will never solve our personal problems, our social problems, nor the problems of our organized life until we have adopted the attitude of brotherhood in our feelings and methods of approach to those problems.

3. Growing out of these former two conceptions is the corollary thought that men should not insist upon their rights, but upon their privileges. General Robert E. Lee was thoroughly imbued with the Christian attitude when he declared it to be his idea that the sublimest word in the English language is duty. The insistence on rights has brought us personal jealousy, personal hatred, personal animosity, social injustice, and all the burden and suffering of war. Even in peace-time the so-called Christian nations spend a great majority of their income on military and naval establishments prepared, as they say, to protect their rights and secure their citizens in the full exercises of their rights. It is strange that we have not long since learned the futility of this method. Jesus taught that the only right we have is to see that other people get their rights.

4. The philosophy of Jesus also brought to the world a new concept as to greatness. Up until that time, men had thought that greatness consisted in the exercise of authority, in the ability to have other men bow submissively to one's authority, to exercise overlordship in human relations. The view of Jesus is diametrically opposite to this. He declared with reference to Himself that He was in the world not to be ministered unto, but to minister; that He was among His disciples as one who served; and that in the spiritual realm, which to Him was always the abiding realm, he who would be greatest must be the servant of all. When we look out on the world today we cannot but see our whole organized life is based on force and designed to make the power of its individual units a functioning whole, the very opposite this of the attitude of Jesus. We have not learned as yet this message of the Easter season.

5. Jesus did not share the acquisitive purposes of the successful business men of His day. He was not concerned to get wealth and influence and power for Himself, but to give all that He could for His fellows. I suspect this very point we will find the most difficult element of His teaching for our age to accept. We have been told again and again that we are materialistic and that success in the American view of life is spelled with dollar marks, but those who really live are those who give, and this is the teaching of Jesus—a teaching which the world needs to practice and which should have special import for us on this anniversary occasion.

6. A sixth element in the philosophy of Passion Week is the Master's teaching that progress is to be achieved through fellowship and co-operation, rather than through competition. The idea which we are prone to practice that competition is the life of trade is suicidal. Judged from the standpoint of simple arithmetic, it is absurd. Two persons working together can always achieve more than two persons working against each other. There is a philosophy of life advocated by certain leaders of our time that in a free, competitive social order the fittest—that is, the strongest—always survive, and that the weak and impotent succumb in the race. According to this philosophy, we should not worry about the defeat and death of the weak. Through their dying off, so to speak, the human stock is improved, and, while we may regret the heartless process that means their destruction, it is nevertheless best that they should die. Contrast with this heartless view of life the genuine love and sympathy of Jesus for the down-trodden and the oppressed and His anxiety to give help and newness of life to the sick and the outcast. He would make it the prime privilege of the strong to lift up and renew the weak until all mankind shall be equally strong and vigorous with life together, and He would have all men everywhere live together in a common co-operative effort to achieve this ultimate goal.

7. Finally, if Passion Week teaches anything, it teaches forbearance in judging others; even more, it teaches active love for them. We have as Christians certainly been unjust in our feelings toward the Jews. Through the Christian centuries we have in our thoughts held them responsible for the tragedy enacted on Calvary some nineteen hundred years ago. This is unfair to the race that produced the greatest spiritual Leader of human history. I hvae already referred to the fact that the common people heard Jesus gladly. The leaders of the Jews, the ecclesiastical leaders, those who held places of authority in the realm of organized religion, were responsible for his death, but not the common people, and so particularly during Passion Week we should empty our hearts of all unkindly feeling toward the race that has been persecuted so unjustly through the Christian centuries for the tragic crucifixion of Jesus. If Passion Week teaches anything, it teaches justice and fairness to all our brother-men, and we who name the name of Christ should be fair in our judgment of the Jewish people; and what is more, we should undertake to make amends to them for the unkindly thoughts and unsympathetic attitudes which have characterized Christians through the centuries.

The Jewish people are no more responsible for the tragedy enacted on Calvary than the American people are responsible for the miscarriage of the entrancing idealism with which we entered the World War, nor for the virtual nullification of the pact of Paris at the present London Disarmament Conference. And just as we do not rightly indict the American people for the faults of our leaders today, so it is improper to hold unkindly sentiments toward the Jews for what their ecclesiastical leaders some nineteen hundred years ago blindly and fanatically perpetrated on the noblest spiritual Seer of the race.

WORDS FAIL ME.

When I take this method of thanking my host of friends for their respect, kindness and love shown me while in such a critical condition, some may think I was slow in expressing my thanks. This is the main reason: the fall that I had left my right hand in a bad shape. I could not write with it for a while. I hope my friends will forgive seeming neglect. Something near a year ago I was riding my horse on the streets of Gibsonville, N. C. The horse fell and the saddle girt broke and I fell on my head and right shoulder, hence injuring my right hand for a while. By this fall I was left unconscious for the greater part of the day. In a few days my son-in-law, Mr. T. E. Green, of Raleigh, N. C., and his wife, my daughter, had me carried to their house for care and treatment. My wife was sick at the same time. Thinking too much for Ruth, our daughter, to have her care for us both, after a short while Mr. Green sent me home, after which I relapsed and lay on bed for five months. Six weeks of this time, I knew nothing that transpired except what my family and friends would tell me. I believe that during my illness that every act of love, sympathy and kindness was shown me, and in many ways it was shown in a substantial way. My wife told me that she believed there were more than five hundred people came to see me from Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Berkley, Suffolk, Danville, Reidsville, Greensboro, Durham, Sanford, Graham, Burlington, and I am told that a great host of members and friends came from the rural sections of the Christian Churches where I was once pastor; and I cannot forget to include my many friends and brethren of the Baptist, Methodist and Lutheran Churches, and especially the Lutheran pastor. I thank all these friends and brethren for their love and prayers, and I believe I am living today in answer to prayer and am more determined to oppose all manner of sin than ever before—halleluiah! praise the Lord forever.

Quite a number of the ministers of the Christian Church came to see and pray with me while I was so sick. It was thought by five different doctors that it was not possible for me to live, but I thank my Heavenly Father that I am still living. God bless all these dear brethren and friends.

Theirs, hoping to meet them all in heaven,

P. T. KLAPP.

MINISTERIAL RELIEF.

BY DR. D. B. ATKINSON.

In ancient times, much of the grain was threshed by the treading of cattle. This work was arduous and the law provided that the ox must not be muzzled when he treadeth out the grain. In this merciful manner did the law provide for the care of the working animal. Paul thought that men ought to be treated with equal consideration. In writing to Timothy, he advised that elders who rule well, especially those who labor in the word and in teaching, should be shown double honor. He stated in his Corinthian letter that it was a commandment of the Lord that those who proclaim the gospel should live of the gospel. Those who received instruction in the good news of the kingdom were to support the teachers—provide a living for them.

The question of ministerial support should be faced with the same saneness and seriousness as we face other economic problems. There may be a few men who are in the ministry because it seems to offer an easy life and fair remuneration, but the ministerial compensation generally is so low that men will hardly be attracted to the calling by its financial returns. It is a far cry to charge the ministry with having itching palms in view of the limited salaries paid. We have no desire to see ministers paid excessive salaries and the profession reduced to impotence by the luxurious living of its members. The minister ought to be willing to share the burdens of life with parishioners. He ought to be willing to make sacrifices cheerfully for the sake of his people.

There is a standard of living, however, below which the minister cannot fall without doing injustice to the gospel which he proclaims and limiting his usefulness to the people to whom he ministers. With the increase of knowledge and the spread of education, the demands made upon the ministry have been heightened, and today there are standards of qualifications for the ministerial office which are not easily attained. These higher qualifications for the minister necessarily increase the cost of his living and increased compensation must be provided.

We face the fact that the Church has never seriously considered a salary budget for the minister. He secures as large compensation as he can, and the Church offers the least that will induce the minister to accept the pastorate. No provision is made for increase of salary running through a series of years and based upon efficiency, experience, cost of living, social demands, and other vital considerations.

Among the larger Churches whose members are able financially to provide a salary that is not only a living wage, but gives the minister a measure of economic independence and culture, provision ought to be made for the payment of a salary that will enable the minister to maintain a savings account. This will give him economic independence when he reaches the age when he must retire from active work or his earning powers have diminished. This, no doubt, is the finest kind of ministerial relief. It is no argument against this plan to say that many ministers spend all their income and do not save even when they could. This practice of laying by part of the income for future years is the general practice of man and is as true of ministers generally as of any other class of persons. The difficulty is that ministers generally do not have an income large enough to provide a living for the entire period

(Continued on page 15.)

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 — The three wise men

carrying away into Bāb'-y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'-y-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

FOUNDATION FOR THE NEW DAY.

While considering the subject assigned me for this rally, one verse of Scripture came to me almost as plainly as if spoken aloud—"Other foundation can no man lay than is laid, which is Jesus Christ." The words are found in 1 Cor. 3:11. This verse will be more easily understood if you go back and read the tenth verse of the same chapter: "According to the grace of God, which is given unto us, as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth."

This is especially applicable at this particular time in the history of our Church. Work that has been started in our denomination will in some cases be carried on by workers of the Congregational Church. Work started by them will be carried on in part by our efforts.

What, then, is the most important phase to consider? Surely it is the foundation, and next to that the manner of building. Paul exhorts every man to take heed how he builds, and following that he declares there is no foundation that is not laid in Christ.

Any carpenter will tell you that a building that does not rest on a solid foundation is doomed to fall sooner or later. Any religious work that has not Christ as its Foundation is even more sure to fall.

The question may be asked just what do we mean by saying Christ is our Foundation, and what does it mean in connection with our new program? It means that we must use for our foundation Christian living, the example set by Christ. The great objective of His life on earth was to teach men how to live. A faithful following of the principles taught by His life will make missionaries of every member of our Church. No man or woman can live the Christ life and not feel the call of the unsaved.

In the past we have heeded the call in two foreign countries; we now promise to send the gospel to eight countries.

We shall use the same foundation given us by St. Paul, but to meet the demands we must live the Christ life as never before. Where we have merely played at missions in the past, we must now make missions a dominating power in our lives.

Christ spent much time in prayer. Our prayers must be more constant, more inclusive, more intense. We are undertaking great things for the Master. We shall need great strength. We must go often to the never-failing source of strength which is prayer. And that we may pray and work wisely, we must be informed.

Our Bibles will teach us spiritual truths that we may use for our good and for the good of others, and next to our Bibles should come our Church papers. No person can read a Church paper regularly and conscientiously and not be a better Christian. Who are the live wires of our Church? The readers of our papers! What women do most for missions? Those who read enough to have an intelligent idea of our missionary objectives.

We shall be a bit confused just at first perhaps by the many new localities we must learn of, the new names we must become familiar with. These things, however, should only encourage us. The very size of the task makes it the more worth while. Eight countries to learn about, to pray for, to give to; yes, eight! What a responsibility, but also what a privilege! Our Master said, "Go ye into all the world." It isn't all, but it is a start. It sounds much better than just two.

The fearful may say, "Suppose we undertake too much; what then?" My answer to that is we can do all things through Christ. Undertake great things for God and expect great things from God.

And this brings us to a very vital part of our work. We shall need more service, and that means more money. If we can't go and carry the gospel, we can help send it.

Our missionaries expect our support. We cannot, must not fail them. We hear so much of workers being called home or kept at home for lack of funds. It is a reproach to Christianity. Let us make a mighty effort to raise every dollar asked of us this year. Perhaps we don't see our way clear, but let us have more faith in God, put more confidence in His promises. It will be a source of real inspiration to any woman to read an article by Bruce Barton in a recent issue of the American Magazine, telling of his mother's wonderful faith.

So many of us are not financially able to give much, but do we not often fail to give what we really could give? Do we not allow other things to crowd out the call of missions? We are so prone to say, "I do the best I can"; but do not our best. Will our Master say to us, "Well done, good and faithful servant"?

God so loved the world that He gave His only Son. The Son of God so loved the world that He gave His life. May we so love the world that we shall give whatever we find the cause most needs!

Let us have faith to believe that we can do the work assigned us. Let us trust his promises, never forgetting the last, "And lo, I am with you always."

Mrs. Alfred Hayes.

(Read at Mission Rally, Lynchburg, Va., April 10th.)

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING APRIL 12, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$2,399.40
New Lebanon, Elberon, Va.	4.00
Elon College, N. C.	6.25
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	8.25
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	3.93
Winchester, Va.	6.31
Linville, Va.	5.43
Lawrence Mem'l B. Class, Elon College	3.22
Oak Level, Youngsville, N. C.	1.58
Berea, Elon College, N. C.	2.00
Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	.93
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	3.01
Oakland, Smithfield, Va.	3.00
Total	$2,447.31

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$1,039.74
Convention missions	18.94
Foreign missions	50.25
Total	$1,108.93

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$6,711.05
Sunday Schools, regular	47.91
Specials	69.19
Total to date	$6,828.15

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

FOUNDATIONS FOR THE NEW DAY.

By Mrs. B. D. Jones,

Sup't Nansemond County, Va., District.

We are thinking in terms of new things today. "Builders in a New Day" is our general theme.

In every great enterprise, as well as in building, much depends upon the foundation.

A Church built upon false doctrinal foundations sooner or later fails of its mission. The wise man built his house upon a rock. When the test came, it fell not, for it was secure. The foolish man built his house upon the sand, and it fell. Let every man take heed how he buildeth, for other foundations can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. If we are to be wise builders, we must have solid foundations.

A school built on unsound educational foundations is bound sooner or later to fall. A business concern built on a wrong financial basis is headed for bankruptcy.

It is well, therefore, at frequent intervals to examine the foundations upon which missions, the greatest of all Christian enterprises, rests. Good foundations are old. The solid rock is older than the shifting sand. When we do not have this we have to construct one by the old laws of chemistry and nature, such as our own Norfolk Christian Temple has. A deep hole was dug in mother earth, then piles were driven deeper still, and on top material was placed to make it solid. It cost them about $17,000. This was good for man to construct, but the best is the old foundation, the old bedrock laid by God in the long ago.

It is interesting to note the wide swing of the pendulum in our building problems. We are all architects of fate, working in these walls of lime, some with massive deeds and great, some with ornaments of rhyme. Let us build today, then, strong and sure, with a firm and ample base; and ascending and secure shall tomorrow find its place.

It is well for us to become acquainted with some of the great men and women of the Bible who have laid the foundation for the kingdom. It will help us, the modern builders, to know our task better.

B reminds us of the bravery of Esther.
U stands for the unselfishness of Dorcas.
I industry of Christians.
L love Christ love for us.
D dedication of Samuel.
E endurance of Paul.
R righteousness of Cornelius.
S the great sacrifice of Stephen.

What a wonderful structure they have built—a spiritual building, a house not made with hands! It is not the organization, nor money, nor the equipment, nor the workers that will make our Church a real, vital force in the world. It is the spirit of sacrifice for Christ in the heart of each member that will move the world.

Jesus says, "Come unto me." We are hurrying by with our splendid schemes, we are rushing hither and thither too busy to listen to Him as He stands and calls, "Come unto me." Let us sit at Jesus' feet for a bit and learn of Him. We would see Jesus, the great rock Foundation, on which our feet are set with sovereign grace; not life nor death with all their agitation can thence remove us if we see His face."

Some of our modern builders shared the yoke of service with Christ. William Carey faced his work in India with this spirit, "Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God." Henry Martyn, frail of body, but strong of soul and great in love, said, "Let my life burn out for God." When Robert Morrison started to China, a sneering ship-owner looked him up and down, saying, "And so, Mr. Morrison, you really expect you will make an impression on the idolatry of the great Chinese empire." "No, sir," Mr. Morrison replied; "I expect God will." David Livingston in the heart of Africa, repeated often in his zeal and eagerness, "Anything, so it be forward." We are the kingdom builders. Our task is the building of lives. Life is short, and we must build quickly; there is no time for delay or discouragement.

Then, let us lay our foundation-stones. First, prayer—it is as old as God's children. It was old when the long-looked-for Saviour came to use it constantly, yet it is new every day for us. It is the foundation-stone that anchors each life to Christ and holds the whole structure secure. Prayer is the golden key that unlocks the morning and locks up the evening hour.

Second, we have knowledge from the Old Testament; we have the command, "With all thy getting, get knowledge." The New Testament says, "Study to show thyself approved a workman (a builder) that needeth not to be ashamed." God does not capitalize ignorance no more than He does laziness. If we are to build in this new day, we must study, we must know. If we are to build for God, we must know God.

Third—love. Love is old and yet it is new when used as Jesus meant it to be. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. God so loved the world that He gave His Son, that we might have life everlasting. Jesus says, "This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you."

Fourth—sacrificial service. The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many. Christ sacrificed His all for us. He gave His life. What are we sacrificing for Him? Let us build, then, on these four foundations.

Pray without ceasing. Study the problems, plans and people, because souls are perishing while we delay; we must hasten with our work. Let us examine these foundations to discover if, perchance, they have subsided. Let us sacrifice and go deep down into our lives and strengthen these things that remain on which alone we may hope to build an enduring missionary structure.

"New builders built away;
Dear builders built today.
Build a temple pure and bright,
Build it up in deeds of light;
Lay the corner-stone strong and deep,
Where the heart and truth shall keep;
Lay them with a builder's care,
For your temple resteth there."

PROGRAM.

District Rally No. 4, of the Alabama Conference, will meet April 27, 1930, including the following Churches: Roanoke, Mt. Zion, Rock Stand, Rocky Springs, Noonday, Cavers Grove. Place of meeting, Noonday.

Morning Session.

10:30. Called to Order by District Leader.
Song Service.
Devotional by Mrs. Sam Carpenter.
Business Session.
District Leader's Message.
11:30. Address by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
Appointment of Committees.
Offering.
Adjourn for Noon Hour.

Afternoon Session.

1:30. Song Service.
Devotional by Mrs. W. H. Stephens.
Address from Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Read by Miss Gervis Holder.
Address—"How Youth Sees the Church and Missions," by Millard Stephens.
Address—"What a Woman's Missionary Society Means to the Church," by Rev. W. T. Meacham.
Address—"How to Keep Interest After We are Organized," by Mrs. V. E. Kitchens.
Address—"Solving the Mission Problem," by Rev. G. D. Hunt.
Reports of Committees.
Benediction.

We will be glad to have all of our Churches represented and as many ministers present as can possibly come.

MRS. J. H. SWINT,
Roanoke, Ala. District Leader.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

Report for the second quarter of the treasurer of the Woman's Board, North Carolina Christian Conference, for quarter ending March 31, 1930.

Women's Societies.

Bethlehem	$ 1.30
Burlington	264.88
Catawba Springs	3.30
Chapel Hill	13.65
Durham	118.62
Elon College	155.55
Grace's Chapel	5.85
Graham, Providence	20.00
Greensboro	80.00
Haw River	9.05
Hebron	5.00
Henderson	35.00
High Point	2.50
Ingram	5.80
Liberty (Vance)	50.00
Liberty (Va.)	2.00
Monticello	3.10
Mt. Auburn	15.50
New Hope	1.80
Piney Plains	16.50
Pleasant Grove	12.60
Pleasant Hill	6.10
Pleasant Ridge	14.00
Ramseur	13.25
Reidsville	50.00
Sanford	62.50
Shallow Well	22.00
Shiloh	3.25
Turner's Chapel	12.50
Union Ridge	8.30
Virgilina (Union)	15.38
Wake Chapel	23.50
		$1,052.78

Young People's Societies.

Bethlehem	$ 1.54
Burlington	100.00
Burlington, Jr.	61.82
Durham	16.11
Elon College, Jr.	12.50
Graham	4.04
Turner's Chapel	1.00
Wake Chapel	1.00
		198.01

Willing Workers' Societies.

Burlington	$ 15.00
Durham	12.12
Durham, Jr.	7.03
Elon College	14.16
		48.31

Cradle Roll.

Durham	$ 3.00
Wake Chapel	1.25
		4.25
Total		$1,303.35

MRS. W. R. SELLARS,
Burlington, N. C. Treasurer.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

Quarterly financial report of the treasurer of the North Carolina Woman's Conference to the treasurer of the Woman's Home and Foreign Board, Southern Christian Convention, April 14, 1930.

Women's Societies.

Amount of dues	$254.63
Home special	344.27
Foreign special	344.28
Thankoffering	89.05
Day of prayer offering	10.55
Life Member, Miss Dora Edwards.	10.00
		$1,052.78

Young People's Societies.

Santa Isabel	$ 99.01
Mountain work in Virginia	99.00
		198.01

Willing Workers' Societies.

Santa Isabel	$ 21.65
Mountain work in Virginia	21.66
Indian work	5.00
		48.31

Cradle Roll.

Japan	$ 2.12
Porto Rico	2.14
		4.25
Total amount of check		$1,303.35

MRS. W. R. SELLARS,
Conference Treasurer.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson IV—April 27, 1930.

Giving Up All for the Kingdom.

Golden Text: "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven."—Matt. 6:20.

Lesson: Matt. 19:1-29.

Divorce.

The first part of today's lesson is likely to be very unpopular with a large number of people today, for Jesus has a few straight words to say about divorce, and He says them in such a way that they cut straight across the practice of so many modern Americans if statistics are to be trusted. For statisticians claim that about one marriage out of every ten in America ends up in the divorce court. (One wonders if the rate is quite so high, taken by and large.) The interesting and disturbing thing about the divorce problem is not only the high percentage of divorces, but the flimsy and faulty grounds that are usually claimed and allowed for divorce. A shrewd lawyer and a scheming man or woman can manage the thing very well and rather easily as a general thing.

Now, Jesus has a straight word to say about the whole matter. He affirms the sacredness of marriage and the sanctity of the marriage relationship. He states that marriage in its true form is an act of God Himself—God Himself joins the truly wedded man and woman together. It is, therefore, not to be entered into lightly or indiscreetly, but with a sense of awe and in the mood of high enterprise, soberly and in the fear of God. Once it has been entered into, it is to be a lifelong matter. One thing and one thing only seems to be justification in Jesus' way of thinking for dissolving the marriage vows—adultery. When either of the two parties commits the act which is a denial of marriage itself, the other has grounds for separation if he or she so desires it. But in case such an event should come to pass, Jesus plainly states that whoever marries the guilty one is an accomplice in the crime. It is a hard, straight saying, but there it is in black and white. It seems like a too rigid and too unjust rule. But He who not only spake as never man spake before, but who saw as never man saw before, saw the moral and spiritual implications of anything less than a counsel of perfection. One thing is sure—there is too much looseness in the marriage relationship in modern life, and all too much freedom allowed by the State in dissolving the marriage relationship.

Riches.

"And behold one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life?" The one who came was young, rich, probably cultured and powerful, but he realized that all this could not give him that which his heart craved—the certainty of the more abundant, eternal life. But, alas! he thought that he could do something to earn eternal life. Such life is the gift of God—it cannot be earned; it can only be accepted.

"If thou wouldst enter into life, keep the commandments." If you would find the true meaning of life, order your life by the eternal moral and spiritual principles of righteousness or right living. Contrary to the too-widely-held opinion, the way really to find life and to be happy in life is to be good.

"All these have I kept from my youth up; what lack I yet?" He was, after all, a pretty good kind of fellow. But somehow or other he had not found in meticulous obedience to the law that inner peace and satisfaction which his heart craved. The reason why is to be found in Jesus' answer.

"If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me." The commandments which Jesus called to the young man's attention, and by which he had measured himself were all commandments dealing with a man's relation with his fellow-man. This young man's horizontal relationships were all right. But his material possessions had come between him and God. Jesus readily saw that in this case desperate measures were necessary. There must be a major operation. The young man must be separated from these material things which had first place in his life if he were to find the more abundant life. That Jesus correctly diagnosed the trouble is to be seen in the words, "But when the young man heard that saying he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions." Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Seek first the kingdom of God.

One misses the point of the story altogether if he thinks that it applies only to those who are exceedingly rich. Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our instruction. In the young man's case it was money. It might have been something else. Certainly it is true that those who have great possessions are not the only ones who need to beware, for there are legions of people in limited means whose material possessions have kept them from whole-hearted surrender for the kingdom of God.

"A rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven." He shall by hard effort enter in. There is something about material possessions that fosters a spirit which is not the quality of spirit which is so essential for entrance into the kingdom of heaven. Let every man take heed lest in laying up for himself treasures upon earth he fail to lay up for himself treasures in heaven.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, April 27, 1930.

Topic: "What is a 'Useful Life'?"—2 Tim. 2: 3-15, 21, 22.

Some Bible Hints.

The truly useful life is a life of service of some kind or other (v. 3).

If an athlete trains and strives to win, how much more should we prepare for the duties of high living (v. 5).

Any life is worth while which God approves. The day-laborer may be of more use in the world than the politician (v. 15).

The useful life is usually quiet, kind, dutiful, doing the day's work gladly. It is a good life (v. 21).

Suggestive Thoughts.

Life consists of thought and action. Some men are thinkers who show the men of action what to do. Usefulness cannot always be measured in deeds.

What in the way of material results has a minister to show for his life? Nothing. Yet his life is one of the most useful. To keep alive and to raise spiritual values is of tremendous importance.

Many are dissatisfied and say, "What have I to show for my life? I am like a man in a treadmill, getting nowhere." But every piece of necessary work done is useful, however humble, and character achieved is greater than all.

Some of the most useful lives are spent on the farm, although many do not think so. How could we live without the farmer? To feed the world surely has value.

A Few Illustrations.

Many a ship will float in spite of the fact that is is ugly. But ships need not be ugly. Beauty and usefulness may go hand in hand.

We are the instruments—some keen, some dull. If we seek the will of God, we shall live more usefully than if we do not. There is a work for each to do, and our duty is to find it.

Some lives are useful in one direction, and useless in others. A great employer of labor is useful because he provides a livelihood for many, but he may be morally a lost soul.

The useful life is a helpful life. Livingstone did not seem to accomplish much, but he opened up Africa and brought blessing to a dark continent. All helpfulness is useful.

To Think About.

What kind of life would you like to live?

How may we be of use in the world?

What do you think is the most useful life a man can live?

SHALL WE LET IT PASS?

Next Sunday closes our mission period. We have given our best effort to getting the task before you, so that we might all realize the opportunity and understand really what it means to carry the gospel of Christ to others.

This year we enter new and larger fields of service through our union with the Congregational Church. The need is greater than ever. The offering comes at a time when we shall have to make a real sacrifice to do our part. But the joy of service is in the sacrifice we make to render that service. So, for the sake of our Christ, let us make a real sacrifice in the amount we give to missions

I am enclosing an envelope for your convenience. Put your offering in the envelope and bring it to Church. If you can't come, send it not later than Easter Sunday. Your Church and your Christ are depending on you.

Prayerfully yours,

J. H. Dollar.

P. S.: The Sunday School offering Sunday will go to missions. Each class will make its offering separately.

(Personal letter by the pastor to every member of Reidsville Church, April 12th.)

WE ARE UNITING.

Introductions seem hardly necessary, for some of us of the foreign mission boards of the Congregational and Christian Churches have been working together for months, and the delightful experiences of fellowship and mutual interest during these days have made us one. So far as the spirit and purposes of the two boards are concerned, we are already united. Of course, there are many details to be worked out and many adjustments to be made in administration and promotion, both here and on the field, but the attitude already so clearly manifested on the part of both groups insures the success of this great effort to demonstrate to the world that Christians from two entirely different denominational roots can and will work together for the advancement of the kingdom of God on earth.

The Christian Church recognizes its limitations in the foreign field, but it hopes to make up in spirit what it may lack in numbers. An exchange of projects between the two Churches has opened up to us already this year opportunities in a half-dozen countries where previously we have had no work. We accept the challenge to this larger service. Right now we are in the midst of a special effort to acquaint our people with the overseas work of the united Church and particularly that part of it in which we have accepted definite support. But, fine as this exchange of projects is, we consider such an arrangement only temporary—just an advance step toward ultimate complete union. Even now we are beginning to think of all your work as ours, and we believe you are thinking of all our work as yours. Your prayers and ours arise for the whole cause of the united Church. This is but one of the glorious experiences that comes from a genuine effort to help fulfill the prayer of our Lord "that they all may be one."

We welcome the opportunity to come into the pages of the Missionary Herald. We rejoice in its splendid history and above all in its record of living achievement on the mission field. An effort is being made to get it into the hands of many of our own loyal supporters of missions, and we believe it will be a big factor in cementing together the work of the two former boards. Through its pages from month to month bits of news from our mission enterprise will come to you. In this issue will be found a story from Rev. William Q. McKnight, one of our missionaries in Japan. Others will follow. As we read of the work of the united Church, may the spirit of our Christ more closely bind us together in this common task and may we prove ourselves worthy leaders in this pioneer movement for Christian unity in mission lands.—Dr. W. P. Minton, in Missionary Herald.

ELIMINATION OF ILLITERACY URGED.

The Secretary of the Interior has issued a call to all evangelical bodies, asking that they join in the drive to eliminate illiteracy that is just now getting under way. The shocking facts of illiteracy are called to the attention of these Church organizations at this time because the annual meetings of most of them take place in the spring and it is hoped that these meetings will prepare for active participation in the campaign sponsored by the government.

In his letter to these religious bodies, Dr. Wilbur said:

"The National Advisory Committee on Illiteracy, appointed with the approval of President Hoover, is stimulating interest in the campaigns now being carried on in thirty different States, the purpose of which is to reduce adult illiteracy before the 1930 census is taken next month. This effort is preliminary to a nation-wide drive, which will be undertaken soon after the Census Bureau assembles the facts upon existing illiteracy. The success of the proposed campaign will depend, in large measure, upon the active co-operation of all the educational and religious agencies in every community.

"I am presenting an appeal to all of the evangelical bodies in the nation, urging that, through their organizations, they shall lend an active and hearty support to this undertaking.

"The 1920 census reported 4,931,905 persons ten years of age and over unable to write in any language. The Bureau of Census says that this number comprises 'only those persons who have had no education whatever.' Only three million of these are whites, of whom 1,242,572 are native-born. The negro illiterates number 1,842,-161; the foreign-born, 1,763,740. These are sheer illiterates. The number of persons unable to read the Bible with understanding or to write a letter is variously estimated from fifteen million to twenty million.

"The task of the National Advisory Committee on Illiteracy is to awaken a nation-wide interest in teaching the sheer illiterates to read and write. It is estimated that there are three million people verbally blind, who would read the Bible if they had the ability to do so. The blunt statement of the facts carries its own appeal. I would greatly appreciate your presenting to the proper authorities the situation, in the hope that some action may be taken by your body at its spring session looking toward the creation of an interest and the awakening of the spirit of co-operation in this endeavor to open the eyes of the millions in this Christian land, whose knowledge of the Bible must be acquired at the present time solely through listening to others read."

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

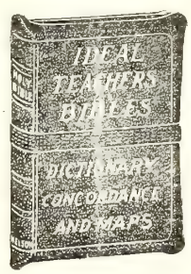
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

MONDAY.

A PROMISE FULFILLED.

"Take no thought how or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall say, for the Holy Ghost shall teach you in the same hour what ye ought to say."—Acts 28.

Paul's whole Christian career was the fulfillment of this promise of Christ. But in no instance is it more outstanding than when he went to Rome, where his enemies sought to kill him, and by his earnest, sincere testimonies, the Holy Ghost wrought powerfully for him and he was allowed to abide there in peace for two years.

This is a promise which, through a mistaken idea of its meaning, has been relied upon too much. Jesus is speaking of the power of heart-life, where dwells the Spirit of God, and He is trying to dethrone hypocrisy. It means that any preparation which is more than the preparation that truth has already given one in his heart will give an unwarranted outward appearance of things which will not be of the Holy Spirit. It follows that "nothing really matters," says Child, "except what God, whom nothing escapes, and the Son of man, the final Judge whom no one can deceive by false appearances, think of us. Men may despise us and persecute us, but there is nothing for a truly righteous man to be afraid of." This is the experience of Paul.

If one has a ministry to render, be it a service, a prayer, a testimony among the saints, or a sermon to preach, too much preparation in a manner that is not only sincere but direct, clear and winning cannot be made. He who omits his preparation will fail. It is like firing an unloaded gun.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Father of us all, blesser of mankind and the giver of every good and perfect gift, we look to Thee for the power of the Holy Spirit to dwell within us, that we may have nothing to fear in any walk or circumstance of life. Amen.

TUESDAY.

KEEPING EYES FIXED ON THE TEMPLE.

"I will look toward Thy holy temple."—Jonah 2:1-9.

In the experience of utter forsakenness and terror, Jesus and Jonah are somewhat alike. They both were cast in the depths and all the waves of God's wrath passed over them. They both felt themselves cast out of the sight of God entirely forsaken by Him. Yet, they both continued to look toward the holy temple and in faith held fast to the promise of deliverance. They did not relax their hold on the world, and their prayers forced their way through iron doors and stone walls, and reached the ear of heaven. Their faith saved them.

To discuss the difference of the two and the cause which led each to his cross is another question. The point here is, they "looked toward the temple."

Whatever our experiences are, we must follow the same course, like Paul, keeping fixed on the prize of the high calling, keeping eyes fixed on Jesus, the author and finisher of faith. Jesus had no Saviour. He was alone. We have Jesus. We are never alone. Our weak voices and poor prayer may reach his ears at any time.

Prayer.—Truly, dear Lord, Thou knowest best what our souls suffer. Lead us out into the light. Hear our cry in Thy holy temple each day, and release not Thy hold on us, nor may we ever release our hold on Thee. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

CONSEQUENCES OF CHURCHLESSNESS.

"Even as they refused (did not approve) to have God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind to do those things which are not convenient (not fitting)."—Rom. 1:28.

It is urged that you take the time to read our lesson carefully in the light of the subject. This lesson is a superior comment to anything that man can make.

These chapters are self-introductory. They set forward man's salvation and the necessity of righteousness. It says that to neglect the work of natural religion involves sin of the gravest kind. It is easy for any one to see how this is true by reflecting his own lapses (and who is without them to some degree?) and by observation of the mental and moral condition of others whom he knows to have lapsed from the true knowledge of God.

Prayer.—Dear Father, open, Thou, our eyes to see what Thou hast given us in the gospel. Help us, O God, to know sin and righteousness, death and life, give us true faith, that we may never be ashamed of the gospel of Christ, and may ever reap its benefits in righteousness. Amen.

THURSDAY.

RESISTING TEMPTATIONS.

"It is written."—Matt. 4:1-11.

As soon as Jesus entered upon His Church life (mission), the devil sought to strike Him down. Then began the struggle, the outcome of which depended the ownership of His soul. His weapon is the gospel, the Scriptures. He won! The devil was not able to kindle in Jesus' breast a single evil inclination.

The same thing happens to every one who undertakes the Christian life. Victory or defeat depends upon the very same thing it depended upon in the instance of Jesus. Be in earnest. Be loyal and faithful to thy heavenly vision. Use the sword of the Spirit, the word of God, in all temptaations. When temptation persists, do as Christ did: say, "Get thee behind me, Satan." Have a will to resist and stick to God.

Adam abandoned the word and fell and became subject to the devil. Christ holds on and is delivered from the devil. Christ's victory is ours. In the soul of the Saviour there was nothing to which the devil could fasten—no unclean desire. We may feel that we have many things to which Satan can cling, and yet we have the power to give him no vantage ground, and, trusting Christ for strength, he who conquered shall also conquer for you, and by means of your faith and the use of the word you shall escape defeat.

Prayer.—Dear Lord Jesus, we thank Thee for Thy victory and for the strength to give us the victory, too. Grant that we may overcome, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE IMPACT OF JUDGING.

"Wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself."—Rom. 2:1.

To judge others is a natural inclination of the human race. But the spirit of judging is born of the devil, for it has in it all the elements of hypocrisy. A good test of this often occurs in one's every-day experiences. There is a man in authority who states that he never "bawls out one of his employees" for an error he has made that very soon it does not come back to him in a similar error of his own. And that fact has taught him to be very slow in criticising any one, lest he be unkind and do him an injury. The more we are able to put ourselves "in the other fellow's shoes" and see through his glasses, the more we learn that the other fellow has a legitimate point of view or we may discover that his actions have been through misapprehension.

Thus, the more also do we become charitable and patient toward others—two chief characteristics of genuine Christianity and two outstanding characteristics of Jesus Himself.

Prayer.—Dear Lord God, Deliverer and Leader of our souls, lead us more and more into the point of view of the hearts and minds of others, and "to see ourselves as others see us," and just be good. Amen.

SATURDAY.

PERISHING WITHOUT THE LAW.

"For as many as have sinned without the law shall also perish without the law."—Rom. 2:12.

If one is ignorant of a law, is he guilty of sin if he violates that law? The law says that ignorance is no excuse. Lev. 5:17 says he is guilty. Jesus says (Jno. 9:4) that if you do a thing blindly, "ye would have no sin." Paul says he obtained mercy because he did it "ignorantly." Luke, in recording the teachings of Christ concerning faithful and unfaithful servants, quotes Christ as saying, "The servant who knew his lord's will and made not ready, nor did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes; but he that knew not and did things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes" (12: 47, 48).

Perhaps the law has but little choice in meeting out punishment for breaking the law, but God has a choice. If one sins ignorantly, he may be pardoned, for there is no sin that God will not remit; but ignorance does not relieve one of the consequences of his sin. His sin may be put away, and yet its painful issues flow in him. God forgave David, but in the same breath reminded him how he had to suffer for his sin. Abraham's sin with Hagar was forgiven; nevertheless, his household suffered strife and discord as a result of it. It other words, we reap what we sow; we must suffer the natural result of our deeds. These are no exceptional instances. It is a general law. God nor man will condemn the fruit of the spirit, or he would have to condemn himself. Law cannot be against eternal right.

Behind acts of error through ignorance there may be an honest and well-intended spirit, and

If these explanations are correct, our text is one of Paul's expressions of the wonderful grace of God for a sinner, and if he is a sinner through ignorance, heaven's judgment will not be measured by the law, but by His grace.

Prayer.—Dear Father, Thy love, mercy and grace is too ponderous for us to comprehend. If we can but touch the hem of Thy garment of love we shall be satisfied. Forgive us our sins. And save us forever. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE GLORY OF DEEDS.

"If Abraham was justified by works, he hath wherewith to glory; but not toward God. . . . Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned unto him for righteousness."—Rom. 4:2, 3.

Works have their glory, but without the inward state of being that seeks to do good to man and

(Continued on page 13.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

If you want to have some fun and real amusement, you do not always have to go to a moving-picture show to have it. Your Orphanage superintendent does not find it necessary. Last Saturday the day was clear and the second real hot day this year. The farm boys got in the field at 5 o'clock with two tractors, breaking land for corn and beans. Four other boys were running two horse plows and dray barrow. Some of the other larger boys were splitting stove wood for the summer. The four boys with their head man was burning off pastures where broomstraw has grown up. Other boys were clearing up the premises around the buildings. This took all the boys except the little fellows from six to ten years of age (twenty in number). It fell to the lot of the superintendent of the Orphanage to keep them busy. That was when the fun began.

We had about an acre of ground in the hog pasture to rake off and pile the brush and get it clean so grass would grow. We organized our twenty boys in two groups. Appointed two of the largest boys as overseers to lead the boys in the work. Everything went fine, some using the rakes, some grubbing the little sprouts, some piling brush, some burning, and we were having some real fun until the superintendent was called to another part of the plantation and did not get back for a couple of hours; and lo and behold! when we returned my twenty boys were absent, the rakes and mattocks resting, no boys in sight, the place deserted, and everything quiet save and except only the songs of the birds and the grunt of the pigs.

We went to the house, looked up our two appointed overseers, and found that when we left their help left, and they followed. We called them together, marched the twenty back to their job. The superintendent went with them, and then the amusing part of the game began. The wind was still. It was on the south side of the hill. The sun was shining hot, the boys were not use to it. All of them wanted water every five minutes, and they drank a long time and very slow; but we enjoyed seeing their game and stayed with them till the work was finished and the bell rang for dinner; and they were very happy to hear it ring.

We did not tell the little boys, but we were as near fagged out as they. Little boys will work if you will work with them. We have been a little boy and we know. Orphanage boys are just like other little boys when it comes to work.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 17, 1930.

Brought forward		$3,508.06
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Berea	$ 2.51
Long's Chapel	1.92
Durham	18.63
Third Avenue, Danville	3.92
		26.98
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Turner's Chapel	$ 1.25
Catawba Springs	5.00
Pleasant Cross	3.25
		9.50
Western N. C. Conference:
Pleasant Hill	$ 2.30
Biscoe	1.25
		3.55
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Franklin	$ 7.72
First Church, Richmond	18.00
Oakland	10.00
Pleasant Grove	8.26
Mt. Carmel	5.54
		49.52
Valley Virginia Conference:
Wood's Chapel	$ 1.00
Timber Ridge	2.00
		3.00
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
North Highland		2.00
Alabama Conference:
Noon Day		1.28
Special Offerings.
Sale of potatoes	$15.00
Mrs. Jane Huffines	1.00
Mr. Bullock, support of Hazel	20.00
M. Y. Wilson, support children	20.00
Mrs. Oliver Horner, for children	10.00
		66.00
The Duke endowment		2,256.87
Grand total		$5,926.76

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

glorify God, it is selfish, and all men condemn works which are done for self-glory.

Abraham's works were prompted by grace which sought first the welfare of others. He is called righteous because of his faith in God which ordered all his ways. To convince us in this, it is pointed out that he did not conform to the law of the circumcision in order to appear righteous, nor because he was compelled to, but because he was righteous and his obedience to the law was a natural outcome of his righteous heart. Long before he conformed to this law he was called righteous and a man after God's own heart.

Therefore, not even Abraham can claim any ground for boasting of what he had done in relation with God, for the state of righteousness bestowed on him by God must be regarded as a gift and not as wages.

Prayer.—Dear Father, Thy true servants work because they love Thee. Thy gift is eternal life. Give Thou unto us inward godliness and Thy spirit that leads to heavenly glory. Amen.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 [illegible] the sin [illegible] of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other. 11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, [2]O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better | [a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [2] or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x-- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

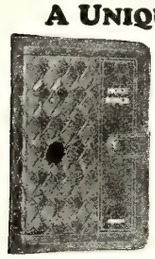
A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding



The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed or Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible.
No. 03255x--------- $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible -------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Congregational Conference of the Carolinas, the Regional Committee of the Southeast, the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast, and the Southern Christian Convention will assemble in the United Church (Christian-Congregational-Friends), Raleigh, N. C., April 27th and continue to May 2, 1930. All meetings will be held in the United Church unless otherwise announced.

Sunday, April 27th.

9:45. The Church School.
11:00. Morning Worship.
3:00. Session of the Congregational Conference of the Carolinas.
7:00. Young People's Meeting.
8:00. Evening Worship.

Monday, April 28th.

9:00. The Conference of the Carolinas.
2:00. The Conference of the Carolinas.
7:00. The Regional Committee of the Southeast.

Tuesday, April 29th.

9:00. The Regional Committee of the Southeast.
2:00. The Advisory Board of the Southeast.
2:00. The Advisory Board of the Southeast.
7:30. United Service with the Southern Christian Convention.

The Congregational representatives and visitors are heartily invited to participate in the entire gatherings of the Southern Christian Convention, which will begin on Tuesday and last until Friday. During the sessions of the Southern Christian Convention, the Conference of the Carolinas and the Advisory Board of the Southeast will have the privilege of calling meetings to deal with special needs, so that actual adjournment will not take place until all necessary matters are cared for.

Outstanding leaders will be present from both the Congregational and Christian groups, and during the united sessions there will be a fellowship supper, a young people's banquet, a woman's banquet, and other special occasions.

North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky are each entitled to official delegates, and these have been duly elected and notified. The traveling expenses of these representatives of the Regional Committee and Advisory Board will be provided, and the Churches are urged to send other representatives and, where possible, pay their expenses.

All desiring entertainment, which will be on the Harvard plan, are asked to notify Dr. J. Edward Kirbye, United Church, Hillsboro and Dawson Streets, Raleigh, N. C., by April 22nd. The Carolina Hotel has been selected as headquarters, and for those who wish to care for their own entertainment, a special rate of $2.00 a day has been arranged.

The entertaining Church, known as the United Church (Christian-Congregational-Friends), is situated at Hillsboro and Dawson Streets, and the Carolina Hotel is one block from the Union Station.

For other information relative to the Raleigh gatherings, write to Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, 528 Victor Building, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, 117 West Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.; Dr. Fred P. Ensminger, Demorest, Ga.; Dr. J. Edward Kirbye, United Church, Hillsboro and Dawson Streets, Raleigh, N. C.; Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, 201 Island Avenue, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Transportation: The Seaboard Air Line Railway has fine service throughout the entire Southeast and connects at all points for Raleigh.

CONVENTION PROGRAM.

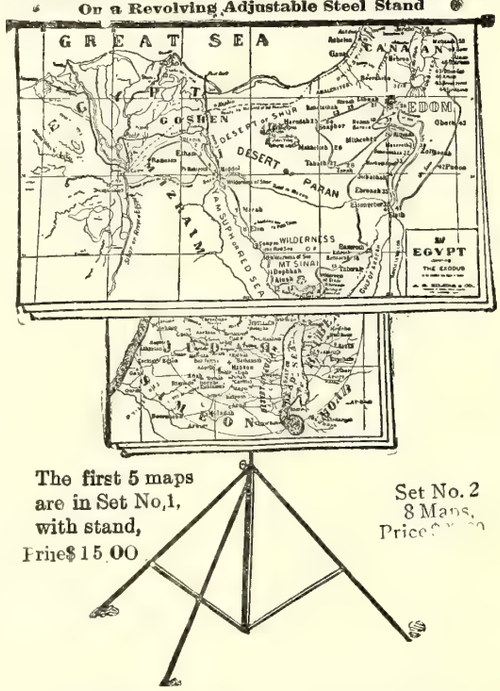
(Continued frmo page 4.)

11:20. Report of Georgia and Alabama Conference—Mrs. T. F. Roquemore.
11:20. Report of Eastern Virginia Conference—Mrs. M. L. Bryant.
11:40. Report of Alabama Conference—Mrs. V. E. Kitchen.
11:50. Address—Miss Mary Preston, New York.
Special Music.
Address—"The Call for the Intensive," Mrs. John Ferguson, New York.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Opening Service—Dr. W. P. Minton.
2:30. Report of Cradle Roll—Mrs. I. W. Johnson.
2:40. Report of Young People's Conference—Mrs. R. T. Bradford.
2:50. Report of Literature and Mite Boxes—Mrs. C. H. Caviness.
3:00. Report of Life Memberships and Memorials—Mrs. M. J. W. White.
3:10. Report of Spiritual Life—Mrs. W. H. Carroll.
3:20. Report of Convention Editor—Mrs. W. M. Jay.
3:30. Address—Mrs. Clark P. Garmon, Japan.
3:50. Address—Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Sec'y.
4:30. Report of Committees.
4:40. Presentation of Banner.
4:50. Miscellaneous Business.
Reading of Minutes.
5:00. Closing Service.
6:00. Banquet (Continuing till 7:30 o'Clock).

Eilers Sunday School Maps.
On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand



The first 5 maps are in Set No.1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price

Fine large Maps, In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen inished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites the

Series No. 2—Eilers' Edition

Eight large Maps in six colors each, size 36x57. Greatest value for the money. Each set consists of the following Maps: Map of Egypt and Exodus of Israel, Palestine divided among the 12 Tribes, New Testament Palestine, Map of Western Asia and Bible Lands, Roman Empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's travels by colored lines, the Divided Kingdoms of Judah and Israel, the Persian control of Palestine and the Pathways of our Lord showing by colored lines each journey He made. This set of eight fine Maps which cover all Bible Geography in the different periods on adjustable folding steel stand only prepaid.

NOTICE.

The Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention is to be held at Liberty Vance July 16-18, 1930. This is written with the hope that the ministers of this Conference will schedule no revivals to conflict with this date, since it is essential that all ministers be present and all Churches represented.

R. L. House, Pres.

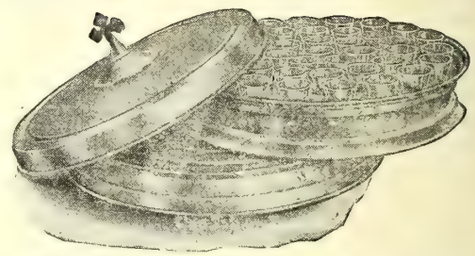
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

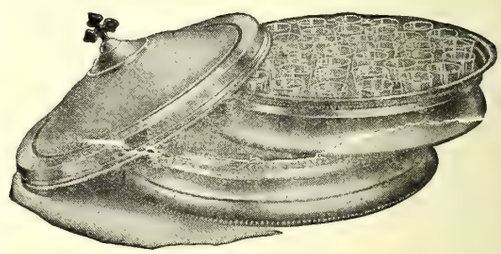


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

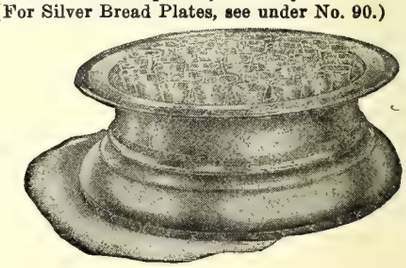
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

MINISTERIAL RELIEF.

(Continued from page 7.)

of life. The income does not make saving a possibility.

The country is dotted with numerous small Churches which are unable to pay even a living salary to their ministers. The rural sections and small towns especially have an excess of Church organizations. There is absolutely no way for these small, weak Churches to pay a salary that will enable the minister to live and save. His income does not make possible those sources of knowledge and inspiration so essential to a high type of ministerial service.

The movement for the union of the Churches, thereby reducing the number of small organizations, ought to make possible a more efficient service and provide a more adequate support of the minister. I am not saying that economic arguments are adequate reason for Church union. The reason for Christian union lies in the very character of the Christian life, in the unity of the spirit of Christ, in the essential oneness of all the followers of Christ. The economic relief will come as a by-product of a more nearly Christian type of living.

If the Church were sufficiently Christian it would recognize the inequality of the burden of financial support as finances are provided according to the present regime and would be willing to bear one another's burdens according to the law of Christ. The large, wealthy Church feels no responsibility for sharing in the financial support of the smaller, weaker Church. In educational circles we are working toward a larger taxing unit than the local school district. The county, in many places, is made the unit of taxation, and even then the State assumes a share in the support of the local schools. Back of this plan is the principle of equality of educational opportunity.

The principle of equality of religious opportunity would suggest to the Church that some such provision would be humane and doubtless more nearly Christian than our present system, more or less pagan, of leaving each Church to bear its own burdens. The very suggestion of equality of religious opportunity would perhaps meet with bitter opposition.

The seriousness of our present financial practice clearly reveals itself in the lives of the aged ministers. Many a minister labors through years with a heavy heart because he sees the steady approach of the day when he will be unable to continue his work. He will be forced by the weakness of age, the infirmity of health, and the demand for younger men to relinquish his pastorate. What, then, shall he do? He has served his Church faithfully for many years, but has been unable to make any financial provision for his declining years. When he is forced into inactivity he drops from the ranks, attends conferences and conventions irregularly, loses contact with his brethren, is forced into retirement and into practice of economies that bespeak his poverty, and often becomes pessimistic and critical in spirit. That part of his life which ought to bring him respite from toil, leisure for reading and meditation, and opportunity for the enjoyment of the sweet fragrance of a rich and bountiful experience, is harassed by anxiety and worry. If some are more fortunate in learning to be content in whatever the state they find themselves, they still are deprived of the fruits of a well-earned, restful old age.

This problem of financial relief for the minister in his old age can be solved only by the cooperation of the entire Church. It is not a matter of voluntary benevolence, and should not be regarded as charity. The railroads, many business corporations, and other financial enterprises provide as definitely for the retirement of their workers and their continued support during this period of retirement as they do for the payment of their active workers. This system of support throughout life for long-time workers is based upon the principle that every business ought to take care of its members. The same principle, clearly enunciated according to Paul by Christ Himself, places upon the Church the responsibility of supporting ministers, not only during the period of active life but also during old age.

The Church has too long ignored or evaded this responsibility. Some denominations are awaking to their duty and are providing for their aged and infirm ministers. A fund may be provided by the combined contributions of ministers, lay members and Churches. An annual gift, generous, universally participated in, and wisely distributed to those entitled to receive benefits, would be of inestimable value. A more dependable source of income would be endowments. I have no system to suggest, but as a Church we should bring this matter to fruition at an early date. We have discussed it in our General Convention and in our papers. We need to develop some simple, workable plan and put it into practice.

Palmer Col., Albany, Mo.

NOTICE.

The Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Christian Convention will meet Tuesday, April 29th, at 10 A. M., in the United Church, Raleigh, N. C. All delegates are requested to be on time for the roll call.

MRS. J. A. WILLIAMS, Pres.

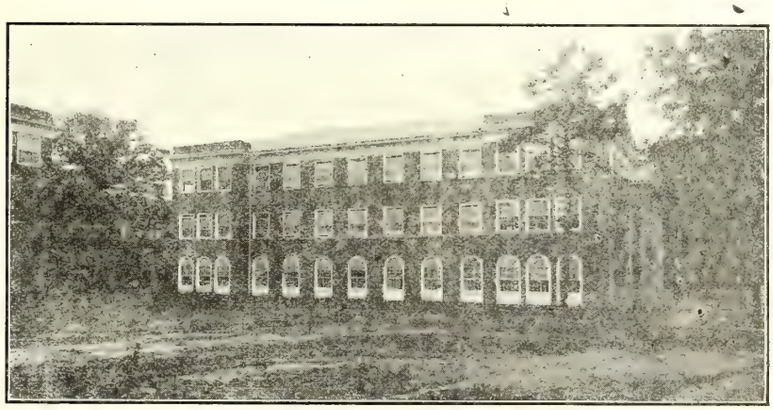
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

LOUDERBACK.

Charlotte Marie, little daughter of Charley H. and Vergie Louderback, was born August 23, 1928, and died March 13, 1930, aged 3 years, 6 months, and 20 days. Brother and Sister Louderback are faithful members of Newport Christian Church. They have the sympathy of their many friends in the sad loss that has come to them. Funeral services were held at Newport March 15, 1930.

A. W. ANDES.

KITCHENS.

H. L. Kitchens was born June 18, 1856, in Newton County, Ga., and died at Roanoke, Ala., March 29, 1930. He was a faithful, loyal member of First Christian Church, Roanoke, he being the oldest member of his Church and the first one to take his departure and join the Church triumphant. He bore his suffering with patience during the four months of his last illness, and when all human efforts had failed he fell asleep to awake in the likeness of his Saviour on the glorious morning of the resurrection.

His first wife preceded him to their eternal home seven years ago. He leaves to mourn their loss his second wife, who was a faithful and loving companion; three sons, four daughters, fifteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. The names of the children are as follows: C. T., V. E., Roanoke, Ala.; J. B., Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. J. H. Bass, Mrs. W. E. Chase, Roanoke, Ala.; Mrs. O. D. Chase, Talladeega, Ala., and Mrs. H. H. Lane, Shawmut, Ala.

Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, the writer, and Rev. G. D. Hunt, his former pastor. Interment was made in old New Hope Cemetery.

G. H. VEAZEY.

HIGGS.

Charles F. Higgs was born August 29, 1875, and died March 10, 1930, aged 54 years, 6 months, and 11 days. Death came as a result of being struck by an automobile, thus making the shock of the announcement of his death all the more sudden and sad to his family and friends. He is survived by his widow and five children. Funeral services were held at Fairview Church, near New Market, on March 11, 1930.

A. W. ANDES.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

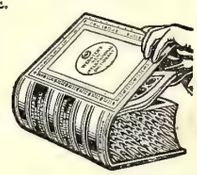
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

DURABLE FLEXIBLE BINDINGS — THE BEST EDITIONS OF THE WORLD'S BEST BOOK — WILL NOT BREAK IN THE BACK

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heave

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

Send your orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN 1536 East Broad Street Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY, 1930.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches,

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1930. NUMBER 17.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Mrs N T Farmer

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

AFTER EASTER—WHAT?

At the Easter season there is a decided quickening of the religious pulse. A feeling of spiritual interest touches the hearts of all save the most callous. And in many instances Easter marks a climax of emotional enthusiasm when it should be but the beginning of a season of religious activity. Religious emotion is not, or should not be, an end within itself. It should be the generating of spiritual power for the arduous tasks which lie ahead.

The secret of successful religious leadership lies in the ability to always keep before the people tasks which challenge their deepest interests and call for the exercise of all the powers with which they are endowed. What is the program for your Church during the weeks which follow Easter? Will it lead to a Pentecost of reality, or will Pentecost be but another point marking the passing of time on the religious calendar?

SPIRITUAL ACTIVITY.—

Most preachers are constantly being brought face to face with the fact that spirituality is too often at a low ebb in the life of many Churches and of many individual Christians. Sometimes those who are weakest spiritually are loudest in their lamentations over the lack of spiritual power. Deploring the wane of spirituality from the public platform and through the press has accomplished but little toward a spiritual awakening. It may have even served as the means of discouraging those who were striving to maintain spiritual interests.

There are those who think that spriitual awareness and spiritual power are bound up with the customs and practices of another day. They reason after this fashion: there was greater spiritual power in the days that are gone; people no longer follow the customs of the days when there was greater spiritual power; therefore, the way to regain the lost power is to restore the customs and practices of former days. It is an open question as to whether there was such unusual power in spiritual things in the former days as many people imagine. And surely if there was such a power it was not the result of special social customs and forms of worship.

Christ promised the filling of the spirit to those who were willing to accept the responsibility for the task which He had assigned to them. Any Church or any Christian who will give undivided loyalty and allegiance to the undertakings which Christ has appointed for His followers, in the spirit of unselfish love which was Christ's, will find that there is an unloosing of power and a filling with the Holy Spirit which will make possible the successful doings which Christ would have us perform. If we would have a Pentecostal experience of power, we must have an apostolic fervor for the mission of the Christ.

DENOMINATIONAL SHIBBOLETHS.—

There was a time when the doctrines and practices of the various denominational groups were matters of tremendous moment. Issues that were of paramount importance were involved. There are denominations which in the early days of their history championed issues which were vital to religious life and religious development. The fight that was waged helped to establish these things that are now a part of the religious heritage of all Christian people.

There is no command of Scripture which the various denominations need to study so earnestly as the teaching of Christ to seek first the kingdom. If that is a good text for the individual who is taking no thought for religious things, it is a text of foremost importance for those who are earnestly seeking to invest their lives in spiritual things. The walls that were once absolutely necessary for purposes of defense may in a later day prove formidable barriers against progress and development. And it may be that we are still building and maintaining walls where we ought to be lengthening our cords and strengthening our stakes.

We are learning that there are many things which the various Churches can do collectively that it is absolutely impossible to accomplish separately. But wherever such enterprises are undertaken, one is apt to encounter denominational factors which make the work more difficult, even where they do not make it absolutely impossible. Everybody concedes the right of the denomination to its corporate existence. But every denomination owes it to itself and to the kingdom to see that its denominational shibboleths do not stand in the way of spiritual progress.

THE MOVIES REFORM AGAIN.—

The history of the movies offers many interesting facts. The film industry has been born within our own generation, and already it has grown to gigantic proportions. It has become the outstanding amusement and recreational factor for the masses. It has unlimited possibilities of expansion, and a tremendous opportunity to render a definite social and educational service. That it has failed to measure up to the high standards of service which are inherent in the use of the movies seems to be the concensus of opinion of all those who have given the situation any serious consideration.

Recently the movies have come in for some very serious and severe criticisms at the hands of those who are interested in things social, moral and religious. The root of the trouble lies in the fact that those who are responsible for what is shown on the screen are interested primarily in attracting the largest possible crowds to the box-office. It is a well-known fact that the suggestive and the risque attract the masses of the people, and the film-makers argue that they should give the people what they want. But a public opinion is being formulated to the effect that the movies are not only meeting the taste of the mature, but that they are forming the tastes and the standards of the growing and the immature.

For years the threat of a strict censorship has hung over the movie industry. Censorship is recognized by those who are interested in clean and wholesome amusements, as being but a poor medium of arriving at the conditions that are desired. Wherever censorship has been tried, it has been far from affording complete satisfaction. Motion-picture producers know that censorship will materially hamper their money-making efforts. Anticipating what is likely to happen to the movie industry, the leading producers have drawn up a moral code which contains the following provisions:

"That the use of liquor in American life shall be restricted to the actual requirements of characterization or plot. Pointed profanity is forbidden. Obscenity in word, gesture, reference, song, joke or by suggestion is forbidden. Indecent or undue exposure is forbidden.

"That scenes of passion shall not be introduced when not essential to the plot; sex perversion or any inference of it is forbidden on the screen.

"That the sanctity of the institution of marriage and the home shall be upheld; that adultery shall not be explicitly treated or justified; that crimes against law shall never be presented in such a way as to throw sympathy with the crime as against law or justice; that acts of murder or brutality shall be presented only in such a way as will not inspire imitation; that methods of crime shall not be presented in explicit detail on the screen; that revenge in modern times shall not be justified as a motive.

"Dances which emphasize indecent movements are to be regarded as obscene; the subject of white slavery shall not be treated on the screen.

"No film or episode may throw ridicule on any religious faith; ministers of religion in their character as ministers of religion should not be used as comic characters or as villains.

"The use of the flag shall be consistently respectful; the history, institutions, prominent people and citizenry of other nations shall be represented fairly."

The fact that the producers recognize the necessity for a code forbidding such things is to date the severest indictment which has been brought against the movies. And only a marked change in the quality of the films shown will prove their sincerity.

NOTES-PERSONALS

His many friends will regret to learn that Rev. A. W. Hurst, the popular pastor of Elon College Church, has been confined to his bed and room for ten days, and others have had to supply his pulpit. He is better at this writing and his speedy recovery is prayerfully awaited.

The woman's Missionary Rally at Elon College, for the Alamance District, Tuesday, the 15th, was largely attended, furnished vital information to delegates from the various societies, and seemed to be a day well spent by the women in their great work. Mrs. J. W. Patton was in charge and the delegation was large and deeply interested.

All delegates should attend the Southern Convention, which begins its biennial session at the United Church, Raleigh, Tuesday P. M., April 29th, and remains in session to and including Friday, May 2nd. This is to be an epoch-making Convention, and all should attend who can. The Raleigh Church is preparing to entertain the Convention on the Harvard plan, and may be counted upon to do the act royally.

Rev. H. George Robertson, director of religious education and pastor's assistant, First Christian Church, Richmond, has resigned his work with the Richmond Church, his resignation to take effect June 16th. Bro. Robertson took the full course in religious education in Elon College; also had successful experience as pastor at Lynchburg, Va., and is now open for engagement either in the field of religious education and pastor's assistant or as pastor of any Church that may need his services. Bro. Robertson is one of our well-trained, energetic and promising young men.

Those who attended the Sanford Missionary Rally of the Lee-Chatham District report a great and good day Wednesday, the 16th. Mrs. C. H. Rowland, president of the North Carolina Woman's Conference, and Mrs. L. P. Wicker, superintendent of the Guilford District, were present and aided greatly, as did also Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Jay, of Elon College. The pastor, Rev. T. F. Wright, is reported to have made a most excellent address on "Our Enlarging Program," showing our enlarged opportunities and obligations. The day was a happy one, and it was felt that much good was accomplished in the district.

"Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give, not grudgingly or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver"—the apostle Paul to the Christians at Corinth. The apostle Paul was speaking economically, financially and spiritually, when he said: "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." Now is our sowing-time in the name and for the sake of our Lord. He has commissioned us and He alone can give the increase. Ours is the work and the privilege of sowing in His name. As to what the harvest shall be to each depends solely, according to Paul, upon the method and manner of our sowing. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that he shall also reap."

We talk of hard times in America! What shall we say and think of the following pictured for us in the Nashville Christian Advocate? "Almost inconceivable ghastliness is observed now by persons who go into the famine area of China. Cannibalism is reported to be so common there as hardly to attract notice. The starving multitudes who have managed thus far to survive, no longer cry; they moan. Children are sold so long as there are buyers; the other children are deserted. Trees are stripped of bark; roots are dug up. Typhus has raged. Moslems have massacred. Dead bodies by the roads and in homes are numerous and gruesome. Huge pits have been dug for burials, and as many as a thousand bodies have been piled into one pit. The famine will necessarily continue until the next harvest time. The Chinese government is doing what it can to feed the people. The Christian world has joined in the effort and must not slacken."

The very sudden and altogether unexpected death of Bro. W. B. Warrenton, Driver, Va., Friday evening, April 11th, was indeed a shock to his host of friends and wide acquaintances. Seemingly, without warning, being in the post-office at the time and advancing to speak to a neighbor, he crumpled, fell and passed away almost instantly. He was the devoted husband of the former Miss Regina Williamson, who was graduate of Elon College; a brother-in-law to THE SUN editor, a prominent trucker of Nansemond County, a consistent subscriber and reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, a friend of Elon College and of all charity and benevolence. The funeral was conducted by Dr. I. W. Johnson, pastor, assisted by Dr. W. W. Staley, from the home on Sunday, the 13th, and the interment was in the Suffolk Cemetery. An enormous concourse of people gathered to pay loving tribute to this energetic, active man of the Church and of the community. He leaves to mourn their loss, and with whom we most deeply sympathize, a devoted wife, a widowed mother, and two brothers.

It was a joy to be with Rev. F. C. Lester, Waverly, Va., in the services of Sunday, April 6th. The Sunday School at Spring Hill, despite the very rainy weather, was well attended and a most intelligent and deeply interested group greeted the speakers—J. O. Atkinson, Secretary, and Bro. J. M. Darden, Assistant Secretary of Missions—and gave attentive hearing. Under the fine leadership of Bro. White as superintendent, the school is prospering. Spring Hill, rich in years and experience, is youthful and vigorous in activities for growth and progress. At the 11:15 hour an attentive audience in the Waverly Church and the pastor in charge greeted the speaker. Waverly is preparing to add a much-needed Sunday School equipment to its present plant that this Church has long desired and sought after, and now that there is real prospect of possession, the pastor and people are very happy in contemplation of an adequate plant at an early date. On his program for the day, the pastor, Rev. F. C. Lester, had the following interesting announcement: "Easter Sunday marks the anniversary of the resurrection of Jesus. This is the 1900th. The last week of His earthly life was crowded with so many sacred things that Christians have called it 'Holy Week.' It was during that week that He attended the Passover Feast in Jerusalem, cleansed the temple, instituted the Communion Supper, prayed in Gethsemane, and died on the cross at Calvary. On His last Sunday He rode into Jerusalem on an ass amid the acclaim of the multitudes who threw palm branches in His pathway. From Palm Sunday, which is next Sunday, we will have a devotional service each evening at 8 o'clock. The pastor will endeavor to bring a helpful message on the following topics: Monday, 'God in Daily Life for Everybody'; Tuesday, 'Christ for the Hungry Heart'; Wednesday, 'When Life is Worth Living'; Thursday, 'In Remembrance' (Communion service); Friday, 'The Cross, His and Mine'; Sunday, (Sunrise) 'When Doubts Disappear,' (morning) 'Our Hope.'"

DELEGATES TO SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.

Virginia Valley Central Conference: Ministers—B. J. Earp, A. W. Andes, R. L. Williamson, W. B. Fuller, Joe French; laymen—W. C. Wampler, Mrs. R. A. Larrick, R. O. Rothgeb, N. M. Hasler, J. M. Lohr, J. A. Kagey, Mrs. B. F. Frank, Mrs. J. S. Davis; alternates—E. W. Cather, E. M. Spitzer, W. B. Burke, Mrs. R. C. Myers, John Dean, Mrs. Boyd Richards, Lena Rothgeb, Ella Pickering, W. A. Crawford, W. H. Alger, L. N. Comer, A. S. Turner, R. A. Larrick.

Georgia and Alabama Conference: Ministers—J. D. Dollar, H. W. Elder, C. W. Hanson, H. M. Gray.

Alabama Conference: Ministers—G. S. Hunt, C. W. Carter, J. H. Hughes, G. H. Veazey; laymen—V. E. Kitchens, J. T. Gibson, A. L. Landers, T. M. Payne.

Eastern Virginia Conference: Ministers—M. F. Allen, R. E. Brittle, J. W. Barrett, H. C. Caviness, W. H. Denison, W. H. Garman, J. W. Fix, H. S. Hardcastle, W. D. Harwood, W. C. Hook, I. W. Johnson, T. N. Lowe, F. C. Lester, J. F. Morgan, J. E. McCauley, G. A. Pearce, N. G. Newman, O. D. Poythress, H. E. Rountree, C. C. Ryan, W. W. Staley, L. E. Smith, E. B. White, J. M. Roberts, C. E. Gerringer, R. S. Stephens; lay delegates—Dr. J. W. Manning, Col. E. E. Holland, M. J. W. White, O. S. Smith, W. H. Baker, J. M. Darden, J. A. Williams, M. W. Hollowell, Luther Carlton, J. T. Kernodle, B. E. White, I. T. Byrd, Clarence Bunch, J. P. Dalton, E. T. Holland, R. C. Norfleet, J. F. West, Jr., Mrs. J. M. Raby, R. B. Odom, J. F. Brothers, Jr., Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Mrs. W. H. Andrews, Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Mrs. J. B. Gay, Mrs. Dora Pierce, R. W. Spruill; alternates—C. D. West, W. B. Byrd, Mrs. W. H. Baker, W. S. Barrett, J. H. Harris, O. V. Cockes, Otis Joyner, Mrs. I. W. Johnson, L. R. Jones, Reese M. Gilbert, Mrs. B. D. Jones, A. L. Jolly, Mrs. C. C. Rawles, J. E. Corbitt, Linwood Norfleet, Mrs. B. F. Gibson, Mrs. J. W. Fix, E. T. Atkinson, A. M. Johnson, J. W. Roberts, E. L. Daughtrey, W. T. Newman, R. T. Brittle, C. J. Heath, J. S. King.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference: Ministers—J. F. Apple, J. O. Atkinson, S. A. Bennett, J. S. Carden, G. C. Crutchfield, J. H. Dollar, P. H. Fleming, Stanley C. Harrell, W. M. Jay, P. T. Klapp, J. W. Knight, C. E. Newman, J. U. Newman, J. W. Patton, R. A. Whitten, A. W. Hurst; lay delegates—W. B. Truitt, Mrs. C. V. Dunn, W. E. Cook, W. H. Smith, Mrs. W. A. Harper, G. T. Sutton, Mrs. C. H. Rowland, W. T. Dunn, G. C. Talbert, C. D. Johnston, Dr. W. H. Boone, Alfred Hayes, A. B. McFarland, W. B. Madison, Gattis Carden, Mrs. Lizzie Apple.

Western North Carolina Conference: Ministers—John M. Allred, T. J. Green, G. O. Lankford, T. E. White, J. D. Fogleman, M. A. Pollard, E. C. Brady, G. R. Underwood, W. J. Edwards, W. N. Hayes, W. G. Martin, D. H. Moffitt, A. K. Scotten, H. V. Cox; lay delegates—O. D. Lawrence, W. R. Sellars, D. R. Fonville, J. H. Harden, M. C. Stafford, I. H. Foust.

Eastern North Carolina Conference: Ministers—J. A. Denton, M. T. Sorrell, W. C. Wicker, R. L. House, Herbert Scholz, H. E. Crutchfield, J. Lee Johnson, H. C. Hilliard; lay delegates—J. A. Kimball, L. L. Vaughan, K. B. Johnson, Mrs. T. F. Ayscue, W. A. Newman, M. J. Carlton, J. M. Banks, W. H. Wicker, J. Walker Kelley, Edward Branch, B. C. Dawson.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

THE TRIUMPH OF MISSIONS.

"I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also; for therefore I am sent."—Luke 4:34.

The most graphic of all of Jesus' miracles is that one recorded by all of the four gospel writers wherein Jesus fed the five thousand people on five loaves of bread and two small fishes. Not only does this instance show the goodness of the Lord, who Himself was the bread of life, but it reveals to us that He would allow no one to go hungry. There is a story recorded in one of the leading missionary books of recent years in which the writer, Dr. Robert P. Wilder, of the International Student Volunteer Movement, pictures Jesus feeding this great multitude. Dr. Wilder provokes our thought relative to the spreading of the Word of God by asking, "What if Jesus had only fed the men and women on the front rows of the large company composing the multitude of folk, and then spent the remainder of His ministry insisting that they eat the fish and bread presented them? What would be the result if Jesus had confined all of His time to the few fortunate ones? What would have resulted had He stayed there, working with those who were near at hand? The question answers itself in our own minds, for we know that we would be today where the natives of Africa, India and China are. Jesus was conscious that He was sent into the world to minister unto peoples of all races, and in His commission He said, "Go ye into all the world."

Jesus chose to diffuse the light of the gospel message to many places rather than to center it upon one city. He desired to feed the whole multitude of folk rather than feed those who were nearest to Him. Jesus had been welcomed in Capernaum and had done an abundance of good there, but He could not devote all His time there, for as He said in the words of the text, "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also."

Jesus spake these words to them to show them that Christianity was designed for a world religion, and that it was the will of God that every man, woman and child be given a chance. Hence, He went about doing good, so should His disciples be followers of Him. Let us confine our thinking to those two great lessons embodied in this text.

1. Christianity a world religion. A careful study of the New Testament reveals the fact that Jesus had a world-wide view of the spread of the gospel. The Bible is a world book and God is the God of all people. Jesus is the Redeemer of the whole world. It is absolutely impossible for us to conceive of Jesus shutting up His plan of salvation and depriving any one race of peoples its benefits. To be sure, the only thing the Man of Galilee saw as He looked out over the world, was a kingdom of God on earth. A society of people who loved one another as brothers and sisters. Thus a world-wide conquest to tell the world of the love of God and the power of the gospel message.

The Bible is alive with references to the world as the field of redemption and action. When we stop to think that the writers were for the most part members of an exclusive nationality and were considered a people set apart from other nations, it is astonishing how wide their vision of God was. Listen to some of the expressions of Him who came to save the whole world: "Ye are the light of the world," "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world," "God so loved the world," "The bread of God is He that giveth life to the world," "That the world through Him might be saved," "He is the Christ, the Saviour of the world," "Your faith hath been spoken of throughout the whole world," "I came not to judge the world, but to save the world," "God is in Christ, reconciling the world to Himself."

At no other time in all history is the fact clearer than today that the world is living closer together. In trade, in education, transportation and communication, the world is a small unit; but in religion there is a great divergency of thought and practice.

"In vain with lavish kindness
The gifts of God are strown,
Yet the heathen in his blindness
Bows down to wood and stone."

While we allow him to worship his Baal, practice unhygienic methods of bodily care, and go untrained in all things, we here in America enjoy the contributions of all races and give back to them very little in return. The great Chinese people have taught the world lessons in labor, patience and trustworthiness. All China is industrious, and from that underprivileged race we have learned much concerning the development of labor and industry. We have shared with them our Standard Oil, our Ford cars, our Singer sewing machines; we have shared with them our moving pictures, such films as our censors would not pass upon; but we have not shared with them our Christ, who came that not one of these little ones should perish.

There in Westminster Abbey, beside the tombs of poets, bishops, prime ministers and kings, is the simple tomb of a man who had much to do with the triumph of missions. Several years prior to his burial in Westminster, I see him at work there in Africa. He is on fire for God, and served the non-Christian African. Livingstone became sick, but he works on. His friend and co-worker, Stanley, begs him to stop and go back home. He tells him that all of England will be waiting to honor him. Livingstone answers and says, "It would be fine to go back and be welcomed by thousands of admirers and to be knighted by the queen; but with me it is impossible. I must finish my task." And there in the wilds of Africa he stayed and continued to work till one morning his men found him on his knees in prayer. He was dead, nevertheless his spirit lives on as a challenge to this generation to finish his task.

Happy shall we be as a nation and a people if we heed the command and go into all the world for Christ. When the evangelization of the world is complete, "The earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." It is not possible to think of Jesus as a partisan in politics or a sectarian in religion. He is a Man of all ages and for all races. Painters of all nations have portrayed Him as having the features of their own people. Jesus is a world character, world citizen, a world Redeemer. The mere thought of His universal touch upon mankind stimulates our imagination and inspires our passion to be something more than narrow-minded men and women in our own little realm of political and religious experience. We hear the challenge to share Him with others, and thus broaden our own horizons, and at the same time enrich the souls of others. The world needs our Christ, and nothing but His love can satisfy.

"Christ for the world! The world for Him!
All down the ages sounds the cry.
Though hearts grow faint and faith grows dim,
Around the earth's circling rim
His power shall reach humanity."

Ex-president Taft made a contribution to world affairs in many respects. Chief among his statements concerning world relations was a message on missions in which he said that every mission station was a nucleus for civilization in the midst of moral and civil darkness. I seem to hear Theodore Roosevelt as he draws aside from one of his African elephant hunts and through an interpreter speaks to the natives, saying, "I believe in helping the missionary of whatever creed who is working sincerely." And I hear Ex-president Coolidge speaking to the World Missionary Conference in Washington, D. C., a few months ago, saying, "The most Christian thing about Christianity is her missionary program, for in that phase of her work she goes out to put into practice the teachings of the Master."

2. The will of God that not even one of these little ones perish. As I think of the missionary program and the scope of the field to which we are assigned, I am conscious of the greatness of the task. I must preach the gospel to other cities, even unto the uttermost parts of the earth—to every living creature. As our mind reflects upon the scope of the earth and the work to be done before the triumph of missions, let us go in our imagination to Kittering, England, where there was unveiled a bronze tablet in memory of a man who is said to be the father of modern missions. The man was William Carey, and the date upon the tablet is 1792. On the tablet are two injunctions engraved from one of his great sermons, "Expect great things from God, and plan great things for God."

As our Church grows, I wonder if it is planning great things for God! If not, it should not expect God's favors upon it. Too frequently we, as churchmen, have satisfied ourselves with the belief that God is chiefly concerned about us. We have overlooked the world that is still in darkness. There are 1,070,000 people in our Japan and Porto Rican fields to be ministered unto. Our missionary force is small. We are here at home happily enjoying the luxuries of life, while out yonder they perish. We are called to

"Rescue the perishing, care for the dying,
Snatch them in pity from sin and the grave;
Weep o'er the erring one, lift up the fallen,
Tell them of Jesus, the Mighty to save.

"Rescue the perishing—duty demands it;
Strength for thy labor the Lord will provide.
Back to the narrow way, patiently win them,
Tell the poor wanderer a Saviour has died."

A young man in an African tribe was elevated to the position of chief because he had keen eyesight and was enabled to see all that was going on among the constituency of the large tribe of natives. After a while the young chief's eyes began to fail him, and gradually he became blind. One day a strange white man came into that village, and the blind chief was led to him. By skillful treatment, the sight of the chief was restored, and most happily he looked into the face of David Livingstone, about whom mention in this sermon has already been made. Because of the tender ministry of the man of God, the native chief saw in him the Christ of the world. My friends, it is the God-given privilege of you and me to help open the eyes and souls of a mil-

(Continued on page 14.)

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

"WHAT SHALL BE DONE?"

Under the above caption, Bishop Ainsworth, M. E. Church, South, writing in the Christian Advocate, of Nashville, wants to know "what is the Methodist Church going to do about Christ's program for the redemption of the world? An unfulfilled commission still stares us in the face. We are theoretically committed to it, but we are not really very much engaged in it." Bishop Ainsworth declares that "the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is not in hailing distance of the missionary program" instituted of our Lord and carried on by Him through the ages. To stimulate his brethren, he calls attention to the fact that "the 119,000 Seventh Day Adventists of North America pay as much for their foreign mission work as the 2,700,000 Southern Methodists contribute to their whole missionary program." The bishop deplores the fact that while the Adventists pay forty-eight cents a week per member for foreign missions, the Methodists only pay two cents a week, and declares that "there is no reasonable excuse for this humiliating comparison."

If this is humiliating to the Methodists, what must it be to us Christians, who, as a denomination, pay less than one cent per week per member for foreign missions to carry the gospel to those who haven't it and to make our Lord Christ known to those who do not know Him? We Christians have not taken seriously the task laid upon us by our Lord. We are merely playing at the chief business of the Church. The biggest business of the Church, the one business of the Church, the chief business of the Church, is that of reaching this world for Christ, preaching Jesus and Him crucified, making known His love and life to those who are dying without it. The Church alone is engaged in this enterprise, and unless the Church does it it will not be done.

We wish we could say to the approaching Southern Convention just what Bishop Ainsworth is saying to his approaching General Conference in these words:

"The approaching General Conference ought to make a very much more adequate missionary program for our Church and open the way for a very much more efficient missionary appeal. I do not do it—a modest sum of assessment in the general believe the present double-barreled appeal will budget and then the missionary maintenance campaign for a million more. This was wise for the past and met an emergency and helped to liquidate our debts, but we have expanded nowhere, and have maintained our status by painful economics nearly everywhere. I would like to see the General Conference approve the following program; let all missionary assessments be taken out of the budget. The missionary cause has the right to appeal to all the heights and depths and ranges of sacrificial devotion in sharing with Jesus Christ His redemptive purpose for the world. It ought to have the right of way."

This idea is in line with what our Southern Convention had in mind two years ago. We have got to give missions the right of way—put first things first before we come into our own or begin to do our duty, both in enlarging our borders and strengthening our stakes at home and abroad. Every enterprise of the Church depends upon missionary growth and activity. Until we can develop a passion for missions, for winning souls, for kingdom enlargement, for kingdom growth and development under the leadership of our Lord, we will suffer reverses and meet unsurmountable difficulties in the way. We are printing in THE SUN this week Bishop Ainsworth's article, the contents of which need to be taken as seriously by us Christians as by those to whom the article was written, especially at this very moment when we are planning for the work of the next two years. J. O. A.

THE EASTER OFFERING.

Many of our Christian Churches have preaching only twice, and quite a few only once, per month. Others with preaching every Sunday may have had a program last Sunday that prevented the missionary offering. May we call upon every Church in the Convention to take the offering? No Church will be the poorer; every Church will be the richer by such an offering. It is a test of our self-denial, a measure of our loyalty to our Lord, a challenge to a spiritual task. This is the one time of the year when the Churches are called upon to make their offerings in the name of their Lord, that Churches may be built in the homeland where they are needed, and the gospel may be carried to fields afar, to souls that are dying without it. As Robert E. Speer said years ago, "It is not a question of whether the heathen will or will not be saved without our gospel. The real question is will we be saved when, with the privilege and the power of the gospel, we fail to share that privilege and power with those who haven't it?" No mission board instituted the missionary program. No group of men or women got up the missionary command or commission. Our Lord Jesus did that. He alone is responsible for the missionary movement, and He alone, through His Church, is carrying on the missionary movement; and the Church alone is the only institution through which He is carrying on that program. Unless the Church does it in His name and for His sake, it will not be done. The Church, and the Church alone, is responsible for the hundreds and thousands of missionaries on the field today, and unless the Church supports them they will not be supported and will have to close up their doors.

For its own sake, every Church should take the offering and every individual in every Church should be given an opportunity, for through this channel we express our gratitude to God for His goodness in giving us the gospel, and through this process we grow spiritually and come into a vital fellowship with Him. Let every Church see to it that the offering is taken, that all members and friends have an opportunity, and that the same is sent in promptly, that it may go on its way in making a living Christ known to a world that is sick and dying without Him. J. O. A.

THE PREACHER'S PERSONAL LIFE.

The man in the pulpit is not only a preacher, but a man. He is a person with habits and a life seen and known of other men. His life should be an example to others in more ways than spiritual qualities. He should be practical in the every-day walks and ways of living. A few outstanding things may serve as useful suggestions. One important thing is to keep out of debt. Debt is a handicap to any person, but especially so to a preacher. To be in debt to parishioners not only lowers his standing but the standing of the ministry. He is responsible in large measure for light in which other ministers are held by Church members. It is even worse in the minds of people of the world. To be under unpaid financial obligations to men of the world is to be useless in the evangelical field of the preacher. Nothing reduces the influence and the stay of a preacher in one pastorate more than unpaid debts. His family can help him in this important way of living. Poor clothes, poor furniture, appearance may provoke un-Christian criticism, but not so much as an unpaid store account, or money borrowed. It is really a compliment for people to have this idea of a preacher who gets in debt. It shows that the public thinks of a preacher as an honest person who pays his debts.

Another suggestion is that the preacher should develop the saving habit. He could not save much, for his income is small, but he should deny himself and his family and begin to save little by little from the time he enters upon his first pastorate. It is one of the great facts in personal economy that people of small saving capacity are the ones who save and save until they have something laid up for a rainy day. People who receive large wages or large salaries at the beginning of their career usually spend it freely; it is the small wage or the small salary that suggests economy. Keeping out of debt and saving lay the foundation for satisfaction and religious influence, and a preacher needs both of these. Personal independence and a good reputation are elements of inestimable value to a preacher.

Liberality is another element of value in a preacher's ministry. There are two main reasons for his giving liberally. His small salary need not interfere with his liberal giving, for liberal giving is not measured by how much he gives, but how much of what he has from which to give. The "certain poor widow" who cast in two mites, Jesus said, cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury (Mark 12:42, 43). Giving is both a privilege and an example. Those who have little should give little, and those who have much should give much. This applies to the preacher as well as the lay member. If the preacher is poor, his example in giving may influence other small givers more than if he were rich. Besides this, it cultivates his trust in God, who has called him into the ministry. "The laborer is worthy of his hire" (Luke 10:7; 1 Tim. 5:18). God is the employer and He will pay.

W. W. S.

PROGRAM OF TWENTY-NINTH SESSION.

Following is the program of the Twenty-ninth Regular Session of the Southern Christian Convention, to be held at the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., Rev. J. Edward Kirbye, D. D., pastor, April 29th to May 3, 1930:

FIRST DAY—TUESDAY, APRIL 29th.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Convention called to Order by President L. E. Smith, D. D.
Afternoon Worship—Dr. J. E. Kirbye, Pastor Convention Church.
Enrollment of Delegates.
(a) Credentials—E. T. Holland, W. C. Wampler, W. C. Carpenter.
(b) Press—C. M. Cannon, P. J. Kernodle, L. L. Vaughan.
(c) Auditing—W. R. Sellars, J. P. Dalton, Dr. W. H. Boone.
(d) Nominations—D. R. Fonville, Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Mrs. W. V. Leathers, Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Rev. A. W. Andes.
(e) Resolutions—Rev. J. W. Fix, Jessie F. West, Jr., Dr. J. W. Manning.
(f) Apportionments—Dr. W. W. Staley, W. B. Truitt, K. B. Johnson.
6:00. Woman's Board Banquet (continuing to 7:45).

Evening Session.

8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
8:10. Devotions—W. M. Jay.
8:20. Address—"The Persecution of the Church," Dr. L. E. Smith, President.
8:50. Address—"The Function of the Church," Chas. E. Burton, Secretary N. C. C. Churches.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30th.

Forenoon Session.

9:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Morning Worship—Rev. J. Lee Johnson.
9:20. Roll Call; Reading of Minutes; Enrollment of Delegates.
9:30. Treasurer's Report—Dr. W. C. Wicker.
9:40. Report of Executive Committee—Dr. L. E. Smith.
9:45. Report of Committee on Finance—Dr. L. E. Smith.
9:50. Report of Board of Superannuation—Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Chairman.
10:00. Orphanage Report.
Address—J. M. Darden.
Address—C. D. Johnston.
11:30. Sermon—Rev. Alfred Hurst.
12:00. Communion Service—Dr. J. Bramard Thall, Dr. W. W. Staley.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Afternoon Worship—Rev. M. F. Allen.
2:15. Address—W. E. MacClenny, Convention Historian.
2:30. Missions—Report of Mission Board—Col. J. E. West, Chairman.
Discussion—Led by J. M. Darden, Acting Secretary.
3:00. Address—Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
3:30. Discussion of the Report and its Recommendations.
4:30. Report of Committee on Evangelism—Rev. H. C. Caviness.

Evening Session.

6:00. Fellowship Banquet (Christian-Congregational, Continuing till 7:45 o'Clock).
Speakers—Elisha A. King, Col. E. E. Holland.
8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Evening Worship—Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.
8:15. Address—"Church Women and World Leadership," Mrs. John Ferguson.
8:45. Report of Woman's Board—Mrs. J. A. Williams, President.
8:50. Address—Mrs. John Ferguson, N. Y. City.

THIRD DAY—THURSDAY, MAY 1st.

Forenoon Session.

9:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Morning Worship—Dr. C. C. Ryan.
9:20. Reading of Minutes.
9:25. Report of Committee on Nominations and Election of Officers.
9:55. Discussion and Vote on Report of Committee on Finance.
11:30. Report of Committee on Christian Unity—Dr. W. A. Harper.
Address—C. Rexford Ramond, C. H. Rowland.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Song Service—J. F. Morgan.
Afternoon Worship—Rev. G. D. Hunt.
2:15. Report on Education.
2:30. (a) Board of Religious Education—F. C. Lester.
(b) Board of Education—W. A. Harper, Ch'n.
(c) Address—"Our United Education Plans," W. A. Harper.
(d) General Discussion and Vote on Reports.
4:00. Miscellaneous Business.
4:15. Report of Committee on Social Service—Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.
4:40. Reading of Minutes and Adjournment.
6:45. Young People's Banquet—F. C. Lester in Charge.

Evening Session.

8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Evening Worship—Prof. S. A. Bennett.
8:15. Address—"At the Switch," Dr. John Brittian Clark.
8:45. Address—Dr. A. T. Allen.
Address—Dr. W. A. Harper.

FOURTH DAY—FRIDAY, MAY 2nd.

Forenoon Session.

8:00. Song Service—Rev. J. F. Morgan.
Morning Worship—Rev. W. C. Hook.
8:20. Report of Committee on Temperance—Dr. G. O. Lankford, Chairman.
Report of Board of Publications—Prof. L. L. Vaughan, Chairman.
Report of Managing Editor—Dr. P. J. Kernodle.
Report of Circulation Manager—C. D. Johnson.
Discussion and Vote on Reports.
11:30. Reports of Special Committees.
12:00. Miscellaneous Business.
Reading of Minutes.
12:30. Closing Service—Dr. N. G. Newman.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONVENTION.

TUESDAY, APRIL 29th.

Forenoon Session.

10:00. Convention Called to Order.
10:10. Song Service.
Worship.
10:20. Roll Call; Enrollment of Delegates.
10:25. Announcement of Committees.
10:30. Treasurer's Report—Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle.
10:40. Report of Finance Committee—Mrs. L. W. Stagg.
10:50. Report of Executive Committee—Mrs. J. A. Williams.
11:00. Report of Virginia Valley Central Conference—Mrs. R. A. Larrick.
11:10. Report of North Carolina Conference—Mrs. C. H. Rowland.

(Continued on page 14.)

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

OPTION

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Circulation Manager.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Much is reported in these days about stealing and robbery. It is reported in all sorts of ways and in all sorts of places—in banks, in stores, in residences, on the highway. Stealing is done secretely, robbery is done openly, and sometimes includes murder. "Loosely, to secure in any dishonest way." A much larger quantity is secured under the above definition than is stolen in the common definition of stealing. A thief is considered a low type of man and deserves that judgment. In the eye of the law, the thief deserves to be fined or jailed, or both. To be known as a thief is to have a bad name and to be excluded from good society.

There is another class of persons that pass in good society and yet may be as bad, if not worse, than the thief. It is the person who buys goods or borrows money and fails to pay what he has promised. Credit is built on confidence, and when a customer purchases goods from a merchant and promises to pay for them and does not, when able, he is worse than a thief. The thief gets nothing but material goods or money. The man who buys and will not pay gets the goods and the confidence of the seller. That quality we call confidence is more valuable than material goods. When one loses confidence it is worse than losing money. Losing money or its value in some other, the loss is bad, but when one loses money and confidence too, it is the greatest loss. It is no dishonor or disgrace to be unable to pay a debt or to fulfill a promise or an obligation. Circumstances or conditions over which the individual has no control may make it impossible for the debtor to pay his bill; but this letter is not dealing with inability, but with unwillingness to pay bills or to meet obligations. No moral or civil code requires the impossible. It is the experience of honest men that when a customer, by misfortune beyond his control, becomes unable to pay his debts, his creditor sympathizes with him and still has confidence in him; and, even more, if the creditor is a Christian and is able, will help the debtor by extending credit or bestowing gifts. It is the debtor who is able to pay and will not, but will take any turn the law permits, and willfully shuns the creditor that deserves to be classed below the thief. Credit is necessary in the world of business, and especially in big business, but it is the abuse of credit that ruins business and reduces the confidence of men in one another. "He who steals my purse, steals trash"; but he who steals my confidence, robs me of that which does both harm.

Confidence is the basis of all life, all business, and all love. In religion it is faith, and "without faith it is impossible to please God." It is bad enough to make a debt and then not be able to pay it, but it is infinitely worse to make a debt and then fail to pay when able to pay it. The petty thief is an honorable man when compared with the man who by some art gets the confidence of another, and through that confidence gets his goods, his money, or his signature to a note and then deliberately shuns the payment of the obligation.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

"What is God Like?"

The Rev. Tom Sykes, pastor of the Central Friends Church of High Point, speaking over the radio on Thursday of Passion Week, raised the question which is given as a title for this Elon Letter—"What is God Like?"

It is always proper to think of the character of God, and no thought has exercised a greater influence over the molding of individual character than this constantly recurring question. Issues that have to do with the spiritual life are perennial; even more, they are eternal. Every generation has to face these issues as if they were original and new, but those who are acquainted with the trends of human events know that at no time has man been able to free himself from a consideration of the kind of Being God is.

We have a panoramic description of His character in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, and it is always profitable to review these expansive and enlarging concepts as they are plainly set forth, not in definition, but in underlying philosophy in the Scriptures.

In the opening chapters of the Old Testament it is evident that God is looked upon as anthropomorphic. And, since men in those days were stern and vengeful in their own character and attitude, it was inevitable that God should be looked upon as a God of vengeance, demanding worship at the hands of His creatures and punishing them vengefully in case it was not done according to the pattern that had been given or suggested.

As men's hearts became tender, we find a decided growing disposition toward tenderness in the concept they entertained of God. From being a God of vengeance, He became a God of justice. This is the concept of a great majority of people today with reference to God. He is the Judge on the great white throne, dealing out justice to His children.

Those stalwart spiritual seers of the Hebrew race, the prophets, could not be satisfied with the thought that God is a Judge. They felt that justice should be tempered with mercy and with love. One of the most delightful pictures describing this attribute of God's character is the Book of Hosea, a man among the earlier of the prophets. Through a bitter personal experience, this man came to know God not as a God of justice, but as a God of mercy and love and forgiveness. Hosea's own wife deserted his home after she had become the mother of children and became a public harlot. So deep was her degradation that she was sold into slavery. But the love and devotion of her husband never wavered for her. And then one day his affection went the full length. He purchased his wife from her master and took her back to his home and installed her there in love and devotion. The prophet told his sad story to his countrymen and, in substance, said: "God is like this. Israel has been as untrue to God as Gomer has been to me. But just as I have, because of my love for her, restored her to my affection and home, so God is ready to reinstate Israel in His affection and forgive her for her many transgressions."

But there is a higher concept of the character of God than that revealed in the life-story and sad experience of the prophet Hosea. It is the revelation of God in Jesus Christ. We have Him saying to Philip, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." From that time until this, men have been privileged to know that God is Christ-like, that His disposition is friendly and forgiving, and that He suffers for the sake of His children. Even as Christ laid down His life for His friends, so does the great heart of God bleed when His offspring fall below their best standards. What the world needs is to know that the crucifixion of Jesus on Calvary is enacted anew in the experience of God whenever any one of His children is guilty of sin. If there is one cure for the sin of mankind it is this concept of God as the suffering Redeemer of mankind.

What is God like? He is like Jesus Christ who loved His disciples and His friends so devotedly that for their sakes He died on the cross.

W. A. Harper.

IS THERE A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN RELIGION AND CHRISTIANITY?

According to common usage, religion and Christianity are practically the same, but the Word of God does not so class them in most places. The word "Christianity" is not used in the Bible, but the word "Christian," from which it is derived, occurs several times. Ofttimes the word "Christianity" is very loosely used and means no more than a system of doctrine by a professedly Christian people; but true Christianity, it seems to me, is in short the product of a Christian, the effect and influence of those born of the Spirit. Religion, on the other hand, is not always the product of Christians, but a system of worship even among them that know nothing of Christianity. Christianity is the result of Christ in one's life; religion, a system of ethics and belief in a god.

Now, religion is often substituted for Christianity. This is at once evident by the use of the term "got religion," when we mean "became a Christian." We may be sincere in using the term, but at the same time not be on scriptural grounds; and we should avoid joining together what God has put asunder. Nowhere in the Bible is the term religion used to mean salvation, while the term Christian always implies the new birth. Let us examine the word "religion," as found in the Bible, and see how the Spirit uses it.

The R. V. uses the word religion (or religious) twice, where the A. V. has "superstitions" (Acts 17:22, 25:19). The term here, according to scholars, means "reverent to demons," "demon worship." In Acts 17:22 the R. V. has "very religious," and one can see that this is as far from true Christianity as the poles are apart. But it is to be feared that there are many in Christendom who are just as religious as these Athenians and at the same time "denying the Lord that taught them."

The word that is commonly translated "religion" is found in only four or five places in the Bible. In Acts 26:5 we have "the straightest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee"; and in Gal. 1:13, 14, we have the term "Jews' religion." Now in both of these the apostle is speaking practically of the same thing, and we see that when this man became a Christian he held no longer to this religion. Saul was a religionist, but Paul was a Christian. Saul was equally or even more religious than Paul. Paul never uses this word translated religion only in the sense of something to be regretted. In Col. 2:18 the word "worshiping" is the same word in the original, and hence he warns us not to be "beguiled" by it.

We will now look at the other place where the words "religion," "religious" are used, and that by the apostle James. In chapter 1, verse 26, we have "seem to be religious," yet the tongue is not bridled, as an evidence of the new truth, so the apostle denominates it as "this man's religion" and declares it "vain." In verse 27 of chapter 1 we have for the first and only time in the New Testament religion commended to us as worthy of striving after. And it should be carefully noted that here the word religion is guarded by the word "pure." Here, then, "pure religion" implies that there are counterfeits. But even here "pure religion is not synonymous with salvation, but clearly refers to the work and walk of the Christian. "To visit" refers to service, not to salvation. "To keep unspotted" refers to practical purity as a result of the new birth, and not to the new birth itself. "Pure religion," then, according to the only definition given in the word of God, bears the same relation to salvation as the fruit of a tree to the root. There must be root before fruit. In Col. 2:7, we have "rooted and built up in Him." "Rooted" first and then "built up." Salvation (or becoming a true Christian) first, and then the fruit of that life—our pure religion.

Certainly every Bible reader is aware of the fact that the scribes and Pharisees were the most religious people of our Lord's day. The Pharisees prided themselves on their orthodoxy. Hear our Lord as He speaks to them in Matt. 15: "This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, but their heart is far from me. But in vain do they worship me, teaching doctrines and the commandments of men." Here you have a picture of religion. But hear what He says to these religionists: "Every plant which my Heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up." In their religious zeal they had denied and rejected Him and their religion was of no avail. Cain was as religious as Abel, but his religion, without the lamb, i. e., blood, was rejected. In Luke 18, the Pharisee's religion is outstanding as he pretended to worship in the temple, but the publican, claiming nothing but sin, was justified.

Has human nature improved? Are there not thousands, yea millions, today who are "very religious" and are masquerading under the name Christian and at the same time denying the fall of man, the virgin birth, the new birth, blood atonement, salvation by grace, eternal punishment of the wicked, the blessed hope of His appearing, and practically every fundamental doctrine of the Christian faith? Poor sinner that I am, I can never be satisfied concerning the future by any acts of religiousness; but, like Simeon of old when he held the Christ-child to his breast, could say, "In peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation."

J. Lee Johnson.

Fuquay Springs, N. C.

THE DIGNITY OF LABOR.

Somehow I was made to feel in early life that it was just as much in keeping with the law of God to work during the week as it is to rest on the Sabbath, and I would be just as unwilling for my parishioners to see me loitering around during the week, if I were a stationed pastor, as I would for them to see me hoeing potatoes on Sunday. An old teacher of mine used to say that "work was life, and good work was good life," and I know now that my best and happiest days have been my busiest days. Nothing keeps our thoughts clean in the great race of life like grinding out things for ourselves by the incessant efforts of every-day toil. I am certain that the best money I ever earned in my life was one dollar and fifty cents that was given me by a big boy for helping him cut a ditch at night, after he had done his usual day's work. I didn't spend my dollar and half in tips to a boy in a poolroom, nor on the giddie girls at the soda fountain, but I bought a book and I have kept that book all down these thirty-odd years as one of the greatest blessings that ever came to life. I notice that the men who are optimistic and who are forging to the front in their efforts to keep the religion of Jesus Christ alive in the minds of men are, for the most part, those who grew up out yonder in fields and had to sweat for their bread and butter. These are the men who are standing out in the forefront of the world's progress today. To my mind, Jesus spoke as much dignity in sowing seed as he did in preaching the gospel; and it is pathetic to me to see how so many of our young people are trying to get away from the very thing that has opened up unparalleled opportunities for social and moral helpfulness, and that sounds out a challenge to the real fearless youth of the age to take his place in the rank and file of the world's workers and fit himself for the task of life. The biggest nuisance I know is the fellow who is trying to round up a big job for big pay. He either has to keep the world duped or learn that he is a fool.

Surrency, Ga. A. R. Flowers.

DR. STANLEY JONES ISSUES NEW BOOK.

In Dr. Stanley Jones' new book, "Christ of Every Road," he says that "At Pentecost two things happened: God became real when self-interests were merged with Christ, and religion broke its fetters and became universal." Until Christ came, women had no "self-interests" she might acknowledge, save the interests of her father, her brothers, then her husband and her sons.

To the woman at the well, there was a miracle in that the prophet not only spoke to her, but showed the deepest concern for her own soul. To her he revealed one of the greatest truths about true worship of God. Woman ever since has been doing what she did—leaving the drudgery of life to have a share in proclaiming the good news. Thus they have witnessed, thus they are witnessing, and ever will.

Why is it that women have been among the first to cry out against slavery, against the curse of strong drink, and are now crying most steadily and working most consistently to abolish war? Can it be that their "self-interests" have more readily been merged with those of Christ because their self-interests are primarily the interests of those they have brought into the world? They believe in the possibility of a better world, because they so desire it for those they love, and that concern readily extends itself to other mothers' children.—World Call.

CONVENTION PROGRAM CHANGES.

The following changes in the Convention program for Wednesday afternoon were received too late for placing at the proper place in the program:

MISSIONS—One Hour and Fifteen Minutes, Wednesday Afternoon, April 30th.

2:30. Report on Missions and Address by the Chairman, Hon. J. E. West, Suffolk, Va.

2:45. "The Burden and Weight of a Missionless Church," Dr. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro.

3:00. "Making a Church Missionary," Dr. G. O. Lankford, Burlington, N. C.

3:15. "Financing Missionary Work," J. M. Darden, Assistant Secretary, Suffolk, Va.

3:30. "Our Missionary Program," Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, Elon College, N. C.

NOTICE.

The Woman's Missionary Convention of the Southern Christian Convention will meet Tuesday, April 29th, at 10 A. M., in the United Church, Raleigh, N. C. All delegates are requested to be on time for the roll call.

Mrs. J. A. Williams, Pres.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Găl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Băb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Băb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE?

What is the Methodist Church going to do about Christ's program for the redemption of the world? An unfulfilled commission still stares us in the face. We are theoretically committed to it, but we are not really very much engaged in it. It is the scandal of organized Christianity that nineteen centuries have passed since God reconciled the world unto Himself by Jesus Christ and committed unto His Church the ministry of reconciliation, but its healing virtue has been applied only in scattered spots. No great mass of His disciples have seriously tried to do it. We say we believe in a Christ-like world, but most of us cannot say we will be content with nothing less. The Churches are packed with people who are well content with something a great deal less than a Christ-like world, with only an occasional one here and there that has been shaken out of the common complacency of the crowd to enter into the real partnership of Christ's purpose and passion for a redeemed world. Whole congregations in the catalogue of Christian Churches are absorbed in the routine of local organization in utter unconsciousness of where the great issues throb, and the battle is big with possibilities of world conquest for the kingdom of Christ. They are lost in the mere trivialities and irrelevancies.

All the conditions of the age are calling the followers of Christ to a fresh enlistment on a world scale until the task is really done. The Church must solemnly accept the world import of the Christian evangel and deliberately set out to make good its belief in a Christ-like world and its rebellious discontent with anything less, or the Church will in a little while "be fitted into the world picture as just a part of the scenery." Things are happening; they are happening fast. Once the nations lived apart. Today the ends of the earth have been brought together. They are bound up in a bundle, in which the woe of each is the woe of all, and the welfare of each is the welfare of all. No principle of politics, no program of industry, no standard of morals can prevail in any part of the world without its reaction in every other part of the world. In this kind of world Christianity must make the mold, or some other philosophy and religion will. The fusing process is going to be greatly quickened. Christianity must construct this new and compacting world, or be assimilated by it. I am convinced that China, Japan and India—the great massed populations of the world—can be molded to a new and diviner pattern in the next generation or the program will wait for ages yet.

The Methodist Episcipal Church, South, is not in hailing distance of the missionary program for which these conditions call. In fact, we are near the bottom of the list in missionary enlistment among the major Churches of the United States as revealed by their per capita contributions. I do not undertake to present any tables of comparison, except to say that the 119,000 Seventh Day Adventists of North America pay as much for their foreign mission work as the 2,700,000 Southern Methodists contribute to their whole missionary program, and their individual wealth is not as great as ours. They pay about forty-eight cents per week against two cents a week for us. There is no reasonable excuse for this humiliating comparison.

The approaching General Conference ought to make a very much more adequate missionary program for our Church and open the way for a very much more efficient missionary appeal. I do not believe the present double-barreled appeal will do it—a modest sum of assessment in the general budget and then the missionary maintenance campaign for a million more. This was a wise expedient for the quadrennium that is now coming to a close. It met an emergency, largely liquidated our debt, and maintained our work as the centenary left it. We have expended nowhere, and have maintained our status by painful economics nearly everywhere. This is not a well-enough that should be let alone. I do not believe the same program during the next quadrennium will result in any appreciable progress.

I would like to see the General Conference approve the following program for 1930-1934. Let all general missionary assessments be taken out of the budget. Indeed, let the General Conference make no assessment, except to say that we need $3,000,000 per year for the maintenance of our present work and the occupancy of impelling open doors. Require of all officers of the Church—bishops in their areas, presiding elders in their districts, pastors in their charges, stewards in their Churches—a comprehensive cultural campaign very much like the maintenance campaign has been. It can be made more thorough and extensive. When the period of cultivation culminates in the appeal for funds—to be paid systematically throughout the year—the Churches should understand that the appeal is to enter into the partnership of Christ's purpose and passion for a redeemed world. His cross is the call. The logic of Christ's cross is this: "Since He laid down His life for us, we ought also to lay down our lives for the brethren." There should be no suggestion of an assessment, except that the Church might say that it expects at least one dollar per member from the poorest congregation in the connection—every other Church to go as far above this base-line as possible. The sky is the limit. I deeply believe this approach will open the door to an unprecedented advance.

What about the other causes to which our people contribute? Let them remain on an assessment basis, introducing the right of congregational approval. We are not, perhaps, ready to discard all assessments at one time. And then the usual scale of assessments for the other causes, with the occasional specials, which we will always have, fairly well measures our immediate obligation to these objects. Not so of missions. The missionary cause has the right to appeal to all the heights and depths and ranges of sacrificial devotion in sharing with Jesus Christ His redemptive purpose for the world. It ought to have the right of way.

Moreover, I believe this emphasis and appeal will expand all other interest and register itself in larger contributions in every department of the Church's work. The person and Church that catches a vision of world enterprise and gives magnificently for that, invariably develops a deeper and more intelligent interest in everything else that pertains to the coming of the kingdom. It has been demonstrated over and over that the wisest policy plays fair with the world enterprise of Christian missions and the deepening benevolence of that broadening vision assures the generous care of the more local interests. I should like to see the Church put the first thing first, and see how all things else come to their appropriate place.

It is high time for the outbreak of a new passion. The real objective of the Church of Jesus Christ must be a redeemed world. The Church must launch out into deep seas. It must make great ventures and enlist all its resources for the great stake of a redeemed world. This General Conference should set a new frontier and sound a call that will go through all the Churches like a penetrating fire. The old program will not do it.—Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, in Nashville Christian Advocate.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING APRIL 19, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$2,447.31
Lanett, Ala.	4.00
Holland, Va.	26.00
Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Va.	16.31
Apple's Chapel, Brown Summit, N. C.	5.00
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	5.82
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	2.47
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	1.98
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	2.40
First Church, Norfolk, Va.	4.97
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	3.87
Vanceville, Tifton, Ga.	1.00
Total	$2,521.13

Mountain Work.

Previously acknowledged	$ 156.05
Liberty (Vance) C. E. S., Henderson, N. C.	4.00
Total	$ 160.05

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 598.31
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C.	6.75
Kallam's Grove, Madison, N. C.	7.91
Elon College, N. C.	52.73
Seagrove, N. C.	10.00
Mt. Lebanon, Shenandoah, Va.	8.80
Ebenezer, Cary, N. C.	2.60
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	53.35
C. D. Bizzell, Clinton, N. C.	1.00
Bethel, New Hill, N. C.	6.10
Total	$ 747.55

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$6,828.15
Sunday Schools, regular	73.82
Mountain work	4.00
Individual and Church collections	149.24
Total to date	$7,055.21

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

Receipts of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board for the second quarter ending April 15, 1930.

Women's Societies.

Antioch	$ 7.00
Berea, Nansemond	32.15
Berea, Norfolk	6.00
Bethlehem	54.00
Christian Temple	141.00
Cypress Chapel	26.00
Damascus	29.70
Dendron	19.05
Elm Avenue	23.00
First, Norfolk	82.00
First, Portsmouth	28.65
First, Richmond	8.00
Franklin	84.75
Holland	81.80
Holy Neck	149.00
Hopewell	5.60
Isle of Wight	26.00
Liberty Spring	128.53
Mt. Carmel	45.05
Newport News	16.45

Oakland	35.00
Old Zion	9.80
Rosemont	23.20
South Norfolk	14.00
Suffolk	309.50
Wakefield	40.00
Waverly	23.00
Windsor	45.00
		$1,493.23

Young People's Societies.

Antioch	$ 4.00
Berea, Oakland	7.60
Burton's Grove	10.00
Bethlehem	16.70
Christian Temple	75.30
Cypress Chapel	15.00
Dendron	4.70
First, Norfolk	3.00
First, Portsmouth	17.00
Franklin	25.00
Holland, Berta Rowland	36.00
Holland, Barrett	11.10
Holy Neck	7.80
Hopewell	3.50
Liberty Spring	8.55
New Lebanon	5.00
Newport News	3.00
Mt. Carmel	6.80
Rosemont	6.60
South Norfolk	9.10
Suffolk	150.00
Spring Hill	7.50
Waverly	5.00
Windsor	4.55
Union, Surry	4.80
Old Zion	3.40
		451.00

Willing Workers' Societies.

Berea, Nansemond	$ 6.00
Bethlehem	7.00
Christian Temple	10.00
Cypress Chapel	6.65
Elm Avenue	4.00
First, Norfolk	3.00
First, Portsmouth	9.50
Franklin	20.00
Holland	16.00
Holy Neck	36.00
Hopewell	.55
Liberty Spring	4.00
Mt. Carmel	9.40
Newport News	5.05
Old Zion	1.00
Rosemont	2.60
South Norfolk	2.00
Suffolk	25.00
Spring Hill	2.00
Windsor	3.32
		173.02

Rally Offerings.

Norfolk District	$ 27.06
Nansemond District	21.50
Waverly District	15.00
Franklin District	9.00
		72.56
Grand total		$2,189.81

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. W. V. LEATHERS, Treas.

CHURCH UNION IN JAPAN.

A friendly rivalry now exists between the uniting Congregational-Christian Churches in America and those in Japan as to which group shall most rapidly bring about a full and complete union of interests and of denominational life. (Japan is the only foreign mission field in which the Christian Churches have work.) Last spring the annual meeting of the Christian Churches in Japan voted to approve of the general idea of union with Kumiai (Congregational) Churches in Japan, "without tarrying for any," and especially without making such union dependent upon a union of the corresponding Churches in America. Early in October, 1929, before the final vote was taken at Piqua, Ohio, by the Christian Convention ratifying the definite basis of union adopted by the Congregational National Council in Detroit last May, the annual meeting of the Kumiai Churches adopted articles of union with the Christian Churches, and so, all that remains is to work out the detailed application of the principles adopted, with the hope that organic union may be effected on or before July 1, 1930.

Christian Church Situation in Japan.

The Christian Churches in Japan have about one-tenth the number of Churches and the membership of the Kumiai Churches, with a less degree of self-support in their work. They were faced with the problem of loss of identity in joining the larger Kumiai body, but, as in this country, considerations of loyalty to the larger program of the kingdom prevailed over all others. No insuperable difficulties have been found in negotiations. The articles of union which will normally come up for final ratification at the annual meeting of the Christian Churches in Japan in March provide that in general the covenant, rules and regulations, and type of co-operation with the united mission will be those of the Kumiai Churches. The aided Churches of the Christian Church will come under the control of the Evangelistic Board of the Kumiai Churches, with provision for a temporary continuation of present policies in regard to their support, to be maintained for a period of at least two years. After that period, such changes as prove to be desirable may be gradually put into effect with the hope of providing a common policy as to the support of Churches, and in the case of a given Church which desires to take larger responsibilities than are now required by the policy of the Christian mission, entire freedom is allowed.

The Kumiai Churches.

The Kumiai Churches are a well-organized body, with a considerable overhead administrative expense for the headquarters in Osaka with their secretarial staff. The Christian Churches will contribute immediately to these overhead expenses to the extent of their ability, with a period of two years for adjustment, after which the apportionment of the expenses of the headquarters will be on the same basis as the present apportionment to the Kumiai Churches.

The American Board Mission is represented on the Executive Committee of the Kumiai Churches which controls the use of the evangelistic funds placed under its direction by the mission. It is provided that for the first four years after the union of the Churches, representatives from the Christian Churches and from the Christian Mission shall be definitely chosen as members of the executive committee. By that time it is hoped that the union will be so complete that no further distinction among the representatives will need to be made.

The American Board Mission and the Christian Mission are continuing their consideration of the practical steps involved in the matter of union, under instructions from the mission boards of the Christian Convention and the American Board to proceed as rapidly as possible in coming to a common basis, and it is hoped that by June of this year the two missions may meet as a united body.—Missionary Review.

HOME-COMING DAY.

The annual address for the home-coming day at Macedonia Church, Colquitt, Ga., on May 2nd will be delivered by Rev. A. R. Flowers. The invitation came to Bro. Flowers from Hon. James Cheshire, who is president of the Midway Association. Bro. Cheshire is a well-known Church leader, believing that all true believers are one in Christ Jesus. Macedonia is a well-known Church of the Freewill Baptist brotherhood, but believes in the fellowship of all Christians, and the annual home-coming days are alike for all denominations.

J. A. BLANTON.

Surrency, Ga.

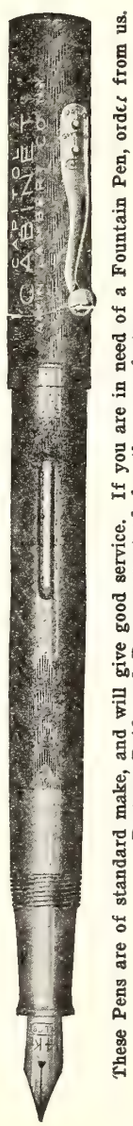
AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

The traveling-bag awarded me as first prize in the recent SUN contest is a beautiful black, full-top, grained leather bag, with double handles and brass fixtures. It is lined inside throughout with attractive and durable material. On one side it has eight small pockets lined with rubber for carrying all toilet articles; also a compartment for ties and handkerchiefs. It is indeed a prize that any minister might highly appreciate and find useful. I wish to thank each committee and every one who assisted me in securing this desirable gift.

R. A. WHITTEN.

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria
805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia
Opposite Richmond Hotel.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN



These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson V—May 4, 1930.

Promotion in the Kingdom.

Golden Text: "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many."—Matt. 20:28.

Lesson: Matt. 19:30-20:28.

A Reversal of Standards.

"But many that are first shall be last, and the last shall be first." Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart. Man's standards of value are often reversed by God. That which men hold in high esteem may be held in low esteem by God. Our age that lays so much stress on numbers ought to learn that God put emphasis upon quality. We often put emphasis upon money; God puts it upon men. We stress and feature programs and organization; God emphasizes spirit. We look up to those of high position and standing; God honors the meek and lowly in heart. Men herald those who give large sums; Jesus immortalized the woman wh goave but little so far as actual worth was concerned, but who gave most because it represented all that she had. Many who are first in man's standard of values may be well down the list, and even last, when graded by Him who sees the content and intent of the heart.

The moral is clear. Let no man think of himself more highly than he ought to think; let him not rate himself too high. But let him not think of himself more lowly than he ought to think. Let him rather think soberly, according as God hath given to him the measure of faith. Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate.

Bounty, Not Justice, God's Basis.

Jesus told an interesting story about a man who hired some men to work for him, getting some of them early in the morning, some of them at 9 o'clock, others at 12 o'clock, still others at 3 o'clock, and even some at 5 o'clock. When the men came at even-tide for their wages, each received the same amount. When those who had worked all day complained, the master replied that he had kept his word in every case.

Now, considered from the standpoint of economics, the story has its limitations. But Jesus was not trying to teach ecnoomics; He was trying to show that God does not deal with His children on the basis of strict justice, but on the basis of bounty. In another place He says that God sends His rain upon the just and the unjust. There are, of course, those who think that God is a hard bargainer. They need to learn that He gives good measure, pressed down, shaken down, and running over. And they, and many others who may have a larger conception of God need to learn that because God freely gives we ought freely to give.

Courage for the Difficult.

"And Jesus, going up to Jerusalem . . . said, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the scribes, and they shall condemn Him to death and shall deliver Him to the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify Him." The shadow of the cross had fallen across His pathway. He knew what was involved. He could have turned back. He could have saved Himself. No man taketh away His life, He later told His disciples. But if He had saved Himself He could not have saved others. The cross became a challenge. He faced it and went forward to it. And all because He knew that God had willed it so. He would face and conquer the difficult in the strength of that conviction. And He wanted His disciples to be prepared as well as possible for what would seem to them like a tragedy and the end. May God give us grace to face life's shadows and difficulties in the spirit of Him who set His face steadfastly to go to Jerusalem.

"And the third day He shall rise again." It is well enough to keep in mind the fact that Jesus told His disciples on several occasions that He would rise again from the dead. It was no vague wish or idle dream. It was no forlorn hope. It was an abiding conviction. And He did rise. Nothing constitutes a more valid claim to His Messiahship than this fact.

Seeking Soft Jobs.

The mother of James and John was human. It was only natural that she wanted her sons to have prominence. Because of their kinship with Jesus and because of their service, she sought for them the highest places of honor—at His right hand and at His left hand.

"What wilt thou? . . . Ye know not what ye ask." What would you take if you had your choice of anything? Alas! so many of us have not because we ask not; but more of us have not because we know not what we ask. There are some things in life that are not to be had for the asking. They are to be had only as we prove ourselves worthy and able to lay hold upon them.

Greatness Through Service.

"But it shall not be so among you; but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant." To be great is a laudable ambition, intimates Jesus. But true greatness comes from the spirit of service and the practice of service. Jesus Himself is our authority and our example here. Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many. The road to greatness as well as the road to happiness is through ministry or service.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, May 4, 1930.

Topic: "How May We Find Our Life Work?"

Scripture: Psa. 119:105; James 1:5-7.

The choosing of our life work is the most important decision that we, as young people, will ever make. Let us discuss this topic, "How May We Find Our Life Work?" with this idea of its importance in mind. In discussing it together we ought to be able to discover some ideas that will help each of us to make this great decision.

1. A life purpose. In deciding what our life work shall be we should, first of all, decide what our life purpose is to be. A purpose in life will help us to steady our lives. Some people think that determining upon a life purpose is of more value than the right choice of a life work. What do you think about it?

What was the life purpose of Jesus? What life purposes did He reject? Why did He reflect them? Why did He accept the life purpose that He did? What shall we accept as our life purposes? How shall our purposes be related to the purposes and work of Jesus?

2. Choosing our life work. Each of us should seek the best occupation for ourselves. What is this "best occupation" for each of us? Will it always be the same? What do you think of this for an answer to the question what is the best occupation for each of us? "The occupation that gives me the best opportunity to meet the need of men is for me the best occupation." Very often our closest friends, our parents and those who have had experience in the occupation we are considering can give us valuable advice.

In choosing our life work, we ask God to help us make the right choice. But we must not then sit down and wait for Him to point out our life work to us. We must do something to help God answer our prayers. We must know something about the various occupations; we must know our own abilities and qualifications, and we must be attuned to the need of those to whom our service can be rendered. Our choice of a life work must also include where we shall work. J. Lovell Murray says: "We must find both the right vocation and the right location."

After we have taken all the above things into consideration and have asked God's guidance, we must make our choice. We should take time to make our decision wisely, but we should make a decision. It is possible for one to fail to make a choice and to drift into some work that is far below one's possibilities. We may not always be perfectly certain of our choice, but we can be sure that if we sincerely try to discover God's will for our lives, the outcome will be for the best.

3. Preparation. After we have made our choice we should begin to prepare ourselves for the work we have chosen. We may not have all the time and money that we should like to use in this preparation, and we may have very heavy responsibilities resting upon us, but we should do our best to be the best we can in life. Sometimes we may not feel that we are qualified for the work we are called to do, but we can, like Moses, carry out the direction of God.

FORT APACHE.

Recently I spent several days at Snowflake, attending a basket-ball tournament of grammar school boys and girls. The children were all white, except our boys and girls from Fort Apache. We left here early Friday morning in the truck and got to Snowflake before lunch. On that afternoon our boys played and won. Our girls played the first game after supper, and it was fun to see how everybody wanted them to win. They lost by one point, however. After the game, lots of the little white girls came over and wanted to sit by our girls. This pleased our girls immensely, though they don't usually show it so plainly. We were the only ones to spend the night at Snowflake, as the other teams were from nearby towns. Therefore, we were the only ones at breakfast the next morning at the school-house. Just after we sat down to eat, there was a pause, and one of the boys suggested that we sing grace as we do at Fort Apache. It was a little thing, but it made me feel that these boys and girls are being influenced for good more than we think.

We have just lost our girls' building. The fire started in the little sewing-room back of the girls' building, and that was out and we had turned the water off when we discovered that the girls' building was on fire. In five minutes' time the whole roof was on fire, and in an hour's time the whole thing was burned down. The wind was blowing furiously and we feared for a while that other buildings would go, too. By working all afternoon, we moved the girls over into our building, moved "my" little boys back to their old building, and put C company back with A and B companies. I moved down to No. 5, so that one of my matrons could have my room. Now things are beginning to run smoothly once more.

Next Sunday I am going to have two new Sunday School classes, due to the fact that two more people have volunteered to teach for me. To get two new Sunday School teachers in one week is quite an accomplishment, and I am justified, I think, in being elated over it. For Easter Sunday I am planning to have regular Church services. We have been learning some Easter songs, and Mr. Allbrecht, from the East Fork Mission, is going to preach for us. For Easter Sunday night we are going to have a little program of songs and speeches by the fourth grade. One of my Girl Reserve groups is planning to make Easter lilies out of crepe paper, and I am hoping that the tulips which my group of beginners (employee children) planted will be in bloom for the occasion. We are looking forward to a glorious Easter; one that will bring new life and new hope to our work here at Fort Apache.

GRAHAM ROWLAND.

A COMBINED CONFERENCE.

The combined conference of the Congregational Christian Life Conference and the Christian Sunday School and Christian Endeavor for the State of Georgia met at the Rose Hill Christian Church, Columbus, Ga., March 29th and 30th. Being the first time that the two denominations have had a State-wide meeting together, all were concerned and anxious that it would be successful. It was a success. From the opening of the convention to the very end of it the spirit was splendid. Both were so anxious to become better friends with the other. It was indeed a "honeymoon."

The congregation was splendid, while the enrollment approached the two hundred mark. Even a bigger crowd would have been present had the weather been more favorable. The program was carefully arranged by Rev. W. C. Carpenter, the president, and Miss Marguerite Davison, the field worker for the Congregational Church. No substitution had to be made in the entire program, which is better than one can usually expect.

The new officers for the coming year were chosen as follows: Rev. W. C. Carpenter, president, Brookfield, Ga.; Mr. Farrar, vice-president, LaGrange, Ga.; Miss Gill, secretary, Piedmont Senior College; Miss Susie Elder, treasurer and assistant secretary, Columbus, Ga.

On Saturday, the opening devotional and welcome was given by Rev. H. R. Heard. After a short period for business and recreation a message, "Christian Unity," was brought by Rev. G. Staley Hunt, of Wadley, Ala. Rev. J. D. Dollar gave the sermon for the morning.

During the afternoon session several study classes were conducted. A round-table discussion was engaged in by the young people. During the late afternoon the delegates were shown around the city waterworks for vesper on the river bank. Dr. Neil McQuarrie and Dr. W. Knighton Bloom of Washington, D. C., brought the evening messages.

On Sunday, Rev. G. D. Hunt and Bro. Stanley Barns inspired the congregation with two splendid messages. The afternoon service was brought to a reverent close by the Communion service presided over by Rev. Lucy T. Ayres. Viewing the whole conference from a distance now, we are able to say it was a success, and we are better friends now than before.

Sandersville, Ga. SUSIE ELDER.

SUMMER BIBLE CONFERENCES.

Nine Bible conferences and workers' institutes, under the auspices of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, will be held during the coming summer. The usual distribution of points is announced, chiefly at convenient summering places. Programs of commanding strength and interest are assured. The speakers include Bible teachers and specialists in various departments of Church activity, speakers from overseas, and eminent American preachers. Special attention is being given to the providing of inspirational music features.

The locations and dates of the conferences are as follows: Montrose, Pa., teacher-training school, July 7-13; ministerial institute, July 14-24. Eagles Mere, Pa., July 12-20; Ocean Grove, N. J., July 21st to August 3rd; Hendersonville, N. C., July 27th to August 10th; Ocean City, N. J., August 3-17; Mountain Lake Park, Md., August 10-24; Colorado Springs, Col., August 10-24; Cedar Lake, Ind., August 17-24.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

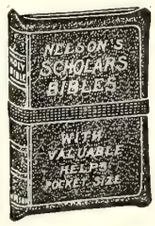
2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1¼ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

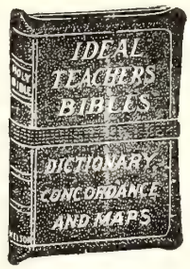
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8⅛ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



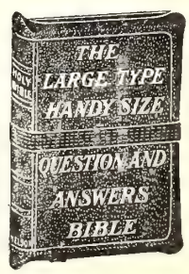
Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25



60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

MONDAY.

RESTORING THE WEAK.

"Brethren, if any man be overtaken in a fault, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."—2 Cor. 6:1-10.

There is no truth of Christ more outstanding than gentleness toward a brother who has slipped, and patience toward him until he hath found himself. Whatever it means to "bear one another's burdens," this is a number-one part of it. And it has its source in pureness of heart, long-suffering, kindness, love, which is Christ's holy style of warfare against sin. This is Christ's example, and Paul exhorts us to "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ."

This is the way that grace bears fruit in one's life. It is the exhibition of a quality which helps to win attention to the reality and genuineness of Christianity. The weapon of Christianity is righteousness. This is the way Paul won harmony between himself and the Church.

Prayer.—Lord God, make us to be true Christians, and let Thy strength be perfect in us. Let it be apparent in our whole walk that we are Thy disciples; make all the world know that Thou hast a holy people on earth, who are able to labor and suffer and conquer by Thy strength. Amen.

TUESDAY.

ANOTHER GOLDEN CALF.

"Make us gods, which shall go before us."—Ex. 32:1.

There are a great many conditions around us which are similar to those that existed with the children of Israel while Moses was away receiving the law of God for them.

It appears to Christians of this generation that never since the time of Christ did the people seek for gold and have so much wealth as they do now; never before did they seek for and have so much comfort; never before did they seek for and have so much pleasure. These are certainly gods of a great many people. If Christianity were to be judged by the numbers who go to Church regularly and the lack of it were to be judged by the numbers who spend their souls for riches, comforts and pleasures, we would feel that God is gone and we do not know where He is. We would say, "Let us set up our own gods."

But the sum total of Christianity is not in the visible. "The kingdom of God is righteousness." Christianity is "doing justly, loving mercy, walking humbly with God," visiting the fatherless and widows, relieving distress; it is life "more abundantly" in its noblest desires; it is "good" life, and it is keeping thyself unspotted from the world.

The man that went the cloud within
  Is gone and vanished quite;
He cometh not the people cries,
  Nor bringeth God to light.
To these thy gods that safety give,
  Adore and keep the feast:
Deluding and deluded cries
  The prophet's brother-priest;
And Israel all bows down to fall
  Before the gilded beast.

Devout indeed that priestly creed,
  O man, reject as sin;
The clouded hill attend thou still,
  And him that went within.
He yet shall bring some worthy thing
  For waiting souls to see;
Some sacred word that he hath heard,
  Their light and life shall be;
Some lofty part, than which the heart
  Adopt no nobler can—
Thou shalt receive, thou shalt believe,
  And thou shalt die, O man!

—Clough Poems.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, as the vine gives life—abundant fruitful life—to its branches, do thou give me Thy share in us. As the branches do the will of the vine, may we abide in Thee and do Thy will. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

BLESSINGS IN SUFFERING.

"Tribulation worketh patience, and patience, experience, and experience, hope, and hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost."—Rom. 5:3-5.

St. Paul appeals to our love for God as a fact of every-day experience. He presents an eloquent testimony to the level at which Christian devotion is to be habitually maintained. Attributing the possibility of this to the Holy Ghost, it is said that Paul is thinking of the Old Testament conception of the Holy Spirit, which is "God's breath" as a daily influence; and that this influence is present with Christians always to bring them out of trials and tribulations with blessing.

Have we not seen some of these blessings? Often intellectual and spiritual stimulus comes through trials and tribulations. The world's greatest teachers have usually been men of sorrow. Often development of self-reliance, self-respect and "strength of character" come from it. Often, like Job, we catch new visions of God through them. Vinet, the Swiss theologian, said, "To suffer is to live deeply." Darkest moments are times of victory and the source of much joy.

Out of every suffering of our Lord there sprang fresh human hope, He Himself being perfected through suffering. We poor folk need the power of these things. Life at times is so dark, dreary, sad, lonely, bitter, with so many fading hopes, we must have something to teach us how to weep, how to submit, how to bear and overcome. It is in this that affliction "works for us more and more an exceeding weight of glory." It is the voice which draws His children through the flood and through the fire to kiss His feet."

"Child of earth, I came to prove thee,
  Hardly, sternly with thee deal;
To mold thee in the forge and furnace,
  Make thine iron tempered steel.

"So I count my treasures,
  Stored in days long past;
And I thank the givers,
  Whom I know at last."

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, Thou knowest that we are but dust and full of suffering in this life. Be Thou with us always. Humble us in full submission to Thy will and we shall stand with Jesus and Thee forever and ever. Amen.

THURSDAY.

DOES GENUINE CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE ANNUL GOD'S GRACE?

"Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound?"—Rom. 6:1.

The question of the use of God's grace seemed to have claimed explanation by Paul. He taught that we are saved by grace—that was the chief function of grace. Therefore, logical thinkers seemed to say, "When one is saved, grace has nothing more to do for that individual; that grace may continue, it is necessary to sin."

It is believed that no Christian today thinks that way; but perhaps we all need to think more of the function of grace in a Christian's life. There is a passage which says, "Where sin doth abound, grace doth much more abound." This does not mean that grace abounds because of sin, but it exists in spite of it. One should never grow discouraged, because grace is more abundant than sin. Always they that be for thee are more than they that be against thee. God is greater than the devil.

Before Christ came, we are told that the Jews had to be kept in a straight path by means of the law, with pains and penalties attached to their transgression. It seems that he had to be treated like a rebellious slave. But Christ changes this. In Christ, one's nature is completely transformed, so that he no longer wants to diverge from the will of God. Law ceases to exist to Him, for what the law commands he naturally wishes to do. This makes us sons of God, not slaves. So the Fatherhood of God over His child is one, not of watchful severity, but of paternal and filial affection.

Out of this relation comes the reality that God is grace itself. From His throne comes daily grace to aid us to express the heart of God, to equip us for proper living.

Divine grace, then, belongs not to the sinner alone, but by very necessity of nature, to the child of God, that he may grow in spiritual life to the largest spiritual results. "The path of the just is as a shining light, which shineth more and more unto a perfect day." Peter said we must grow in grace. In other words, "Beware, lest ye fall." Grace, then, is not only the goodness of God toward a sinner, but it is the gracious and gentle harmonies of life. A graceful person is something indefinable, but he is one who gives pleasure. Grace is the harmony one person possesses for another. It is the submission of one nature to the demands of another nature.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, possess our souls and make us in full harmony with all that is good with Thy glory. Amen.

FRIDAY.

LOSING SELF IN CHRIST.

"Moses knew not that the skin of his face shone by reason of his speaking with God."—Ex. 34:29.

The great A. Maclaren has said that, in all regions of life, the consummate apex and crowning charm of excellence is unconsciousness of excellence. Whenever one suspects that he is good, he begins to be bad; and every virtue is robbed of attractiveness by one's knowing or fancying that he knows that he is good. The charm of childhood is its perfect unconsciousness. If we become good, we have to win back the child's heritage.

"Except ye become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter the kingdom of heaven." We may be sure that the more we are like Christ, the less we know it, and the better we are the less we

(Continued on page 15.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Easter is always a happy season at the Christian Orphanage. The children always look forward to it with a great deal of pleasure. The little boys look forward to Easter-egg hunt. The big boys look forward to chicken and eggs for Easter Sunday dinner. The girls look forward to getting a pretty Easter dress. The good women of the Southern Convention have for a number of years made and sent to us pretty Easter dresses for our girls, and it is a real joy to see them all dressed up on Easter Sunday morning and march off to Sunday School. This Easter season has been no exception to the rule. The following have contributed to help make our children happy:

Mrs. J. W. Reid, Elams, N. C., pants, dress, pillow-cases, shirts, etc.; Mrs. L. A. Huffines, 1 suit; Circle 2, Burlington Church, N. C., 1 quilt, 42 bath cloths; Mrs. J. A. Williams, Franklin, Va., 10 dresses, four scarfs, 5 slips, 4 hats, 4 pair shoes; Mrs. Etta Hilliard, Mt. Auburn Church, sheets, pillow-cases, dresses, etc.; Mrs. R. R. Auman, Steeds, N. C., 5 dresses, dress material, thread, etc.; Circle 1, Burlington Church, 10 doz. apples, 1 quilt; Mrs. T. E. Brickhouse, Norfolk, Va., dress material; Mrs. C. V. Dunn, Paces, Va., 1 hat, 3 dresses, 3 pair slippers, 4 boys' suits, 10 yds. dressgoods; Turner's Chapel Missionary Society, 13 dresses, 1 pair socks; Mrs. Eunice B. Edwards, Washington, N. C., 13 dresses, etc.; Woman's Missionary Society, Norfolk, Va., 23 dresses, hats, hose, coat-sweater, etc.; Mrs. C. W. Johnson, pres. W. M. S., Urbana, Ill., 12 dresses; Mrs. C. M. Sawyer, pres. W. M. S., Randleman, N. C., 7 dresses, 5 boys' suits; Mrs. M. H. Hargrove, Burton Grove Church, Sedley, Va., 1 dress; Woman's Missionary Society, Piney Plains, 2 suits, 3 dresses, 1 waist; Miss Birdie Wilson, Virgilina, Va., 2 dresses; Mrs. E. B. James, pres. W. M. S., Mansfield, Ill., 12 dresses, 2 blouses; Mrs. L. E. Carlton, Paces, Va., 3 dresses, 12 yds. dress material, 2 pair hose; Mrs. A. S. Dunn, Lynchburg, Va., 2 dresses, 1 shirt, 1 suit; Ladies' Aid Society, Berea Church, Driver, Va., 11 dresses, 3 suits, 4 small suits; Mrs. C. W. King, Pres., Ladies' Aid Society, Bethlehem Church, Suffolk, Va., 4 dresses, 3 suits.

We are grateful indeed for all these contributions.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR APRIL 24, 1930.

Brought forward		$5,926.76
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
United, Lynchburg	$ 3.11
New Lebanon	3.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class	2.00
Liberty	1.60
Mt. Zion	2.02
Greensboro, Palm Street	6.00
Shallow Ford	2.09
		19.82
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Shallow Well	$ 1.36
Piney Plains	6.87
		8.23
Western N. C. Conference:
Shady Grove	$ 1.05
Wentworth	10.55
High Point	4.48
Pleasant Ridge	3.39
Shiloh	1.05
		20.52
Eastern Virginia Conference:
First, Norfolk	$ 5.65
Rosemont	6.32
Centerville	6.00
Elm Avenue	5.00
Holland, March-April	17.00
Wakefield	2.36
		42.33
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Vanceville		1.00
Alabama Conference:
Pisgah		1.65
Special Offerings.
Sale of potatoes	$51.00
R. B. Wicker, for Edna	34.05
Naomi Boyce, Washington, D. C.	10.00
Mrs. J. E. Vincent, Suffolk, Va.	10.00
R. M. Rothgeb, Raleigh, N. C.	10.00
Men's Bible Class, Norfolk Temple	23.00
Primary Class, Norfolk Temple	13.00
Miss Etta F. Fleming, Middleburg	3.00
Mrs. E. J. Brickhouse, Norfolk, Va.	30.00
		184.05
Grand total		$6,204.36

I AM SO GLAD.

Dr. Daniel Albright Long, who will be 86 on May 22, 1920, and now resides at 108 North Guerry Street, Florence, S. C., sends us the following lines of gladness on a postcard:

I'm so glad! I'm so glad for all that is bright:
The sun by day and the songs in the night;
The companions of youth, the friends of old age,
As I read God's dealings on every living page.

Yes, let us thank God today and tomorrow.
In mercy He sends the blessing and sorrow;
It is never unkindness, and never in vain
His mercy permitted a sorrow or pain.

O Father, we can trust Thee for days yet to be,
We know they will bring us still closer to Thee.
When all tears have vanished through Thy boundless love,
We will spend our eternity in the mansions above.

Howe'er it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good.
—Tennyson.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is-ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, [2]O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

[a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [2] Or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x__ $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chin was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x ----------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x ---------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 3.)

lion and seventy thousand people in Porto Rico and Japan alone, to say nothing of the work here in the homeland. In these two fields, supported by our Church, these people are looking to us to preach the gospel of the kingdom to them as well as to ourselves.

Let us not fail in the opportunity of sharing the joy of the Christian life with them. We cannot all go in person, but we may go in prayer and in purse. Jesus has no other hands but our hands, no other lips but our lips, no other money but our money. Shall we not allow Him the use of all that we claim?

When David Lloyd George, English Premier and war-time minister, was in the United States a few years ago, Mr. Stanley High, newspaper correspondent accompanied him in all of his American tours. One morning as they rode together on the train, Mr. High said to the little Welshman, "Mr. Lloyd George, you know the American and British people invested $40,000,000 last year in foreign missions. I would like to know what you think of the missionary enterprise." Mr. Lloyd George seemed a bit surprised at the question. He took off his little glasses, and as he looked out of the train window he fell into deep thought and meditation. Finally he said: "Just this: if Christian missions fail, the rest of us had better close up shop. The missionary program represents the most successful enterprise for the reclamation of mankind that the modern world has ever seen. We cannot dispense with the program of missions."

Now, Mr. Lloyd George is not a missionary, a mission secretary, nor a preacher; he is a practical statesman, layman and business man. Nevertheless, he saw, and today realizes, the importance of the project that is so widely sponsored by the Churches of God.

For years, many of us of the Christian Church have felt that we ought to have a larger outlook on foreign missions. Today the realization of our desire is made true. The challenge is open to us. The Foreign Mission Boards of the Congregational and Christian Churches are taking immediate steps toward complete union in mission projects. The Congregational Church assumes $10,000 toward our Japanese work while we in turn are challenged to assume the same amount toward work in the half-dozen countries in which they labor. These fields include Africa, India, Turkey, China, Greece and the Philippine Islands. Let us carry on by widening the horizons in our own local Churches, missionary societies and Sunday Schools.

Franklin, Va.

WINCHESTER, VA.

On February 2nd, we began a series of evangelistic services, which continued until the 14th. From Wednesday, the 5th, the pastor was assisted by Rev. O. D. Poythress. The interest was good, and we feel that much good was accomplished in the name of our Lord.

Bro. Poythress' messages of sermon and song, which were plain, practical, powerful and persuasive, were well received by our people and were good seed sown in receptive hearts.

Many reconsecrated their lives to the service of Christ and His Church, while several accepted Christ as their Saviour. There were twelve additions to the Church. In Church, in the home, in contacts here and there, Bro. Poythress gained a friendly entrance into the lives of the people; and there are many who would be delighted to have him visit us again, and of course the writer heartily shares in the wish.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

CONVENTION PROGRAM.

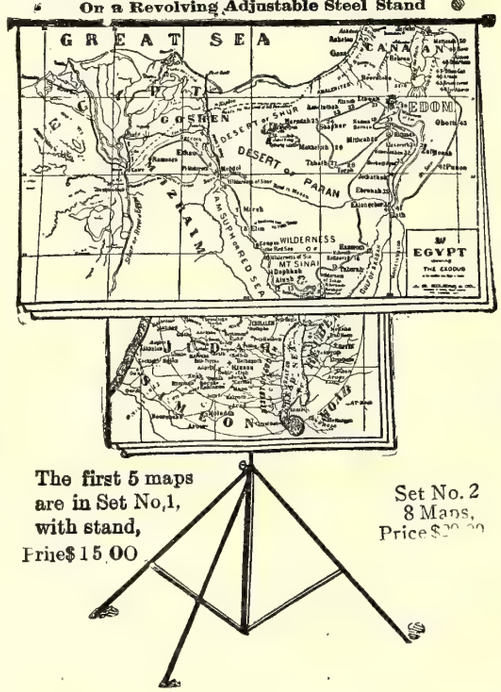
(Continued frmo page 4.)

11:20. Report of Georgia and Alabama Conference—Mrs. T. F. Roquemore.
11:20. Report of Eastern Virginia Conference—Mrs. M. L. Bryant.
11:40. Report of Alabama Conference—Mrs. V. E. Kitchen.
11:50. Address—Miss Mary Preston, New York.
Special Music.
Address—"The Call for the Intensive," Mrs. John Ferguson, New York.

Afternoon Session.

2:00. Opening Service—Dr. W. P. Minton.
2:30. Report of Cradle Roll—Mrs. I. W. Johnson.
2:40. Report of Young People's Conference—Mrs. R. T. Bradford.
2:50. Report of Literature and Mite Boxes—Mrs. C. H. Caviness.
3:00. Report of Life Memberships and Memorials—Mrs. M. J. W. White.
3:10. Report of Spiritual Life—Mrs. W. H. Carroll.
3:20. Report of Convention Editor—Mrs. W. M. Jay.
3:30. Address—Mrs. Clark P. Garmon, Japan.
3:50. Address—Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Sec'y.
4:30. Report of Committees.
4:40. Presentation of Banner.
4:50. Miscellaneous Business.
Reading of Minutes.
5:00. Closing Service.
6:00. Banquet (Continuing till 7:30 o'Clock).

Eilers Sunday School Maps.
On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand



The first 5 maps are in Set No.1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $...

Fine large Maps, In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites the

Series No. 2—Eilers' Edition

Eight large Maps in six colors each, size 36x57. Greatest value for the money. Each set consists of the following Maps: Map of Egypt and Exodus of Israel, Palestine divided among the 12 Tribes, New Testament Palestine, Map of Western Asia and Bible Lands, Roman Empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's travels by colored lines, the Divided Kingdoms of Judah and Israel, the Persian control of Palestine and the Pathways of our Lord showing by colored lines each journey He made. This set of eight fine Maps which cover all Bible Geography in the different periods on adjustable folding steel stand only prepaid.

NOTICE.

The Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention is to be held at Liberty Vance July 16-18, 1930. This is written with the hope that the ministers of this Conference will schedule no revivals to conflict with this date, since it is essential that all ministers be present and all Churches represented.

R. L. HOUSE, Pres.

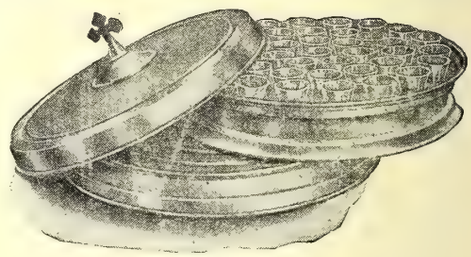
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

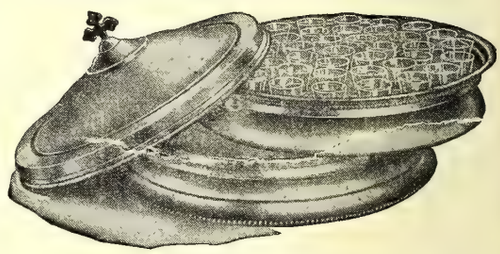


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

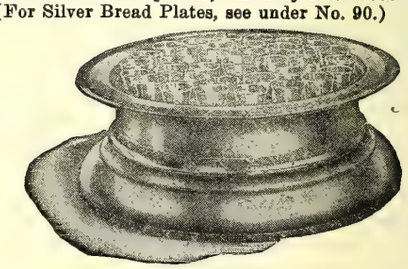
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



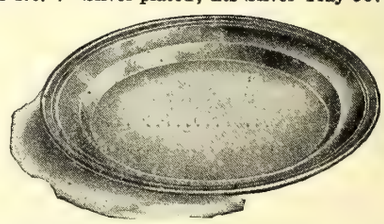
Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00



Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

Send orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

suspect it. Let us, then, try to lose ourselves in Jesus Christ.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, teach us how to live right and be somewhat like our Master: to do good as we go along, and do it for goodness' sake. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE SIGN OF THE SABBATH.

"Ye shall keep my Sabbath, for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am God."—Ex. 31: 13-17.

The Sabbath was a sign between God and Israel, to be throughout all successive generations, that the world might know that He who sanctifies Israel also sanctifies the world, that the world might be saved. Separating one day in seven from the six is made a symbol between God and man of the separation of the people from sin and unto a knowledge of God. "That they may know God."

How shall we know Him unless we spend time with Him. The biggest meaning of Sabbath desecration is that it destroys this covenant and deprives us of fellowship and spiritual growth. The busier we are with our multitudinous duties of living, more we need this separation.

Prayer.—Dear Lord our God, as we approach the Sabbath Day, aid our weak spirits to see and do all that the Sabbath is intended to mean to us. Amen.

SUNDAY.

ACCEPTABLE WORSHIP.

"I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me."—Lev. 10:3.

Nadab and Abihu worshiped with incense, according to their own pleasure and not according to order. They were stricken dead. And it was said that the Lord had said, "I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me."

This reminds us of the offering of Cain and Abel at worship, when Abel's was acceptable and Cain's was not, because Abel offered his best and Cain selfishly offered the poorest that he had; that which he did not care for.

There is a way to worship and get a blessing, and there is a way of coming to worship and going away without a blessing, and the latter is found to be the result of insincere motives. God has not been sanctified in such a one's heart—has not been given right of way there.

The object of worship is to glorify God and harmonize our spirits with His, that we may enjoy Him forever. It is a spiritual act where merely external performance is worthless. Only an inward spiritual force, at least desire, is acceptable to God, and we must come in that kind of spirit and with that kind of offering and sacrifice. When we do we will be glad. "I was glad when they said unto me let us go unto the house of the Lord. God hides Himself within the love of the worshiper. It is as Marcus Aurelius said, "I reverence the God who is within me."

Prayer.—Dear Father, on this our Sabbath, bring to our hearts true reverence, devotion and worship. Amen.

RANDLEMAN.

On Saturday night, April 12th, the girls' R. C. W. Class of the Randleman Christian Church delightfully entertained the Free-will Offering Class of boys with a hike and fish fry. About fifty young people hiked two miles into the country to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Holland, Jr. Contests and games were participated in, after which a fish fry was enjoyed.

Those present were Clara Bowman, Kizzie Burgess, Mary Bowman, Helen Laughlin, Effie Brown, Evelyn Prevost, Margaret King, Mary Etta Robbins, Pearl Allred, Minerva Parker, Eva Prevost, Kathleen Jarrell, Nina Graves, Ruby Robbins, Mrs. S. E. Holland, Mrs. S. G. Robbins, Ruby Jarrett, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Grandmother Stevens, Mrs. Lessie Parker, Miss Alice Stevens, Vernon Robbins, Ollie Stevenson, Hubert Barber, Hal Laughlin, Marvin Laughlin, Jessie Stevenson, Ray Cashatt, Worth Underwood, Otto Robbins, Robert McKenzie, Burton McKenzie, Theodore Davis, Colon Underwood, Charlie Bowman, Clifford Allred, George Lamb, Vance Bowman, Lacy Gaster, George Stalker, S. E. Holland, S. G. Robbins, G. V. Laughlin, Charles Crawford, R. E. Allred, Richard Stevens, Kenneth Parker, Kenneth Underwood, Paul Robbins, E. W. Davis, Ervin Hancock, Burton Brooks.

NOTICE.

On Tuesday night, April 29th, from 6 to 7:30 o'clock, in the basement of the United Church, Raleigh, N. C., the women are to have a banquet. All delegates and visitors are invited, and any of the gentlemen present who would like to join with them will be welcomed. The price of the banquet will be $1.00 per plate. Any one wishing to attend this banquet will please send their remittance to Mrs. Ernest L. Beale, Franklin, Va., and upon receipt of same a ticket will be forwarded.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.

CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

FOX.

Died March 24th, being 80 years, 2 months, and 5 days. She was preceded in death by her husband only eleven days. There are three sons surviving—W. M., J. C., and H. C. Fox; and one daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Overman, all of Route 3, Liberty, N. C.

She was from early life a member of Pleasant Hill Christian Church, and was faithful to her Church and to her God to the end; hence, to her reward she has passed. Burial service was at Pleasant Hill by the pastor, and her remains were placed by that of her husband, awaiting the resurrection.

T. J. GREEN.

GRIGGS.

After a brief illness, Mrs. Corinne Marie Luke Griggs departed this life at Newport News, Va., on the night of April 1, 1930. She would have been 71 years of age had she lived till the 19th of this month, and had been a member of the Bethlehem Christian Church since childhood.

Another death in the immediate family occurred in the same night—her niece, Mrs. Georgia Ashburn Willis, age 37 years.

Mrs. Griggs is survived by five sons and four daughters, a number of grandchildren, two sisters, and one brother. Mrs. Willis is survived by her husband, H. G. Willis; one son, H. G. Willis, Jr.; her parents, three brothers and one sister.

Funeral services for Mrs. Willis were conducted from her residence at 11 A. M., April 3rd, by the writer, assisted by the Rev. Paul K. Buckles, pastor of Hampton Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Garland Moore, pastor of Riverview Baptist Church, with interment in the Greenlawn Cemetery, Newport News.

At 1:30 P. M., many of the same mourners followed the remains of Mrs. Griggs from the home of Mrs. F. W. Vaughan, a daughter, to Bethlehem, where Rev. W. D. Harwood, D. D., Rev. Bro. Brittle, and Rev. Mr. Thompson, of the Baptist Church, assisted in the service, with burial in the cemetery near the Church.

It was indeed a day of sorrow to this family, but they "sorrow not as those who have no hope." They possessed a peace that none can give save Him who said, "Let not your hearts be troubled." The profusion of flowers at both funerals signified the high esteem in which both women were held, as well as showing that the sorrows of these families had become the sorrow of others who sought by this means to convey their sympathy.

M. F. ALLEN.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published—prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

Send your orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN 1536 East Broad Street Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1930. NUMBER 18.

Mrs N T Farmer

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

FEAR OF THE BIBLE.—

Every Christian should learn a lesson from the enemies of God and religion. There is nothing of which the rabid atheist is so much afraid as the Bible. During recent years we have seen the organization of several societies whose express purpose is to combat the work of religion. And in every case where the method of attack has been revealed it is against the Bible. Atheist, infidel, and freethinkers are all doing everything within their power to destroy faith in the Bible and to prevent its message from reaching the public ear. And there are thousands of Christians who are neglecting the reading and teaching of the Bible, falling into line with the avowed and expressed desire and ambition of every enemy of God and righteousness.

TOO MUCH TALK!

It is not surprising that the attendance is falling off at public gatherings where speaking is the principal item on the program. We are living in a world that is literally filled up with talk. The air is filled with it, and there is generally some one ready and willing to turn on the radio. There was a time when the movies offered an opportunity to rest one's ear-drums, even if they did throw a strain on the eyes without affording any stimulus to the brain. But now most of the movies have been converted into talkies. It looks as if there might be no limit to the possibilities of reproducing the human voice.

There was a time when an announcement of any kind of a speaking would draw a crowd. But those good old days have passed along with a lot of other things. This scribe recently attended a State peace oratorical contest; he had been invited to serve as a judge in the contest. Only college students were eligible to contest, and only one from each college was permitted to represent an institution. The orations were of a very high order. They were thought-provoking and informative. They were heard by about thirty people besides the contestants. And the contest was held upon the campus of one of the leading universities of the South. There can be but one explanation: people are not eager to listen to more talk.

Some may feel that the day of the public speaker has passed. This is doubtless an exaggerated judgment. The day of the public speaker will never pass until there are no longer momentous issues to stir the hearts and challenge the minds of men. It does mean, however, that the day has come when he who would appear as a public speaker must have something infinitely worth saying, and must be able to say it in a most worthwhile way. And the public must know, if it is going to turn out to hear a speaker, that he is going to have something to say, be able to say it well, and not take too long in saying it.

MEASURING CHURCH EFFICIENCY.—

Dr. H. K. Carroll has given to the public his compilation of statistics as to the numerical gains and losses of the various denominations in the United States during the year of 1929. The figures are printed in full in the Christian Herald, issue of April 26th. Dr. Carroll is an expert at the most difficult task of collecting definite figures as to the number of members enrolled in the various Churches of the country.

All the various Churches show a net gain of a little over 300,000 during the year, which is a considerable falling off from the more than a million gain in membership during 1928. The American people have learned to place great confidence in statistics. We are impressed with an array of figures, whether we know what they indicate or not. I suppose that all of us will be inclined to breathe a sigh of relief when we learn that, as a whole, the Churches have been gaining in membership. We will feel that, after all, much of the criticism as to the weakness and failure of the Church was entirely unfounded.

But for the individual Church and the individual denomination, there should be scant comfort in the showing made throughout the entire country. The important question is what has been happening in the particular field of labor with which we are connected. And most of us are fully aware of the fact that numbers are but a poor index of the spiritual life of the Church. There must be other standards of measurement by which the efficiency of the Church is measured rather than that of numbers.

Spiritual growth is generally slow growth. It requires years for Christian character to reach maturity. Long acquaintance with a single congregation reveals the fact that there are certain individual members who have attained to a splendid spiritual statue, while others have remained almost stationary through the passing of the years. The work of ministering to the growth and development along spiritual lines is essentially a work of faith, and no one can tell at the time of sowing what the harvest will be.

WHAT IS DUE THE CONVICT?

The recent first in the Ohio State Penitentiary, which caused more than three hundred convicts to lose their lives, has raised a nation-wide discussion. It was a situation of unspeakable horror, and it is not surprising that it should have aroused a wave of sentiment that has swept the country. Fire causes a panic among men who, under most circumstances, are calm and level-headed. What must have been the feelings of those men, who knew themselves to be securely locked in with the safest of mechanical contrivances, when they realized that they were doomed to perish in the flames or be suffocated by the smoke and fumes?

When the news was first broadcast, the question arose as to the duty of the warden under the circumstances. Should he have taken action to release as many of the convicts as could be reached, and thus turn loose upon the law-abiding citizens of Ohio hundreds of desperate criminals? or should he have permitted them to perish as they did? was the turn the discussion took. As this is written, an investigation of the warden's conduct is still in progress. But no matter what may be the verdict brought in as a result of the investigation, it is already realized that far more is involved than what has happened in Ohio.

For years, students of sociology have been seeking to determine the duty of society in dealing with the criminal. It is still a much-mooted question. There are those who contend that already too much has been done in the effort to reform the criminal. It is held that the criminal class has been pampered and coddled until there is more sympathy for the criminal than for the victims of his crime. One side holds that society should center its efforts upon punishment, while the other contends that society should major in the attempt to reform and correct the criminal tendencies.

Whatever may be the decision as to the proper attitude toward the criminal, one fact is perfectly patent at the present time. Society certainly owes it to the criminal to see that the prison in which he is confined is as nearly fireproof as modern methods of construction can make it. If the various penitentiaries throughout the nation were investigated as to the fire risks which they contain, doubtless many of them would be found to be veritable fire-traps. Many such buildings are old, or certain parts of them are old, and were constructed in a day when a fire-proof building was an ideal and not a possibility.

There is, of course, the question of costs to be considered. With a steadily increasing prison population, the question of prison maintenance and adequate prison facilities has already created a problem for those who are interested in keeping down taxes. But too much is involved for a fear of increased taxes to hush the demand for prisons that will safeguard their inmates from the hazard of fire. Every individual should have every possible protection against fire. But in a building where the occupants are free to escape when the warning is sounded, fire risk is entriely different from the case of a prison where men are as securely locked in as it is possible to lock them. Disregard for the fire danger in the case of the criminal can have but one result, and that to harden and embitter him more deeply against society, which he already regards as his enemy.

NOTES-PERSONALS

The pastor, Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, Henderson, N. C., writes: "A missionary society was organized at Fuller's Chapel Sunday, April 13th, with nineteen members."

Rev. Roy C. Helfenstein, who is spending some weeks recuperating at the Florida Sanitarium, Orlando, Fla., writes that he is making rapid progress. He hopes to be back in his pulpit at no far distant date.

In its recent assignment of new wave lengths, effective May 1st, the Federal Radio Commission placed WMBI, the station of the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, on 1040 kilocycles (288.3 meters), and its gospel programs will have a wider and more satisfactory reception by the eliminating of interference.

The Missionary Education Movement Conference meets at Blue Ridge, N. C., June 28th to July 8th. Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, Washington, D. C., is chairman. Among the speakers are Dr. W. A. Harper, of Elon College; Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, of Chattanooga; Dr. Malcolm W. Dana, of New York City; Dr. R. B. Eleazer, Atlanta; Miss Lucille Du Bose, Nashville; Dr. Geo. W. Hinman, New York City.

A good friend, closing a personal letter, refers me to Hebrews 13:20-21. Turning to Weymouth's translation, I read this wish, than which I doubt if there can be any better: "Now may God who gives peace, and who brought Jesus, our Lord, up again from among the dead, even Him who, by virtue of the blood of the eternal covenant, is the great Shepherd of the sheep, fully equip you with every grace that you may need for the doing of His will, producing in us that which will truly please Him through Jesus Christ."

Rev. R. Lee House, writing of the missionary rally at Pope's Chapel, April 19th, says: "On account of the rain, there was not a large crowd at Pope's Saturday. There were two ministers, Mr. Crutchfield and myself. Six Churches were represented—Mt. Auburn, Henderson, Liberty (Vance), Fuller's Chapel, Beulah and Pope's. Mrs. J. A. Kimball presided in the absence of the president. The two pastors present took part on the program. Papers were read by other members of the various societies, and time was also given for general discussion of common problems. The same officers were re-elected, and the next rally is to meet at Henderson."

Rev. G. H. Veazey, of Roanoke, Ala., and Rev. J. H. Dollar, of Reidsville, N. C., are two of the ten Christian preachers attending the rural Church School at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, for two weeks. Bro. Veazey writes: "The school is simply fine. I count it one of the greatest opportunities of my life to be here. There are 350 preachers here from twenty-four States and about thirty denominations. There are ten of our own number and about the same number from the Congregational Church. We have group meetings every afternoon which are interesting and helpful. We are getting better acquainted, and as we come to know each other better, we love each other more."

A printed annual report for 1930 of the Mission Hospital, Cagayan, Philippine Islands, states that Dr. and Mrs. M. J. W. White, who arrived in December, 1929, came at an opportune time and at once proved that they will meet a real need. The Whites are rapidly making friends. They have a way of making one feel that they are friends. It is noted from the printed report that in this hospital last year the total treatments were 7,280; patients admitted, 485; major operations, 61; minor operations, 54. The printed report says that with the arrival of Dr. and Mrs. White, medical work of Northern Mindanao begins a new page, and the outlook is auspicious for the relief of human suffering in that part of the island by Dr. and Mrs. White.

Rev. W. P. Minton, Mission Secretary, Dayton, Ohio, writing under date of April 22, says: "Mr. and Mrs. Scott and Billy left this morning for the South, and we feel as though we have lost a brother beloved. They certainly are fine people, and he is one of the most aggressive and hard-working pastors I have ever seen. I am sure he will do great work at Salisbury, but we do hate to lose them from here. Bro. Truitt will be moving into the parsonage some time next week, and he is starting off with a splendid congregation. He and Bro. Scott received fifty-one into Walnut Hills Church on Easter Sunday, and had the largest attendance on record. I believe the merger of the two Churches was the only hope of saving anything from either one, and now there is great hope of building up a strong Church in this community."

ROSEMONT CHURCH.

These are busy days in my field. Rosemont Church is working hard to raise $15,000 by the first of July with which to begin a better Church and Sunday School plant. Each Sunday a different speaker presents the matter of the new Church fund to our people, and there is a splendid interest being manifested and we are expecting to reach our goal.

Dr. C. C. Ryan, pastor of the First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., led the Church in a splendid revival meeting the last two weeks of March. Dr. Ryan not only did great preaching while here, but gave us much encouragement in our proposed building program, which we all appreciated very much and we hope that when he comes to us again he will find a better place in which to deliver his messages than he found the last time.

Our work is going nicely, and the attendance is as good as we can expect until we get better building equipment.

Our Berea Church is also working hard for new Sunday School rooms, and we do hope that we may be able to see new rooms there before very long, and we are quite sure that we will if the interest keeps up as it is now. Our Sunday School here is doing very fine work under the leadership of Superintendent F. N. Hall, and both the Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid Society are doing just a splendid piece of work.

The annual memorial services at this Church will be held on the last Sunday in May in the Church cemetery, and the annual home-coming day will be held on the first Sunday in September, followed by our special evangelistic meeting.

J. F. Morgan.

FRANKLIN CHURCH.

A very interesting club was organized in the Franklin Christian Church the first of February. It was a Bible club, known as the Chapter-A-Day Club. There were many charter members who entered into the plan of reading a chapter a day in the Book of Acts which contains twenty-eight chapters. Since February had only twenty-eight days, each person read the book entirely through during the month. When the first of March came, it was decided to continue the club, and the gospel of Matthew was chosen and a goodly number of new members were added. April the first brought others into the daily practice of reading a chapter a day in John. At present, nearly every member of the Church and Sunday School is reading the Bible daily.

Copies of these books were given each person, and thus they were enabled to carry attractive little portions of Scripture with them to work, to school and to Church.

So great was the interest in the Church and Sunday School in the matter of daily Scripture reading that the pastor felt that copies of Scripture ought to be placed in the hands of every child in the county, and to that end he secured the endorsement of the county superintendent of public instruction and has up to date distributed over 2,500 copies of the gospels to children in the public schools of both white and black races in Southampton County.

The co-operation of the school teachers was very fine. The business men and women of the county readily responded to the proposal of distributing the gospels to the children, and without much effort the amount of $30 was raised for the purchase of 3,000 volumes.

Addresses were made by the pastor in six of the leading high schools on the importance of reading the Bible. Following the messages, the gospels were distributed to every child who promised to read a chapter a day. These attractive little Scripture portions can be obtained from the American Bible Society at Richmond, Va., at $1 per hundred.

Joseph W. Fix.

SHALLOW WELL.

A rather unique program was rendered at Shallow Well Church on March 30th, when "Thomas Day" was observed. The Church was filled to overflowing by "Thomases" and their friends, and the program rendered by Thomases, except introductory remarks by the pastor, giving the origin of "Thomas Day" in our Church.

For the devotional service, the Scripture was read by Mrs. J. E. Thomas, and prayer by Mrs. A. S. Thomas. The address of welcome was by Raeford Thomas, and the principal address of the occasion was by H. Lee Thomas, who used the topic, "The Church and Educational Work."

A feature of the program was a reading by little Mary John Thomas, entitled, "Grandma." Special music was rendered by the Thomas male quartet of Broadway, N. C.

Memorial Day service will be held on Saturday, May 10th, and Mothers' Day program on May 11th. Plans are being made for "Homecoming Day" on June 29th.

T. Fred Wright.

AN INSPIRING SERVICE.

The gladness of the receiver is a prayer for the generous giver, and God hears it.

Last third Sunday, at Bethlehem Christian Church, Alamance County, N. C., the pastor's heart was made glad in delightful service. A large and appreciative audience, close and profound thought and study, worship and devotion as we meditated together that Easter morn concerning the Christ and His resurrection, was an inspiration and a benediction.

As we communed at the Lord's table, in commemoration of His love manifested in the crucifixion, and the lively hope we have through His resurrection, I do believe that new, deeper, sublimer resolutions were made for a more devout, consecrated Christian life.

These are a good people. They are grateful to our Heavenly Father for His many blessings.

J. W. Patton.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

PREPARING FOR PENTECOST.

By Rev. John G. Truitt.

"And when the Day of Pentecost was fully Come."—Acts 2:1.

From April 20th, this year, to June 8th is the Pentecost period. It is a period of fifty days, as the name pentecost implies. Pentecost was otherwise sometimes called the feast of weeks—a week of weeks after the Passover. This year the Pentecost is being celebrated throughout Christendom because it rounds out nineteen centuries of the Christian Church. In a series of five Sunday-morning sermons, I wish to turn your attention in a special manner to that great birthday of the Christian movement. For convenience, the series of sermons will be entitled as follows: "Preparing for Pentecost," "Power of Pentecost," "Program of Pentecost," "Preaching Pentecost," and "Practicing Pentecost."

Celebrating of Pentecost is a very small matter per se, but getting the spirit of the Pentecost into our thinking and acting is a vastly different thing. It is the latter for which we pray in the present emphasis. If we ever make Pentecost real in our living, we shall most likely do so through the way of the Word of God, illuminated and aided by the power of the Holy Spirit. We shall think in the largest possible measure of others by the paradoxical route of forgetting them for the while and thinking introspectively in the light of the will of our Lord of our individual selves. We shall close the door, so to speak, and shut ourselves in with ourselves and the Holy Spirit to "tarry" there until we shall be able to follow out wherever the Spirit leads us. In this we have supreme precedent. Then how is this Pentecost prepared for?

There is first that one supreme and inescapable fact, namely: the resurrected Christ. There is more which we shall see as we go along, but this one fact stands before all others as the sublime and only door of entrance. Not just Jesus Christ, but the resurrected Jesus Christ. You can follow Jesus Christ to the cross and to the tomb, and then go fishing. You may follow the life of Christ as an academic thing from one end to the other and yet have to shut yourselves within for fear of the Jews! You may be a close disciple of Jesus Christ, and then betray Him. You may declare that you have left all to follow Him, and even tell the truth as Peter did, and then deny Him. You may even help take Him down from the cross and enwrap Him in the perfumes of loving devotion and then find yourself hopeless. You may walk with Him throughout all Galilee and the paths of Palestine as a whole, and yet know not the resurrected Christ nor recognize Him on the road to Emmaus. The resurrected Jesus Christ is everything in the Pentecostal background—ah! and shall I not say in the fore ground, too—the foundation and the elevation!

It is all supremely beautiful, and how often fitting in this practical, workaday world of ours to talk about the "Jesus way" of living. But we shall not fully understand what we are talking about until we have considered personally and prayerfully the Christ way of dying, and of rising again! "Jesus' way of living" would have left Peter and the others in an awful lurch, for vacillation, despair, and actual fear possessed their souls. And why not when confronted with the things with which they had been confronted? For if the chapter had ended with the "Jesus way of living"—yea, even the Jesus way of dying—without the Jesus way of resurrection, supreme failure would have been the unanimous verdict of every follower of the lowly Nazarene! But miracle of all miracles, Jesus Christ arose from the dead! There is your sure hope of Pentecost!

If we are to experience the Pentecost in our Churches, we must make Him real in ourselves. There is nothing pentecostal about recognizing a myth, however beautiful a myth it might be; there is nothing pentecostal about subscribing to a theory, however sacred an one it is—but, my friend, the lifting up within your heart of the living, dying, rising, reigning Christ will give you the power of a perpetual Pentecost. He must be, then, a real person, no myth. He must be a living person, no dead hero, nor entombed teacher. We must see Him anointed, crucified, buried, and resurrected again from the dead. This is not so easy as it may seem. It is not as easy to do as it is to say to do. There is this rather strange thing about the record of Jesus Christ's resurrection, namely: no account is given of His being seen alive by any save His own followers. Perhaps this worries our argumentative minds a bit at first thought; but even before Jesus' death on the cross He began to "manifest Himself unto us, and not unto the world." Jesus told the disciples when they asked Him why it was so that it was based on two things—love and obedience. There is your formula for seeing God now: love Him, obey Him. What, oh what, would Jesus Christ have been more than a spectacle, or a ghost, had He been seen by any save those who loved Him with such a passion as would cause them to fall at His feet, crying, "My Lord and my God"? Did Jesus turn stones unto bread? No. Did Jesus jump off the pinnacle of the temple? No. Did Jesus fall down and worship Satan? No. Would Jesus thrust His broken body upon an unbelieving mob? No. Would the one who said, "Cast not your pearls before the swine," cast heaven's most previous jewel before men who jeeringly mangled His earthly body? There are some things too beautifully sacred to be seen save by the eyes of love and obedience.

However, for love's comfort and faith, His resurrection was established by "many infallible proofs," which no serious attempts were made to disprove in that day seeing that they were infallible! He was seen by the women and the disciples; His resurrection was a known fact with the soldiers; and, besides, there were "five hundred witnesses"—infinitely more than the requisite two or three. "Jesus saith unto Thomas, Because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed." What a preachment! What a prophecy! Blessed indeed, because down across the centuries, across the continents they have transformed history, unlocked prison doors, and brought the Pentecost down upon their every-day and generation! I love the Christ of the cross. How we should love Him who suffered for us there! But, ah! the Christ of the world-wide command, the Christ of the "all power" to be "ever with us" is a Christ to whom we may kneel. He is the Christ of Peter on Pentecost, the Christ of Paul in a hundred ports, and He must be the Christ of our own hearts before we may be endowed with any real power from the upper room in Jerusalem. There we must tarry in prayer until He endue us with power from on high.

With the background of such a faith in such a Christ prayer was the preparation for Pentecost. Separated, divided, disunited praying had been called to account, and now they were united and in one place, and in one accord. Some praying, yea, much praying should be done in private, and some of it should be intensely personal ;but the praying that is to bring our Churches Pentecost will be united and persistent. They had been praying about many things, but now they were in one accord—they were praying for the Holy Ghost. They were praying for what Jesus had told them that as conquerors of the world they would need, namely: the Paraclete—the Holy Spirit. And they were not just some of them praynig, but all—and the "all" is told in actual mathematical count (some people do not believe in numbers) 120! Each doing his bit, each counted, and was counted. God needs each of us. And God wants each of us to pray. No man or woman, and there were both men and women there, need feel he will not be missed in this great call to prayer in preparation for Pentecost. And how our Christendom needs its Pentecost! Let us go, then, by the command of our resurrected Jesus Christ to the "upper rooms" of our Churches and pray, and how it will rejoice the heart of God to give us the Pentecost!

Dayton, Ohio.

HE SIGNED FOR US.

Recently as I waited my turn at the parcel-post window in the post-office, the clerk asked me to sign for a C. O. D. package for an illiterate person. It was a new experience for me, and as the clerk showed me what to do and then had the person make her "mark," the thought came to me that that was what Jesus the Christ did for me, for every one.

Our Saviour signed our name to the receipt of our soul's salvation, and endorsed it with His name, His blood, and we made the cross. Yes, we made the cross in our ignorance and weakness, not knowing the price that He must pay that we might receive the salvation from sin that He came to bring to "whosoever will."

"And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." Jesus came to suffer and die the shameful death on the cross, that He might be the "Propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world; for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God."

The sinless one was made sin for us, that He might deliver us from this present evil world, "To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us." "Who His own self bare our sins in His own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness."

We make the cross anew when we fail to offer our bodies a living sacrifice; and we drive the cruel nails when we fail to say, "Thy will be done," and take our own way, regardless of the pain and agony that we cause Him to bear. When we say that we have troubles enough of our own, and neglect to listen to those who need the sympathy that we might give, we place the crown of thorns upon His head again. When we doubt His love, His care, His power to work all things to our good, then all the pains of the cruel cross are felt anew. Oh, that we might "live unto righteousness" because we are dead to sin, "having crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts," and do only those things which bring glory to His name.

"And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." W.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE GREATEST RELIGIOUS BATTLEFIELD.

When we look around us at the ravages of sin, at the waywardness and wickedness of the evil-minded, we may be inclined to decide that Christianity is having its fiercest battle, and religion its supreme conflict, here in America. Dr. Robert E. Speer, a world figure, a man acquainted with the "utmost parts," because of continued contacts and repeated visits to all parts of the world, on his recent return to the United States gave to the New York Herald-Tribune this declaration: "The greatest religious battlefield in the world today is in Asia, where Christianity is in conflcit with the other greatest religions of the world for the allegiance of a population that comprises half the people on the earth."

Dr. Speer further declares, in an interview with the metropolitan daily, "that Christianity is winning the struggle through the penetration of Christian ideas and the Christian spirit into the indigeous life of the Asiatics." A distinguished and outstanding Japanese is quoted by Dr. Speer as saying "Real world-wide co-operation in fulfilling the last command of our Lord, 'Go ye, therefore, and make disciples to all nations,' is really just beginning. We shall continue to look forward for your co-operation and prayers in the tremendous tasks that confront us in our country. Signs of the crumbling of the other religions as Christianity penetrates Asiatic lands" are pointed out by Dr. Speer. In India, for instance, a law has been passed forbidding the marriage of girls under fourteen, and boys under eighteen, in spite of strong and even bitter opposition from Brahmins and Moslems, who claim that such a law was an invasion of their religious principles. Child marriage has been the curse of India, though taught and urged by the pagan beliefs of that country. There is said to be several million widows in India, for instance, under ten years of age.

Some of the great achievements of the missionaries are pointed out by Dr. Speer: "The present Japanese ambassador to United States is placed on record as saying that 'an American missionary is regarded as the founder of the public school system of Japan.' The statement is credited to General Jan C. Smuts, of South Africa, that 'it is difficult to conceive what Africa would have been without the civilizing effects of Christian missions.' Sir Arnold Wilson, a British official familiar with Arabia, Mesopotamia and Irak, is reported to have stated that 'the disinterested but not dispassionate zeal, the high qualities and personal ability of individual missionaries have beyond all question permeated the Arab social and religious system and set up standards of public conduct and personal rectitude which have been tactfully and, indeed, unconsciously, adopted by an increasingly large body of educated men.' "

Such achievements are even overlooked by people not acquainted with missionary work and the life and leadership of missionaries in foreign fields. Dr. Speer declares that never was the work of foreign missions cutting any deeper and wielding wider influence than today. In China particularly, Dr. Speer points out that Churches and missions have launched a five-year movement to double the number of Christian members. In Japan, the "Kingdom of God's Movement" aims at a million new believers. Truly our Lord is marching on. He instituted the missionary movement, and on His shoulders are the responsibilities of missionary work, and in His name and for His sake is the missionary work carried on in the world. It is heartening, indeed, to all who are willing to follow Him, by way of self-denial, to realize that Christ, our Saviour and Redeemer, goes on conquering and to conquer, even against untold odds and all manner of opposition and difficulties.

Nothing will help to win the conflict for Christ and righteousness more quickly and more surely at home than for His followers to have the faith in Him that leads them to share with those afar the joy and the glory of His life and love—a life and a love that have brought us a long way and will carry us further if we implicitly obey and follow Him. The supreme need of the world today is Jesus the Christ. J. O. A.

AFTER PROHIBITION—WHAT?

Many of us are inclined to discredit prohibition because it has not accomplished all that we had anticipated, and because there are many and repeated infractions of the law of the eighteenth amendment. It is good philosophy in measuring a movement or a person to take into account, not the heights to which they have attained, but the depth from which they have come. We become restless and impatient sometimes as we compare our actual condition with our high ideals in the realm of what we might or could be. Many in the present time see what the law is not doing, and clamor to abolish it, forgetting many of the things the law has done and ignoring conditions prior to the enactment of the law and the eighteenth amendment. The Philadelphia Public Ledger recently put the question, "After Prohibition, What?" and briefly answered its own question in these words:

"Liquor has never obeyed any law except by compulsion. It was sold to minors, to intoxicated men, and at unlawful hours on Sundays. It paid its license—perhaps—and assumed all the rest. We tried local option (State control is that), and liquor broke that down. We tried the dispensary. Bootleggers and grafters made a farce of it. Our latest attempt is constitutional prohibition, and liquor skillfully, shrewdly, by defiance, by casuistry, by assault in every form, is doing its best to break that down. Then what? Nullification! The law is beyond its reach. The issue is simple and clear, absolute prohibition or free liquor. All other attempts at control have failed. As a moral question, the war against liquor will go on. In that field it has been well said, 'Nothing is ever settled until it is settled right.' "

Whether we agree with the writer in the Ledger or not, there is food for thought, especially when it is remembered that the bootlegger and the illicit distiller were more abundant and busy in the days of the open saloon than they are at present, and that, through all time, so far as history reveals, liquor has never obeyed any law except by compulsion.

We have not attained perfection with the law. Far from it. We have not attained perfection of human nature and human conduct in this world of wickedness and woe. Far from it. But bear in mind that more than fifty thousand ex-saloon-keepers in the United States pay a dollar a month each, $12 per year per capita, as a fund with which to fight prohibition and the eighteenth amendment and to help bring back that day when they did all they could to debauch youth, destroy virtue, and fill graves with drunkards. Bear in mind that the liquor-makers, sellers and drinkers have never let up for a moment, and that they are now spending, as an organized body, in the neighborhood of $500,000 a year in their propaganda to break down prohibition, to annul the law, and to destroy the effects of the eighteenth amendment. So, when we take our stand against prohibition and the eighteenth amendment, let us bear in mind that we enter the company of more than 50,000 ex-saloon-keepers and untold other thousands of those who, out of desire for gain through revelry and debauchery, are trying to break down the effects and the law that the economic and moral forces of the country, by the most overwhelming majority ever given to any constitutional amendment, enacted against that which had been "weighed in the balance and found wanting."

The ex-saloon-keepers and their wet associates may, by the expenditure of untold millions, win back the day of rioting and revelry, but it will be the first time in the history of civilization when mankind, having set its face toward moral betterment, turn back ward toward moral depravity. Verily, if we break down prohibition—after that, what? J. O. A.

RELIGION OF THE "INNER LIFE."

"Protestantism is ceasing to be a religion of the inner life and is becoming more and more a religion of uplift," so Prof. Irving Babbitt is quoted. This is given as the reason and the explanation of our decreased rate of Church progress. If Prof. Babbitt is correct in his declaration, then the explanation made fully explains. The Christian religion is first and foremost a religion of the "inner life." From that source comes the urge. There is the dynamic. This is the power that has carried Christianity forward. Without that power—the power of the Christ within—it comes to be merely an ethical or a humanitarian appeal. This appeal may have some weight with the cultured, the keen of intellect, the sensitive, and will result in giving us refined ethics. But it hasn't "the urge" to drive men and women beyond themselves, to achievements that are more than human, and to ends and motives that are more than earthly. Think of trying to account for John Wesley on the basis of a religion of uplift! Think of trying to account for D. L. Moody, for David Livingstone, for William Carey, and for the present E. Stanley Jones on the basis of "a religion of uplift"! These men had something within that urged them beyond their strength, beyond human endurance and human achievement, and drove them to the divine task. Jesus the Christ was talking to Nicodemus, but He used the plural "ye" in this marvelous personal sermon when He said: "Ye must be born again." He was talking to a world-wide audience when He said that, and only used the personality of Nicodemus to whom and through whom He could convey His world-wide conception of redemption, regeneration, salvation.

Human uplift comes out of the religion of the inner life as naturally and as logically as day comes out of the night; but that which has moved the world upward to its present height of human uplift was the dynamic of the religion of the inner life; that dynamic which begat a faith that can remove mountains, bridge oceans and conquer Satan in the name and for the sake of Jesus the Christ in whom alone is the hope of the world.

"Everything in religion is based on the 'inner life,'" declares the Nashville Christian Advocate. "When this fails or weakens, there is no hope of vitality. All philanthrophy relies upon the heart and the faith of religion." The religion of uplift is human only, and finds its ample dynamic in ethical ideals and humanitarian sentiments. The religion of the inner life is divine and finds its dynamic only in Him who said, "I am the way, the truth and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me." J. O. A.

HOW SOON EARTH'S GLORY FADES!

Mr. Bruce Brown, to whom the ashes of the late Mrs. William Jennings Bryan were entrusted after the body had been cremated, gives this to the press:

"The first time that I ever saw Mrs. W. J. Bryan was thirty years ago as she stood by her husband's side before a great cheering throng. How fine and wonderful they both looked, and how much life seemed to hold for them! Only a few days ago I stood by her side, the side of her body as it lay in the casket with both hair and face as white as snow. The next day I carried her ashes back from Forest Lawn. As I held the little box weighing about two pounds in my hands it scarcely seemed real that I was holding all that was left in this world of that gracious and wonderful woman as she appeared to me but a few years ago. The attendants handed me the little box while they were jesting about trivial matters and the driver spoke of common-place things as we returned to Los Angeles. It seemed but yesterday that the streets of Chicago were black with cheering throngs and then a mighty silence when a multitude waited for her gracious word."

As one reads this incident and recalls how the fame of "the great Commoner" and that of his noble wife only a few years ago flooded the press and inflamed the imagination of multitudes, one is compelled to meditate for a moment of the passing glory of the earth and of how the grandeur, glory and glamor of the day soon pass and fade away. Meditation here drives one to desire to lift the eyes up to the hills that have stood through the centuries, and whose majesty and magnitude defy the finger of time and the process of the ages.

One wants to look out on the giant oaks, the stately forests, the refreshing fields which survive the shock of winter and the change of seasons, and abide through decades and generations. And then, most of all, one wants to lift one's mind in meditation to Him who changeth not and to the one who said, "The heavens and the earth shall pass away, but not one jot or tittle of the law shall pass." "What is eternity?" some one asked, and then came the reply, "It is the life of God tracing itself out on the page of time—that life which is without beginning and without end; for in Him is the fullness of days and of creation, and even of all time itself God and the soul of man abide forever." J. O. A.

THE CHURCH PAPER.

The best people and the best institutions have the hardest experiences. Honest people have the hardest struggles. The best mothers have the most trouble. Jesus Christ had the hardest life and carried the heaviest cross, and upon it He died to save a world lost in sin. Church schools have the hardest road to travel, and Church papers have the hardest experience. These two institutions are essential to the life and progress of Christianity, and represent more the spirit of Jesus than other institutions. They have financial obligations to meet, relations to sustain, lessons to teach and burdens to bear that make them examples of true followers of Jesus Christ. They are not engaged in working for self or gain, but both of them are in the field of benevolent Christian service. A Church paper is not a magazine, but a medium of intercourse between ministers, institutions, and Churches. The more it brings together people separated by communities, miles, ideas, and associations, the more it serves its constituency. The idea may be derived from the reading of local news by local subscribers to a daily paper. The most interesting articles are those that deal with local interests and local persons.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, in some measure, fulfills the purpose of putting Churches and ministers in touch with one another. It could be improved by more ministers writing for the paper. A word giving clear accounts of Sunday School attendance, missionary societies, additions to the Church membership, plans and purposes for improvement and progress, Church attendance, and prospects for the future. This is not a suggestion for big Churches, but for all the Churches in the Southern Christian Convention. A good word from the smallest Churches would be the most helpful, for in all denominations the small Churches are the largest in number. United States Senators are not made by rich, educated citizens, but by unknown voters. It is the multitude of small voters that make the United States the most progressive and, they say, the richest nation in the world.

The membership of the Christian Church in the Southern Christian Convention could make THE CHRISTIAN SUN the best Church paper in the South if they would increase the subscribers and the pastors would send in more information. With thirty thousand members, and allowing five members to a family, THE SUN should have six thousand subscribers. That could be done easily, as there are many subscribers who have no children, and many not even married. There are so many useless ways in which people spend $2.00 a year that $2.00 a year is within the reach of all. If any one is unable to pay the $2.00 and wants THE SUN, somebody would gladly pay it. The only excuse for a Christian family not receiving THE SUN is indifference. W. W. S.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

OPTION

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Circulation Manager.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Sunday School is at the present time a part of the Church, but it should be the whole Church. The number in the school should equal the Church membership. In almost every family there are members of the Sunday School who are too young to be members of the Church, and that number, no doubt, equals the members of the Church who are too old, sick, or absent from home, so that it is reasonable to suppose, and the Church has a right to expect, the Sunday School to equal in membership the membership of the Church.

As a rule, the membership of the Sunday School is about 60 per cent of the Church membership in numbers; but that does not mean that 60 per cent of the Church members attend the Sunday School, for many children in the Sunday School are too young to be members of the Church. It would be an inspiration for some Sunday School to report at some Sunday School convention that their membership was larger than the Church membership. The ears of conventions will be ready to hear such a report.

It is generally understood, and often so announced, that the largest number of new members in the Church come from the Sunday School. Since this is true, the members of the Church ought to recognize their obligation to, and privilege in, the Sunday School. If the entire membership of the Church would try to be present regularly in the Sunday School, it would increase efficiency as well as the attendance, and influence members of the school more and more to unite with the Church. Such a condition would put all grades of society in close touch with one another, and that would develop closer contact in social as well as Church life. Jesus prayed "that they all may be one," and the Church and the Sunday School should be one in spirit, purpose and attendance. The Church should go to Sunday School and the Sunday School should go to Church. As it is at the present time, only a part of the Church goes to Sunday School and only a part of the Sunday School goes to Church. No doubt, one is as much to blame as the other. The Church is one big family, and they should cultivate spiritual and social relations all going to Sunday School and all going to Church. Such a condition would be ideal in the development of a real progressive spiritual congregation embracing both Sunday School and Church.

The Church is moving toward the ideal. More members of the Church attend Sunday School than in the past. In the early history of the Sunday School it was considered for children only. That stage has been passed, and now the whole family is included in the Sunday School. The cradle roll, the Sunday School, the home department include all; but there is much to be done to unify the Church and the Sunday School. No great work can be carried on successfully without personal contact. A choir could never be its best by singing in separate groups. They must meet together. They must sing together. They must think together and aspire together. Then they inspire the congregation with their praise.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

A friend said to me not so long since that education is all up in the air. Educators, it seemed to him, were full of theories and empty of sound practice. "You teachers," he continued, "seem to be afraid to govern your students and that you will really teach them something."

Of course, I remonstrated, but he was insistent that we are more concerned about expression on the part of the pupils than about impression. "You are particularly weak," he averred, "when it comes to repression. Some things need to be killed if you expect to produce a crop."

I have been visiting a great many high schools since he delivered himself. My friend is not entirely wrong. Discipline has about disappeared from not a few high schools. One principal apologized to me for having his pupils form in columns and march to their rooms in orderly fashion. "I know this regimentation of the boys and girls," he explained, "is not according to nature, but it saves our building, and really the parents want it that way."

It is not infrequently the case that students will be lounging all around the building—in the chapel, in the corridors, or the entrances—during study periods. "In the interest of freedom of expression," the principals will explain.

The colleges are no better. As a matter of fact, it is difficult for colleges to enforce discipline on students who have come up from the modern high schools. Upper-class men are far easier to discipline than freshmen or sophomores.

Other experiments than in the field of discipline are being tried in the colleges. Meiklejohn's experimental college at the University of Wisconsin is a case in point. In this group of university students there were to be no text-books and no rules, but the utmost freedom. Freshmen were to learn all they desired about Greek civilization; sophomores were to be allowed to investigate modern civilization. After two years' trial, the experiment is adjudged a failure and has been abandoned.

Really, only education educates, and only discipline governs. Educators in high school and college need to learn these two elemental facts.

W. A. Harper.

FROM FLORIDA.

"If I had a million dollars," said a patient to me the other day, "I would give it all for solitude." There are values, then, far greater than gold. This patient had delighted millions with her pen; had convulsed audiences with her wit; has been called "the feminine Will Rogers of America"—yet the cry of her heart, being interpreted, is for peace.

With an earning capacity, in health, of twenty thousand dollars a year, and having surrendered various parts of her body to the knives of the surgeons, and almost her life, along with her hard-earned savings, little wonder she cries out, almost in despair, to be let alone.

There come times in almost every life, I think, especially in those who feel the life current slipping away, when the soul makes its appeal for that which God alone can give. Alas, that with some it will be too late! How futile, then, and oft how fatal to hurry on without it! "Our civilization rushes on," says college President Dabney, "to a vast and fatal plunge unless God is enthroned in the educated mind of our people."

Here we have been all our lives long within speaking distance of heaven. Daily we have received of its gifts and bounties, sometimes with scarcely a salute to the great Giver, let alone a heart surrendered with gratitude to Him.

God and Christ, in the Holy Spirit, are graciously near, for "in Him we live and move and have our being." He is a sure refuge from storms, both physical and spiritual. In Him is peace, and every blessing for this life and the life to come. Let us pause in the royal presence, come aside from the nerve-wrecking rush, break the chains of its enchantments, and really open our hearts to God as to a friend. Shall we vainly seek to satisfy ourselves with His gifts and withhold ourselves from the gracious Giver?

To one it once was said—oh, let it not be said to us—"The God in whose hand thy breath is, and whose are all thy ways hast thou not glorified. . . . Thou art weighed in the balance and art found wanting!" The man who pronounced those fearful words of doom was for many long years prime minister of one of the proudest kingdoms the world has seen; yet he found time to commune with God. He was familiar with His Father's handwriting. He listened in on the messages from the Most High. And although a crisis came in which His death sentence was signed, He feared less to meet men's appointment for him with the lions than to miss his appointment with God.

From the radio we learn that our words go 'round the world. God bears what we say to our neighbors, and what we say to each other. He hears what we say to Him.

Orlando, Fla.

Clifford G. Howell.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS TO BE RAISED.

A statement of the Executive Committee and the Board of Finance of the Convention, regarding financing Piedmont Junior College.

The Southern Christian Convention, at its Richmond session, unanimously adopted a financial program, and it behooves every Church, every minister, every member to co-operate with it. The Executive Committee and the Finance Board herewith explain this program fully and plead for complete support of it.

The Convention budget is $10,000.

Piedmont Junior College holds a note of the Convention for $12,500 as a part of its endowment. To give this note stability of value and make it acceptable as endowment to the standardizing agencies, the Convention pays out of that portion of its funds set aside as "undistributed" 6 per cent interest annually, or $750. This leaves $9,250 to be raised by the college in the name of the Convention from the following sources:

From quarterly Sunday School offerings in Georgia and Alabama Conferences.....	$ 250.00
From Church quotas in Georgia and Alabama Conferences	1,000.00
From members of S. C. C. outside of Georgia and Alabama Conferences.....	5,000.00
From the general public	3,000.00
Total to be raised	$9,250.00

The college has suggested quotas for Churches of the Georgia and Alabama Conferences, and we are hoping that they will come up with the whole amount; but, so far as we know, very little has been done in the North Carolina and Virginia Conferences. Less than $500 has been paid in up to this time. We are looking to the members who are able to contribute the balance to help us out on this within the next five weeks, as our school will close at that time. Up to this time we have been able to pay only 50 per cent of our teachers' salaries, and we want to be able to pay them in full by May 20, 1930. Send your gift to Piedmont Junior College, Wadley, Ala.

S. L. Beougher.

COLLEGE STUDENTS AND PROHIBITION.

The "wet" press is making much of the fact that students in a number of colleges and universities gave a majority vote for the modification or the repeal of the Volstead act. The editors of these papers would have us believe that this vote is a tremendous indictment of prohibition. It is simply an indication that the "wet" editors are hard up for arguments.

President David Kinley characterized the recent straw vote on prohibition, taken at the University of Illinois, as horseplay. He apparently represented the opinion of quite a number of college presidents in our section when he made this statement. He charged that statements indicating that a majority of men at the school drink is "unqualifiedly false." He also stated that the evidence does not support the view that any great number of the students favor modification or repeal of the "dry" law.

It seems that the students who have made the most noise about the modification of prohibition have been stirred up by the aggressive "wets" and that no effort has been made to poll the "dry" vote of the colleges. It was announced in the papers a few days ago that three students at the University of Chicago had agreed to go to Washington to contradict the testimony of Coach Stagg—the students would go if their way was paid. In other words, it sounded as if the students would go if the "wets" would bribe them with railroad fare and publicity. What would the testimony of such students be worth against Coach Stagg?

College students have not had enough background of experience to make their judgment worth much in such issues as prohibition. Students do not know the situation that was created by the saloon. Two or three years of contact with books and with the social life of college does not fit them to pronounce upon the problems created by the liquor traffic. We appeal from the judgment of students, immature and with little experience, to that of Stagg, Fisher and a large number of other college leaders who pronounce college morals much better now than in the days of the open saloon.

Government Control.

The "wets" suggest that we try government control of liquor sales. The Toronto Globe, perhaps the most influential paper in Canada, answers questions about government control as follows:

1. Is it your opinion that government control makes for real temperance? Reply: No.

2. Does government control decrease or increase the consumption of liquor? Reply: Liquor consumption has doubled in Ontario in two years.

3. Does government control decrease or increase number of drunken drivers of automobiles? Reply: Drunken drivers have multiplied by ten, while cars doubled.

4. Have deaths from accidents due to drunken drivers increased under government control? Reply: Yes, enormously.

5. Have industrial accidents decreased under government control? Reply: No; increasing 7 per cent faster than pay-rolls.

6. Has government control eliminated the bootlegger? Large bootlegger eliminated, but small bootlegger multiplied.

7. Has government control proved any benefit to the young people? Reply: No.

The Globe indicates that the worst feature of the report is the proof that it gives that a close relationship exists between increased consumption of alcohol and an increase in crime. "Convictions for indictable offenses have steadily risen since the war with the coming of the greater facilities for obtaining liquor. Convictions for 'driving an auto while intoxicated' grew from 142 in 1921 to 1,322 in 1928, while the number of motor cars registered in Canada was slightly more than doubled. Convictions for drunkenness have increased from 21,026 in 1918 to 33,095 in 1928, although still far short of the pre-war figures of more than 60,000 in 1913. Infractions of the liquor laws increased from 7,383 in 1919 to 15,150 in 1928. The report records a steady increase in number of deaths listed as caused by alcoholism, and also in the proportion they bear to the total. Deaths from alcoholism (excluding Quebec) have more than doubled in the seven years tabulated. No less illuminating are the figures shown in the report of the colossal sums spent each year on liquor. The total sales throughout the Dominion for the past year amounted to $107,694,384." Government sale of liquor "has resulted in increased drinking, increased crime, and has not fulfilled one of the many promises that were held out for it. The drunkard still reels in the streets and the bootlegger plies his trade."

The fact is, government control and sale of liquor in Canada practically means that the liquor trade has the same effect as when it is in the hands of private dealers. It means also more bootleggers than we have under prohibition. It is a well-known fact that Chicago had more bootleggers under license than it has now. Each one of the smaller number does more business than the individual bootlegger did in saloon days.

Then the saloon was respectable—now it is outlawed. Then it was one of a trinity of evils, the others being the bawdy house and the gambling den, and the three were often as one institution. Then practically all the political affairs of the country were settled under the dominance of the saloon. It irks the "wets" tremendously because the "drys" now control Congress, and with all their talk the "wets" get fewer and fewer in our legislative halls in Washington.

Figures Don't Lie, but Liars Figure.

Was not an old farmer accused of having said something of this sort in the long ago? The hearings on prohibition at Washington lead us to believe that the farmer stated a great truth. It is reported that Dr. Gerty's document, intended to prove that prohibition can't be enforced in Chicago, was inspired by the anti-prohibition campaign headed in Cook County by Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board. If the rest of the country knew Mr. Cermak as we know him here, Dr. Gerty's figures would count for nothing. Mr. Cermak, in saloon days, organized and led 150,000 foreigners and aliens in protest against Sunday closing laws to prove that Chicago could not enforce laws regulating the liquor traffic. An Old Testament prophet complains that the poor were sold for a pair of shoes in his day. The crowd that Cermak led in saloon days would sell a girl's virtue for 50 cents, and this sort of thing was regularly done in connection with the saloon. In those days it was impossible to get a jury in Chicago to convict violators of liquor laws; now we get plenty of convictions for such violations, and many valuable buildings have been closed for the year because of violation.

Cermak is now accused of wasting the county funds and of various forms of graft in office. He has bragged much of the forest preserves, bought under his administration as public parks, but it looks as if exorbitant prices had been paid for this land and as if somebody on the inside received the bonus. The accusations seem to have a good deal of foundation. It is the testimony of this sort of man that the "wets" put up against Edison, Ford, Stagg, Mary McDowell and Jane Addams. Which do you believe?—R. W. G., in The Congregationalist.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity cuicuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 — The three wise men

carrying away into Bab'-y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bab'y-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing, interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included..... 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red..... 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included..... $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included..... 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A DAILY PRAYER.

We thank Thee, O God, for knowledge of the Holy Spirit's broadcasting as first demonstrated in the experience of Pentecost; that, far in excess of the might and magnitude of present-day messages on the air, the Holy Spirit's mystery and power permeate into eternity, delivering all of life from the curse of death. With many, at the recurring Pentecostal season, may it be that the soul's antenna shall be set to receive the wave which bears upon it the unmistakable sound of that "rushing mighty wind," and, in sequence, may it "sit upon" to the unfailing witness of the eternal Source from which it comes. In our Saviour's name. Amen.

AFTER EASTER—WHAT?

Easter and Pentecost! What follows in their train? If promptly and properly seized, the best opportunity of the whole Conference year for the preservation and cultivation of the spiritual and numerical gain which the season's gospel ministry has brought to the Churches.

Easter denotes springing into life; Pentecost the gathering and conservation of power to make all conscious living divinely forceful. Recently the Church has held numerous evangelistic meetings. Awakened and extended through the Spirit's quickening, what has been the puny concern of many nominal Christians now should become an active and a propelling influence. The exercise of attributes within those who are given an increased measure of divine power tremendously affects the power's release to others. New-born souls so lately having professed Jesus as personal Saviour furnish a needy field for the Church's immediate occupation in spiritual nurture. While in them there is opportunity for the Church, looking for example in steadfastness and in devoted commitment to a constantly enlarging and positive Christian activity, these new recruits should not be disappointed nor endangered by not finding in the Church both safeguard and inspiration.

Primarily, the evangelistic task of the loyal disciple is to help save the unsaved. Primarily, the stewardship task of the loyal disciple is to help keep saved the already saved, one's self included. Preaching to others did not keep Paul saved. His distinct commission to preach Christ but made him feel he must fight the harder, lest he himself should be a castaway. Judas was a disciple. He was chosen to walk and work with Jesus. He had the chance to go on to Pentecostal enduement, but he did violence to the love and mercy which gave him the chance and thereby lost it. Without the experience of Pentecost, at best a Christian is unstable, uncertain. In such a state one blunders and gropes, at times fervently trying to find and keep dominant one's better self; whereas, what one needs and should want to do is to lose one's self and find God in answer to obedient "waiting."

The Pentecostal promise is not recalled. The Church today needs to quit trying to unravel the mystery of Pentecost and, instead, accept and utilize its ministry. For the most part, the Church has not recognized the permanent stewardship teaching of Pentecost. As its surety, the Church needs to study and apply the whole Pentecostal program. Divergence therefrom, or non-conformity thereto, can produce but "heads of sham gold and feet of crumbling clay." Already "departure from Jerusalem" before Pentecostal foundation has been secured has brought Churches to the verge of disaster. For the human body, showy, exterior dress does not suffice. There must be something underlying. Neither is the body of Christ nourished and sustained by superficialities. Twentieth century Christians need to be fed and "filled" in the very same way as were the early disciples. Without directness, a kind of tarrying or waiting for the promise is unavailing. "Tarrying," which brings the Pentecostal experience, is with purpose, prayer and expectation. S. S. L.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING APRIL 26, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$2,521.13
Newport News, Va.	14.00
New Lebanon, Elberon, Va.	5.66
Morrisville, N. C.	.72
Dendron, Va.	6.39
First Church, Portsmouth, Va.	16.30
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	15.10
South Norfolk, Va.	16.36
High Point, N. C.	18.00
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	1.90
Mt. Olivet (R), Elkton, Va.	2.39
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	8.03
Franklin, Va.	10.12
Bertie Johnson Class, Liberty Spring	3.00
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	2.23
Durham, N. C.	36.60
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	6.00
Total	2,683.93

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 747.55
Morrisville, N. C.	2.50
Union (N. C.), Burlington, N. C.	21.25
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.	31.25
Elon College Jr. Church, Elon College	.13
Reidsville, N. C.	35.19
Hines Chapel, McLeansville, N. C.	38.76
Isle of Wight, Va.	10.00
Union, Virgilina, Va.	12.30
Waverly, Va.	128.77
Bethlehem, Altamahaw, N. C.	10.00
United Church, Birmingham, Ala.	5.65
Fullers Chapel, Henderson, N. C.	10.00
First Church, Norfolk, Va.	68.90
O. S. Mills, Norfolk, Va.	10.00
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	77.65
Richland, Ga.	11.50
Henderson, N. C.	15.45
Miss Stella Sharp, Kernersville, N. C.	5.00
Franklin, Va.	327.00
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	59.79
J. W. Payne & others, Wedowee, Ala.	10.00
Ocean View, Va.	4.07
Spring Hill, Waverly, Va.	15.30
Total	$1,658.01

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$1,108.93
Burlington S. S., Burlington, N. C.	125.29
Rosemont Class 3, Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Total	$1,239.22

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$7,055.21
Sunday Schools, regular	162.80
Individual and Church collections	910.46
Specials	130.29
Total to date	$8,258.76

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

Following is the report of funds of the Woman's Board of Missions, Southern Christian Convention, for quarter ending March 31, 1930:

RECEIPTS.

Virginia Valley Central Conference.

Women's Societies	$ 30.15
Young People's Societies	32.52
		$ 62.67

Alabama Conference.

Women's Societies	10.00

Georgia and Alabama Conference.

Women's Societies	20.00

North Carolina Christian Conference.

Women's Societies	$1,052.78
Young People's Societies	198.01
Willing Workers' Societies	48.31
Cradle Roll Societies	4.25
		1,303.35

Eastern Virginia Conference.

Women's Societies	$1,436.73
Young People's Societies	426.10
Willing Workers' Societies	158.55
		2,021.38
Total		$3,417.40

DISBURSEMENTS.

Home Missions.

Ocean View	$550.40
Mountain work	424.40
Elon Orphanage	15.00
		$ 989.80

Foreign Missions.

Japan—Dues	$308.42
Specials	892.39
Kindergarten	2.12
Mita Kitamura Home	107.74
Sunday School	12.50
		1,323.17
Porto Rico—Santa Isabel	$424.40
Kindergarten	2.13
		426.53
Specials—Indian work		5.00
Total		$2,744.50

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treas.

BUILDERS TOGETHER WITH HIM.

By Mrs. H. C. Caviness.

(Superintendent's message to Norfolk District Rally.)

"Now, he that planted and he that watereth are one, but each shall receive his own reward according to his own labor, for we are God's fellow-workers. Ye are God's husbandry, God's building, according to the grace of God which was given unto me, as a wise master-builder. I laid a foundation and another buildeth thereon, for other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ. But if any man buildeth on the foundation gold, silver, costly stones, wood, hay, stubble, each man's work shall be made manifest; if any man's work shall abide which he build thereon he shall receive reward."

The followers of Christ are living stones, built into the spiritual temple, of which Christ Himself is the chief corner-stone, in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth into a holy temple in the Lord.

"In whom ye also are builders together, for a habitation of God through the Spirit." We bring forth our plans and specifications. For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose; but we must count the cost. "Whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple, for which of you intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?" Without a good foundation it is dangerous to build; therefore, we will be safe and make our foundation Christ Jesus, the solid Rock.

We will have only one auditorium, for I am persuaded to believe Christ would have no division there. Step by step we build and adore. We will have five beautiful pillars—pillar of faith, pillar of prayer, pillar of humbleness, pillar of patience, pillar of loyalty.

Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints, know that the trying of your faith worketh patience, but let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire.

Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time, casting all your care upon Him, for He careth for you. May our lives so toil for Jesus that He will say, "Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will set thee over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

These pillars are not only needed and serviceable, but are attractive and adorn the soul, which makes us beautiful creatures in Christ Jesus. Through these channels we gain strength for any task that may confront us in this new day. We will continue to adorn and decorate, using precious gems, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." "Verily, verily, I say unto you: he that believeth on me hath everlasting life." "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want." "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." Gems that glisten and outshine the glory of the sun.

We will cover this building with love, and paint it with all the wondrous hues and beautiful tints of God's glory.

"I am the door," saith the Lord, and it shall be ajar to every one that wishes to enter therein. "Enter ye in at the straight gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat, because straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth into life, and few there be that find it."

"I am the way, the truth and the light." With the Lord in our midst, and God still on His throne, we will watch the crowds as they enter therein. In the distance we see the minister as he wends his way, his face lined with care for his flock, the seriousness of his countenance portraying the responsibility God has placed upon him; ofttimes crushed with disappointment, but with a kindly light in his eye of sympathetic understanding, and with a sweet peace in his soul, knowing that he is serving his Master. Then we see the lonely missionary, who has heard God's voice, which said, "Take up thy cross and follow me." Take my gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth, leaving home, loved ones and friends and many comforts to share in God's work. The Lord alone can sustain and help you to climb the heights of self-denial and discouragements. He can make you courageous and fearless.

With your heart burdened for lost souls, to show the way to millions now groping in darkness, who are waiting, who will never be reached without your coming. Yes, you have a great part in God's building. With the choristers to sing our hallelujahs and praises unto our Saviour and King, sending out the gospel in song and into the hearts of men, softening hardened hearts, flooding souls with sunshine and love, creating a longing to help others; with the onward march of officials, teachers and laymen, all making a beautiful ribbon of Christian fellowship to encircle the earth in one strong band of love, a shuttle to weave the thread of gold in God's matchless pattern which no hand can trace, no man can design; with the flower garden of God's children to carry out His plan and purpose—thus we build, each in his or her sphere, all through Him who loved us and gave Himself for us.

MISSIONARY PROGRAM FOR MAY.

Woman's Society.

Theme: Loyalty. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

1. Song: "America."
2. Prayer.
3. Business.
4. Scripture reading: "The Verse that Made David Livingstone Brave." Matt. 28:18-20. A leaflet on this subject is found in the envelope of helps.
5. Song: "America the Beautiful."
6. Heart-to-heart message. A message from one of our missionaries which comes with the envelope of helps.
7. Current news may be secured from the news bulletin which may be obtained from Mrs. Emma S. Powers, Dayton, Ohio, and is the latest publication of our Woman's Board. Also from the magazine numbers of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty and from the Missionary Herald, which is the foreign mission magazine of our united Church.
8. Poem: "Canned Childhood" is found below.
9. Prayer Chain.

Canned Childhood.

Beneath the label "Oysters," "Shrimps,"
Or "Beans," or "Peas," or "Corn,"
Is canned a pound of frolic missed
Upon a summer morn.
Lost fun and frolic, soldered tight
Where no child finds them morn or night.

A pound of health, a pound of strength
From cradles snatched we find;
A pound of young intelligence
Robbed from a childish mind:
Packed here together, snugly fit,
Teresa's eyesight, Tony's wit.

And wasted sunshine here is canned,
With wasted smell of flowers;
The wasted sparkle of green fields
Washed bright by early showers;
And pleasant Scampers never run,
And shouts unheard in breeze and sun.

Yea, in the cans are voices hid
Of little sons and daughters,
That should be singing "London Bridge,"
"I spy," and "Sally Waters,"
"Where oats, peas, beans and barley grows,
'Tis you, nor I, nor nobody knows."

Come buy, my fellow-countrymen!
Canned childhood's selling cheap;
And what though little Jack should tire
And fall too fast asleep?
There's work for little Marianne—
Come, buy sweet childhood by the can.

—Sarah N. Cleghorn.

Young People's Society.

Topic: "What is Missions Doing for World Brotherhood?"

Purpose: To help us realize some of the good that is coming from missions, beginning in our own America, and extending to every part of the world.

1. Hymn: "Come, Thou Almighty King."
2. Project committee quiz.
3. Pianist plays softly, "The Church's One Foundation."
   Poem.
   Hymn: "The Church's One Foundation."
   Scripture: Psa. 22:22-31.
   Prayer.
4. Presentation of topic.
5. The Louvain Library.
6. What have we done?
7. Hymn: "I Love to Tell the Story."

Suggestions.

Poster: Mount on a card pictures of dolls, school bags, school-houses, or other symbols of what missions is doing to bring brotherhood. Print the topic, time, and date beneath.

2. The project committee shall have warned the members of the group at a previous meeting that the quiz will take place tonight, and the group should be divided into two groups. Prepare from the records you have kept of the discussions at least one question for every person twenty-four at the least. Conduct the quiz in the manner of an old-fashioned spelling match.

3. For the poem, see the Herald of Gospel Liberty for May.

4. Leader may present all of the material found in Chapter 8 or may assign part of it to others. Supplement this with stories of some of the missionaries and things they hav edone to bring about brotherhood. Use your pastor's library or the Sunday School library, the Herald of Gospel Liberty, etc., as sources for the additional material.

5. Conduct an informal debate on question one under chapter 8, asking two people to defend each side of the question.

6. Report of the missionary committee on things your group has done that will contribute toward the spirit of brotherhood.

Note: An additional interesting feature of this meeting may be the presentation of the work of our own home mission department. Leaflets may be secured from the office in Dayton, Ohio.

Willing Workers or Juniors.

Theme: "Helpfulness."

Song: "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus."

Call to worship and offering song, same as last month.

Prayer verse: Show me Thy ways, O Lord; teach me Thy paths, lead me in Thy truth, and teach me.

A leaflet has been prepared, "Under the Stars and Stripes," containing several stories of our home mission work. Secure from Mrs. Emma S. Powers, C. P. A. Building, Dayton, Ohio. Price ten cents.

As each story is told, aid the children in some active expression of sympathy and interest. Lead the group in prayer for the particular people of whom you tell. Plan some gift for them, or some way of helping.

Closing song.

Mizpah benediction.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson VI—May 11, 1930.

Jesus Acclaimed as King.

Golden Text: "Hosanna to the Son of David; blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest.55—Matt. 21:9.

Lesson: Matt. 20:29-21:46.

Restoring Sight to the Blind.

As Jesus departed from Jericho, two blind men implored His mercy and His help. The multitude rebuked them and bade them keep their peace. But Jesus had compassion on them, called them to Him, touched their eyes, and restored their sight. Here are illustrated the contrast that often exists between human indifference and callousness and divine compassion; the Master's personal touch; the Master's healing power.

To be blind physically is a terrible thing, but it is not as bad as to be blind spiritually. All of us need the Master's touch to enable us to see things clearly and to see them whole.

Offering Himself as King.

Jesus was about to proclaim His Messiahship publicly. He was going to Jerusalem, the political, social and religious center of the Jewish nation. In keeping with the divine order of things as predicted by prophecy, He made His triumphal entry on the colt of an ass, an humble beast, the burden-bearer of that day, and the symbol of peace. He, as the Prince of Peace, chose the animal that symbolized peace. His ways are not our ways.

"The Lord hath need of him." The infinite and omnipotent God does have need. He has ordained that some things are contingent upon man's co-operation. He needs the things we have, the gifts we have, the life we have.

Cleansing the Temple.

His first official act was to cleanse the temple. When the center of the nation's religious life becomes polluted, nothing else can be done until there has been a cleansing of that source. It is significant that Jesus cleansed the temple. Perhaps the Master would begin at His Church today if He were here in the flesh, to the end that the other things on which the kingdom waits might come.

Defending His Authority.

"By what authority doest thou these things? And who gave Thee this authority?" The scribes and Pharisees did not understand why a humble Galilean peasant could assume so much authority. "Who," said they, "gave you the right to do these things?" The fact of the matter was that the moral perfection of Jesus, the blamelessness of His life, the whole weight of truth gave Him an irresistible power and authority. He who orders his life according to the principles and spirit of God has an authority that cannot be secured in any other way. The difference between the man who preaches and teaches effectively and the one who does not is the note of authority which his life gives to his message.

Emphasizing Fruitfulness.

The episode of the fig tree and the parable of the vineyard were simply two devices to which Jesus resorted in order to emphasize the fact that God expects His children to bear fruitage in godly living and godly service. In all this He is not asking the impossible, for those who yield themselves to His spirit will yield such fruitage. "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit."

It might be said in conclusion that there was a shallowness in the hailing of Jesus is King. It is indeed quite probable that many of those in the crowd who cried Hosanna on Sunday were in the crowd that cried Crucify Him later in the week. It is even so today. Why call we Him Lord, Lord, and do not the things that please Him and the things that He commands us!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, May 11, 1930.

Topic: "Good Will in the Home."

Scripture: Ruth 1:6-10, 15-17.

Have the pianist play "Home, Sweet Home," softly during the reading of the Scripture. It will be necessary to practice this in order to do it effectively.

This is Mothers' Day. Send out invitations to all the mothers of your Church to be present for your Christian Endeavor meeting. Let mothers and children come to Church together and sit together during the meeting. Use hymns about mother and home. Arrange for some special music. Have a mother and daughter sing a duet. Discuss the following question and topics in the meeting: (1) When is home a home? (2) Creating a Christian home; (3) The influence of the Christian home. Ask one mother to be prepared to speak on each of the topics. Ask one member of the society to be prepared to speak on each topic. Have the society member speak first, thus giving the mother the privilege of presenting her viewpoint last. After these six short talks, let the society discuss further the topic or idea that is of most interest to the group. Have a general discussion, with every one taking part.

Where Home Is.

"Home is not the costly mansion,
Nor the humble, lowly cot;
But, perchance, if there 'tis nestling,
Dear one, pray, disturb it not!

"Home is where the sweet, bright angel
Of affection dwells and reigns;
Where her healing balm is ever
Soothing hearts, dismissing pains.

"Home is where the shrine is builded
For the hearts that linger there;
Where the souls are bound more closely
As they bow in fervent prayer.

"Home is where the inmates conquer
Giant habits one by one;
Where the youngest is considered,
And where malice is unknown."

For the Next Meeting.

Next week we shall discuss "What are the Causes of War?" Begin looking up material now. It will prove very interesting to arrange for a debate on the query, "Resolved, That nations should take the position of the Quakers in regard to war." Begin saving clippings and looking for materials on the topic for May 25th—"Missionaries and World Peace." How is the missionary "a messenger of peace"?

INDIAN GIRLS' WORK.

Last night at my Blue and White Club Girl Reserve meeting I asked the girls to write to me and tell me what they liked best about our Girl Reserve meetings, and what they want to do next year. Their letters pepped me up so that I want to pass them on to you, not because they are so good, though to me they are wonderful, but just to let you see how these girls are thinking. I am copying them exactly, that you may see also how much English they have grasped:

"Dear Miss Rowland.—We have Girl Reserve meeting tonight so we like to ask you for to learn more song before school close it is only two more month yet.

"Miss Rowland we like to give the party to the eight grade before school out because they not going be here next year this the last year for them. Or to giving them picnic either one so they enjoying themeself before they leave us.

"The reason why I ask you for these thing because they say they hate to leave this school.

"I think that all I can say now. I guess we like to be in Girl Reserves this year.

"Oh yes Miss Rowland we like to send a Easter card to Mr. And Mrs. Stanion to remember them because Mr. Stanion using te be our Supt. here that why. Very truly yours (signed) Mary Ann Jishall."

Mary Ann is a seventh-grade girl, captain of the little girls' company. This next letter is from Bessie Mosby. Bessie is the only Apache girl in our group. We have only about fifty Apaches in school and the Navajos are not as friendly toward them as they might be. But Bessie is a general favorite, and both boys and girls like her. She is in the sixth grade.

"Dear friend,—I am going to tell you what I like to do next year or this year. Well friend I like all the thing that we've done on Girl Reserve meeting and also going out for picnis. I like the program the best about all kinds of dolls. I like to give a program again too. Let's give a program on Easter please and just Blue and White Club Girl Reserves. Well Miss Rowland lets have a party again please before we go out of school this year. Well I like all kinds of dolls even a negro doll. (!!) I like to learn some more Girl Reserve song and I like to learn some more games and I like all the things that we done this year. Well Miss Rowland lets go for a walk sometime on Saturday afternoon some place where we want too. Well I like to be in Girl Reserve meeting every week. Weel friend I think this is all I am going to say this time. Sincerely yours (signed) Bessie Mosby."

Graham Rowland.

GRATEFUL.

Dr. Atkinson:

Permit me, through The Sun, to thank the people of Bethlehem Christian Church for a generous, old-fashioned pounding I received from them last Sunday.

At the close of the morning service, Bro. A. C. Madren arose and said: "We want to see you in—" and he then designated the room. As soon as I could, I went to the designated place. I cannot express my profound feelings for these dear people for various donations for larder, linen-room and pocket-book—flour, ham, eggs, preserves, butter, canned goods, etc.

I wish that I might give names of donors, but space does not suffice. My automobile was filled and I had to place an overflow in the seat by my side. My yearning desire is to be of better service as preacher and pastor to every member of this Church and congregation.

J. W. Patton.

FROM DAYTON TO SALISBURY.

Rev. William Tate Scott, Mrs. Scott, and Billy will leave Dayton tomorrow for Salisbury, N. C. The Scotts came to Dayton last October a year ago, and since that time Bro. Scott has labored untiringly and unceasingly for the upbuilding of the Walnut Hills Christian Church. His labors are crowned with success. When he came to Dayton he found a Church overloaded with a building debt. It was tremendously discouraged by its financial burden, and its finances were in a haphazard and unorganized state. Quite efficiently did Bro. Scott reorganize the whole organizational scheme of the Church, so as to centralize and develop the financial side of the Church. Bills are now being paid in a straightforward and business-like manner.

Furthermore, when Bro. Scott came to Walnut Hills, young people had, to a very great measure, given up their Church. Quickly did he and Mrs. Scott, with her musical training and talent, rally the young people around them and the Church. The Church community is blessed with a large group of young people, and the Scotts have turned this group toward the kingdom of Christ.

The Sunday School and other activities among the youth of the Church were integrated in such way as has greatly increased both numbers and efficiency in the teaching side of the Church. And many are the praises and good wishes for the Scotts today.

For six Sundays now, First Christian Church, Rev. John G. Truitt, pastor, has been merging and worshiping with the Walnut Hills Church. This merger would have been impossible had Bro. Scott not been agreeable to, and working for, it. As a matter of fact, it is so far quite a successful venture. The two pastors have been fortunately the warmest of friends coming from the same section and traditions of the South, and have worked constantly now for more than two months in completing plans for the merger. The plans are in the main completed and agreed upon. Details are yet to be completely worked out. It is quite remarkable that the First Church folks who have to cross the city through its business district are loyally standing by the merger.

For two weeks closing yesterday, the two pastors have engaged the merged Church in an evangelistic campaign. The first week was given over to organizing and sending forth personal workers to seek the conversion of prospects throughout the community. The second week, being Holy Week, saw a continuation of the personal work and also preaching by the pastor of First Christian Church each evening. As a result of months of work previously done by Bro. Scott and his people, and the special two weeks' campaign, there were received into the membership of the merged Church yesterday fifty-one new members. Bro. Scott preached at both services yesterday, preaching his farewell sermon in the evening. Tonight there will be a farewell reception, at which time the Walnut Hills Church will present the Scotts with the full payment of their salary to May 1st, and the merged Church with a bonus of seventy-five dollars.

We are all very happy in the successful work of the Scotts. And little Billy, who was born last April—being a "little Bill" which the Scotts presented to their Church at that time—has greatly endeared himself to all the people, for he has attended every service since he was but a few weeks old. Not only has he attended, but he has also contributed regularly financially to her support, and oftentimes lifted his voice in her defense. May God bless Billy and his beloved parents. Their friends are legion in the land of the Midwest. May God bless them as they return to their friends of the South and grant them greater victories still.

FIFTY YEARS IN WEST AFRICA.

When Dr. Frank K. Sanders, formerly dean of the Yale Divinity School, now en route to West Central Africa to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Christian missions there, arrives at Angola, he will be greeted by his brother, Rev. William H. Sanders, one of the founders of the mission in 1880.

Mr. Sanders has lately brought to completion a translation of the entire New Testament into the Umbundu language. Apparently, some linguistic achievements run in the family, Dr. Frank K. Sanders being a distinguished scholar in the field of the Old Testament tongue.

During his half-century of service, Mr. Sanders has seen the American Board Mission, which he helped to found, develop a Church with 2,000 communicant members. The program of the mission today includes the work of 160 primary village schools, six boarding-schools, industrial training institutes for both young men and young women, a printing establishment and a medical service of 50,000 treatments annually.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Bourgeois Type, Size 5 3-8x8 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2167—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.00

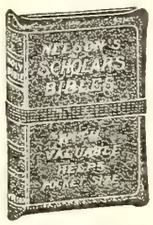
2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

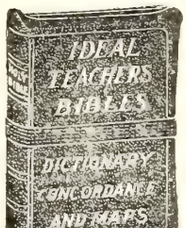
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

MONDAY.

MOTHER.

Day by day and week by week,
Month by month and year by year,
All she ever seemed to seek
Was our health and comfort here.
Every thought and every deed
Were for things which we might need.

Cookies on the pantry shelves,
Cakes and pies and all things sweet
Kept where we could help ourselves—
Thus she braved the kitchen's heat.
Toil seemed nothing unto her
If it made us happier.

Constant watch and constant care,
These she gave when we were small;
Keeping garments in repair
Left her little rest at all.
But she braved it through, that we Might be fit for folks to see.

Oh, how often she was tasked!
Oh, how tired those hands became!
But no more than this she asked,
That our eyes with joy should flame.
Just for this she labored long:
We must prosper and be strong.

Others give and, in return,
Hope for favors later on;
But in time all children learn,
Friend unselfish there's but one!
Mother smiled at many an ache,
Suffering for her children's sake.

—Edgar A. Guest.

A mother's love—how sweet the name!
What is a mother's love?
A noble, pure and tender flame,
Enkindled from above
To bless a heart of earthly mold,
The warmest love that can grow cold—
This is mother's love."

—James Montgomery.

TUESDAY.

CHILDREN'S DUTY TO PARENTS.

"Honor thy father and thy mother, as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee; that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." —Deut. 5:16.

The word "mother" calls up a different face to each person, but not a different thought. With each of us, in our early childhood, it is the face that was bending over us when we awake in the morning. It is the face of watchful eyes through all the days of our youth ever ready to respond to every gleam of need. It is the face in whose light we breathe the finest qualities and the highest ideals we hold. It is the face to which we flew for comforts in our griefs; and no sorrow was so great but that she could drive it away. It is the face to which we looked for help when we were sick, and her lullabies soothed us to sleep. Other faces have looked beautiful to us since that time, but when we try to recall the sweetest of all, mother's is before us. Many are the times we have been stabbed by an unkind world and we wished for the healing caress of mother.

The world may rant about woman's place, but when the last word has been said it will be "mother," the divinest function of mankind.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, teach us by Thy word and by life our duties to our mothers. If now she is gone and is only a memory to us, may we live true to her calling. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

MODERN MOTHERS.

"The Mother of Jesus was there."—John 2:1.

We read about the mothers of the days of long ago,
With their gentle, wrinkled faces and their hair as white as snow;
They were "middle-aged" at forty, and at fifty donned lace caps,
And at sixty clung to shoulder shawls and loved their little naps.

But I love the modern mother who can share in all the joys,
And who understands the problems of her growing girls and boys.
She may boast that she is sixty, but her heart is twenty-three—
My glorious, bright-eyed mother who is keeping young with me!

—Florence Howard Wolcott.

Mary, the mother of Jesus, at the marriage feast of Cana may be thought of as a typical mother of today. It seems that always wherever Jesus went, His mother was there. Perhaps it is true that never before in the history of the world have mothers entered into the full life of the child as they do these days. Today, strong men testify as never before that, in moments of their glory and power, chiefly their mothers were responsible for their triumphs.

Whatever home may be today, mother is still the queen of it, and she is a link in the chain of modern society. Whatever may be the problems and perils of the home, mother is there, regretably not always a defender, but still the mother is the defender of home and heaven.

Prayer.—Dear Father, we pray for the motherhood of our country that Thy will may be done in them, and being done in them, this Thy world may become Thine forever. Amen.

THURSDAY.

MY MOTHER.

"Having been reminded of the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother, Lois, and thy mother, Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also."—2 Tim. 1.

Who gave me the first tender kiss,
Though she for me faced death's abyss?
"No man hath greater love than this"—
My mother.

Who softly to her fair young breast
My little touseled tow-head pressed
And lullabied me off to rest?
My mother.

Who guided me with loving hand
Through childhood's happy wonderland?
Who never failed to understand?
My mother.

When the way's parting came in sight,
What heaven-sent guardian angel bright
Stood there and pointed to the right?
My mother.

When failure put to rout success,
Whose trembling hand soothed my distress?
Whose sweet old face beamed tenderness?
My mother.

She waits for me in paradise;
Her love enfolds me from the skies.
Since God is love, such love ne'er dies
As mother's.

—Edith E. McGee.

Prayer.—Dear Lord God, guard Thou our faith unto salvation; we pray that all the mothers in this age may have faith to bestow upon their children and enshroud the world with an atmosphere of prayer and trust in God. Amen.

FRIDAY.

"THE SALT OF THE EARTH."

"Ye are the salt of the earth."—Matt. 5:13.

It has been said that if we could find the names of all those good men and women who, by their humble and holy lives, have seasoned and made more happy and useful the lives of others, we would discover the noblest Hall of Fame in the world; and the noblest of these, whose names are now not known or perhaps are forgotten, would be mothers whose loving ministry to children has trained them to be men and women who have become the world's greatest benefactors. These are the women who have made Elijahs, who have broken alabaster boxes of devotion upon coming world lights until the world is filled with the odor of its ointment, seasoned with the sweetness of a ministry of mother's love.

It was the prayers of the little woman in the White House that gave Lincoln soul-stay in his dark hours. It is the tenacious faith of thousands of unknown mothers which brings their children to honorable manhood and womanhood.

These mothers and all like them are the salt of the earth, and their homes are the scenes of love-ties and divinities, the inspiration and the training, the creator and the molder of character that brings forth the food of the world. They are the salt of the earth, and all the evils which are a menace to the home, to the mother, and her baby must disappear.

Prayer.—Dear Lord God, who art able and who doth endow life and motherhood, endow the motherhood of the world for great good and Thy glory. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THOUGHTS FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

What a beautiful picture of Mother
As she sits in her easy chair,
Holding in one hand a letter,
In her lap lay sweet flowers, so rare.

As she picks out a white carnation,
Her face lights up with joy,
For around it, so tenderly folded,
Reads this message from her boy:

"Oh! the breath of this flower, dear Mother,
With you I would love to share;
But, Mother, will you remember
My name in your evening prayer?

"Dear Mother, may God protect you,
In my absence I will pray;
Health and pleasure ever grant you
And prolong this happy day."

—Grace Forest.

(Continued on page 14.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Easter was a very pleasant occasion at the Christian Orphanage. The good women of our denomination in the Southern Convention, also in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, and Iowa made and sent to the Orphanage two hundred dresses for girls from 12 to 16 years of age. The dresses were all pretty, made of nice material and beautifully made.

It has been a custom for a number of years for the women of our Church to make and send to the Orphanage pretty Easter dresses for the girls, and little suits for the boys. This year we had on hand, left over from last Easter, little dresses for little girls up to twelve years of age, and we asked this year for dresses from twelve to sixteen years in size. We buy the girls Sunday slippers for Easter, and they try to make them do until the next Easter. They were given a nice new dress and new slippers and were a pretty bunch marching off to Sunday School.

Then to add extra joy to the occasion, Coy Franklin, Earl Churchill and Lawrence Fields, of Durham, our former boys), made it possible for the children to have an Easter-egg hunt. A thousand eggs to look for! Coy Franklin came up to put on the hunt, and the children had one grand time. Some of them found enough to fill all their pockets and all they could carry in their hands. Coy enjoys helping to make the children happy, and comes each Easter to see to it that they have a real egg hunt. Coy has never forgotten what his home at the Orphanage has meant to him. He has a good job with a good company, and four of our other boys have a position with the same concern. They appreciate what the Orphanage has done for them, and are not like the ten lepers the Master healed and only one went back to thank Him.

The following has been sent in for Easter: Mrs. C. W. King, Suffolk, Va., 4 dresses, 4 suits; Waverly Christian Church, 9 dresses, 4 suits, etc.; Burton's Grove Missionary Society, Va., 9 dresses; Woman's Missionary Society, Durham, N. C., 4 dresses, 4 suits, 4 shirts, bloomers; Woman's Missionary Society, Providence Memorial Church, Graham, N. C., 15 doz. eggs; Woman's Missionary Society, Burlington Church, 225 candy eggs; Mrs. L. C. Huffines, Guilford College, N. C., 1 dress; Mrs. C. A. Ballentine, Varina, N. C., 23 handkerchiefs, 1 dress; Ladies' Aid Society, Antioch Church, Fairfield, Iowa, 19 dresses; Woman's Missionary Society, Pleasant Grove, Va., 14 dresses; Ladies' Bible Class, Liberty-Vance, N. C., 8 dresses; Victor Bible Class, Waverly, Va., 4 dresses, 1 suit, 5 yds. material; Ladies' Mt. Auburn Church, dresses, handkerchiefs, dress material; Woman's Missionary Society, Leaksville Church, Va., Central Conference, 6 dresses; Ladies' Aid Society, Reidsville, N. C., pillow-cases, socks, aprons, pants, etc.; Woman's Missionary Society, Union Christian Church, Alamance County, 26 towels, 1 quilt.

We are grateful indeed for all these contributions.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 1, 1930.

Brought forward	$6,204.36

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Reidsville	$ 5.60
Pleasant Ridge	1.60
		7.20
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Plymouth	$ 3.85
Sanford	4.77
		8.62
Western N. C. Conference:
Zion	$ 1.80
Burlington	52.36
Ether	1.00
Ramseur	8.66
Bennett	3.00
		66.82
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Berea, Nansemond	$10.00
Dendron	5.00
Mt. Zion	4.03
South Norfolk	13.46
Bethlehem	3.59
		36.08
Valley Virginia Conference:
Newport	$ 1.02
Winchester	7.90
Mt. Olivet	2.85
Leaksville	4.37
		16.14
Alabama Conference:
Wadley		1.85

Special Offerings.

Jr. Philathea, Suffolk, support girl.	$ 2.50
Balance on rent for Whitsell	6.85
S. J. Hinsdale, Burlington, N. C.	10.00
W. E. Walker, Burlington, N. C.	3.00
Bertie Johnson Class, Liberty Spring	3.00
Mr. Huffines, for work done	1.50
	26.85
Grand total	$6,367.92

WHEN IN RICHMOND EAT AT

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria

805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Opposite Richmond Hotel.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ---------- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better | [a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [2] or, all | 1

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x -- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [25]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. No. 03255x ---------- $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x ---------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

ELON NOTES.

The following is taken from the Greensboro Daily News:

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Elon Church was hostess Tuesday to the Alamance district meeting of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary rally, which was well attended. There were about eighty representatives of societies, and the day was one of real enjoyment.

At 10 o'clock in the morning the meeting was called to order in the religious education building by the superintendent of the district, Mrs. J. W. Patton, and the following program was rendered: Theme, "Building in the New Day"; devotional, by Mrs. W. M. Jay, president of the hostess society; address by Mrs. Patton, "Foundations for the New Day"; reports of the visiting delegates; special music by Mrs. Grace Hall Riheldaffer, of the conservatory of music here, and one of her pupils, Mrs. Ella Keyser Garrett.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson spoke at the morning session, using for his subject, "The Solitary Builders in the New Day." In the absence of the local pastor, Rev. Alfred Hurst, who was ill at the time, his message, "Our Enlarging Program," was brought by Dr. W. M. Jay, head of the English department at the college. The "round-table discussion" was led by Mesdames Charles Rowland, of Greensboro, and Walter Sellers, of Burlington.

The hour for luncheon was spent in the Y. W. C. A. of the college, which had been beautifully decorated by Mesdames W. P. Lawrence and J. A. Hornaday.

Mrs. Charles Rowland had on display a number of things of special interest relative to the foreign countries and pertaining to missionaries. The "Friendship Chest" of the girls of the local Junior Missionary Society, was also on display, and it, with the doll which was sent from Japan here last year, was explained by Mrs. M. W. Hook, who directs the young people's society.

SANFORD.

We have a splendid Sunday School at Sanford, and for more than a month have led all Churches of our town in increase and attendance in proportion to Church membership. "Family Day" was observed in the Sunday School Easter and a splendid program rendered by the young people. Our secretary's record showed we had 223 members and visitors present. About four weeks ago we announced that we would have decision day for the Sunday School members on Easter Sunday, and our teachers showed their usual fine spirit of co-operation, and as a result of their labors nine young people were received into the Church on profession of faith in Jesus Christ.

The one-day school of missions was held with us April 16th, and we were delighted to have it. We feel that our consecrated women of the Church are doing a great work for our Master.

T. Fred Wright.

KINDLY REMEMBERED.

The pastor and his family of Palm Street Christian Church were made to feel happy last Thursday night by loading down his table with lots of good things to eat. After a talk by the pastor, we sang several songs and had prayers, thanking the good Lord for supplying our needs. We appreciate our good people at Palm Street for their loyal support they have given us since we have been called to the work. We hope to begin our revival in a few weeks. Brethren, pray for us, that we may have a great harvesting of souls for the Master.

Rev. J. L. Neese.

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

SUNDAY.

Motherhood and the Cross.

"When Jesus saw His mother . . . He saith, Woman, behold thy Son."—John 19:26.

The presence of the mother of Jesus at the cross is the crowning symbol of all that motherhood means to the world. Amidst all that mother means to any child, it is evident that the story of the cross is enacted throughout her life. Jesus laid down His life for the world. A mother lays down her life for her children. Children are prone to forget all of her sacrifices, and often fail to rise up and call her blessed.

Let us today put ourselves in the place of Jesus, who, when He saw His mother coming to him in the temple, said as with the angels, "Blessed art thou among women." At the cross He saw in her a strength and power that upheld Him in trial. May we see our mothers as no mere woman, but an angel of God.

When she looks upon us in that last earthly glance may she find us faithful, true, pure in heart, constant in touch with God, and going about doing good.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, we desire to be Thy children and all Thou wouldst have us be. Make us true, pure, constant and good. Amen.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

NOTICE.

The Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention is to be held at Liberty Vance July 16-18, 1930. This is written with the hope that the ministers of this Conference will schedule no revivals to conflict with this date, since it is essential that all ministers be present and all Churches represented.

R. L. House, Pres.

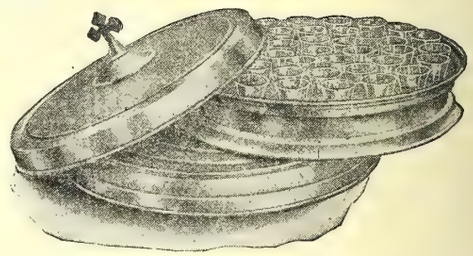
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

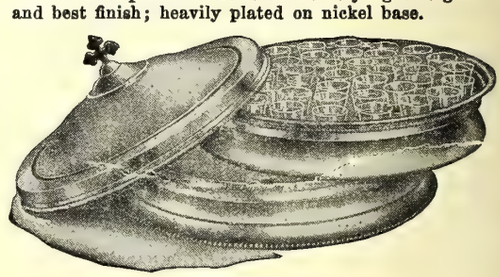


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

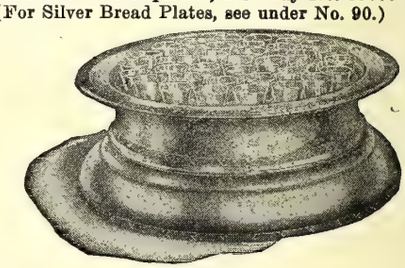
The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

ALCOHOLIC DRINK IN MODERN WORLD.

One of the best definitions of civilization I have seen is that it is the art of living together in large numbers. If we are to live together in large numbers we must learn to behave in such ways as will make it possible. We can no longer behave as we might if we lived alone, or even in sparsely populated regions. We must regulate our conduct with a view to our close proximity with other people; otherwise we shall have much interference and many collisions.

Living Together in Large Numbers.

If we are going to live together in large numbers we must manage to produce enough in relatively small areas to support those numbers. This requires organization and teamwork except among people who are willing to work together in some sort of order and under some set of rules and regulations. Individuals who insist, each one, on doing as he pleases without regard to what others are doing, cannot carry on effective teamwork. Needless to say, they cannot produce enough in small areas to support large numbers.

Working Together.

Effective teamwork, in the modern sense, means specialization, each member of the great team doing what he can do best, and depending upon others for what they can do better than he. Without this kind of specialization we never could have produced enough to supply our present population with all the diverse things which it needs. If every one had to be his own farmer, his own spinner, weaver and tailor, etc., not half of us could manage to live within the territory of the United States, and the few who did manage to live would live very poorly. Living together in large numbers requires a great deal of specialization.

More Dependent on Each Other.

But specialists are mutually dependent upon one another. If any one fails to perform his special function, all who are dependent upon him will suffer. Unless we feel that we can depend upon a given specialist or group of specialists, we will not put ourselves in a position of dependence upon him or them. We must be prepared to do for ourselves what we cannot depend upon him or them to do for us. In short, without this feeling of dependability we cannot specialize at all. It is almost a truism to say that there can be no interdependence of parts where there is no dependability.

It follows from all this that anything which destroys dependability will either destroy civilization or prevent its development. Certainly it will make it impossible for large numbers to live together. They could not produce enough to support themselves.

Drink Out-of-Date.

The necessity for dependability is so overwhelming that every tribe or group that ever became civilized—that is, that ever succeeds in living together in large numbers—has been compelled to develop dependability in some way. Laws against dishonesty, violence and disorder of all kinds have had to be made and enforced. In the most fundamental sense possible, dependability is ethical and undependability unethical, The tribe which did not succeed in developing dependability simply perished. It could not possibly survive.

Nothing short of killing, stealing and lying so effectually destroys dependability as drunkenness. The country which does not repress drunkenness can no more flourish than can a country which does not repress killing, stealing and lying. We are so dependent upon one another in our civilization as to make drunkenness, in every rational sense, a most destructive vice. We are becoming more and more dependent upon one another every year. More and more, therefore, does it become necessary that drunkenness be repressed.

The Man One-Fourth Drunk.

Drunkenness in these times needs a stricter definition than it needed in older and simpler times. In these times, the man who is dead drunk is less of a menace than the one who is only what is sometimes called one-fourth drunk. The man who is dead drunk is dependable in a sort of negative sense. You can depend on him not to do any mischief until he comes to. But the man who is only one-fourth drunk is a very uncertain person. He will do unpredictable things, to the danger of every one. If he lived alone it would be different, but in a great factory, in a crowded street, or anywhere in an interlocking civilization, he is a very undependable creature, and therefore a menace.

The Modern Trend.

A gradual realization of this situation is coming over the civilized world. The world is sick and tired of drunkenness, and the more progressive parts of the world are determined to get rid of it. Every civilized country is alarmed and is trying more or less constructively to curb it or to get rid of it altogether. They are drawing the lines of legality more or less closely around the liquor business, and they are going as far as public sentiment will permit.

The general rule is, with scarcely an exception, that the closer the liquor business is restricted, the better the results.—"Some Economic Aspects of Prohibition."

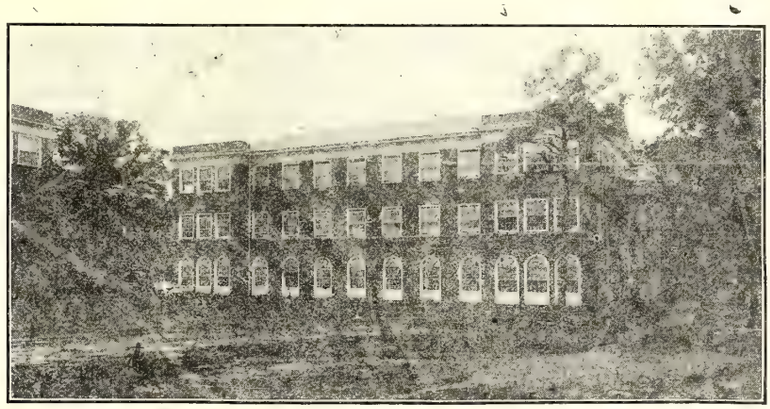
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year.....$2.00
Six Months.....1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

LOWDERMILK.

Arthur Lewis Lowdermilk, son of Bro. Bennie H. and May Welch Lowdermilk, passed away March 21, 1930, at the early age of 15 years, 6 months, and 2 days. Nine years ago he was stricken with infantile paralysis, from which he never recovered. He bore his sufferings patiently and was faithful to his Church and Sunday School until the Lord called for him.

Burial was at Pleasant Grove by the pastor, assisted by three other ministers and an unusually large crowd attended the service. Besides his parents, he leaves two brothers and a host of other relatives. May the kind Father comfort them all. T. J. GREEN.

BRADLEY.

George M. Bradley was born in Orange County, October 9, 1866, and died at his home in Mebane April 18, 1930. He had lived in Mebane, N. C., for thirty years. He was a life-long member of Mt. Zion Christian Church. He leaves to mourn their loss a wife, one daughter, Mrs. C. C. Sykes; one son, W. E. Bradley, and other relatives. The funeral was conducted at Mt. Zion by the writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Clark, of the M. E. Church, and Rev. Mr. Lay, of the M. P. Church, Church, both of Mebane.

May the Lord bless and comfort the bereaved ones. J. F. APPLE.

GODFREY.

Mrs. Lizzie Cox Godfrey was born July 23, 1881, and died March 7, 1930. She was married to C. G. Godfrey January 6, 1899, and to this union was born seven children. She leaves to moun their loss a widower and five children, two children having preceded her to the grave. Mrs. Godfrey was a member of Shallow Well Church.

Funeral services were held at Shallow Well Church by the pastor on March 8, 1930, and interment made in the Church cemetery. T. FRED WRIGHT.

McIVER.

Landon McIver was born May 20, 1892, at Jonesboro, N. C., and died in Toronto, Ohio, March 28, 1930. He was a World War veteran and was wounded and gased in the battle of the Marne. Mr. McIver died from a head injury received several years ago. He leaves to mourn their loss a widow, a mother, two brothers and one sister. He was a member of Shallow Well Church, where the funeral service was conducted by the pastor, and interment made, with service at the grave by the Masonic lodge of Sanford. T. FRED WRIGHT.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

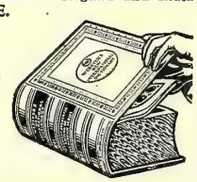
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published—prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

Send your orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE
WADLEY, ALABAMA
AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE
SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1930. NUMBER 19.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Mrs N T Farmer

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

NEGRO MUSIC FOR EUROPE.—

The Hampton Institute Choir sailed for Europe last week for a concert tour of the continent. The Hampton Institute is located at Hampton, Va. It was in Hampton Institute that Booker Washington received his training, and it was there that he acquired his ideas of education for the negro. All phases of the educational work done at Hampton are recognized as being of the very highest order. But especially has the institute succeeded in training negro singers for quartet and choral work. It was this writer's privilege to hear the Hampton choir in an Easter program some years ago, and the singing stirred the deepest religious emotions of the soul of the hearer.

The Hampton choir is to make its first foreign appearance in London. Ambassador Charles G. Dawes is sponsoring the London concert. After the London performance the choir is scheduled to visit the tomb of David Livingstone and place a wreath there in memory of what Livingstone did for Africa and the negro race.

The negro is deeply emotional and has the rare gift of expressing his emotion in song. The negro spirituals have received recognition as an outstanding contribution to the world's musical heritage. It is but natural to expect that as larger cultural advantages are available for the negro, that negro music will poignantly portray other emotions with the same profound power that is present in the spirituals.

ECONOMIC AND MORAL PESTS.—

Announcement has been made that the government has won its fight against the Mediterranean fruit fly in Florida. Careful watching of the situation has discovered no evidences of the pest since last August. The destruction of the fruit fly in so short a time is a splendid triumph for modern scientific methods of exterminating agricultural menaces. No expense was spared in the fight, and the most drastic measures were resorted to in order to prevent the spread of the fly and to completely destroy it.

One cannot but marvel at such an achievement, and the moralist wonders what would happen if such an attack were made against the moral infections of this present day. The fruit fly was threatening a great industry; while the moral evils are striking a deadly blow at the finest things which humanity knows. Against one there is a united attack, against the other there is only a sporadic attack by divided and sometimes conflicting forces. Of course, account must be taken of the fact that there are those who profit financially from many of the great moral evils of the day. Nobody stood to profit by the ravages of the fruit fly unless it were the citrus growers of sections that were not threatened; and of course there was the probability that, like the boll-weevil, the fly might infest all fruit-growing sections.

It is perfectly evident, however, that success was attained only by united efforts. While in the attack against the forces that destroy in the moral realm, there is a certain amount of jealousy between forces that are pursuing different methods. There is all too frequently a stubborn determination not to acknowledge the success attained by others, and a steadfast refusal to follow a plan which calls for concentration of effort and a unified command.

PHILANTHROPY AND CHARITY.—

It is not our purpose to discuss the words which head this article as they are defined in the dictionary. The dictionary is never able to quite keep up with the meaning of words as they are used by the popular mind. There is no such thing as an up-to-date dictionary, in the exact meaning of that term. Dictionaries attempt to do two things: to give the meaning of a word in the light of its derivation, and in the light of its popular usage. And it is the latter that is constantly shifting.

Philanthropy has come to mean, in the popular usage of the word, the giving out of one's abundance, for the helping and betterment of those who do not possess so much of this world's goods as does the donor. When the word philanthropist is mentioned we think immediately of the rich man who gives magnificently of his abundant wealth. America is pre-eminently the home of the philanthropist. No other land is blessed with so many rich people, who give so lavishly of their means for the betterment of their fellow-man. This philanthropic use of wealth is the finest attitude ever associated with wealth.

But charity, in the popular usage, does not carry the idea of abundant wealth and large gifts. It signifies the giving out of love and sympathy for alleviating the suffering and misery of the destitute. And Christian charity at least is measured by the willingness to deprive one's self in order to minister to the needs of others. It is the loving prodigality of the widow's mite which endears it to the heart of the Master.

All this has been said in order to prepare our minds for the observation, that many Christians have fallen into the error that their obligation to the Christ is to be philanthropic, if they can afford it. Many Christians are talking glibly about what they can and cannot afford to give, meaning that they think they are expected to give only out of their surplus. There is no ground upon which to expect a pagan to give except out of his abundance. If he does more than that, it is surprising and commendable. But charity is rightly expected of every one who names the name of Christ. The Christian is expected to give not only out of his abundance, but out of his poverty. The Christian is expected to give, in love, that which costs him dearly. And expected to give not only of his money, but of that which is even more costly; to give himself in personal service for the Christ.

JOY IN SERVICE.—

One of the most serious criticisms that might be launched at the Christians of this present day is that they are not getting very much joy out of their Christian life. In fact, there seem to be some Christians that have the idea that it would not be quite the thing to let it be known if they were having a joyous time in following the pilgrim pathway. This may be due to the fact that in the past there were those who worked themselves into a mild sort of frenzy in seeking emotional religious experiences.

There is nothing especially to be commended about emotion solely for emotion's sake. But there is a fine sort of emotional satisfaction that comes from the doing of a worth-while task in a splendid way that every Christian ought to be enjoying and which most Christians seem to be missing. It is time that due publicity be given to the fact that the most delightful time in the world may be had by the Christian who gives himself whole-heartedly to some great task in the interest of the kingdom. So many Christians seem to be constantly disturbed by the realization that they ought to be rendering service, but they dread to undertake it, and are entirely unaware that there might be any other reason for undertaking the task save out of a sense of obligation. It has never dawned upon their minds that the task which is dreaded might be the means of bringing the finest happiness which the human heart can know.

One reason why so many unactive Christians know nothing of the joy of Christian service is because so many of those who are in the ranks are going like the galley slave. Sometimes even the preacher does not go to his task as if it were the greatest joy in the world. Another reason why so many hesitate about undertaking Christian service is because they have never learned the technique of the task. Anything that one does not know how to do is always approached with apprehension. But there is no finer sense of satisfaction than that which comes when we realize that we really can do successfully that which we have always considered impossible for us.

There is no finer service which a Church can render its members than to set for them tasks which will challenge the best one has to give, then teach those who are called to the task that which must be known in order to do it successfully, and watch the joy that comes to those who find that they, too, can do the fine things in the service of the Master.

NOTES-PERSONALS

The women of the Woman's Missionary Convention held their banquet on Tuesday evening of the Convention. It was highly successful and thoroughly enjoyed by a large number of women and a few men who were permitted to attend.

The Congregational Conference of the Carolinas had been in session at the United Church at Raleigh from Sunday till Tuesday noon, April 29th, and most of those attending this Conference remained for the sessions of the Southern Christian Convention.

Dr. J. Edward Kirbye, United Church, Raleigh, recently presented his resignation as pastor of the Church, but we were told by members of the Church that they were leaving no stone unturned to get him to reconsider and withdraw his resignation, since they feel that he is a capable and competent leader.

The Christian Advocate of Nashville, Tenn., speaks a parable and a proverb in this one sentence: "If all people who recommend the altering of legislation in order to save bootleggers from the embarrassment of being lawless would join in a righteous conspiracy against patronizing the bootleggers, there would suddenly be a great change in the prohibition situation."

Rev. W. C. Hook, of Holland, Va., conducted the devotional service on the closing day of the Convention, using a most fitting and appropriate theme, "Stop, Tarry and Pray." Bro. Hook believes that the hurried, nervous life and activity of the present threatens to paralyze the spiritual activity and growth of the Church, and the sole hope is in tarrying in the upper chamber and devoting more time to prayer and communion with God.

Rev. H. C. Caviness, Portsmouth, not only presented a report on evangelism to the Southern Convention, but made a plea full of persuasion, pathos and power on the project of "Evangelism." The report came at a late hour on a very busy and crowded day, but many declared that evangelism is the one enterprise of the Church that should be stressed, and that is the channel through which the Church enlarges its borders, adds to its spirituality and increases its members.

The women regretted the inability of Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, the faithful and efficient treasurer of their body, to attend their session in Raleigh, but before the session had concluded and the treasurer's report in all of its detail had been made, it was decided by the women that Mrs. Hardcastle's husband, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, makes a real good substitute when his wife cannot be present. It is believed by many that she thoroughly coaches and drills him in the work that he is to do as her representative.

Mrs. C. P. Garman, one of our missionaries from Japan, after delighting the Convention with her address and stay through the sessions, came to Elon College and talked to the faculty and students, much to their delight, at their chapel service Friday, the 2nd. Sister Garman has a winning personality and shows a fine grasp of the problem with which she and her husband, as missionaries of the Christian Church, are dealing with out in Japan. Her visit meant much to the Convention and to our college.

Congratulations three times over to Rev. F. C. Lester, chairman of young people's work, and Miss Jewel Truitt, his capable secretary and assistant, for the glorious and enthusiastic gathering of young people at their banquet on Thursday evening of the Convention. One hundred and fifty bright, happy young people from our Christian Churches sat down together and heard from many of their own number addresses of interest and enthusiasm. It was one of the most thrilling and prophetic events of the whole Convention.

Her many friends were glad to greet again Miss Pattie Coghill, now working out of Jacksonville, Fla., through the State of Florida among the young people of the Congregational Churches, and formerly field secretary of the Board of Christian Education of the Christian Churches in the South. Miss Pattie became a Christian before she fell into the hands of the Congregationalists, and, as a Christian who believes in Congregational government and polity, is doing a fine piece of constructive work in the field to which she has been called.

A figure from the Congregationalists, already becoming known with our Christian constituency, is that of Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, Washington, D. C., whose function for the Congregational Churches throughout the Southeast, is that of Mission Secretary, very much as is the function of the Mission Secretary of the Southern Christian Convention in the South. Dr. Bloom is a brother beloved and esteemed, and with his delightful personality and Christian spirit will come to be esteemed also, as he comes to be known, by our Christian constituency.

The women of the United Church, Raleigh, certainly were well organized and rendered most efficient service in preparing and serving luncheons at the noon hour and dinners for the banquets each evening of the Convention. If they made any money for the price they charged for such delicious food as they served, we shall be surprised and shall recommend that they show the rest of the world how it can be done. Their efficient and friendly service, as well as the well-prepared and abundant food, was the subject of much favorable comment.

Plans now contemplate beginning the new alignment and arrangement with the Congregationalists, so far as THE CHRISTIAN SUN is concerned, with its first issue in June. At that time we hope to introduce to our readers the fine face and fellowship of Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, of Jacksonville, Fla., who becomes one of our associate editors. Dr. Gillette attended the recent sessions of the Southern Convention and became a part of us before the Convention closed, and through his delightful personality made many happy and lasting acquaintances, which through the years will ripen into friendship.

At a joint meeting, consisting of the Publishing Board of the Southern Christian Convention, of which Prof. L. L. Vaughan is chairman, and representatives from the editorial staff, as well as from the Congregational brethren, it was decided that there should be no change in the name of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but that the wording under the title should be changed to include the Congregational Churches of the Southeast. The Congregationalists were also given representation on the Publishing Board and the editorial staff, and, beginning as soon as practical, weekly news matter, etc., will be carried for the Congregational Churches under the direction of Dr. E. C. Gillette, the new associate editor.

Dr. Chas. E. Burton, secretary of the General Council, Congregational and Christian Churches, made many friends at the Southern Convention, both by his delightful conversation and attitude in personal contacts, and by the marvelous and exceedingly wholesome address he delivered on the opening evening of the Convention on the subject of "The Function of the Church." Dr. Burton has the knack of saying things in such a frank and open, yet fervid and forceful, manner as to get his ideas across. He believes that the function of the Church is to get the individual right in the life and under the leadership of the Lord Jesus, and that the individuals who come under that same leadership will change the character of society and the State.

Rev. G. R. Underwood, Pittsboro, N. C.; Rev. P. T. Klapp, Elon College, N. C.; Dr. Daniel Albright Long, Florence, S. C., were three of the brethren beloved who were greeted with joy, gratitude and gladness by the members of the Convention, Raleigh, last week. These brethren show the weight of years and the marks of faithful service rendered. The entire Church loves and honors them for what they have achieved in the days of their activity and the loyalty and devotion to their Church not only through the long years of active service, but in these days of declining health but increasing faith and fervor and fellowship. It was a joy and an inspiration, indeed, to see and greet these venerable, battle-scarred brethren of the cross, each of whom, we believe, is in the neighborhood of or well past their fourscore years.

One brother at the Convention facetiously inquired of two or three in a group during a recess if the Congregationalists were swallowing up the Christians. One brother of the group immediately replied that such a performance would entail about the worst case of indigestion poor mortals could fall heir to, and that if he could see straight and had learned correctly up to date, the Congregationalists already had on their menu, or in their plates, all that they could digest, without undertaking the nauseating problem of trying to swallow so many lukewarm and, in many instances, even some half-baked Christians. Any one who attended the Convention must have concluded before the sessions were over that if the lamb and the lion were coming together, they would each lie down quietly and happily beside each other, and that the lion (which ever he was) would never have the heart to try to swallow that lamb (which ever he was).

A delegation of ten came, one from Georgia and nine from Alabama, to the Southern Christian Convention, the ministers of the delegation being President S. L. Beougher and Revs. G. D. and S. C. Hunt, of Wadley; Rev. J. D. Dollar, of Lanett, and Rev. A. H. Sheppard, of Glenn, Ga. Many old friends were glad to greet again Bro. V. E. Kitchens, of Roanoke, who has been and is such a factor in promoting and building the Christian Church at Roanoke. This time his wife, who is also a member of the Woman's Board, came along with him, as did his young son, who was, we believe, the youngest delegate to the Convention. The delegation quite significantly seemed to be sponsored by and in charge of Sheriff J. W. Lane, who, though an active official of his county, was handling his delegation with great skill, tenderness and agreeableness. It was Bro. Lane's first visit to a Southern Convention, and he was inspired and delighted by the proceedings.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

THE POWER OF PENTECOST.

By Rev. J. G. Truitt.

"Ye shall receive power."—Acts 1:8.

Helpless disciples, fast closed doors, promised power are the three Pentecostal mile-posts which stand before us this morning. We have already emphasized the preparation for Pentecost and the program of Pentecost; now we are to come up in our thinking to the power of Pentecost. And as I have intimated, as we go along we shall see the helpless disciples—powerless to do the things which they wish to do; the fast-closed doors, closed tight for fear of the Jews; and the ascending Christ. Here is, then, a mighty human interest story with the keenest appeal; a bit of history which brings us where all true history ought to bring us, namely: to God; a promise and an execution of power which startled representatives from every nation, "devout men," and set the gospel on its out-going paths unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

The disciples did not know it was His last speech. Last beautiful speech, for they had heard so many, and recently they had been coming thick and fast, and so direct to the hearers, too. They had followed Him out there, listening to His words as they went, and all His words seemed so strangely beautiful and confident now. They were no longer tinged with the earthly qualities of yesterday. Yesterday, it was said of Him, "Never man so spake"; now it might be said, "Never so spake even God before." They had seen His power. Now He is saying, "Ye shall receive power"; and how they need it, and have needed it, for they are helpless disciples. Power like His power they are to receive. Works such as He has done, they are to do, and for Him henceforth they are to be ambassadors—fellow-workers together with God!

Power is what they need. They have many other things, and the more I think about it, the more completely convinced I become that they had everything else besides power. His teachings, acquaintance with His personality, proficiency of profession, certainty of discipleship, privilege of seeing what Abraham had longed to see, and what Simeon, having seen, was able to sing his nunc dimittis. And yet, and yet, at the very first real fight between Christ and His foes, "they all forsook Him and fled." They were powerless.

They had reassembled afar off, had followed Him at a helpless distance even for the help which they might have offered rather than allowing the Cyrene stranger who stood hard by. They saw Him nailed to the cross without a protest, so far as they ever recorded; they saw him writhe in pain; they heard Him forgive His enemies; they saw Him die! What a sight! What an experience! What a memory (yes, and how it served them in after years)! But when they had seen all this and added to it all their past, they were still powerless. Peter said, "I go a-fishing," and all the fishermen in the band followed. Leaving it all; powerless to undertake a thing; powerless to turn a hand; powerless to preach the things they had seen and heard and handled with their hands!

But Jesus added more, much more to their experience. Resurrected, He walked by their side, explained the meaning of it all along the road to Emmaus, showed them His hands and side a little later, and broke bread with them—and still they were a helpless crew. Whenever and wherever He finds them, they are behind doors fastly barred for fear of the Jews! Men who had seen all the things they had seen, heard all the things they had heard, handled all they had handled, and yet were afraid to meet the Jews—afraid to walk in the open on the streets of Jerusalem! Afraid they might lose their unprofitable lives! "I cannot give a tithe, for I cannot spare it." "I cannot give my son, I have raised him for another career." "I am afraid to pledge yet, I fear I cannot do it." "I am afraid to die for God, I have not the power." What soliloquies sally forth from our sinful lips unless we be endued with power from on high!

Now, let us notice those fast closed doors! Their very knowledge of Jesus had imprisoned them. Their very association with Him would be either their downfall or their development. The sun and rain is a blessing to the growing tree; it is the supreme curse to a dying tree. To have all the equipment and the call, and not to endure hardness as a good soldier is fatal to any follower of Christ. These disciples were filled with fear. Ah! what mighty harvests fear has had! Fear is self-seeking; love is service-seeking. Fear is equipped from without; love is equipped from within. From the outside they killed Jesus; from the inside He lived to forgive them. The outside self says dodge; the inside self says dare. Jesus had taught them to love even as He had loved, and that they should do even greater things than He had done. Perfect love casteth out fear, and power to have that perfect love they lacked. But exactly what they lacked was the essential key for opening their fast-closed doors.

The doors of their service to others were closed. As soon as we become afraid to do and to dare and to die if needs be, we have closed our doors quite effectively against helping others. If we are forever thinking of our own reputations, standings, dignities, necks, we shall never be able to save the poor souls of our neighbors. "He that saves his life shall lose it." Oh, my friends, think, will you, what was shut in behind doors barred against the enemies of Jesus! The hope of the world was there! The gospel of eternal life was there! Jesus' band of beloved disciples were behind those closed doors. Those doors must needs be open at all hazards, and fear must be forever banished from the hearts and mind of those disciples shut within. The Christian movement was in the borning, and it must not be still-born! Within the hands of that band reposed the keys of the kingdom of God. Just think how much fear can defeat us! And how it can keep us from serving our day and generation, and also generations yet unborn, as would have been so supremely the case with this hiding group of helpless men.

Not only were these doors imprisoning them for their knowledge of Jesus, and keeping them from being able to serve others; but also it barred outsider from bringing help to them. None but the resurrected Christ could enter their closed doors! What a parable! The resurrected Christ could help them. He could come to them. He came in through closed doors. And how often, if He gets in at all, He must come in through closed doors! Further, we note that when all others fail it is the resurrected Christ who can enter to give help and strength and comfort. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." By His presence He was preparing them for the marvelous coming of the Comforter a few days later.

Through obedience they were assembled again behind doors. But this time at the command of the Christ. This time they were keeping His commandment, and no doubt He was praying the Father, for with His prayers were joined theirs also. Now they are doing His well; now they are obeying Him; and now they are being endowed with the power of the Holy Spirit. And what a difference it makes! Already in another sermon we have seen how this came about. Enough now to notice the difference in the disciples. They are apostles now! Instead of fearing the Jews, they flog them with the gospel of love! Instead of running from them, they run to them. Vacillation is turned to victory, and fear is turned to faithful service, the demonstration of true love.

The anti-Pentecost disciples are powerless; but by waiting in prayer, power to preach the Christ effectively is given them, and thousands of souls are born to God in a day. Our day is waiting for us who are the followers of Christ to obey His commands, to wait in prayer, and to accept and use the Pentecost power. Shame on us if we fail Him, for just as much depends on us, so far as our souls' welfare is concerned, as depended upon the other disciples in their day. We follow in their train. We shall not, we must not, we dare not pay less than the price of power, namely: pentecostal obedience and pentecostal prayer.

ARE FOREIGN MISSIONS ANY GOOD?

How fifteen acres of ground which he bought ten years ago for $8.33 has increased forty-fold in value and now holds a hospital, boys' boarding-school and other Christian institutions is told by Dr. Sherwood Eddy under the interesting title, "A Moral Miracle," in the Missionary Review of the World for April.

It is the story of Bishop Azariah, whom Dr. Eddy first knew when he himself was a missionary in India thirty-three years ago. Bishop Azariah gave himself to work among the most degraded people in all India. He was later consecrated as the first Anglican Indian bishop, and is now the first Episcopal native bishop in all Asia.

"The moral miracle" is not the increase in the value of the piece of land; that is only a barometer of change. The miracle is that as a result of Bishop Azariah's own work, there are now 166,000 Church members in his diocese. Having given up drink, theft and immorality, they have so impressed their high-caste neighbors that already 3,000 of these proud and cultured folk have become Christians, while an even larger number are said to be seeking admission to the Church.

The fact that ought to catch the attention of American Church people is that no one of these 166,000 Christians is paid to preach, yet all are expected to do so; and, like the early Christians, they seem to find it a joy to live up to that expectation. Bishop Azariah ascribes the transformation in the life of his people, first of all, to "the sacrament of the changed life of each worker who lives among them."

Dr. Eddy concludes, "As I see the moral miracle that has uplifted these once carrion-eating drunkards, I think that I can answer the question, 'Are foreign missions doing any good?'"—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

A bandit followed a preacher out in the desert intending to rob him. When he came up, the preacher spoke to him about Jesus, gave him a Testament and invited him to come and hear him preach. He went and was saved.—Anon.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE CONVENTION.

The biennial session of the Southern Christian Convention in United Church, Raleigh, N. C., April 29th to May 2nd, had certain striking features that make it unique and noteworthy.

First: The reports from the boards and departments of the Convention were in mimeograph form and bound in a volume so that every delegate, at the beginning, could have a copy for study and consideration before the report was read to the Convention. This saved time and put in form the great body and variety of questions and issues coming before the Convention. The President, Dr. L. E. Smith, had worked tirelessly for some weeks to bring these reports together and present them in this form to the Convention, and for this he was given a unanimous vote of appreciation.

Second: The reports, without exception, showed that the past two years had been a period of progress in all departments, despite many handicaps arising from recent changes in the program of the Convention and the prevailing financial depression.

Third: The presence in the Convention of a large number of outstanding officials and members of Congregational Churches to counsel and consider with us the matter of the merger of Congregationalists and Christians.

Sun readers will have opportunity through the next several issues, to read in detail through these columns all that was done in the matter of uniting the two bodies, so far as the Southern Convention is concerned. This brief review can only set forth outstanding issues considered by the Convention.

Prior to the opening at 2 P. M. on Tuesday, the Woman's Missionary Convention met in biennial session at 10 A. M. and remained in session throughout the day. Mrs. J. A. Williams, of Franklin, Va., presided, and Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Norfolk, Va., was secretary, and Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, through Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, made the treasurer's report. Mrs. Williams chose as the topic of her message to the Convention, "A Forward Look," and the Convention was characterized throughout by that topic. The report showed a large increase in numbers of societies in the various Conferences the past two years, and the treasurer's report showed, for the biennium, total cash collections of some over $27,000. The feature of the morning session was an address by Mrs. John Ferguson, of New York, on the theme, "The Call for the Intensive," and that of the afternoon session an address by Mrs. C. P. Garman, one of our missionaries to Japan, now home with her husband, Rev. C. P. Garman, on furlough. The Convention was delighted with the presence of Mrs. Garman. The officers of the Woman's Board elected for the coming two years were Mrs. J. A. Williams, Franklin, Va., president; Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, N. C., vice-president; Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Suffolk, Va., treasurer; Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Norfolk, Va., recording secretary; Mrs. E. L. Beale, Franklin, Va., corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. M. Jay, Elon College, N. C., Conference editor; Mrs. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va., superintendent cradle roll; Mrs. S. C. Harrell, Durham, N. C., superintendent young people; Mrs. W. H. Carroll, Burlington, N. C., superintendent spiritual life; Mrs. C. H. Caviness, superintendent of literature and mite boxes—and these officers constitute the Executive Committee of the Convention.

The women of the Congregational Conference of the Carolinas, who had been in session previously, voted to unite with the women of the Southern Convention and, through their representatives, later met with the Executive Committee of the women of the Southern Convention.

The women had a delightful banquet in the Church Tuesday night, and most of the women of the Convention remained over for the sessions of the General Convention.

The Southern Convention began its first session at 2 P. M. and only held a brief session in the afternoon, at which time the organization was perfected and the committees for the session were appointed.

The evening session Tuesday was characterized by two notable addresses, one by Dr. Chas. E. Burton, secretary of the National Council of the Congregational Churches, who chose as his topic, "The Function of the Church," in which the speaker set forth very vividly the fundamental purpose and program of the Church. Dr. Burton declared that it was the function of the Church to have a part in the political life of the country, the education of youth, and the social life of the community; but that these were only minor functions. He declared that the real function was to get at the root of the evils of the day and try to stop them at their source by winning to the way of our Lord the individual, and particularly the youth of the land.

Dr. Smith, in presenting his message as President of the Convention, chose as his topic, "The Persecution of the Church," in which it was set forth vividly that the Church of the present is undergoing not physical persecution, but mental, political and social persecution, which is just as vital and brutal as was the physical persecution of the early Church. The speaker declared that the forces of opposition and persecution that resulted in the crucifixion of our Lord had their sources in organized business, organized politics and organized religion, and these forces are still with us, exerting themselves in great aggressiveness.

The features of the second day of the Convention were the report of the Orphanage by the chairman of the board of trustees, Mr. J. M. Darden, and an address by Superintendent Chas. D. Johnston. The report showed that 341 children have been cared for at the Orphanage since its opening in 1907, and that 120 are now at the Orphanage; that a large new storage barn has been recently built and paid for, and that the splendid plant, in addition to the barn and other outbuildings, includes three main buildings for living quarters for the children, besides 204 acres of land in its farm. The Orphanage has an income of about $30,000 yearly for current expenses and has been able the past two years to meet all of its bills, outstanding obligations, and is at present out of debt. The report was followed by the Convention sermon by Rev. A. W. Hurst, pastor of the Elon College Christian Church, who very fittingly chose as his topic "The Spirit of Pentecost," calling attention to the fact that this was the 1900th anniversary of Pentecost. The sermon, strikingly spiritual in emphasis and effect, was followed by an impressive Communion service conducted by Dr. J. Brinard Thall, of the Congregational Church, and by Dr. W. W. Staley, of the Christian Church.

The afternoon session was featured by the report of missions, which showed that the Mission Board, which started the biennium with an indebtedness of $15,000 on home missions, has been able to wipe out this indebtedness, to pay current expenses and begin some new appropriations, and that there had been some increase in funds in appropriations to foreign missions. The biennium just passed showed a total collection and expenditure for home and foreign missions of $76,830.18.

Following the afternoon session, a fellowship banquet was held in the dining-hall of the Church from 6 to 8 P. M. This banquet turned out to be one of the most striking and impressive features of the whole Convention. Col. E. E. Holland, speaking for the Christians, electrified the assembly with a most eloquent and timely address on the subject of "Fellowship." It could be wished that every Sun reader had the contents of this address, since no brief analysis can give an adequate idea of its contents and its effect upon the audience. Col. Holland declared that the spiritual progress and the destiny of the world depend on whether Christian men and women can successfully pit their intellectual and religious ideals against the ever-expanding materialism of the world, and whether or not there can be created an inner life of moral and spiritual growth in proportions that will successfully cope with and combat a constant external sacrilege. Fellowship means association, communion, intimacy, resulting in that invisible element in the human heart which is the very essence of Christianity and a part of the very fabric of life.

Dr. Elisha A. King, of Florida, speaking for the Congregationalists, delighted the banqueteers with a richness of experience and observation which he enjoyed and reflected as a result of the opportunity that had come to him as a resident in many parts of our country. Dr. King declared that prejudice and ignorance were the parents of intolerance, and that intolerance disappeared as ignorance was wiped out, and that fellowship obtained with acquaintance and knowledge of conditions and character as they existed. Dr. King revealed the fact that the spirit of fellowship would obtain among Congregationalists and Christians as we come to know each other better, and that we would love each other more as we understood better our common tasks, programs and purposes.

The evening session was further characterized by the report from the Woman's Convention and by another striking address from Mrs. John Ferguson, of New York City, who, as chairman of the National Council of Federated Church Women, spoke on the subject, "Church Women and World Leadership."

The outstanding feature of Thursday morning session was the report on Christian unity as presented for the committee by President W. A. Harper. To work out the details, a committee of twenty-four was appointed, twelve from the Christian and twelve from Congregational Churches. After telling of the plan of union, as adopted by the National Council of Congregational Churches in Detroit, June, 1929, and of the General Convention of the Christian Church at Piqua, Ohio, last October, the report recommended that in communities where there are both Congregational and Christian Churches and where it may seem desirable to combine these Churches, a joint commission is set up in both constituent bodies to advise as to method of procedure. The local Churches are the final arbiters in the matter of merger and in saying to what extent there shall or shall not be organic union. The same liberty which has characterized conferences of the Christian Church is to continue in the merged body. We are presenting the report as adopted elsewhere in the issue of the paper, and also the report as to change of name and functions of the new body.

The afternoon session was featured by the report of the Board of Religious Education by Rev. F. C. Lester, Waverly, Va., and the Board of Education by President Harper, of Elon College.

Thursday evening, Dr. Harper addressed the Convention on the subject, "The Place of Religion in Education," which address is presented elsewhere; Dr. John B. Clark, Tryon, N. C., on the subject, "At the Switch," and the evening session closed with an address by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. A. T. Allen.

A feature of the afternoon and evening program was the singing by the choral societies from Elon College and a banquet by the young people at which one hundred and fifty young people sat down. There were several addresses and a very enthusiastic meeting.

By the decision of the Convention, the name now changes from "The Southern Christian Convention" to "The Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches." Conferences of the Congregational Churches in the South and Southeast are to have delegates in the Convention hereafter on a par with those from the Christian Conferences heretofore composing the Convention. It was further agreed that the Southern Congregationalist should be suspended and come to be a part of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, of Jacksonville, Fla., was elected associate editor of THE SUN from the Congregationalist constituency and will be responsible for bringing to THE SUN columns news items from Congregational Churches, articles reflecting the spirit of Congregationalism in the Southeast, and contributions that tend to promote the interests and enterprises of the Congregational and now the United Churches in the Southeast. This feature of the work by agreement will begin June first.

Dr. G. O. Lankford, in the closing day of the session, submitted the report on temperance, which pledged the Convention to an attitude unequivocally opposed to the modification or repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and unalterably in favor of strict observance and enforcement of the amendment and the Volstead act.

Under the report of the business manager, circulation manager and editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, it was shown that THE SUN had about the same number of subscribers as two years ago, but that the list had been considerably improved by collecting many subscriptions long due, cutting off some and adding quite a few new names.

Prof. L. L. Vaughan, speaking for the Committee on Publications, said that a paid-up subscription list of 3,600 would put THE SUN on self-supporting basis; that is, by the addition of 900 new names and the payment of back dues by present subscribers would make THE SUN self-supporting. The Convention voted that the Committee on Publications divide up the quota that each Church would have to raise of new and paid-up subscribers to achieve this result.

A vote was passed in the closing hours of the Convention to create the office of pastor-at-large, or promotional agent, to represent and promote all the interests of the Church when funds for financing such a person and office shall be made available.

The officers of the Convention were re-elected.

The spirit of the Convention throughout was beautiful, and the business of the Convention was transacted with great harmony and dispatch. This report, already too long, is wholly inadequate to reveal even the actual notable events of the meeting, and further space for the next few weeks will be given in THE SUN to delineating other items of equal worth and weight as those reported.

J. O. A.

WORLD FRIENDSHIP AMONG CHILDREN.

The third project for promoting world friendship among children is now being carried out between the children of the United States and those of the Philippine Islands.

The first project, it will be recalled, was that with Japan, when the children of the United States in 1927 sent thirteen thousand "Doll Messengers of Friendship" to the Japanese, and the Japanese children—2,610,000 of them participating—reciprocated with their gifts of "Doll Ambassadors of Good Will" to the children of the United States.

The second project was with Mexico, the symbol used being a "Friendship School Bag." Thirty thousand were filled and sent to the children of Mexico in 1928. The children of Mexico are now reciprocating in sending to the United States forty-eight exhibits of the arts and industries of their country—one exhibit for each State.

The third project, and that which is now interesting millions of children in the United States, has as its symbol "Friendship Treasure Chests," and are to be in the Philippines and opened on December 30, 1930, a national holiday. The Department of Education of the Philippines will receive and distribute the chests and their contents to the children of the Philippines.

The chests, made of metal, with handles of brass and a lock and key, are 10½x6½x5 inches in size. These chests may be had at $2.00 each, postpaid, by sending that amount, with request, to the Committee on World Friendship, 289 Fourth Avenue, New York City, New York. With the chest will come a printed pamphlet of instructions, a printed general letter of introduction, the address, label, etc., with a long printed list of books, from which volumes may be ordered to be placed in the chest. The children who are to be the recipients of the chests and their contents are from 6 to 15 years of age, and all the articles to be sent should be new and attractive, well made and of good quality. There is a long list given of the things suggested to put in the chests; those things prized by children: writing pads, pencils and pencil boxes, crayons, box of paints, colored beads, etc. Each chest, when sent, is to be wrapped in soft paper and packed in its original carton, which should be wrapped with strong paper and securely tied, and should be addressed to "Dr. L. B. Bewley, Director, Bureau of Education, Manilla, Philippine Islands." From all parts of the United States the postage charge is thirteen cents for the first pound and twelve cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof. There are no custom requirements. No package weighing more than fifty pounds or exceeding eighty-four inches in length and girth combined will be sent.

The War Department of the United States has agreed to send free of charge by army transports from New York and San Francisco to Manila any package of these treasure chests which contain not less than ten or more than fifty chests. For directions as to this, however, one should write "General Superintendent, Army Transport Service, First Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y." Packages containing one chest up to ten may be sent at any time by parcel-post to the Philippines to Dr. L. B. Bewley, whose address is given above.

The final date for sending the treasure chests is August 15, 1930. Any one desiring information not given in the above can secure same by addressing the "Committee on World Friendship, 289 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y." One of our Sunday Schools—Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.—is sending ten of these treasure chests from the different departments of the school; one of them from the Boy Scouts of the school. Others we know are planning to send chests.

Some one has truly said, "We who desire peace must write it in the hearts of children." It certainly makes for world friendship and paves the way for world peace to cultivate the acquaintance and friendship between the children of the different nations. Our Lord took a child and set him in the midst and said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven"; and again it was divinely spoken, "A little child shall lead them." The movement for world friendship among children is certainly worth cultivating and patronizing if done in the spirit of Him who indeed is the child's greatest and best friend.

J. O. A.

RELIGION AND MONEY.

The more one comes in contact with men and women, the closer the relation between religion and money is revealed. Both represent life and the use of both represents the value of life. Religion represents spiritual life. When one is regenerated, born again, gets religion, or anything that it has been or may be called, the life is dedicated to God and His Church. The value of such life is determined by the degree of the surrender of that life to spiritual worship and religious service, which is the expression of that life among men. In the field of service, religion is expressed by life. Even the world measures religion by the life of those who profess to have it.

Money represents life. In all the industrial activities of man, his life is put into the products that furnish food, raiment, books, houses, machines, in fact all that separates man from beast and makes him akin to God. Those who believe in war laud and honor those who give their lives in battle. Monuments are erected, books are written, addresses are delivered and praise tell of giving life for their country. It should be kept in mind that the good mother gives her life in service for her children as truly as the soldier dies on the field. The man who follows the plow gives his life to produce bread for the great cities and those who are far out at sea. The fisherman who gathers fish for millions does the same. The miners underneath the earth digging coal or gold gives his life in that field. In all fields of real

(Continued on Page 13.)

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Southern Christian Convention, in session in Raleigh, N. C., April 29 to May 3, 1930, had good weather, good attendance, a good spirit, and good results.

The reports showed faithful service, general progress, and, notwithstanding hard times, fair financial conditions in the Convention and in the Conference work. One of the causes of financial strain was the things undertaken during the World War period when all prices went high and larger things were undertaken. The drop back to normal left business, the Church, and individuals with obligations hard to meet. That condition has not been fully relieved and Conferences have not paid their full apportionments during the past biennium; but delegates to the Convention unanimously voted to raise the full amount of the apportionments made on the Conferences by the Convention. This sum was considered reasonable, and it is certainly necessary to carry on the work of the Convention successfully. The following shows the apportionments made on the seven Conferences, yearly, for the biennium:

Alabama Conference	$ 1,250.00
Georgia and Alabama Conference	1,000.00
North Carolina and Virginia Conference	7,500.00
Eastern North Carolina Conference	2,500.00
Western North Carolina Conference	1,500.00
Eastern Virginia Conference	10,000.00
Virginia Valley Central Conference	1,250.00
Total	$25,000.00

This means that it will require $50,000 to carry on the work of the Convention and its enterprises for the next two years.

The thought and feeling of the Convention expressed by vote and purpose indicated confidence in the Conferences that they would adopt the action of the Convention on this subject and in the belief that the local Churches would raise the full amount. The way to accomplish this necessary and desirable result will be for the pastors and Churches to unite in prayerful and earnest effort to raise their part as soon as the Conferences distribute the sums to be raised by each Church. It takes a year to do a year's work, and failure is often caused by beginning too late. Early planting makes a better crop.

It is easy for enthusiasm to die down after leaving a great meeting; but devotion to Jesus Christ and His Church—the Christian Church is His Church, not our Church—will keep alive the financial obligation to raise the money that the President, L. E. Smith, may not be embarrassed by demands on the Convention for money not in hand. It is confidently hoped that the next Convention will be able to report that the apportionments have all been paid in full and all obligations met.

The next step in Church finance should be not to venture beyond money available to meet obligations. To be in debt and then appeal to the Churches for money to pay such debts embarrasses the Church, discourages the leaders, and reduces the disposition to give.

W. W. Staley.

Will Rogers, the famous humorist, knows how to get the public's attention, and incidentally a sufficient amount of public revenue for personal expenses. It was recently announced in the press that he would receive $72,000 for less than four hours' broadcasting—about $350 a minute.

THE PLACE OF RELIGION IN EDUCATION.

By Pres. W. A. Harper.

Religion in the Early American Colleges.

The religious quality permeated the entire programe of education in Colonial days. This was true of higher education as well as of secondary education locally administered. For example, Harvard, our oldest institution of higher learning, founded in 1633, was designed to save the Colonial Church from "an illiterate ministry." Our second oldest institution, William and Mary College, in Virginia, was founded in 1693, with the identical purpose. Yale followed eight years later, and its charter stated its purpose to be to prepare young men "for public employment, both in Church and civil State." In 1754, King's College, now Columbia University, was chartered. From this charter we quote: "The chief thing that is aimed at in this college is to teach and to engage children to know God in Jesus Christ."

There was no separation of Church and State in the early days of our American higher education, and no division between religious and non-religious instruction in these institutions. James Bryce says America's contribution to the political development of the world lies in the doctrine of the separation of Church and State. However, Roger Williams and his associates, in 1636, had in mind the provision of a free Church in a State limited to civil affairs. The Church was to be free to criticise the State and everything else. The State, however, was to be limited to the civil realm. In the interest of clear thinking, these facts must be kept in mind.

We will do well, however, to remember that the whole flavor and atmosphere, as well as the purpose, of the original American colleges and of the entire educational program was religious education. They would have considered "religious education" tautological, and in a sense they would have been right. They had not differentiated religion and life, and could not have conceived of such differentiation, but with the rise of the American republic and of State control of public education, the differentiation between religious and secular (pity the word!) education began and has persisted into our day. The colleges upon denominational foundations did their best to keep pace with the institutions supported by public taxation in offering courses comparable to those in State institutions and that would be accepted by State departments of public instruction for certification of teachers and by the graduate and professional schools. The result was that the teaching of religion even in denominational liberal arts colleges had practically disappeared (atmosphere excepted!) with the beginning of the twentieth century. There has since then, however, been a phenomenal growth, and almost frantic efforts have been put forth on the part of our liberal arts denominational colleges to reintroduce into their curricula the vital and essential thing for which they have insisted they always stood, the teaching of religion and the cultivation of the spiritual life. Nor have our tax-supported institutions been found lacking in a sincere interest in the same direction. They have become deeply concerned in character education during the past two decades.

Character and Religion.

The teaching of religion in colleges and universities has a dual purpose—to help students to become religious and to equip them to be teachers of religion to others. The possession of religious knowledge does not necessarily mean that the possessor is a religious man. The generalized past experiences of the race in the field of religion may be so presented as a curricular subject as practically to lack positive character-building quality, because the religious values inherent in the situations described may not be raised to consciousness nor be so presented as to result in their affectional embrace.

Far be it from me to suggest that religion can be departmentally differentiated as a separate and distinct field of experience, of personal and racial experience. Religion, it is true, may, as higher education is at present administered, be conceived for purposes of curriculum instruction as a human interest to be organized around certain areas of experience, but we must insist that the religious quality is inherent in every experience. In a very real sense, the college itself is an area of human experience. This area may be broken up into various smaller areas of human experience commonly called courses of study, and those again into separate topics or teaching units, but every one of these several areas and units is capable of religious significance. One of the most compelling problems of higher education today is to discover methods by which every such area of human experience and every teaching unit arising therefrom in the college experience, will yield its inherently religious contribution to the building of character. Every resource of an institution of higher learning, whether in the field of finance and equipment or of administration and instruction, or of student welfare, must contribute its inherently religious significances for the character development of students. The faculty, the curriculum, the activities of the campus, whether voluntary or institutionally initiated, and the influence of the community, which includes not only the college spirit but also the social milieu constituting the larger college environment, must be appraised in terms of the positive influence each brings to bear upon the character development of growing life. Only as it meets the requirements of such a standard can a college be said to be realizing its ultimate purpose, and the same is true of the total educational system.

Religion is more than morality. Morality we may define as the intellectual contemplation and segregation of the categorical imperative. It, therefore, lacks warmth and energy; it is cold and lifeless and conscienceless, because it lacks effectional devotion, because it lacks sacrificial commitment to causes, because it is pure reason applied to particular situations. Nor is religion properly conceived as morality tinged with emotion. Religion is rather morality conceived in the terms of the highest personal values, affectionalized in the spirit of the martyr, and volitionalized in the spirit of the crusader. The religious quality, let us repeat, is inherent in every situation. Character, however, is an outgrowth of the total experience. It is consequent, the outcome of the personality's reaction emotionally, intellectually, and volitionally to particular situations in the terms of the higher values. Character harmonizes, conserves, illuminates, affectionalizes, motivates, and activates each experience in terms of the highest values inherent therein. Or to phrase it slightly different, character best develops in terms of those personal forces which it is the province of religion to discover, synthesize, interpret, and make effective in human life.

Character and the Curriculum.

It is manifestly impossible, therefore, to separate education and religion if we expect to produce the highest type of character. As the Jerusalem Missionary Conference said, "Education without religion is a contradiction in terms." It certainly is unless the psychological view that the mind reacts as a unit to every situation or experience and unless also the view that the religious quality permeates the entire vital process are entirely mistaken. Wherever personal forces, therefore, are present, religious values are involved, and that means every experience which living human beings have.

This situation makes it necessary for us to rethink the consequences of a free Church and a State limited to civil matters, a primal American doctrine. Does this mean the divorce of education and religion? If so, the American people have attempted the impossible. We must find ways of wedding into harmonious wedlock two forces that were never intended to be separated and that cannot be separated even if their divorcement were intended. As a matter of fact, religion as distinct from sectarianism has always been taught in our public schools and in our tax-supported institutions of higher learning. The Catholic knows this, and so maintains his parochial school system. We should cease to bootleg religion into our tax-supported schools, whether of secondary or collegiate grade, and should frankly do open and above board what from the very nature of things we must do, teach religion if we teach at all.

We cannot insist too often that every subject in the curriculum can be taught in such a way as to make it contributory to the development of character. Some subjects, however, lend themselves more readily than others to such treatment or method of presentation, such for example as history, economics, literature, religious education and Bible; but there is not a subject that cannot be taught in such a way as to give an interpretation of life and impart a certain eagerness to live in the terms of the highest values. Rufus Jones, in his "The Train of Life in College," tells how he had the conversion experience while studying how the curve of the hyperbola and its asymptote approach each other and only touch in infinity.

Such interpretation of life, such impartation of eagerness to live is the joy of teaching, and it is also the joy of learning, and when it is missed, all is missed. The courses taught in college would create a dull, drab, and uninteresting world if they led only to sheer intellectual achievement. We must not blind students, in the judgment of President Coffman, of Minnesota, to the more precious things of life through any narrow, grinding devotion to what is sometimes called scholarship. The courses they pursue must give students a vision of life. The courses of study must produce men rather than academics.

I think we may, therefore, conclude with Dr. Charles E. Raven, canon of Liverpool and chaplain to the King, in his very recent book, "Christ and Modern Education," that "unless education fosters the appreciation of aesthetic, intellectual and moral values, satisfies man's aspirations after eternal reality, and enables him to fashion his whole relationship—physical, social, spiritual—into a coherent unity, it fails; and religion alone among man's interests is concerned with these things and can claim to achieve them."

REPORT ON CHRISTIAN UNION.

At the Richmond session of the Southern Christian Convention the "Recommendations Relating to the Organic Union of the Christian and Congregational Churches" were unanimously adopted by a rising vote. Previous to this action by the Southern Christian Convention, the several Conferences that were constituent members of this body had ratified these same recommendations.

The two commissions appointed by the Congregational and Christian Churches held several meetings for the elaboration of these general recommendations and finally perfected what has now become the official "Plan of Union of the Congregational and Christian Churches," consisting of twenty-five articles. This "Plan of Union" has been published in our Church papers; also in pamphlet form, and is generally known and understood throughout our Church.

This "Plan of Union" was formally adopted by the National Council of Congregational Churches in session in Detroit, Mich., on June 3, 1929, and by the General Convention of the Christian Church on October 29, 1929, in session at Piqua, Ohio. The name of the united body is "The General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, Unincorporated." The plan leaves the local Church entirely independent, as it has always been. It may be known simply as a Christian Church or a Congregational-Christian Church, or a United Church, or it may give itself any name which it may desire.

In communities where there are both Congregational and Christian Churches and where it may seem desirable to combine these Churches, a joint commission has been set up from both constituent bodies to advise as to methods of procedure. But here again the local Churches are the final arbiters of what steps should be taken in bringing about their organic union.

The same liberty which has characterized Conferences of the Christina Church will continue to be operative in the merged body. If it should be the desire of the two bodies in any State or section to keep their local Conferences separate and distinct, this can be done and will not be the occasion of any criticism, such Conferences being represented according to the agreed basis in the General Council.

We are particularly concerned as to the relationship of the Congregational Churches of the Southeast with our own Suothern Christian Convention. At this session a plan of merger of these two groups in this area will be submitted.

We are glad to report that the United Church is making considerable progress in all ways, with the most beautiful harmony in effectuating the "Plan of Union" as adopted in Detroit and Piqua. Christian Church representatives are now members of all the boards of the United Church. The Herald of Gospel Liberty and the Congregationalist have formally united under the title of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Lbierty, with Dr. F. G. Coffin and Mr. Hermon Eldredge as associate editors of the merged publication.

The Sunday School literature also of both constituent bodies is being merged as of October 1, 1930. The "Adult Quarterly," edited by Dr. S. Q. Helfenstein, and the "Young People's Quarterly," edited by Mr. Hermon Eldredge, are to be published for circulation in both constituencies. The quarterlies edited by Mrs. F. E. Bullock for the children's division will be discontinued after October 1st. All the Pilgrim Press publications for Sunday School are to be published with joint imprint for circulation in both bodies.

Through the use of "projects," the home and foreign missionary work of the two bodies is being brought into organic relationship. In the course of a brief time, the missionary work of the United Church will really be a United Church work.

In the field of Christian education, Miss Lucy M. Eldredge is recognized as assistant young people's societies by the Educational Society of the General Council, while she serves as administrative secretary for Christian education in our own body.

(Continued on Page 11.)

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Bāb'-y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'-y-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included..... 1.50
5025PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on india paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red..... 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included..... $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included..... 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

A DAILY PRAYER.

We thank Thee, O God, for knowledge of the Holy Spirit's broadcasting as first demonstrated in the experience of Pentecost; that, far in excess of the might and magnitude of present-day messages on the air, the Holy Spirit's mystery and power permeate into eternity, delivering all of life from the curse of death. With many, at the recurring Pentecostal season, may it be that the soul's antenna shall be set to receive the wave which bears upon it the unmistakable sound of that "rushing mighty wind," and, in sequence, may it "sit upon" to the unfailing witness of the eternal Source from which it comes. In our Saviour's name. Amen.

OUR GREATEST MISSIONARY NEED.

That our people be missionary-minded is the greatest need of the Christian Church. Paul said, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." It was the mind of Christ that all men everywhere should be brought into a knowledge Himself; "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." The task of making the mind and the message of our Lord known was entrusted by Him to the Church which He instituted. The one business of the Church from its inception to the present has been and is, as the body of Christ, to make known the message of Christ.

The Church is unique, in that it is the only institution to whom this commission was entrusted, and up till this good hour has been the only institution engaged in performing that task. For the more than 17,000 missionaries out on foreign fields today, the Church is responsible; and for more than the 500,000 converts to Christianity in pagan lands, the Church is responsible. For the building of every Church in the homeland in which the gospel of the Son of God is preached, both in the populous city and in the remotest rural districts, the Church of the living God is responsible. In this our Lord Christ Himself, and the Church since His day, and the world about us unite in regarding missions as unique and as distinct from all other enterprises of the Church.

Missions are not a benevolent or a charity. They constitute the spiritual endeavor and the spiritual output of the Church. Preaching the message of Jesus Christ, holding up to the world His life, the light and the love of it, this is the task of missions. It is the first and the biggest work of the Church. Let the Church enter the field of education, undertake the work of human enlightenment and the increase of knowledge and intelligence in the world, and it will find an ally and a liberal assistant in a benevolent State. Let the Church undertake the work of human uplift, of benevolence and charity, of kindness and protection for the aged, the infirm, the widow and the orphan, and the Church will find in this work a helping hand from a friendly State, allies and associates in benevolent orders and fraternal societies. This is good, in the progress of human development, for fraternal orders and benevolent societies to build homes for and help support the aged and the infirm, the fatherless and the motherless. As a keen observer of social development remarked a while ago, "One trouble with the Church today is that the world has been catching up." Christianity preached charity and taught charity as a fundamental Christian grace and virtue. The world about the Church took the message to heart and put it into practice and built homes for the fatherless. The Church in the early days of our country and civilization planted the school-house hard-by the Church or made the college and the university a part of the Church life. The mind of the Puritan and the Cavalier took seriously the message of the Church, that the worst enemy to human progress was ignorance and prejudice. The State took the Church seriously and entered into the field of public education, and has become a great assistant in the work of enlightenment, culture and educational progress. For all this, we thank God and take courage.

The Church needs to take seriously its great task, which it alone, unaided undertakes in the world. That is the task of missions. The State, however benevolent; the fraternal order, however charitable, confine their work to benevolence and to charity; but, so far as I know, they do not join hands with the Church in proclaiming to the world that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God and that human uplift comes through Him and for His sake. The Church gladly embraces these associates and allies and proclaims with gladness their achievement in the field of human progress and the betterment of mankind. But these other institutions and enterprises have relegated to the Church that which the Church has always assumed as its duty—the task of missions, sending the gospel and preaching it to fields afar and to those nearby. We of the Christian name and faith need most of all to emphasize this fact. We need the missionary mind. Consult the financial tables of the growing communions with which we are familiar, and you will find them, without exception, putting missions in the forefront and keeping them there. You will find the Presbyterian Church in North Carolina giving more to foreign missions than it gives to home missions; and, combining these two items under the term "Missions," gives far more to this purpose than to any enterprise or activity of the Church. The Baptist Church in North Carolina and in the South a long time ago began to put the emphasis on foreign as well as on home missions, and through this combined idea and effort gives far more of its emphasis as well as of its means to this than to any other effort or enterprise. The same is true of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. It seems to have a passion to place foreign missions first, home missions second, and, combining the two, putting these in the forefront of its efforts and activities.

Before we Christians shall enjoy the growth that logically and naturally should come to us, we will have to put missions in the foreground of our thinking and the highest on our statistical table and the largest in our activities and efforts. As we seek to share the gospel of our Lord with others, blessings and the benefits of that gospel accrue to us. "Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus." The mind to give the message of His Messiahship of His saving power and of His redeeming love to all men everywhere.

J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING MAY 3, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$2,683.93
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	1.40
Wadley, Ala.	5.55
Waverly, Va.	20.00
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Hopedale, Burlington, N. C.	2.82
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C.	1.00
Biscoe, N. C.	2.15
New Hope, Harrisonburg, Va.	12.07
Randleman, N. C.	5.45
Berea (Norfolk), Hickory, Va.	12.94
North Highlands, Columbus, Ga.	3.00
Wakefield, Va.	3.42
Youngsville, N. C.	1.00
Vanceville, Tifton, Ga.	7.25
Ether, N. C.	1.37
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	8.47
Shiloh, Kemps Mill, N. C.	1.55
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.	1.00
Piney Plains, Cary, N. C.	1.00
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	1.45
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	3.40
Total	$2,788.22

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$1,658.01
Damascus, Sunbury, N. C.	2.00
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	172.54
Ebenezer, Cary, N. C.	3.47
Ambrose, Ga.	11.16
Pleasant Grove, Lafayette, Ala.	3.85
Biscoe, N. C.	4.75
Haw River, N. C.	16.29
St. Luke's, Dover, Dela.	2.25
Berea (Norfolk), Hickory, Va.	13.00
Union Grove, Asheboro, N. C.	14.50
Pleasant Ridge, Asheboro, N. C.	35.48
Antioch (R), Moffitt, N. C.	1.21
First Christian, Winchester, Va.	25.40
Mr. & Mrs. B. W. Council, Holland, Va.	5.00
Oak Grove, Savage, N. C.	5.00
Burlington, N. C.	155.56
Sanford, N. C.	17.75
Ether, N. C.	5.00
Mebane, N. C.	8.85
Centerville, Disputanta, Va.	9.31
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	25.00
Lee's Chapel, Moncure, N. C.	3.00
Total	$2,198.38

Woman's Board, S. C. C.

Previously acknowledged	$1,517.55
Japan	1,323.17
Porto Rico	426.53
Ocean View	600.40
Mountain work	424.40
Elon Orphanage	15.00
Special, Indian work, Arizona	5.00
Total	$4,312.05

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$8,258.76
Sunday Schools, regular	104.29
Individual and Church collections	540.47
Woman's Board, S. C. C.	2,794.50
Total to date	$11.698.02

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the Virginia Valley Central Woman's Missionary Rallies, to be held at—

Mt. Olivet (G), June 15th.
Mayland, June 17th.
Woods Chapel, June 18th.
Bethel, June 19th.

Morning Session.

Call to Order by Superintendent of District 10 A. M.
Hymn—"Onward, Christian Soldiers."
Devotionals—"Let Every Man Take Heed How He Buildeth" (1 Cor. 3:10-17); Conducted by Mrs. A. S. Turner, Rockingham; Mrs. E. Lena Rothgeb, Page Valley; Miss Cecil Collier, Green; Mrs. R. L. Ettel, Shenandoah; Mrs. R. A. Larrick, Northern.
Welcome Address—By ..... (at Hostess Church).

Roll Call of Societies; Response by Representatives.
Minutes.
Appointment of Committees: Nominating, Place, and Resolutions.
Special Music.
Our Builders in (a) Japan, (b) Porto Rico, (c) Philippines, (d) at Home.
Address—"The Solitary Builder," Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
Offering.
Adjournment for Lunch (one hour).

Afternoon Session.

Call to order by Superintendent of District.
Hymn.
Our Enlarging Program—Rev. R. L. Williamson, Northern; Rev. B. J. Earp and Rev. R. L. Williamson, Shenandoah; Rev. Joe French and Rev. W. B. Fuller, Rockingham; Rev. A. W. Andes and Rev. Joe French, Page Valley; Miss Verdie Showalter and Rev. B. J. Earp, Green.
How to Improve Our Work: (a) Mission Rallies, (b) Interest in Societies.
Reports of Committees and Election of Officers.
Miscellaneous Business.
Adjournment.

MRS. B. F. FRANK, Sec'y.

REV. G. D. HUNT'S LETTER.

As I write these few lines, I am in the city of LaGrange, Ga., in a meeting with Hillside Christian Church. LaGrange is a thriving, growing, hustling city of twenty thousand inhabitants and is blessed with a citizenship of quiet, industrious, progressive people, who have the highest regard for each other and who are doing great things for every phase of human progress. As an evidence of this fact, there are ten large cotton manufacturing plants which give work to thousands of men, women and children, and these laborers are quiet and peaceable in their honest pursuits in life.

There are two ice plants, two banks, one foundry, two railroads, two wholesale grocery stores, ten chain stores, and a large number of independent mercantile establishments all doing an immense amount of business. One Y. M. C. A., six Missionary Baptist Churches, two Primitive Baptist Churches, seven Methodist Episcopal, one Presbyterian, one Congregational, two Holiness, two Episcopal, two Disciples of Christ, three Christian Churches. These Churches are all doing a fine work for the kingdom in the city.

One female college of the M. E. Church, South, an institution almost a hundred years old and yet more active than ever before. A movement is on foot at this time to raise a large sum for endowment and to otherwise strengthen the institution. One high school, one junior high, and five grammar schools. The children of this city and surrounding territory are bountifully provided for in an educational way, and these schools are largely patronized.

In this beautiful Southern city in the great State of Georgia, we have three Christian Churches. First Church is located on Juniper and Oak Streets, in one of the most desirable sections of the town and a mighty nice location for a Church. The building is of brick, and is large and commodious, with Sunday School rooms in the rear and basement, and dining-room and other conveniences under the main auditorium. This is a nice, substantial, modern Church building. Built at a cost of $20,000, about thirteen thousand of which has been paid, this congregation has struggled heroically to maintain this Church. The supervisors of manufacturing plants have been most generous in their contributions to all Churches, and they are loyal in support of all the pastors of the city, and in behalf of the Christian Church, we do most respectfully thank them.

Now we desire to put on a larger program of service at all these Churches, and in order to do that effectively we must pay the remaining indebtedness of our First Church. I desire, therefore, as field secretary for this and the Alabama Conference to ask any and all who will do so to help this little struggling band to relieve the situation. They are poor, but they need the Church. This great city needs the Church; our denomination needs the Church; the Lord needs the Church, and we must save it for the sake of the Lord whom we serve and whose we are. I wonder if we could form a "Dollar Brigade" and raise seven thousand soldiers who will give one dollar each and save our First Christian Church in LaGrange, Ga.

Hillside Christian Church is located on Jackson Street. They have a nice large location in a growing part of the city, with a property valuation of two thousand dollars ,with no indebtedness. They are planning to put on a larger program of service, and should by all means have a pastor for full time, which I am sure will be done next year. Rev. H. M. Gray is pastor of Hillside Church, and Rev. C. W. Hanson is pastor of First Church.

I have enjoyed myself in a large way in the association and fellowship of these brethren and their Churches; and also I desire to thank the La Grange Daily News for the publicity given our meeting and for their kind, courteous treatment. I am praying God to bless every enterprise of His kingdom for His own glory, and as I go into other fields to labor I trust I may be remembered.

G. D. HUNT.

AMERICAN VIEW OF MISSIONS IN INDIA.

Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, former president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and also of the Michigan State Agricultural College, has been in India for some months studying the problems of rural education and preparing recommendations for the future. He recently made a comment concerning the current criticism of missionaries, which for directness and timeliness can hardly be surpassed. As quoted by the Review of the National Christian Council of India, he said: "If the Europeans and Americans who criticise the missionaries would give one-thousandth part of the time which missionaries give to solid thinking about the welfare of the people of India; would give one-hundredth of the time that missionaries give to work for the benefit of these people, and would give one-tenth of the money which missionaries sacrifice for the country—then these critics would have some claim to speak and to be listened to with respect. All this does not mean that missionaries or missions are above criticism. It simply means that I have the greatest admiration for the devotion, the earnestness, and the intelligence of the missionaries in India."

WHEN IN RICHMOND EAT AT

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria

805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Opposite Richmond Hotel.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

OPTION

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Circulation Manager.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson VII—May 18, 1930.

Jesus Teaching in the Temple.

Golden Text: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second like unto it is this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Matt. 22:27-39.

Lesson: Matt. 22:1-23:39.

A Story With a Point.

In His teaching in the temple, Jesus told a story that had a point to it. It was the story of a king who made a great feast, a marriage feast, for his son. The king invited many, but for one reason or another and on the slightest pretext they would not come. In anger, the king took vengeance upon the ingrates. Then he sent his servants out into the highways and by-ways and had them bring in all that they could find—the good and the bad, the high and the low—and the marriage feast was observed.

The whole story was, of course, an indictment against the religious leaders of the day. Here was Jesus proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, a feast indeed of good things; and here were the scribes, the Pharisees, the Sadducees, and the Herodians—those who ought to have been most eager to receive the truth—sulking and openly refusing to respond to the gracious invitation. They were to pay an inevitable and terrible penalty. The gospel was to go to the Gentiles, and supposedly outsiders were to have privileges which ordinarily would have gone to these poor, short-sighted and hard-hearted religionists. The Pharisees saw the point. It made them so angry that they went out and took counsel how they might entangle him in His talk, and thus bring charges against Him.

Questions.

Some disciples of the Pharisees and some Herodians—ordinarily they were not at all friendly, but they united in their common hatred of Jesus—came, and with subtle and false flattery asked whether it was lawful to give tribute to Caesar; that is, the Roman government, or not. The question was packed with dynamite. If Jesus said it was, He would incur the hatred of the Jews who hated Rome and who rebelled against the idea of paying tribute to a foreign power. If Jesus said it was not lawful, He would make Himself liable to charges by the Roman authorities, for that would be tantamount to rebellion and treason. But Jesus readily saw that it was not a question of either or, but of both. The Jews were living under Roman government; they were receiving benefits from the Roman government. They ought, therefore, to pay tribute to Rome. But they were also to beneficiaries of God and they owed something to Him. It is lawful, it is right for men to give tribute both to Church and State.

The Sadducees, who did not believe in spirit, and hence could not believe in the resurrection, came next with another question packed with dynamite. Seven brothers all married the same woman in succession, each brother taking her to wife after the preceding brother had died. "Whose wife would she be in the resurrection?" Jesus answered that in the spirit world there would not be any marriage. Life is not to be interpreted on the basis of physical relationships in that world. Jesus went on to say that their denial of the doctrine of spirit made their question stupid, to say the least.

And then the Pharisees came with the question as to which was the great commandment in the law. Jesus quickly and pointedly replied that the first and greatest commandment was "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind—" feeling, thought, and will: a man's whole being was to put God first. It follows, as a great Japanese preacher has recently said, that the greatest and worst sin is not to love God.

But there is a second commandment like unto the first and complementary to it. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Love to God, love to man, love to self—this is the great triangle of love. It is to be noted that Jesus does not denounce self love. A man ought to think highly of himself, but not too highly. And a man ought to have the same love and care for his neighbor as he has for himself. This principle said Jesus is the foundation of the whole structure of the law and the prophets; it is the foundation of the moral and spiritual structure of life.

Denouncements.

The twenty-third chapter of Matthew is a series of denouncements of the scribes and Pharisees. There is a heat in the words of Jesus that still burns after nineteen centuries. All of us ought to read these words carefully occasionally, for the same sins which Jesus denounced in the scribes and the Pharisees are sins which beset us and find a place in our lives unless we are very careful. Self-complacency, pride, bigotry, spiritual blindness, hypocrisy, lack of sympathy with others, meticulous observance of petty rules and neglect of larger principles—these and other sins are common today as then, and in the best of folks.

Compassion.

"O Jerusalem! Jerusalem! . . . how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" How His heart yearned for the center of His nation's life and the embodiment of her ideals. But, alas! she would have none of Him.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, May 18, 1930.

Topic: "World Good Will Day."

Scripture: James 3:13-18, 4:1, 2.

"God of the nations, near and far,
Ruler of all mankind,
Bless Thou Thy people as they strive,
The paths of peace to find.
"O Father! from the curse of war
We pray Thee give release,
And speed, O speed the blessed day
Of justice, love and peace."

—John Haynes Holmes.

List on the board all the causes of war between nations that the members of the society can mention—conquest, armament, navy, greed, lack of brotherhood, pride, feeling of superiority. What is the relation of the causes of quarrels between individuals and quarrels between nations?

How can the causes of war be uprooted?

"The world has tried war with force and has utterly failed. The only hope of success lies in peace with justice."—Calvin Coolidge.

For Our Discussion.

1. What steps have been taken to uproot the causes of war?

2. How can education help to uproot the causes of war? How can the Church help?

3. What shall our choice be, co-operation for world peace or suspicion and war? friendship or battleships? peace or war?

Debate: Resolved, That Christianizing industry will bring about world peace.

Let Us Think Peace.

"Let us think peace. We have a neighbor on the north with which we have squabbled off and on for one hundred and fifty years. We are always at logger-heads over something or other with Canada. Sometimes we have quarreled over boundary lines, and sometimes we have a mess of fishery disputes, and again and again we struggle furiously over the tariff, but we never think of war—not with Canada. Canada never thinks of war with us. When we get into our disputes we appoint a commission and Canada does the same, and the two commissions sit down together and thresh the matter out. Why do we do this? We have nothing to fight with along the Canadian border. We have no battleships on the Great Lakes. We have no forts or guns along that extended border line. We have not prepared for war. We have prepared for peace. We do not think war. We think peace. Thinking peace, we have peace. Let us now make a new vow to God. Let us promise Him that by His grace we are going from this time onward to think peace, seeing in every foreigner a possible friend, and in every human an actual brother, a member of the great family which embraces all races and nations, and whose Head is our Heavenly Father."—Charles E. Jefferson.

"He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth.
He breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder" (Psa. 46:9).

SUBSIDIES OF THE CHURCH PRESS.

Religious literature, like every kind of cultural effort, has a hard financial route to travel. One might easily call the names of publications which in former times had extensive circulation, at least sufficient to defray their expenses, but have now either entirely passed out of existence or have merged with other periodicals of similar nature or have found it necessary to secure subsidies.

Not only the strictly denominational papers are having their difficulties, but also those which have no denominational connection. As an illustration of this fact, reference may be made to the call which has recently gone out from the newly founded Christian Publishing Company of Kansas City, which is to publish the paper named The Christian, edited by Dr. Burris Jenkins, pastor of the Community Church (Linwood Christian). This corporation is endeavoring to raise an endowment of $250,000. It realizes that the paper cannot be self-supporting and must be heavily subsidized. Under its former management, it ran an annual deficit of about $10,000.

Denominational publications can get no comfort from the hardships of other periodicals, but in making a complete survey of the situation they are able to understand some of the reasons for their own difficulties. The Churchman, a publication of the Episcopal Church, and The Commonweal, a very able weekly of the Roman Catholic Church, are in the same row with the rest of the Church journals. There is no easy solution to the Church paper problem. Great wisdom will be needed by all Churches when they consider it. —Nashville Christian Advocate.

REPORT ON CHRISTIAN UNION.

(Continued from Page 7.)

All of these steps have been taken in the spirit of complete harmony and agreement, and they are set forth here as an evidence that not only has the merger been voted, but that it is actually functioning.

This committee does not presume it to be its function to submit the plan of union for the two constituent bodies in the South, but we record our supreme satisfaction in the effort which we believe will at this session be perfected for the future of the Church of Christ in America. The Christian Church, from the beginning, has stood for Christian union. James O'Kelly, in the very first volume of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, gave forty reasons for Christian union. It is a source of real satisfaction to our people that this preaching and teaching of more than a century has finally borne fruit in the actual bringing together in organic relationship of two Christian bodies in this country and that we are one of these bodies.

We summon the members of the Southern Christian Convention to earnest prayer and to wise statesmanship, that stops may be taken at this session to effectualize in our area this "Plan of Union" which is in a real sense the herald of that coming union of the followers of Christ in the world which will answer His prayer for the oneness of His followers and be the means of establishing His kingdom in the hearts of men.

Finally, we rejoice that the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches has decided to merge the two commissions that worked out the "Plan of Union" which has brought our two bodies into union, and that for the future, as a merged body, they will approach other bodies of Christians with a common plea for Christian union. A new day has dawned for the cause of Jesus Christ, and we are on the threshold of a new movement and not at the end of our journey. We earnestly pray that those commissioners of the United Church may have wisdom and good success in their efforts to bring together into a single functioning whole the scattered members of Christ's kingdom in our country and in the world.

L. E. SMITH, Ch'n,
Committee on Christian Union.

JOINT REPORT ON CHRISTIAN UNITY.

1. That the Congregational Conferences of the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky (with any other State Conferences that may be organized within the Southeast), united for fellowship and general direction in an unincorporated organization known as the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast, and for supervision being included in the territory of the eastern division of the Congregational Church Extension Boards, seek recognition by and affiliation with the Southern Christian Convention, each Conference and local Church to retain its corporate identity, thereby meeting necessary legal requirements; the name of the united body shall be "The Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches (Unincorporated)."

2. That the Congregational Conferences referred to be entitled to representation in the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches (Unincorporated) on the same basis as the Conferences of the Christian Church are rperesented in the Southern Christian Convention.

3. That the purpose of this new relation shall be to perform, on behalf of the united groups, the various functions dealing with a common service and calling for unification of action, it being understood that where technical and legal questions may be involved the action of the separate bodies shall be secured.

4. That this affiliated body shall meet biennially in alternation with the General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches (Unincorporated). It shall be promotional, inspirational, educational, and policy-determining.

5. That the territory included in the activities of the two Church groups being both administratively and geographically a unit, the regularly appointed official leadership of the Congregational and Christian Churches will naturally co-operate and direct the various interests involved.

6. That there be only one regional Church paper functioning for the united groups. It is, therefore, proposed that the Southern Congregationalist be discontinued and that a plan be worked out whereby special Congregational interests be promoted through the use of at least two pages in THE CHRISTIAN SUN once a month. The matter of name, policy and other details are to be left to a joint committee, consisting of the editorial boards of both papers.

7. That a joint committee of twenty-four, of which twelve members shall be chosen by the Southern Christian Convention and the same number by the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast, be appointed as an Executive Committee of the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches (Unincorporated).

L. E. SMITH, W. A. HARPER, W. W. STALEY, J. O. ATKINSON, E. E. HOLLAND, I. W. JOHNSON,

Special Committee of Christian Church.

W. KNIGHTON BLOOM, J. EDWARD KIRBYE, EDWIN C. GILLETTE, C. REXFORD RAYMOND, GEORGE N. EDWARDS,

Special Committee of Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

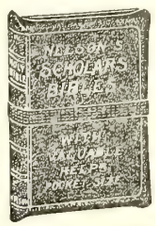
India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

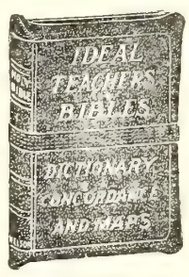
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8⅛ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

MONDAY.

A MODEL IDEAL.

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good." —Num. 10:29.

To do good was the one specific thing which characterized the ministry of Jesus. That is what made His life on earth a ministry, and that is what salvation equips us to do. Just before His death, Ex-President Taft is quoted as saying that to do good is the art of happy living. A man enjoys happiness in proportion to the degree in which he has made himself useful to the world. The key to useful living is hard work. We get out of life what we put in it. The man who begins his search for happiness and success by any other system or theory is going to be mightily disappointed. Give love, service and brightness to others, and love, service and brightness will be given back to you. And no reward, no so-called success will bring any one happiness unless he feels that he has won it by hard, unrelenting, conscientious labor. You can't cheat life. The fellow who thinks that the world owes him success merely because he is brilliant, or who blames somebody else for his failure, will never know lasting happiness until he changes his viewpoint.

The art of being happy is the art of being useful, which is another way of saying, the only thing worth while in this life is the good one can do.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, help us to look to Jesus and follow Him in our life to do good the best we can wherever we are and to all we meet. Amen.

TUESDAY.

ELDADS AND MEDADS.

"Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp . . . and Moses said, Would that all Jehovah's people were prophets."—Num. 11:27-29.

Eldad and Medad are names of two men who remained in and around the tabernacle after the worshipers had left, still filled with the spirit and witnessing for Jehovah. Others complained; but Moses silenced their complaints by the words of our text. Thus these names have become synonymous to extraordinary devotion and a daily Spirit of leaving experience which every Christian should seek to attain.

This does not mean that there is any particular value to religious frenzy, but it does mean just what Jesus taught that Mary had chosen the good part.

Religion does not call us to neglect our business; it does claim its place in our busniess as a living manifestation of Jesus Himself in life.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, we come to Thee praying for an eye of singleness of Thy glory in all that life calls upon us to do. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

SWINE, DEVILS AND JESUS.

"They came to Jesus and beheld the demoniac sitting clothed and in his right mind."—Mark 5:15.

This experience of Jesus is weird and solitary. It is believed that no critic can solve the mysteries of it. The essential facts about it, however, are: A man was possessed with demons to an unusual degree. The mere words of our Lord cured him. There was an access of sudden terror in a large herd of swine which resulted in a wild rush down into the lake.

We are not to wonder too much at the strangeness of this incident. We are told by missionaries from Africa of the presence and strength of the powers of evil when African heathenism is brought into contact with the message of Christ. It is said that there are instances of exorcism which compare favorably with the instances in which Jesus cast out devils.

Whatever mystery there may seem to be about the loss of the swine, we perhaps are on sure ground in believing that the loss of anything is counted as nothing in comparison with the rescue and salvation of one single human being.

Pause here to think of the attitude of Jesus in the cleansing of the temple, when property of others was not considered when it came to protecting the temple for its divine purpose. Think also of the parable of the merchantman looking for pearls—everything he has is sacrificed for the best. This was meant to teach us the value of the Christ life and to lead the way so that we might see hard to give up for better things.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, Saviour of us all, be Thou with our home, and each one in our household today, that we may ever seek Jesus and His goals of life. Amen.

THURSDAY.

PAUL'S PHILOSOPHY OF TRUE CHRISTIANITY.

"After the power of an endless life."—Heb. 7:16.

When we have read the twelfth chapter of Romans, there seems to be nothing left to be said which will add light. The chapter is light itself, and so clear that the simples may understand it. Let it speak to you for itself. In doing so, the text above re-echoes like a response to the whole chapter.

Perhaps it will not be amiss to say this: The "power" in the Son of God was not like that of a temporary priesthood. It was the "endless life" in virtue of which his priesthood extended from the beginning throughout all time "indissoluble." Paul here tells us how to live in order to possess that same power unto eternal glory.

Prayer.—Dear Lord Jesus, we desire to live this and every day after the power of an endless life. Forgive us of all our sins and bless us with power. In Jesus name we ask it. Amen.

FRIDAY.

CAN WE PRAY ALWAYS?

"Be instant in season and out of season."—2 Tim. 4:2.

"Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:17.

He was a fine fellow, a genuine Christian soul. It was his desire and purpose to be constant in his devotions. Each day had a time which he had set apart for his communion with his Father, at which time he would withdraw from the world, if possible, and read the daily lesson and talk with His Father alone. But He was a business man, and that business claimed His attention, often at His consecrated hour making it necessary for Him to profit it.

He was not a well man, and the enemy to His body sometimes unfitted Him temperamentally, making Him feel out of adjustment with everything, during such periods finding it impossible to be inclined to the physical act of devotion much less to concentrate upon it or visualize His Father in His soul.

Finally, in His philosophy of life, of realities, and of the physical performance of things, He came to this conclusion: "I am a soul. I believe in God who dwells in my soul. I know He is present with me always, whether I see Him or not. Jesus is my Saviour and my trust is in Him. A bad liver and a horrid digestion, or business emergencies may shake me loose and out of adjustment with my world, making the physical act of going to prayers as naught; but I shall not count it as sin to so omit my prayers."

These negative times came occasionally to him, and sometimes for several days he was not seen or known to go to his quiet alone with God, as was his custom to do. Then again he was seen to rise early, exuberant in spirit, feeling that everything was right, and turning naturally to his reading and to his prayers with joy, with understanding and with profound devotion.

Question: Did he do wrong in omitting prayers? How much can one read and be blessed or pray intelligently and be heard when he is engrossed in something else or is in misery? This man said that he could not at all. The text are the words of Paul. He was exhorting Timothy to methods of success in preaching, in which he was not to think of his own convenience or to wait on others for what appeared to be a convenient season. Paul is saying that the proof of Jesus rests upon definite teachings.

In the latter text, Paul is talking about spiritual matters generally. In it we reflect that he has already set forth Christ's ministry as teaching that it is the inside of the cup that should be clean, that it is with the heart that man believeth unto righteousness, and that righteousness is the kingdom of God. A man's business or his temperament or his infirmities may never effect his soul's stay in God. Because one does not go to a certain place at a certain time every day and take the Bible and read, and then kneel down and utter words supposed to be prayer, he is not to be charged with neglect. If his heart is right with God; if the trend of his life is right; if Jesus is his Guide in his every-day life: business, sickness, principalities or anything else cannot separate him from the love of God, whether he prays to be seen of men or not.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, make us and keep us right within. Amen.

SATURDAY.

TALKING WITH GOD.

"And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying."—Isa. 6:8.

"How precious are thy thoughts unto me, O God!"—Psa. 139:17.

"God is wisdom and might; He hath counsel and understanding."—Job 12:13.

Do you really talk with God? When did you last talk with Him in a way that you realized that you were talking to Him and He talking to you? Many people, devout though they be, find talking with Him a very vague sort of thing. Should it be?

Talking with an absent friend is very realistic. Sitting in a comfortable chair in his room at a hotel in a foreign country five thousand miles away from his wife, a man spent a half hour with her spirit. With his mind's eye he saw her. By his own power, his knowledge of her, and his love for her he discussed with her things of mutual importance. Her presence, though spiritual (some would say "imagination"), was most realistic.

(Continued on page 14.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our board of trustees of the Christian Orphanage held its annual meeting on April 19th, all members being present except three. The superintendent's report showed that the calls for help from orphaned children were many and urgent last year and that more children had a home in the Christian Orphanage than any year in its history. During the year, 136 different children were cared for. The year 1929 began on January 1, 1929, with 118 children; 18 new ones were admitted during the year, and 24 were sent out. The year ended on December 31st with 112 children.

We had 29 full orphans, 32 mothers dead, 61 fathers dead, 14 both parents living; 42,511 days of care were given; 127,533 meals were served. The report showed the cost per child per day for food, clothing, education, care and training to be a little more than 63 cents per day per child. For the year 1928 the report showed a little more than 63 cents per day. So you see it must be figured pretty close to run so near the same for two entire years.

The report shows a profit from the farm and dairy to be $2,688.58. Of course, this was used in running the Orphanage, but it figures in the cost per day as if we had bought this much stuff. The report also showed that a new barn, modern in every way, had been completed to take the place of the one, which was destroyed by fire in the fall, at a cost of $6,357.81. The plans for the barn were furnished by the State College of North Carolina gratis. The report also showed that the Orphanage needs a milk house in which to care for its milk and butter in a sanitary manner. It also needs a silo for the silage feed at the new barn, as the location of the barn was moved some distance from the old barn.

The report also showed that the income was $26,094.59, and the total expenses for the year was $29,029.37, which cut our bank balance $2,334.78 less than it was the year before. But $2,695.52 of the expense was spent for land and permanent improvements; $754.86 was spent for repair and painting.

The board accepted the report and ordered it printed in booklet form and distributed so our people may know something of the activities of the Orphanage. The board had a very pleasant meeting. Mr. J. M. Darden, of Suffolk, Va., president of the board, presided.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 8, 1930.

Brought forward		$6,367.92
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Mt. Bethel		2.10
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Henderson	$ 4.03
Mebane	2.00
Morrisville	2.00
Salem Chapel	1.68
		9.71
Western N. C. Conference:
Randleman		1.50
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Cypress Chapel	$17.72
Holy Neck	10.00
Waverly	20.00
Mt. Carmel	5.19
Burton's Grove	8.00
		60.91
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Mayland	$ 1.62
New Hope	5.98
Linville	7.77
		15.37
Special Offerings.
Cash item	$ 1.00
Jr. C. E., Palm St., Greensboro	2.00
Eure's Church, Eure, N. C.	4.00
W. A. Newman, Henderson, N. C.	20.00
J. E. Gant, Burlington, N. C.	15.00
Mrs. J. H. Massey, W. Durham	15.00
M. W. Hollowell, Craddock, Va.	10.00
		67.00
Grand total		$6,524.51

RELIGION AND MONEY.

(Continued from Page 5.)

service men give their life to earn money, so that money expresses material life as much as religion expresses spiritual life.

The giving of money to the Church is not simply a material gift; it is a gift of life. The religion of men is not simply intellectual consent of the mind to obey God; it is the gift of the heart. "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation" (Rom. 10:10). Many look upon the money side of the Church as simply a material question; it is a part of the spiritual life of the Church. It is life turned into the Lord's treasury, as religion is life turned into the worship of God. One can no more please God by religion without money than he can serve God by the use of money only. The answer of Jesus to a certain ruler furnishes the key to unlock this door into the kingdom. The ruler had kept most of the commandments, but Jesus said he lacked one thing. "Sell all that thou hast and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me" (Luke 12:22). He had to give his money as well as his heart to get into heaven. In other words, to get into heaven, one has to give his entire life—his spiritual life and his bodily life; his heart and his money.

W. W. S.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅞ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

[a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [2] or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2][b]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was [c] years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x ---------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

In the same way it is just as possible and just as realistic to call up the spirit of God through our own spiritual powers, through our own knowledge of Him and through our love for Him.

Daily prayers, daily readings, daily periods of quiet aloneness with God is the way, and these daily lessons are intended to lead those who care into the presence of their Maker.

"I heard a voice, perchance I heard
Long ago, but all too low,
So that scarce a care it stirred
If the voice were real or no.
I heard it in my youth when first
The waters of my life outburst;
But, now their stream ebbs faint, I hear
That voice, still low, but fatal clear."

Prayer.—Dear Lord God, we acknowledge that Thou art always with us and that to bless. Forbid that anything shall insulate us against the consciousness of the reality of Thy presence, and do thou make us able to see Thee and to know Thee and to talk with Thee at any time. Amen.

SUNDAY.

Giving to Dogs and Swine.

"Give not that which is holy to the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you."—Matt. 7:6.

In this verse the apostle is talking about the meat offered in sacrifices. The meat of certain sacrifices was consumed by the priests, and to give it to dogs would be extreme desecration.

The reference to pearls and swine is used by the apostle as an illustration to convey his meaning of the import of the desecration. The swine would be unable to appreciate pearls, and would only trample on them and, out of greed, turn viciously in search for food.

The Master is teaching that what is holy is a precious possession to His children. They will come in contact both with those who will accept the gospel without being able to appreciate its character and with those who will despise both the gift and the giver.

We are to avoid profaning holy things. We are to avoid personal dangers to our soul life. Our Lord's cleansing of the temple is a striking example of His attitude toward profaning holy things. In telling us to "avoid the very appearance of evil," He has plainly told us what attitude we should take personally towards anything that endangers character. In the teachings of the Lord, faithfulness is one thing and foolhardiness is another.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, Thou knowest what we need better than we ourselves. Help us to cast aside every habit, every thought, everything that would hinder us, that we may say to Thee, "Here we are, Lord! Do with us as Thou seest best. We will follow Thee. We will be true to Thee." Amen.

THE EMPHASIS OF PENTECOST OBSERVANCE.

The observance of the period of Pentecost, on which the Churches have now entered and which culminates on Whitsunday, June 8th, is arousing widespread interest throughout the Churches of many denominations. Dr. Charles L. Goodell, executive secretary of the Federal Council's Commission on Evangelism, which has given a general sponsorship to the observance, has been protesting against the tendency to use the occasion—now that it has come to be well recognized—in the interest of various kinds of "drives" or "campaigns." He recently said:

"The requisite for the first Pentecost was a 'waiting before God.' Of late, it has seemed that the Church might be diverted from that one thing at the beginning and so lose everything in the final issue. It has been variously suggested that those fifty days would be a good time to press Sunday School enrollment, to circulate petitions to Congress for worthy things, to raise money for Church expenses and missions, and other philanthropic purposes. All these are excellent in their place and must be attended to, but can't the Church once in a hundred years major in getting a spiritual dynamic?

"Power first; program and propaganda afterward. Why try to push a dead engine up-grade a mile a day? Why not get up steam and go a hundred miles an hour? One of our churchmen tells of a visit to the little room in Aldersgate Street, London, where John Wesley's heart was 'strangely warm.' As he sat in meditation, a colored man came in. He read the inscription on the bronze plate which told what happened to Wesley on that spot. As he stood in silence, the tears began to fall, and, dropping on his knees and raising his hands unto heaven, he said, 'Do it again, Lord! do it again!' That is Pentecost—power first; program afterward!"

Never ascribe to an opponent motives meaner than your own.—James M. Barrie.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

NOTICE.

The Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention is to be held at Liberty Vance July 16-18, 1930. This is written with the hope that the ministers of this Conference will schedule no revivals to conflict with this date, since it is essential that all ministers be present and all Churches represented.

R. L. House, Pres.

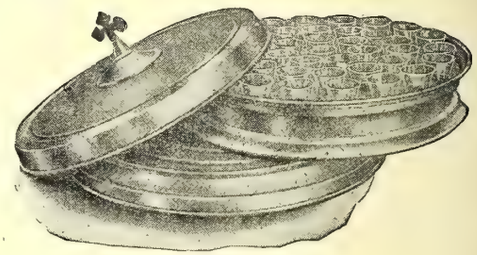
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

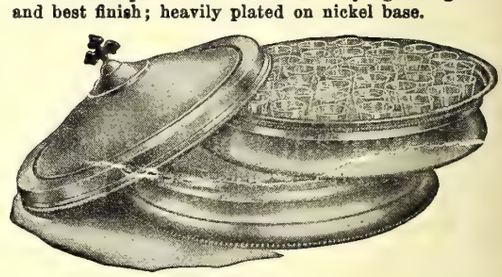


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

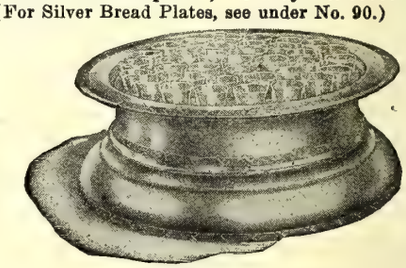
The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

Send orders to

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

OBITUARIES.

RHODES.

Dorcas Sarah Rhodes, widow of Deacon Levi S. Rhodes, was born February 6, 1859, and died March 29, 1930, at the age of 71 years, 1 month, and 23 days. Sister Rhodes was a faithful wife and mother, and a loyal and devout member of the Christian Church at Linville. She will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends. She is survived by three sons and two daughters.

Funeral at Linville, March 31, 1930, in which the writer was assisted by Rev. W. B. Fuller.

A. W. ANDES.

MEREDITH.

George Haskel Meredith, a two-month-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Meredith, died March 20, 1930. The cause of death is unknown, as it was found dead in bed. A heart-broken father and mother greatly mourn the going away of the little angel. The funeral services were conducted at the Elk Spur Christian Church and the body was laid to rest in the cemetery near there on March 21st. May God comfort the bereaved father and mother and help them to strive to meet the angel son again.

S. E. MADREN.

BRINKLEY.

Whereas, we, the members of Berea Christian Church, do realize that in the death of Miss Mary Brinkley, we have lost one of our most faithful members; and whereas, we know that her place shall be forever vacant, yet while we shall always miss her presence, we will cherish her memory. Therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we submit our will to our Father's, and that we trust Him to do all things well.

2. That we strive to cultivate the same willing heart and ready hand that was hers for the work of the furtherance of God's kingdom on earth.

2. That we extend to her family our deep sympathy and point them to the great Comforter who is able to heal all broken hearts.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy recorded in our Church book, and a copy published in The Christian Sun.

MRS. E. L. EVERETT,
MRS. H. P. HARRELL,
MRS. A. S. HARGROVES,
Committee.

GOODE.

Miss Ruby H. Goode was born October 12, 1908, and died April 1, 1930, age 20 years, 5 months and 20 days. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Goode; two sisters, Mrs. Lila Mae Gordon and Mrs. Thomas Gordon; and two brothers, David and Johnny Goode, all of Person County, N. C.

Miss Rubie was a graduate of Virgilina School and had been a pupil in the Allensville School. She professed faith in her Saviour, and united with Union Christian Church, Virgilina, Va., when just entering her teens. She was always a splendid girl. Her death has brought deep sorrow to the home and to her large circle of relatives and friends.

The funeral was conducted by the writer at her Church on the afternoon of April 2nd, and interment was in the town cemetery. A large crowd was present. Many tears were shed and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. The comfort to her loved ones is that she is in the home prepared for the faithful.

C. E. NEWMAN.

MORRIS.

Mrs. Charlie E. Morris, daughter of J. Horace Yancey and Mary Bagby Yancey, was born June 6, 1860, and died April 2, 1930, age 69 years, 9 months, and 27 days.

At the age of eighteen, Sister Morris united with Oak Grove M. E. Church; later it became Hebron Christian Church. In 1902 she was married to C. E. Morris, who survives, and lived in the vicinity of Pleasant Grove, Halifax County, Va., till eleven years ago she and her husband purchased a farm near Buffalo Junction, Va. While the deceased had no children of her own, she was the child's friend and loved children very dearly. The following brothers and sisters survive: B. R. Yancey, South Boston, Va.; L. H. Yancey, Clarksville, Va.; L. W. Yancey, Baskerville, Va.; Mrs. Graham Chandler, Buffalo Junction, Va.; Mrs. C. M. Gordon, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. W. A. Wilson, Lake City, Fla., and two brothers deceased. There are twenty-four nephews and twelve nieces and twenty-five great-nieces and nephews.

Sister Morris had suffered for twelve years with organic heart trouble, and for the past three years her suffering became severe. Before her departure she talked of her going, and through much prayer was resigned and confident of all being well with her soul. She was buried in the family plot at Hebron Church after the services conducted by the writer. Hebron has lost one of her most loyal and influential members, but we are assured that her influence for good is with us.

C. E. NEWMAN.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.

CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

EDWARDS.

Mr. James Alfred Edwards was born May 31, 1872, and died March 30, 1930, at the age of 57 years, 9 months and 29 days. Mr. Edwards was accidentally struck by a truck which dashed by while he was standing on the edge of the road near his home. He was rushed to the Mt. Airy Hospital, but all in vain. He never regained consciousness, and died with two broken limbs and a fractured skull. He leaves to mourn their loss a wife and nine children. Mr. Edwards had won many friends and he was neighborly to every one. The community will greatly miss him.

The funeral services were conducted at the home of the deceased and the remains laid to rest beneath a large floral tribute on April 1, 1930. God bless the bereaved family. S. E. MADREN.

GRIGGS.

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst our beloved Sister Mrs. Corinne Marie Griggs, whose death occurred April 4, 1930, at Newport News, Va.; and,

Whereas, we can realize to some extent the grief of her family at the loss of so noble a life; therefore, be it resolved:

(1) That in the death of Mrs. Griggs our Church at Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va., and our Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies have lost one whose services we greatly appreciated and whose passing we deeply mourn. We recognize in death the providence of God and bow in humble submission to His will.

(2) That the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies appreciated her faithful attendance and very generous support of all their undertakings.

(3) We would say to her family and friends to study her life and emulate the many virtues of this good woman and be prepared like her when the end shall come to receive the plaudit: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou unto the joys of thy Lord."

(4) And we would extend to the family of our deceased sister our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement, and for comfort we would point them to the all-wise God who doeth all things well and whose grace is sufficient for them.

(5) That a copy of these resolutions be sent to The Christian Sun for publication, a copy be sent to the family, and a copy be placed on the records of our Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies.

REV. R. E. BRITTLE,
MRS. J. W. FOLK,
MRS. O. D. KING,
MRS. C. W. KING,
Committee.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

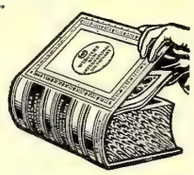
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

DURABLE FLEXIBLE BINDINGS — THE BEST EDITIONS OF THE WORLD'S BEST BOOK — WILL NOT BREAK IN THE BACK

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heave

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1930. NUMBER 20.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Mrs N T Farmer 1-1

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

ANOTHER SPECIES PASSING.—

Time, in the issue of May 12th, carries a story that is of interest to lovers of bird life, and that is not without its note of pathos which everybody must feel. It is the story of the last heath cock. The heath cock is a native of North America, and is closely akin to the prairie chicken. These birds were once abundant, but have been steadily dwindling away during the last fifty years. An effort was made to prevent their becoming extinct. Such birds as could be found were placed on Martha's Vineyard, a small island off the Massachusetts coast, where they were given protection and provided with suitable conditions for their propagation. They were increasing rapidly until a few years ago when a forest fire almost exterminated them. Since that time they have died off, until now only one cock is left upon the island. In a short time, the heath cock will have gone the way of the passenger pigeon.

DARK DAYS FOR INDIA.—

The situation in India continues to present baffling problems for the British government, and grave causes for alarm to those every where who are interested in the welfare of humanity. India has a population almost three times as great as the United States, and that which concerns the welfare of so large a number of people is of concern to the entire world.

Gandhi and many of those who were closest to him in his plans for civil disobedience without bloodshed have been arrested. But the movement is no longer confined to Gandhi's program of nonviolence. Rioting and bloodshed have occurred in many places throughout India. A mutinous spirit has appeared within the ranks of native troops that are enlisted as a part of the British army. These native soldiers have refused to fire upon their fellow-countrymen in order to compel obedience to foreign rule.

There is no question but that England is strong enough to crush any Indian rebellion which may arise. But it is more than a question of physical strength. What is the future of so great a people held in subjection against their will? and what is the future of an empire that deals thus with subject peoples? These are the questions that are disturbing British statesmen and for which they are eagerly seeking an answer.

TARIFF CAUSES ALARM.—

American business men are becoming alarmed over the high tariff schedules which are being considered by Congress. The move for tariff revision has not reached final adoption, but an agreement has been reached as to the rates upon many of the commodities that are to receive protection. Every indication, at present, points to the highest rates which have ever been adopted.

Those industries that manufacture exclusively for home consumption are delighted with the prospects for increased prices on their commodities, since foreign competition will be eliminated. But those industries which export large portions of their products are becoming alarmed, lest in retaliation for the high rates of the United States, foreign countries boost their tariffs upon American goods to such an extent as to drive American manufacturers out of foreign markets.

High officials in the automobile industry are especially alarmed. Mass production has enabled the American automobile manufacturer to fix prices lower than foreign manufacturers can possibly afford. If the automobile industry is to continue to expand in the next decade as it has in the past, many of the American cars will have to find a market in other countries. There will probably continue to be an increase in the cars that are bought in America, but the demand will not equal the increase in output; and if the foreign market is lost to the American manufacturer, the industry must suffer serious curtailment.

THE BURDEN OF UNEMPLOYMENT.—

Two of the leading nations of the world, the United States and Great Britain, are facing the grave problem of hundreds of thousands of unemployed who are looking to the government for relief. And neither nation seems to know what to do about it. It is a new problem, in that it has become a question of national and empirical policy. For years, in periods of financial depression, unemployment has been a serious issue. But it was largely a problem for the individual and for social and charitable organizations which sought some means of helping those who were out of work and aiding them to find employment. Now it has become so prolonged that government can no longer afford to ignore the situation.

It has been an issue with the British government ever since the close of the war. When English soldiers were discharged from the army, thousands of them were unable to find employment. Just having been released from military service, it was obviously the responsibility of the government to take care of them. The plan adopted was that of government doles to the unemployed. Those who were without work and unable to find it were paid a dole sufficient to meet the minimum requirements of life. It was thought at the time that the plan was to meet only a temporary situation. When the nation had returned to normal conditions, it was expected that every one would be able to find work and that the doles would cease. But the end is not yet. More than ten years have passed and unemployment is still a critical issue in England. The latest report, which is of March 17, 1930, places the number of those who are totally unemployed at 1,116,400, and with a half-million more who are temporarily without work or who have only casual employment.

England has enacted an elaborate system of laws, which provide for ill-health insurance, old-age insurance and unemployment insurance. The cost has been split three ways—the workers, when they are working, pay a part of their salaries toward the insurance fund; the employers have their share of the burden, and the government has to take care of the remainder. With the tax rate almost unbearably high, the mounting cost of taking care of those without work becomes increasingly difficult.

In the United States the situation has not been so acute, and steps by which to deal with the issue are far less developed. To date, there is no definite information as to the number of American workers who are unemployed. The government has no means of obtaining accurate figures, and must depend upon the estimates of those who are best qualified to appraise the conditions that exist. Guesses—for that is really what the estimates are—vary at least a quarter of a million between the lowest and the highest figures. But high officials are becoming alarmed about conditions. The party now in power made the bid for continuance in power at the last national elections upon the strength of the prosperity which the nation had enjoyed during the previous eight years. But scarcely was the present administration in office before the wave of depression swept the country. The country has been treated to oft-repeated prophecies as to the end of the hard times and the return of the good old days of prosperity. But prosperity has proven a laggard, and about the only improvement in unemployment can be accounted for on the seasonal demands in such fields of labor as are affected by the seasons.

Our government has no policy or program by which to meet the unemployment issue. The only gesture that has been made toward relief has been building enterprises by State and national governments of public buildings and enterprises, that the working-man may be given employment. But it is obvious that such a policy can be of help only when private business and enterprise is suffering from a very short period of depression. Governmental programs of construction must be paid for, and paid for by taxes. And many economists are saying that the tax burden is responsible for much of the situation which now exists.

The facts appear to be that industrial nations have built up a system and a social order, the workings of which are very imperfectly understood. When things go wrong sufficiently to produce a national depression, no one knows exactly what the causes are. And so far there is no evidence that modern statesmanship is competent to meet the issue.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. D. A. Long, D. D., though feeble and almost blind, occupied the pulpit at Mt. Auburn last Sunday and spoke to a people whose beloved pastor he was for several years and who hold him in high and loving esteem.

Elon College commencement, Sunday, May 25th, to Tuesday, May 27th. The largest graduating class in the history of the college will receive diplomas, and a strong program has been arranged. The usual large audiences and attendance are anticipated.

The Summer School, conducted by the Department of Christian Education, Rev. F. C. Lester, dean, Waverly, Va., will be held at Elon College July 26th to August 1st. We understand a strong program is being arranged and plans are being laid for a large attendance.

Rev. W. C. Hook, Holland, Va., has elsewhere in this issue of THE SUN a very timely contribution, "Stop, Meditate, Pray." It will be worth while for every SUN reader to give thoughtful consideration to this contribution. There is something practical and worth while in it for us if we will take it individually to heart.

Chaplain H. E. Rountree writes as follows: "The itinerary of the U. S. S. Arkansas, Florida and Utah for the midshipmen cruise this summer will be France, Germany, Norway and Scotland." It will be recalled that Chaplain Rountree is on the Utah, and expects to visit Paris, the battlefields of France, Berlin, Oslo, Norway, Edinburgh, and Glasgow, Scotland.

One consecrated brother, noting in THE SUN of April 10th the list of things of which one could deny one's self, used the same from April 13th to April 30th, and very kindly wrote, "I denied myself two meals a day five days in the week." That brother got the idea and the blessings from it, for our Saviour said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross daily and follow me," and that command doesn't go without bringing a blessing to all who obey it.

The pastor, Rev. J. F. Apple, reports the enthusiastic organization of a Woman's Missionary Society in Mt. Zion Church, Sunday, May 11th. The society, under the leadership of Mrs. R. B. Lynch, promises activity and success. It was immediately decided to have various circles, one circle of which will take in and operate through the women of the Mebane Christian Church. Pastor Apple reports splendid services on May 11th, and the largest attendance and enrollment at Sunday School during his pastorate.

The editor has two fine friends out in Alabama, and they are graduating this time from Handley High School, Roanoke, May 26th. The commencement announcement is beautiful, and he is sending along his congratulations as well as gratitude for being so graciously remembered by his charming friends, Misses Nellie Rae and Addie Belle Sledge. SUN readers have had an article or two from the pen of these splendid girls, who are thoroughly identified with Christian Endeavor and Sunday School work, and are leaders in their community among the young people in work that pertains to righteousness and religion.

The first Pentecost came in obedience to our Lord's command to His disciples, "I send forth the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry ye, until ye be clothed with power from on high." And then the promise, "Ye shall receive power when the Holy Spirit is come upon you." And they obeyed. "And when they were come in, they went up into the upper chamber, . . . and there all, with one accord, continued steadfastly in prayer." The result, "And when the Day of Pentecost was now come, they were altogether in one place." If the Christian world would recover Pentecost it will have to obey the command of our Lord.

Sunday, May 4th, THE SUN'S editor was in the missionary and memorial services with the pastor, Rev. H. V. Cox, at Pleasant Cross, Randolph County, N. C. Large audiences gathered for the all-day services. The flowers were beautiful and abundant. The missionary offering was liberal and happily given. The singing, especially in the afternoon by a male quartet, was inspiring and the services were sweet and wholesome. Pastor Cox is held in high esteem, is loyal to all interests of the Church and is enthusiastic in his advocacy of missions and the growth of the kingdom. It was a joy to be with him and his great congregation at Pleasant Cross.

Rev. E. B. White, of Windsor, Va., writes: "Words are inadequate for me to express how much I appreciate the splendid co-operation which we are receiving from our parishoners. My good wife and I are deeply grateful to them for the trip which they made possible for us to the Convention at Raleigh. All of our expenses were paid. It is great to be appreciated. A congregation that filled the Windsor Church was present at our impressive Mothers' Day service. The music was inspiring, and the flowers were beautiful. The subject of the sermon was 'The Ideal Mother.' We are indeed proud of our young people's organizations. They are doing excellent work."

Mrs. Jennie McCauley Watson, relict of the late Dr. Geo. S. Watson, of Elon College, fell on sleep at 10 o'clock Friday morning, May 9th. Only a few brief weeks ago her beloved husband at a ripe age passed on. She is survived by one son, John Watson, of Greensboro; two daughters, Mrs. Thos. Chandler, of Virgilina, Va., and Miss Ann Watson, of Elon. The funeral services were conducted from the home at 3:30 P. M. Saturday, the interment being in the Elon Cemetery. One of the finest types of Christian womanhood, one of the most devoted companions and unselfish mothers, one of the gentlest and truest and most devout Christian women thus passes from earth to heaven and her works do follow her.

TWO IMPRESSIONS.

Two outstanding impressions abide—fellowship and finance.

The fellowship of the Congregationalist and Christians in their sane and prudent approach to a merger of the two bodies was beautiful, inspiring and prophetic of great things in the kingdom of God.

The problem of the Convention is financial—subtle, terrible, vital. No leadership has ever been equal to its solution; perhaps never will. With it would go the solution of all other problems. It is inherent in every phase of life. We think continuously in terms of money and money values, and we are compelled to. To know what to do with money requires a high order of intelligence to which few men have attained. To be willing to use it right requires a spirit of consecration men do not possess. The hope of the kingdom lies in the Christianizing of men's attitude toward money.

Holland, Va. N. G. NEWMAN.

MY IMPRESSION.

One of the things which impressed me at the Southern Christian Convention—to mention only one of the many impressions I received—was the fine-spirited and practical way in which the representatives of the Congregational and Christian Churches went about the matter of translating the preaching about union into the practicing of union. They took for granted that the larger representative bodies—the National Council of Congregational Churches and the General Convention of the Christian Churches—meant what they did at Detroit and Piqua, respectively, last year, and they set about with determined purpose and with Christ-like spirit to make union practical and effective. The Congregational and Christian Churches are demonstrating the fact that union can become a fact.

Suffolk, Va. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

A FORWARD-LOOKING CONVENTION.

It was my privilege to attend the recent session of the Southern Christian Convention, and I wish to say that the spirit of the Convention was such as to suggest and indicate encouragement as to the future of our work. I do not now recall a single doleful or pessimistic note sounded on the floor of the Convention, but every address and all discussion seemed forward-looking with hope and faith in the great cause we represent.

I was again deeply impressed with the fine, brotherly, Christian attitude and spirit of the representatives of the Congregational brotherhood who were in attendance upon the Convention, as has been in evidence in every gathering I have attended where the question of union with this body was under consideration. I am very happy that our forces in the South are united, as by the action of this Convention, and it is my earnest belief that a greater day is beginning to dawn as we unitedly strive to lay hold upon the task to which we are called.

G. O. LANKFORD.

A WIDENING OUTLOOK.

The recent session of the Southern Christian Convention, as seen in retrospect, makes a vivid impression of a widening outlook. There was first of all the wider fellowship. When one has attended several sessions of the Convention, certain individuals are expected to be present, and generally are. It is possible to anticipate, in the main, the nature of the addresses that will be made. At Raleigh, delightful surprises in fellowship and messages were the order of each session.

There was also noticeable a deepening of interest and an increasing support for the missionary enterprises of the Church. It was not the spasmodic results of a high-pressure campaign, but the fruitage of a constant sowing in well-prepared soil. The entire situation was freighted with promise of a larger harvest in the days that are to come. Interest in missions or the lack of it is a very reliable index of the spiritual life of the Church.

The Raleigh Convention seemed to sense the challenge to larger tasks and more consecrated service. Those who were in attendance manifested a fine willingness to respond to this larger call. The spirit of the Convention must be carried to every Church within the Convention's bounds.

Durham, N. C. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THE PROGRAM OF PENTECOST.

BY REV. JOHN G. TRUITT.

"All that Jesus began, both to do and to teach."—Acts 1:1.

The program of Pentecost was to take up where Jesus left off. The disciples were possessors of a weighty responsibility. And those who dare to follow in their train, if they take the matter at all seriously, will find themselves possessed with much of the same responsibility. Jesus had been the very center of the human heart-hunger for truth. About Him had gathered all classes and kinds to propound to Him their age-old questions. And before the program of Pentecost is a day old, it is the butt-end of questions concerning life and death itself. In two previous messages we have seen something of the preparations that were made for Pentecost, and the power of Pentecost. Today we find Pentecost in action, beginning to bear forth on its program. And while it is standing on its very threshold, buoyant with the new-felt power, and radiant with heavenly understanding, the words of Peter yet resonant throughout the throng, it is confronted with its first question: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

From the beginning until the present, these questions will not down. To say that the program of Pentecost is to answer questions would seem at first to be putting it lightly; but after all, it is putting it quite seriously indeed. The first pair of brothers in recorded history ran into difficulty. One of them was confronted with a question from God, and in response he asked the first of an eternal series of interrogations: "Am I my brother's keeper?" The pages of that sacred old Book unfold to say yes to that question! The Word of God declares it through prophet, and priest, and king. Throughout the books of the Old Testament it is continuously saying it, until the very Word of God becomes flesh and dwells among us to prove it. "All that Thou gavest me I have kept."

We are told that the book of Job is one of the very oldest, if not the oldest book of the Bible. Hear it break out with its irrepressible question: "If a man die will he live again?" There you are, the heart's hunger for eternal existence with its creator. Never to be left in oblivion; never to cease sharing the good things enjoyed; never to be dead! "If a man die, will he live again?" It was Jesus who answered that question. It is the program of Pentecost to keep it answered! May we not paraphrase it, "If a man nearly die, shall he altogether ever live again"? Or "if a man is ever dead in trespasses and sin, is there any where a source of pardon, and life, and peace." These are questions older than the records of human writ; but at that they are not so old as the human heart. Jesus began to do and to teach their answer. It is the program of Pentecost to pick up where He put down.

A whole barage of questions beat upon the breast of God as it was manifested in Christ Jesus. As I have already said, He was the center of human heart-hunger for truth. Shall I not now say rather the divine heart-hunger for truth? Let us notice that Jesus found the temple a good place to begin His questions, both in the asking and in the answering. In the temple, at twelve, His questions were marvelous, and His answers were miraculous. The house of God is still a good place for children's questions. It is the program of the Church which has the power of Pentecost upon it to answer the question of the child, the youth, and maturity. It was what Jesus began to do and to teach. And for no less a purpose did He empower His own followers with the Holy Spirit. If we dodge the questions of youth we do despite to our program; and what is worse still if we deny them the privilege of asking them we cause them to seek their answers elsewhere and we forfeit our right to be called followers of the Christ.

My! is it not most interesting and, please God, edifying to observe some of the questions which were propounded to Jesus? "Art Thou the Christ? or shall we look for another?" How much, oh how much hung on the answer to that question! Brave and faithful hearts had waited long and wanted the appearance of the Christ. As long as that is an academic question with us, it does not matter so much either way, but if we are sick and in prison; if we are bent and broken by sin, if we are standing in the throes of sorrow and despair, it means so much indeed to have it answered effectively affirmatively. Our day is asking that question again, O Church. It is ever asking it. It needs its answer, and how badly it needs its answer! The program of Jesus involved the answering of that question in unmistakable tones. The Church possessed of Pentecost power must shoulder its responsibility or die. Certainly it will lose its power. The Church which sends its communicants in search of salvation through any other road is committing suicide. "Art Thou the Christ, or shall we look for another?" Lift up your Christ, O Church, for He has said, "I give unto Thee the keys of the kingdom. Whatsoever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."

A rich young ruler comes running to this peasant of a Jesus—a young man possessed of the treasures so much desired by all: wealth, honor, character, courage, courtesy, authority, youth—and yet he asks his question. Marvelous question it was, and marvelously asked of a marvelous Man: "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" There are your young people coming with their most serious question to pastor, deacon, individual Christian—yea, coming to the followers of Jesus, seeking their answering. And if they are not coming, all the more is the tragedy. It is the program of Pentecost to answer that question. The pastor or Church which fails to answer that question for its young, talented, courageous, courteous young people has lost a chance sublime. Do we need Pentecost? Ah, yes. Do we need to adopt its program? "All that Jesus began, both to do and to teach." "Greater things than these shall ye do, because I go unto the Father."

Or take Nathaniel's question: "Whence knowest Thou me?" The program of Pentecost intends that the limelight of eternity shall be turned upon those who stand before the Church. When one stood in the presence of the Christ, one was quite conscious that He knew all about Him. Somehow the Church must live so close to God that it shall also be a powerful discerner of spirits. It must know the needs of its day and generations. It must be able to diagnose the case. It must have the insight to come directly to the matter in hand. It is never the program of Pentecost to flounder around and fall far afield of the real issue. Whenever and wherever the Church has lost its power to do that, it has lost its Pentecost. If it sells itself to any interest, clique, or cult, save Christ alone, it is doomed then and there. The Pentecost power will make it able to see its problem and know it and to answer the question Whence knowest thou me?

"How is it that Thou being a Jew askest drink of me, being a woman of Samaria?" There is enough heavenly dynamite in the answer to that question to blow into atoms all race hatred and prejudice; to break down barriers between belligerent nations and bring peace; to send up a piece of real worship for the Son of man the whole world over; and to evangelize the darkened corners of the earth. Hear Jesus answer it. Take up your torch, and answer it for your day and mine. Young man, young woman, do you wish a challenge big enough to marshal all your powers plus the power of Pentecost? Then get into that line of Christian duty and bear that torch through social lines, through race barricades, through religious intolerance, and on back to the nail-scarred hands which "began" nineteen centuries ago.

I have listed some thirty questions somewhat like those we have been looking into, and I have not exhausted them at that by far; but enough have been produced to show that Jesus began answering with His life the quest of the human heart. And He who could stand in the world's first court and declare, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life" flings that torch to all followers who will adopt the program of Pentecost, which program is to take up where Jesus put down, and, like the empowered Peter of old, say: "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." And thus the Pentecost of God's redeeming love shall leap like a forked flame from heart to heart and hand to hand, "For the promise is unto you," said Peter, "and to your children, and to all that are afar off."

"The God of the Great Endeavorer gave me a torch to bear.
I lighted it high above me in the dark and murky air;
And straightway with loud hosannas the crowd
acclaimed its light,
And followed me as I carried my torch thro' the
starless night:
Till mad with the people's praises and drunken with vanity,
I forgot 'twas the torch that drew them and fancied they followed me.

"But slowly my arm grew weary upholding the shining load,
And my tired feet went stumbling over the hilly road,
And I fell with the torch beneath me. In a moment the flame was out.
Then, lo! from the throng a stripling sprang forth with a mighty shout,
Caught up the torch as it smoldered and lifted
it high again
Till fanned by the winds of heaven it fired the souls of men.
And as I lay in darkness, the feet of the trampling crowd
Passed over and far beyond me, its peans proclaimed aloud,
While I learned, in the deepening shadows, this glorious verity:
'Tis the torch that the people follow, whoever the bearer be!"

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

LEARNING ABOUT GOD.

I have just read a book. It matters not now what book, who the author, what price, or the publisher. Just this much will suffice for our present purpose: It is a philosophical treatise about God. One has to read a book of that kind occasionally. It should not be done very often, but now and then such a book helps a bit. One is amazed at the wilderness into which the philosopher must seemingly go in a speculative study about God. The chief benefit to be derived from reading such a book is not what it teaches or proves positively, but the coldness and the barrenness of the thing, and what it proves negatively.

As one escapes from that wilderness, it is exceedingly refreshing and mentally stimulating to return to the Bible and read what men say who, on the one hand, have experienced God, and on the other, did not try to prove Him but took Him for granted. The strength of the Bible is in its foundation, and that foundation is revealed in the first four words of the first chapter of Genesis, "In the beginning God." The writer of the Book of Genesis no more than the writer of the Book of Revelation undertook to prove the reality and the existence of God. They all took Him for granted and then proceeded to show what God did in their lives and in the lives of others. It is mentally, as well as morally, refreshing to turn from a book that treats God as if He were a mysterious somewhat or an evanescent being in thin air, to a book that treats of the God of individuals; the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob. It is all very beautiful to think about an eminent and a transcendent Being greater than all the stars and suns and planets, and holding them all in his hand; but it is more wholesome, strengthening and comforting to think of a God who spoke to Moses and became so personal that Moses felt like he had one who was sustaining and leading him in the wilderness and giving to him and his their daily food and writing for them laws that they could not, with impunity, disobey.

Our scientific time is demanding facts, reality, and that which will meet the demands of reason. Well, if the Bible doesn't give facts and realities and meet all the demands of reason, then we do not know what a fact is. From the first book of science ever printed down to and including all the scientific books now rolling from a staggering press, the scientists cannot show us one volume that contains as many indisputable, experienced and realized facts as one finds in the Bible. The greatest single fact ever known on this planet is the fact that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God, and came into the world to reveal God and to save mankind from sin. That is not speculation, it is not theory, it is not inference; it is just plain, straight-forward, undeniable, eternal fact. And the reason why we know it is fact is because there are thousands and millions of people living today whose lives have been influenced by that fact, made over in fact because they experienced and realized that fact and are living a higher and better life and a wholly different life since they experienced that fact.

The people who have experienced and appropriated that fact have turned the world upside-down, changed the course of history, and brought in a different and a better day for mankind. If that is not fact, there is not any fact; and yet many scientists and would-be scientists who proceed on assumptions that they cannot for the life of them demonstrate and argue from hypotheses that they cannot prove, are crying out for facts, facts, realities! They go on the assumption, on the hypothesis, for instance, that there are molecules, atoms, electrons; yet neither the microscope nor the telescope, nor any other "scope" of the invention of man has been able to prove the existence of these as demonstrated, realized facts. If the scientists would teach science and the philosopher his philosophy, without sailing into the realm of that about which they know nothing, they would get further and achieve more in the world. If one is to know God, one must experience God, believe that He is, and that He is the Rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. He is the God of persons, the God of individuals who lovingly and faithfully seek to share His fellowship, to covet His presence, and to obey His voice. To them He is not a matter of speculation and inference; He is all in all, and is known of His as the most vital reality and the most eternal fact of experience of history and of revelation.

J. O. A.

THE LITERARY DIGEST POLL.

Not a few are disturbed and excited over "the straw vote" taken by the Literary Digest. The drys have no occasion for alarm, except to realize that wet propaganda and papers seeking increased circulation will go to almost any length to accomplish their purpose. Dr. W. L. Poteat, president-emeritus of Wake Forest College, speaking before faculty and students of that college recently, said that "One reading the papers would be falsely led to believe that the country is seething with excitement over the issue, but, as a matter of fact, this journalistic poll was not intended to ascertain public opinion, but to increase the number of subscriptions. Of the 20,000,000 ballots issued, only 3,700,000 were returned, and forty-eight per cent of these were from five wet States, which five wet States represent only twenty-eight per cent of the population of the country." Dr. Poteat further points out that "investigation has shown that a large number of ministers of the gospel and many women were not given an opportunity to vote. The real question is, 'How will Congress vote?' and the answer is 'that there are fifteen in the Senate and about ninety in the House who would vote wet on a showdown.' "

It may be added to what Dr. Poteat has said that quite a few denominational papers come to our desk, and numbers of these have called upon their readers to have nothing to do with the Literary Digest vote, since it was a scheme to increase subscriptions to that paper, and the wets were bestirrnig themselves almost into a frenzy in their use of the same to create the sentiment that the country is ready to repeal or modify the eighteenth amendment, when there is no such evidence from any reliable or authentic source. One Church paper recently gave the names of possibly a dozen or more Churches in which the pastors asked the congregation assembled on a given Sunday, "How many there were who had received a ballot and had voted." The per cent in all these congregations was exceedingly small, showing that the people who assembled in their Churches on the Sabbath were not the ones, for the most part, who were called upon to vote in this contest. And the fact that less than one-fifth of the votes sent out and of those requested to vote returned ballots indicates either the indifference or the opposition to the Literary Digest propaganda.

None of us believe that prohibition is a panacea for all ills, or that it has achieved all that had been hoped for it, but from the day it was adopted nationally till now, a wet press, thousands of ex-saloon-keepers, and tens of thousands who want to trade in liquor and drink liquor have never let up in their insidious propaganda to annul, in so far as they could, and make to none-effect the amendment and the law as adopted.

J. O. A.

THE TIME OF TESTING.

Right now is a time of testing with us Christians. Jesus said: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself." If we are to prove true and be His followers, indeed, we must deny ourselves for His sake. A little more than a month now and our mission period will be over. The Churches were all called upon, and they in turn called upon their members to make a liberal offering to missions. So far, the returns indicate a considerable decrease and falling off from the gifts of last year. It is easy to say this is accounted for by "hard times," by "financial depression," by "the scarcity of money." Admit this, but does it excuse us?

Now is a time when one may practice self-denial. One must practice self-denial if one will stand the test, follow our Lord, obey His command, and receive His blessing. Our mission work at home and abroad will suffer, and suffer severely, unless we practice self-denial. There are hundreds and thousands in our Christian Churches who, we dare say, have not given a dime or a dollar this year in the name and for the sake of their Lord and His gospel. They are managing to buy other things, to get what they need, both for actual necessities, for comforts, and for many luxuries. Now, indeed, is a time of testing. If we love our Lord and His cause more than we love comfort and ease, we will come to the rescue and prove ourselves true to Him and make an offering of our substance in His name and for His sake, that His life, with its love and its lifting power, shall be given to those, at home and abroad, who have not experienced that life because they have not had the opportunity.

J. O. A.

WANTED: A PHILOSOPHY AND TECHNIQUE FOR TEACHING.

By Dr. W. A. Harper.

The Pope's encyclical has set the Protestant world on its ears. All our educational theory is unchristian, according to the successor (?) to St. Peter. Original human nature cannot be educated. It must be purged and a new graft applied to its stock. The Church is supreme in education, parents are next in authority, the State can educate for the national defense, provided it goeth not to excess. While the Pope's deliverance is no doubt the signal of a battle-royal to secure for the Church control over Italy's educational system, it is evidence that Protestantism has taught the Catholic Church nothing. After these centuries of effort in that direction, we may well examine our philosophy and technique of teaching.

The Protestant Philosophies of Learning.

Civilization, with its customs, processes, and underlying philosophies which serve to legitimatize these customs and processes, is an on-going current. There is no sudden stoppage and a new stream. By some obstructing crisis, the current swerves to the right or to the left, but continues its course. This will be perfectly clear from an examination of any historical situation or episode. The thirteen colonies, for example, won their freedom from England, but we brought over for our government the English common law.

When Protestantism became a fact, therefore, we need not be surprised that the several confessions of faith paralleled the ancient creeds of the Church. Nor need we be surprised that Protestant education brought over the methods of the older order. That is what we would naturally expect and that is what we find.

Protestantism's first philosophy of learning, true to the Catholic practice, therefore, rested upon the dictum that we learn by listening, by hearing, by appropriating what we are authoritatively told. The early Protestant colleges, accordingly were to all intents and purposes a series of lecture halls for wise savants and pliable auditors.

Experience in the atmosphere of freedom reacted against this method, and gradually a new dictum appeared on education's horizon. Educators rationalized their changing practice by saying that since the student's mind should be active in the learning process, he will best learn by reciting. And so we have the Herbartan five points —preparation, presentation, assimilation, generalization, and application. Good teaching became good degurgitation. The pupil had been given his appropriate ration in the form of an assignment. He was supposed to have mentally consumed it, but how could the teacher know unless he reproduced it for the intellectual scrutiny? The recitation technique came forth and possessed the citadel of teaching. Wise pupils soon learned to imbibe the textbook and to parrot it off at the prodding insistence of the questioning teacher. In this way, credits were earned, and credits were the consuming desire of the educatee's heart. So arose that college aphorism: professors teach, but the students educate themselves.

Dissenters in the field of education, chiefly the natural scientists and fine arts devotees, accepted the philosophy underlying the recitatoin technique, that learning is a self-active process on the part of the pupil, but gave it a further interpretation. We learn by doing, they contend, and so came the era of great laboratories in which pupils followed the manual's instructions and got the expected results, an exercise as mentally exhilarating as putting together the several parts of a map puzzle, and no more educative in its results.

"But," pleaded the innovators, "in our higher classes we have explorative, pioneering, investigative work. See what discovery and invention have done," they insisted, "as a consequence of our method of teaching." It can with truthfulness be said that those whom the laboratory method did not kill, it made great; great in spite of its faulty technique as employed with the great mass of its pupils.

And so for the past generation, we have been seeking for a new technique of teaching resting on a sound and creative philosophical basis. John Dewey initiated the quest when he declared that education is not a preparation for life, but is itself life. Out of our present experience, viewed in terms of our own, and the race's past experiences, we discover, so we art told, the meanings and values inherent in the problematic situations and issues we must solve, and through actual living we test these meanings and values in the crucible of experience, revising our judgments as our experience enlarges. This is education's dictum today. Involved and intricate, to be sure, but not more so than life itself with which education thus becomes identified.

In this newer conception of education as enriched and controlled experience, there is no permanent differentiation of materials, methods, and institutional organization from the curriculum. Every influence or force by which changes are effected in growing persons in part and parcel of the curriculum. And standing out like a Gibraltar is the correlative conception that the pupil educates himself. The teacher, in the process, serves as guide, as counselor, as stimulator, and as such his importance is magnified beyond any previous view of his art or function. His duty, his privilege, is first to learn his pupils, that he may inspire them to learn the meanings and values of experience, and then to organize the same into programs and projects of living.

The New Technique.

There is gradually forming a new teaching technique, resting upon this newer philosophy of learning. It is known as the stimulus-bond-response approach to learning, as the situation-problem-project method of dealing with experience. Theoretically, the technique is best described in Vieth's Teaching for Christian Living (1) and Bower's Religious Education in the Modern Church (1), particularly the latter. It is best exemplified in a practical way in Leberman's "The Christian Way" (2), which is a vacation Church school course for the primary department.

The technique is far from simple, but it is wonderfully effective in the hands of the vital teacher or stimulator. This new problem-solving technique in its attempt at effectuating an experience-centered curriculum involves fourteen points or steps, as follows:

1. Raising the problem to consciousness. A pupil may never see the problem involved in an experience or situation, unless the teacher helps bring it to his attention. Questions, a story, a conversation, citation to a book, a poem, and many other methods may be employed for this purpose.
2. Defining the problem. It should be tersely stated.
3. Analyzing the problem for outcomes.
4. Searching the past experience of the learners.
5. Searching the racial experience for facts.
6. Evaluating the outcomes.
7. Choosing an outcome.
8. Planning to carry the outcome through.
9. Testing the outcome and the process of carrying it through.
10. Identifying the outcome in terms of the Christian way of life.
11. Generalizing the outcome.
12. Appreciating the outcome.
13. Stabilizing the outcome into habit.
14. Integrating the outcome, so that it takes its place in the learner's philosophy of life.

These steps, of course, do not have to be taken in the order given necessarily, nor so that they will stand out as disparate elements in a whole; but they will all appear in the solution of any problem of experience. They will, however, be integrated with each other, and so present a unity of process and of achievement.

---

(1) The Bethany Press, St. Louis, Mo.; 1929.

(2) The University of Chicago Press, Chicago, Ill.; 1929.

APPRECIATION OF CONVENTION.

In response to Dr. Atkinson's request for my impressions of the recent Southern Christian Convention at Raleigh, N. C., I wish to say that it was my pleasure to serve on the Resolutions Committee with Dr. J. W. Manning, of Norfolk, Va., and Rev. B. J. Earp, of Harrisonburg, Va., and within the following resolution read by the chairman of the committee will be found an appreciation of the Convention:

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

We, your Committee of Resolutinos, offer the following:

1. By a rising vote of thanks, the Southern Christian Convention, in its twenty-ninth biennial session, at Raleigh, N. C., expresses its grateful appreciation to the United Church, its efficient pastor, excellent choir, and other people of the city for their cordial hospitality, Christian service, splendid music and delightful banquet meals, in making this session of the Convention a success.

2. Be it resolved, That we express our hearty appreciation to Prof. Clair Velie, the music faculty, and the glee clubs of Elon College for their delightful program rendered at the Thursday evening session.

3. Resolved, That we go on record approving the change made by the State of North Carolina in the number of trustees of the Elon Christian Orphanage from twelve to fifteen.

4. That we record high appreciation for the presence and fine, Christian fellowship of the distinguished speakers and visitors in this Convention who have contributed largely to the fine, Christian spirit of the Convention. In particular, would we mention the outstanding representatives of the Congregational Church.

5. That our gratitude be shown the Committee of Publicity, and especially Mr. C. M. Cannon, the chairman, for the excellent daily reports to the press also to; Raleigh Times and News and Observer.

6. That we express to Dr. L. E. Smith, our esteemed President, and his Executive Committee, our appreciation of their untiring efforts in behalf of the work of the Convention.

7. That in view of the union of the Congregational and Christian Churches in the South and in the nation, that we memorialize the officials of the Afro-Christian Convention, and the officials of the Conferences of the Colored Congregational Churches that every effort be exercised to promote acquaintance and take such steps as seem advisable to them in the furtherance of Christian union. (Signed) J. W. Fix, Chairman; J. W. Manning, B. J. Earp.

Franklin, Va. J. W. Fix.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

On Tuesday night, May 6, 1930, there was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Suffolk Christian Church a "Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet," at which time and place a sumptuous and delicious supper was served at the price of seventy-five cents per plate.

This banquet was conceived and carried out by the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Society of the Church. This society was organized with one hundred charter members eighteen years ago, and the membership has ranged from one to two hundred members during the eighteen years of its history. During its history it has raised more than thirteen thousand dollars, which means that the society has raised annually about five dollars per member during its entire history, and that has not reduced their contributions to other causes in the Church.

More than two hundred mothers and daughters sat down together around the tables at the "Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet" in family groups and enjoyed the good meal together. Twenty-three men, all dressed in white, with Rev. H. S. Hardcastle as head waiter, served as waiters with a success that proved that good men can render good service, even in a dining-hall. During the eating-hour, Linwood Judkins kept the victrola going with good music. The occasion was enriched by a fellowship of kindred spriits that sweetened the atmosphere and food from the fruit salad to the cream, cake and peanuts.

The banquet was patronized by women from other Churches as well as the Christian Church, and that widened and deepened the social and religious value of the occasion.

Mrs. C. C. Rawles, president, presided; Mrs. Ethel Chapman and Mr. Omar Parker rendered duets, accompanied by Mrs. C. R. Wallace, the Church organist. After the supper, several short and amusing acts were rendered, and this spiced the evening with innocent humor that brought forth generous applause.

While the entertainment was thrilling the audience, the white-robed waiters were in the kitchen proving that they believed the food they had served the women was the very best, and abundant, too. The waiters were called from the kitchen into the hall and presented to the happy company by Mrs. I. W. Johnson in her usual striking way. After this, the waiters performed the usual female task of washing the dishes. Over two hundred plates, glasses, cups and saucers, knives and forks, spoons and trays! The women praised the waiters. Women always praise men when they do good kitchen and dining-room work.

Perhaps no finer occasion has ever been held in the Church than this great banquet held in such a novel way. Beside the fellowship, the supper, the music, the entertainment, and the Christian spirit that characterized the evening, a goodly sum of money was netted for missionary work. Recreation and enjoyment are not found alone in useless or doubtful entertainments, but may be enjoyed in valuable and innocent uses of the social and religious gifts and opportunities within the reach of all true workers. This banquet was one of enjoyment and spiritual value in the cause of missions.

W. W. Staley.

STOP—MEDITATE—PRAY.

In this day of specialization and lightning-speed progress along all lines of human endeavor, the question naturally arises: Is the Church keeping step and filling the place that our Lord designed that it should fill? If not, why?

We boast of the fact that we are becoming past-masters in the field of education, invention, manufacturing and scientific research. Indeed, ours is a progressive nation—one that seems to be going forward by leaps and bounds in every phase of life's important program, except in the realm of the spiritual. Even in the program of the Church we have the very best physical equipment that we have ever had. Our temples of worship are magnificent and commodious; never before have we had so many well-trained ministers in our pulpits, nor have we ever had such an array of cultured and efficient teachers in our Sunday Schools. Yet, with all of our efficiency and marvelous improvements, there is in our very midst today a spiritual dearth that none can deny—a lack of inner satisfaction and of outward conquest.

And to me, the most disappointing fact of the whole matter is that this spiritual poverty seems more pronounced in the lives of those within the Church, many of whom do not hesitate to support with their money the enterprises of the kingdom, but who must realize within their own hearts that they are spiritual paupers. "By their fruits ye shall know them," saith the Master, and looking upon the lives of thousands of men and women whose names appear upon our Church rolls, it would be difficult to identify them as followers of our Lord, the Christ.

A man who has been one of the most liberal supporters of our Christian Church, said to me the other day: "I have not lost faith in God, but I have become thoroughly disgusted with the Church as an organization." And when I pressed him for a reason for his attitude toward the Church, he declared that 80 per cent of all of the men of the Church with whom he came in contact were either drinking-men, men who lived the double life, or who in some manner were openly and deliberately inconsistent.

Now, this man did not reveal to me any very great secret. Nor did he impart any strangely new and shocking information, for it is a condition that we are continually observing over and over, again and again, in our own experiences. But we emerged from the conversation with a determination to discover if possible a cause for the condition and a solution to the problem, and we believe that we have it in the words of the apostle James, who said: "You have not, because you do not pray."

During the Christian centuries, many volumes have been written on the subject of prayer. Some of the great outstanding leaders of the Church have loomed high in their treatment of this perplexing matter. But we believe that the apostle James had so thoroughly analyzed and so successfully tested the adequacy of this great power within the laboratory of his own life that he is amply capable of pronouncing it as a genuine force, and not a sheer futility. So armed with a knowledge born of experience, he gazes with frank amazement upon our conspicuous limitations and our spiritual poverty, and, with conviction, declares: "You have not because you do not pray."

We are indeed a busy nation, but in our wild, mad rush for gain and pleasure, power and popularity, we find time to turn into a movie for an hour or two; we come to a dead stop for fifteen minutes every day to listen in on "Amos 'n' Andy"; we tune in on the world series—but somehow we have neither the time nor the inclination to turn into our closets of prayer for even five minutes a day, there to meditate upon things eternal and to commune with the great and living God. We frequent the filling stations and keep our gas tanks overflowing, but we never darken a prayer-meeting door to get that which motivates our whole spiritual program, and a lack of which makes of us spiritual paupers.

"Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation."

"Tarry ye, until ye be endued with power from on high."

If the pulpit and the pew would daily stop and meditate and co-operate in prayer as it is our privilege to do, we would not only revolutionize our spiritual program, but every Church would become a driving dynamo of spiritual power. Our failures would be turned into successes; our defeats into victories, and our Lord Himself would reign supreme in the hearts of His professed followers everywhere.

Holland, Va. W. C. Hook.

REV. G. D. HUNT'S LETTER.

Our party of Alabama representatives to the Southern Christian Convention at Raleigh, N. C., arrived home safe, sound, and in due time, not having any trouble at all, going or coming. In many ways, it was a delightful trip. It was a peculiar pleasure to me to see the brotherhood of the Convention, and especially the older brethren of our dear Church. When I beheld the faces of Drs. Long, Staley and Fleming, and Revs. Klapp and Underwood, I thanked God and took courage. I trust it may please God to spare these wonderful lives to inspire the Church for many years to come. I was glad to look again into the faces of the departmental leaders of our various Church enterprises. I am trying to remember each of these daily in my prayers. They are to the Church what the window is to the building. Through these the world gets light and the Church gets strength.

The Church can deliver its messege to men only as it gives it out through the various departments of Church activity, and such men as Minton, Sparks, Atkinson, Johnston, and Harper will probably not be appreciated as they, with other leaders, deserve while here, but the time will come when our Church will cherish the memory of these battle-scarred soldiers; and I will add to this list—last but not least—the name of Dr. Beougher, of Piedmont Junior College, of the Alabama Christian Conference. No man in the history of the Christian denomination has made a more heroic sacrifice for the cause than Dr. S. L. Beougher. I trust our little Church, down in these lowgrounds of sorrow, even in Alabama and Georgia, will not forget to pray earnestly for the cause he represents, and for him that "utterance may be given him and that he may effectively reach a constituency that will make possible the Piedmont Junior College of Wadley, Ala."

It is through these enterprises fostered by the Convention that the Church must speak to the citizenship of our great country and to all the world. I would suggest that every member of the Christian Church pray daily for the men who are bearing these great burdens; and then if we would do that, we would have less time for criticism. I trust every minister and member will place themselves upon the altar of God and cultivate such a sweet spirit of fellowship and love for each other and for Jesus Christ that the world will know that we have been with Jesus.

The Christian Church comes into a long-coveted privilege, that of giving to the enlarged Church a great fellowship, and our task will not be finished until under God we shall undertake to prove to a lost world that we are one in Jesus Christ. I pray God to help us Christians to live up to our principles and name for Jesus' sake.

I am at Richland, Ga., in a meeting with Rev. H. M. Gray, pastor of the Richland, Ga., Christian Church. We are having a good meeting. I am glad to see my old friend and comrade-in-the-gospel Rev. H. W. Elder, who has been so feeble, but who now seems stronger than when I last saw him. I bespeak for Bro. Elder the prayers of all the brotherhood. God is surely blessing the work of His kingdom in the far South, and if we, or the cause that we seek to represent, should seem worthy, we trust that we may be remembered at a throne of His mercy by the entire brotherhood.

The next session of the Southern Christian Convention is hereby invited to meet in our beautiful Southland at its next regular session, and may the next biennium prove the most successful, and may the achievements of the Church be the greatest of any like period in its history.

G. D. HUNT.

LONG'S CHAPEL.

The first Sunday in May was a good day in the history of Long's Chapel Church. The Sunday School report showed 106 present. The program of study and song was interesting and inspiring. A duet was beautifully rendered by two children, a girl and a boy. The attendance at the preaching services was large and the attention was good and helpful to the speakers. At 11 o'clock the pastor preached, and following the sermon the Lord's Supper was administered by Rev. John Webster Patton, of Elon College, N. C.

Dinner was served on the ground. At 2 P. M., Rev. Bro. Patton was in charge of the services and preached to good acceptance. We were pleased to have Bro. Patton with us and to hear him preach. The music by the Church choir and a visiting male quartet was excellent. At the morning service an offering was received for missions.

The Christian Endeavor Society meets at 7:30 each Sunday evening. The Church, pastor and organizations of the Church extend a cordial invitation to every one to come and worship with us.

P. H. FLEMING.

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Previously acknowledged		$ 955.03
Received since:
Rev. P. T. Klapp, Elon College	$ 1.00
Prof. S. A. Bennett, Elon College	5.00
A Friend, Elon College	1.00
By accumulated interest in bank	42.22
Cash, S. C. C., S. C. Harrell, A. Sec.	25.00
Dr. G. O. Lankford, Burlington	5.00
Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, Suffolk	5.00
W. A. Newman, Henderson, N. C.	10.00
E. T. Holland, Holland, Va.	5.00
Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va.	10.00
Miss Ruth Johnson, Fuquay Springs	5.00
		114.22
Total collected to date		$1,069.25
Total amount paid to contractors		950.00
Balance in bank		$ 119.25

At the Southern Convention, in Raleigh, several gave pledges, and some of these are coming in. The memorial, very beautiful and impressive, was erected and unveiled with appropriate ceremonies on the campus of Elon College October 16, 1930. The opinion prevailed that if the memorial were erected and unveiled, donations would come in more readily. All who have seen the memorial and expressed their opinion, as far as the writer knows, are delighted with the memorial, its beauty, dignity and impressiveness. The contract price was $1,275. Deducting the cash on hand and amount paid, this still leaves a balance to be collected of $205.75. It certainly will save embarrassment and hasten the payment of a most worthy and worth-while obligation if friends will speedily send in donations to finish paying the obligation. Let each one who reads this, if possible, send some donation and have a part in this worth-while memorial.

J. O. ATKINSON, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Memorial.
Elon College, N. C.

REPORT OF BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS.

Following is the report of the Board of Publications to the Southern Christian Convention:

We recommend:

1. That the Southern Congregatinoalist be merged with THE CHRISTIAN SUN in the following manner: The name CHRISTIAN SUN be retained, but that the phrase, "Official organ of the Southern Christian Convention," be changed to read, "Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast."

2. That the columns of THE CHRISTIAN SUN be open to the Congregational contingent of the united group for articles and news items at any time, but that at least two pages per issue be reserved for them, if they so desire.

3. That THE SUN remain on the present subscription basis, but that an introductory three months' subscription be offered for fifty cents (50c), and that we endeavor to secure as many subscribers as possible from the list of subscribers to the Southern Congregationalist, which was recently discontinued.

4. That Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, Conference superintendent of Florida, be added as associate editor to the list which was recommended by the Nominating Committee and adopted by the Convention.

5. That Rev. Milo J. Sweet, pastor-at-large for the Southeast, be added to the Board of Publications in addition to the names submitted by the Nominating Committee and adopted by the Convention.

6. That the Secretary of the Convention serve as editor of "The Christian Annual," and that the Board of Publications be charged with the supervision of printing "The Annual," and that the Board be authorized to make contract with the printer of "The Annual," to-wit: That the copy of each Conference proceedings shall be delivered to the printer within one month after adjournment of said Conference, and that the printer shall have "Annuals" ready for distribution within two months after adjournment of the Conference which is last to be held.

L. L. VAUGHAN, Ch'n.
Raleigh, N. C.

Adopted by Southern Christian Convention.

If your Church did not take the missionary offering at or near Easter, will you not render a real service for the kingdom in seeing that the offering is taken and that it is as liberal as possible? Many Churches are reporting, and these reports indicate a falling off from the amount contributed last year. We will have to overcome this in some way or our mission work at home and abroad will suffer severe reverses.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅝ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 — The three wise men

carrying away into Bāb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A DAILY PRAYER.

We thank Thee, O God, for knowledge of the Holy Spirit's broadcasting as first demonstrated in the experience of Pentecost; that, far in excess of the might and magnitude of present-day messages on the air, the Holy Spirit's mystery and power permeate into eternity, delivering all of life from the curse of death. With many, at the recurring Pentecostal season, may it be that the soul's antenna shall be set to receive the wave which bears upon it the unmistakable sound of that "rushing mighty wind," and, in sequence, may it "sit upon" to the unfailing witness of the eternal Source from which it comes. In our Saviour's name. Amen.

THE GREATEST BUSINESS IN THE WORLD.

In the rush of our irrational existence, many have "forgotten God that formed" them. They have lost sight of the fact that the greatest business in the world is our Heavenly Father's business. When we study the incomparable life and ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ, we discover that His Father's business was to Him all-important. The very keynote of His life was: "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" What was, what is, His Father's business? This question is of paramount importance to us, since we, His devoted discoples, have, after His glorious ascension, been commissioned to carry on, in His most Holy Name, His Father's business.

The Father's business, the purpose of Christ's coming into this fallen, sin-trodden, and sin-cursed world, is clearly stated by the Saviour Himself in these inspiring words: "The Son of Man is come to save that which was lost" (Matt. 18:11).

Many great poets have sung the glory of God in the works of creation. But His greatest work is not the creation of a globe or the building of a sphere, but the salvation of ruined sinners, absolutely lost, and perfectly helpless, by Christ Jesus, the Lamb of God. When we read in the sacred Scriptures that "He commended His love toward us in that while we were yet sinners, He died for us," we read the story of the world's masterpiece of love.

If the greatest work of God, the everlasting Father, is the salvation of lost sinners, then the greatest work of man is mission work, for that carries forward the greatest work of God, the Creator and Governor of this vast universe. What is life itself for but to fulfill the purpose of missions —the enthroning of our Lord Jesus Christ in the hearts of men everywhere?

Missions were not originated by a group of foolish, fanatical men. Missions are the work of the Lord of glory, of Him to whom all power is given in heaven and on earth; of Him who came and died and paid the price, reconciling us unto God through His broken body. Yes, the missionary idea came into the world with Christianity itself. Our Lord was sent into the world, a missionary from heaven to earth. The anointed Lord came from heaven to a foreign country to reveal God the Father, to relieve human suffering, to transform social conditions and, above all, to save souls. Jesus, the Divine Missionary, took the good news of salvation among the despised classes of Galilee, Samaria and Judea. His matchless life was one sweet benediction of self-forgetfulness, one glorious example of the holy dignity of service. Our Lord was the greatest Missionary the world has ever seen. What is the missionary enterprise but love in action, love incarnate in devoted, Christian men and women of the heroic breed, expressing itself in the deeds of the world's great missionaries?

Isn't it a fact that we meet men and women whose understanding of the true mission of Christianity is very limited? The chief mission of Christianity is to transform spiritual conditions. Christianity knows nothing of race, nor of the national, of the local and geographical. The civilized and the barbaric are all included in its common hope and life. Therefore, our eyes should not be riveted on our home interest alone; our hearts should be large enough to have a place for those that are afar off.

After His glorious resurrection, Jesus Christ gave His great missionary commands. See especially Matthew 28:18-20 and Acts 1:8. The royal commands stand today. They were given not only to those few chosen disciples, or to those given up to the gospel ministry, but to every follower of our resurrected, glorified Lord. Men of Cyprus and Cyrene did the work of evangelist, to show men of our day that they may do the same. Every Christian has a mission in life, and that mission is to be a co-worker with God in saving souls. Yet, so many fail to realize the responsibility that our Saviour has thrown upon His individual followers to rescue men from ignorance, degradation and wickedness, by becoming the "light" of a dark world and the "salt" of a corrupting humanity, and so rescue immortal souls from ruin, here and hereafter.

Jesus the mighty God is calling, not merely to Church membership, but to aggressive campaigning. The slogan for today is, "Bring men to Christ." Some one has mentioned the fact that the Standard Oil Company has adopted the slogan, "A Standard Oil can in every village in the Orient"; also that the American Tobacco Company is using the motto, "A cigarette in the mouth of every person in China." The great question is, Can the Church of Jesus Christ and every member in it do less than adopt the battle cry, "The world for Christ, Christ for the world, and me for my next-door neighbor"? Every true Christian is a missionary. That is to say that every Christian has a distinctive mission in life—the remaking of the mind of man after the pattern of the mind of our Lord Jesus Christ. Oh, the great things that could be accomplished if all Christians would do their part personally in making disciples for Christ! It is a great pity that many Church members think and plan, and work for self. Their motto is, "Get all you can"; while our Redeemer and Lord says, "Give." They do not realize the need of the multitudes, and the multitudes do not see in them the unselfish, sacrificing spirit of the one whom they call Master. They are not charitable towards others because they have not learned what the word "others" means. They are selfish; they do not know what Christian love means.

One of the greatest, if not the greatest, honors that can be bestowed upon a child of the Heavenly King is the opportunity to make the world better. Our time is God-entrusted, and we, as good stewards, are to use it for the welfare of our fellowmen. A good steward is one who not only holds his ability, possessions and the like in trust, but is a witness for God in his community and in the world.

It is well for us to remember that stewardship covers all that a man is, or has, or may acquire. Therefore, we are stewards of our opportunities and privileges; of property or such material possessions as we may have. Jesus has taught mankind that it is better to spend than to hoard; better to serve than to be ministered to; better to seek out and relieve the poor and distressed than to make self the center of being. The true worth of money is never learned until we begin to distribute, to make others happy with it. Selfishness is the very opposite of Christianity. It is un-Christian to settle down amidst the luxury of our surroundings, to close our eyes, our hearts, and the well-spring of our means to the challenging needs of our neighbors and the nations far removed from us. A missionary is one sent, but one cent will not send a missionary. To be indifferent to the interest of our Lord and His kingdom is to be indifferent to the gospel. Now the great question for us to reply to is, "Are we sensible of our indebtedness to Him and of the obligation which lies on us to do something that others too may know and love Him?"

The Church is the repository of divine truth. Our great High Priest commissioned her as His earthly instrument to promote His kingdom. It is the only instrument that our Lord ever organized. It is the task of the Church to see the world through the eyes and heart of Jesus, for the Church is the body of Christ; a divine and living organism that is here to bear witness to Christ. Missions was the supreme passion of Christ Jesus. The mission of His Church is the evangelization of the world. The truth concerning God and Jesus Christ, man's relation to God and his relation to his fellow-man must be revealed through God's divine agency if the world is ever to know concerning these relations. The one business of the Church is the saving of souls, and when it neglects this for other things its doom is sealed as a spiritual force. But the moment a Church moves earnestly towards a dying world the pillar of fire descends, and the Shekinah fills her courts. It has been said that "the spiritual life and power of any Church are directly in proportion to what that Church is doing outside of itself."

Dear friends, if you cannot go, then "help go." Your neighbor has no money, but a bright and willing lad. With your prayer, advice and money, help him go.

If you cannot go, then "help go." Your neighbor has no money, but a bright and willing lad; with your prayer, advice, and money, help him go. Remember that the man who uses all his money for selfish purposes cannot expect God to bless him, but rather may expect the curse of God. The true worth of money is never learned until we begin to distribute, to make others happy with it. Do not be guilty of robbing God. Be liberal. Give God a chance to bless you.

A great awakening throughout all our Churches in the matter of missions is the greatest need of our time. For mission work is Church task. The spirit of missions is the spirit of the Founder of Christianity; and the more of that Spirit we have, the brighter and fuller burn our own altar fires. The King Eternal would have His gospel preached to every creature, and He will bless every Christian enlisting in His service with heart and hand to promote the work of missions.

Windsor, Va. E. B. White.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

We are grateful for every dime and dollar that come in. So far, the offerings show a falling off from last year, and unless a strenuous effort and much self-denial are made from now on, our mission work at home and abroad will suffer. Every loyal member of every Church and congregation should make as liberal offering as possible.

WEEK ENDING MAY 10, 1930.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$2,788.22
Triangle Bible Class, Old Zion, Norfolk	10.00
Bethlehem, Timberville, Va.	4.17
Winchester, Va.	7.02
Ramseur, N. C.	10.00
Linville, Va.	7.55
Lanett, Ala.	7.50
Newport, Stanley, Va.	3.15
Concord, Timberville, Va.	3.59
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.93
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	4.90
Bethlehem, Altamahaw, N. C.	3.33
Lawrence Mem'l B. C., Elon College	5.00
Lawrence Mem'l B. C., Elon College	1.20
Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	1.21
First Church, Greensboro, N. C.	26.99
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	2.01
Total	$2,912.77

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$2,198.38
Pleasant Cross, Archdale, N. C.	46.76
New Lebanon, Wentworth, N. C.	.22.00
Bethlehem, Broadway, Va.	17.03
Appple's Chapel, Brown Summit, N. C.	15.56
Big Oak, Biscoe, N. C.	11.36
Pleasant Hill, Benson, N. C.	8.65
Plymouth, Raleigh, N. C.	10.00
First Church, Greensboro, N. C.	222.82
Rev. Albert Godley, Tenafly, N. J.	.50
Liberty Spring, Holland, Va.	33.00
Linville, Va.	27.00
Catawba Springs, Apex, N. C.	61.03
Union (Surry), Dendron, Va.	7.80
Zion, Moncure, N. C.	2.69
Mt. Olivet (G), March, Va.	21.68
First Church, Richmond, Va.	44.25
Durham, N. C.	250.00
Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	11.64
New Elam, New Hill, N. C.	4.60
W. M. Goodwin, New Hill, N. C.	5.00
Windsor, Va.	73.50
South Norfolk, Va.	19.44
Total	$3,114.69

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$1,239.22
Mrs. J. W. Roberts, Windsor, Va.	20.00
Total	$1,259.22

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$11,698.02
Sunday Schools, regular	124.55
Individual and Church collections	916.31
Specials	20.00
Total to date	$12,758.88

Gratefully, and with deep anxiety,
J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

BIENNIAL REPORT.

Following is the biennial report of the Woman's Board of Missions, Southern Christian Convention, Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, treasurer, beginning June, 1928, and ending May, 1930:

Receipts.

Balance on hand, May 1, 1928	$ 612.75
Received on Convention floor, Richmond	27.70
Mrs. D. P. Barrett, life membership	10.00
Refund on literature, Mrs. C. H. Rowland	6.00
From Alabama Conference	444.73
From Eastern Virginia Conference	7,177.99
From North Carolina Conference	4,695.29
From Valley Virginia Cent. Conference	509.63
From Georgia-Alabama Conference	34.38
Total receipts May, 1928, to June, 1929	$13,518.47
Alabama Conference	$ 311.30
Eastern Virginia Conference	7,507.47
North Carolina Conference	4,690.65
Valley Va. Cent. Conference	498.87
Georgia-Alabama Conference	90.00
Total receipts June, 1929, to May, 1930	13,098.29
Total for biennium	$26,616.76

Disbursements.

(May 1, 1928, to June, 1929.)

Telegrams sent during S. C. C.	$ 1.38
Mrs. McD. Howsare, expenses S. C. C.	45.00
W. C. Wicker, Treas., auto fund	250.00
Christian Publishing Association	3.40
Eugene L. Graves, printer	24.25
Artcraft Corp., printers	10.00
Expenses Board meeting, Franklin, Va.	80.58
W. C. Wicker, Treas., home missions	1,315.18
W. C. Wicker, Treas., foreign missions	1,117.19
W. C. Wicker, Treas., P. R. relief fund	65.65
W. C. Wicker, home missions	2,401.88
W. C. Wicker, foreign missions	2,819.28
Artcraft Corp., W. M. B. report blanks	93.83
Literature Dept., W. M. B., Dayton	3.63
Christian Publishing Association	1.60
Christian Publishing Association	1.25
Mrs. J. A. Williams, expenses	20.03
A. D. Pate Co., printers	22.50
Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Secy.	1.50
W. C. Wicker, Treas., home missions	731.66
W. C. Wicker, Treas., foreign missions	1,422.56
Mrs. W. R. Sellars, expenses N. C. Bd.	130.00
Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treas., postage	3.00
West & Withers, bonding Treas.	12.50
Atlantic Coast Printing Co.	12.00
W. C. Wicker, Treas., home missions	1,220.48
W. C. Wicker, Treas., foreign missions	1,430.49
Total May, 1928, to June, 1929	$13,240.82

(June, 1929, to May, 1930.)

Expenses Bd. meeting, Franklin.	$ 129.17
W. C. Wicker, Treas., H. M.	1,873.81
W. C. Wicker, Treas., F. M.	2,236.48
Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treas.	220.00
W. C. Wicker, Treas., H. M.	1,404.91
W. C. Wicker, Treas., F. M.	1,695.09
Mrs. J. A. Williams, expenses	10.67
Mrs. Emma S. Powers, literature.	4.20
Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treas.	230.00
W. C. Wicker, Treas., H. M.	360.59
W. C. Wicker, Treas., F. M.	1,156.96
Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treas.	20.00
West & Withers, bonding Treas.	12.50
Ocean View Church	50.00
Mrs. J. A. Williams	19.37
Missionary Review Pub. Co., Inc.	2.50
Mrs. E. L. Beale, expenses	16.00
W. C. Wicker, Treas., H. M.	989.80
W. C. Wicker, Treas., F. M.	1,754.70
Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treas.	20.00
Mrs. J. A. Williams, printing	1.50
Total June, 1929, to May, 1930	$12,208.25
Total disbursements for biennium	$25,449.07

(Continued on Page 13.)

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

OPTION

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Circulation Manager.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson VIII—May 25, 1930.

Jesus Describes Future of the Kingdom.

Golden Text: "Take ye heed, watch nad pray: for ye know not when the time is."—Mark 13:33.

Lesson: Matt. 24:1-25, 13.

The twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew is somewhat complicated and complex for the average man or woman. In fact, it is a kind of battle-ground for those who think they are profound biblical students; and if thsi be the case, we need not be surprised or disturbed if we cannot understand it altogether clearly. There are those, of course, who wouuld tell us that their interpretation is the only interpretation, and that we must accept it or nothing. But because others just as capable as they are hold other interpretations, it is quite possible that both sides have some truth on their sides. In any event, the writer of these notes has no authoritative interpretation of the more difficult passages. He is content simply with interpreting the general truths here embodied.

In dealing with the future, one must always speak with more or less reservations. No man knoweth what a day may bring forth. And this principle applied even to Jesus. He very frankly told His disciples that He Himself did not know the day and the hour, but only His Father. This applied to Him coming. It is well enough to keep this in mind in all the discussion.

Now, as to the matter which arose as a result of the question which the disciples asked Jesus after He spoke about the destruction of the temple, it might be said that Jesus saw with prophetic eye and insight that the Jewish nation was riding for a fall. The forces of moral and spiritual deterioration had been at work for some time, the political situation had become so acute that Jesus clearly saw that in the near future—He specifically says that "this generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled"—Jerusalem would be besieged and conquered and laid waste. This actually happened in the year 70 A. D., when Titus entered Jerusalem and laid it waste.

In all the complexity and figurative sayings of Jesus in regard to His coming, there are a few clear principles expressed. There is, as has already been suggested, the fact of its uncertainty as to time. There are so many factors involved that only the Father knows the day and the hour. In the second place, in spit eof its uncertainty as to time, there is its certainty as to occurrence. It would seem that Jesus felt sure of that. And finally, the thing on which Jesus put the emphasis was preparation. The sensible and about the only thing that people could do was always to be ready. "Be ye ready," "Watch," these are the slogans of Jesus, the summary and the conclusion of all of His discussions in regard to the whole matter. Furthermore, He enjoined persistence and perseverance. "He that endureth unto the end, the same shall be saved."

Now, Jesus summed all this up in a story in His inimitable way. It was the story of ten young women who attended a wedding feast, five of them being prepared by having extra oil for their lamps. At an unexpected hour the bridegroom came, and those who were prepared went in to the feast. But alas! those whose lamps had gone out and who had no surplus oil were shut out of the joy of the wedding feast. The moral hardly needs pointing out. The kingdom is like unto an occasion of great joy—why do we so often think of religion as something that detracts from life and represses joy?—there are those who are prepared and those who are unprepared; there is a personal and individual responsibility which every one must assume; there is the actuality of being shut out of the final and abiding joy. Hear the conclusion of the whole matter: "Watch, therefore: for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, May 25, 1930.

Topic: "Missionaries and World Peace."

Scripture: Isa. 52:7-10.

"As on the Sea of Galilee,
The Christ is whispering, 'Peace.' "

—Whittier.

The missionary faces many problems. His leaving home and going to another country to make that his home brings him one problem. He is leaving a country that is neither all good nor all bad; he is going to a country where he will find a great deal of good, yet there will be some of the bad. He will find a feeling on the part of the people of each of these nations that will cause him to question his place in regard to the two countries. What can he do when he faces the idea of some that one nation is superior to another?

What did Paul mean when he wrote: "If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling? But now hath God set the members each one of them in the body, even as it pleased Him. And if they were all one member, where were the body? But now they are many members, but one body. And the eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of thee; or again the head to the feet, I have no need of you. Nay, much rather, those members of the body which seem to be more feeble are necessary" (1 Cor. 12:17-22). We apply these verses to individuals, saying that it means that we need doctors, lawyers, teachers and other professional and business men and women. Can we not apply it to nations as well? Can we not say: "If the whole world were America, where would be the beautiful gifts of Japan? If the whole were Japan, where were India?"

Note the things the nations have to offer:

India.—India fairly breathes religion. She produced the religions by which over 350,000,000 people live. For many years she has disregarded science and history, but she has clung to her religions. Men and women by the thousands spend their lives in religious thinking and pilgrimages. India can interpret Christ as no other nation can.

China.—The people of China love peace; they are strong physically; they are geniuses in labor and thrift; they reverence past values; they stick to their purpose. Their Christ will challenge us to do our best.

Japan.—Courtesy is an art in Japan. The spirit of Japan is loyalty. The Japanese love beauty and nature. The Christ of Japan is a gentle and understanding Christ.

Latin America.—Here we find a people who are acute and imaginative, graceful in manner, and passionate in their love for art, music and literature. Here is the Christ who teaches.

Africa.—Africa is the land of the grateful and the faithful. What people know the sorrows of the African? Yet the African is sunny and optimistic. He forgives and forgets injuries. He can move the soul of the world with his reverence and music. How can we leave out their brave and suffering Christ?

There is a growing interest in and desire for world peace. The League of Nations, the World Conference on Faith and Order, the flights of Lindbergh, good-will tours, friendship dolls for Japan, Mexican school bags, and treasure chests for the Philippine Islands contribute to world peace and friendship.

The missionary has a place in this struggle for world peace because he is an ambassador of good will and peace. His message is the message of peace. He believes in and preaches (1) the Fatherhood of God, (2) the brotherhood of man, and (3) a life of Christian service. The work of the missionary through the Church, school, hospital, farm, and the social center wins the confidence and love of the people of other lands and develops a spirit that leads toward peace.

Because Christ desires world peace and because missions promote world peace, we ought to do all we can for missions.

LET'S HAVE CHILDREN'S DAY.

Most of our Churches are beginning to plan for a program which will be given with the children in the forefront of all the plans. It is well that at least one day out of our fifty-two Sundays be the responsibility of the children. They love it, and we are the better for it. Give them an opportunity to show you what they can do in the way of putting on a special program. You may be surprised. Help them, but let them know that it is their day and their program.

They will want lots of songs, perhaps a story, a prayer, some recitations, and surely an offering. In their Sunday School work they have learned that all of these parts, viz: song, story, prayer, poetry and gifts of money, enter into worship. They will not want a one of them omitted. The field secretary of the Board of Christian Education, Waverly, Va., will be glad to furnish program materials to those requesting it. The offering should go to missions. Children delight in helping others, and they should early be given this opportunity in our Churches and Sunday Schools. An offering to help others on their own day will meet with their hearty approval. Most Churches will hold "Children's Day" in June. Have it early, so that it will not conflict with other special days and programs.

The Board of Christian Education would be glad to assist any Church in making out a program or in putting on a Church vacation school (formerly called daily vacation Bible school). The workers for the board are unusually busy in the summer-time, but are willing to employ extra help to aid in this very important work. Do not hesitate to call on us. We will do our very best to give you what you want and need for the children of your community. Church vacation school means lots of study, fun, singing and play packed into two weeks. It is the opinion of many of our educators that there is no one thing that means so much to a child in an educational way as this opportunity offered in the Church vacation school. Let's have one in every community.

Jewel Truitt.

IT SHALL BE PREACHED.

Among the wonderful things the Man of Calvary said would take place was that "this gospel of the kingdom" should "be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations"; and then should the end come. This is a wonderful statement for Christ to make when so many odds were against Him; for with the influential foes He had to meet, the small band of disciples he had gathered, and the agony of the cross and death to follow, there seemed little promise of the success of the gospel cause. But He said confidently, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." And no nation was to be left off the program. The message was to be preached in all the world to all nations. How definite!

And this work is all to be done in "this generation." The Master says this word with a "verily" and a "shall" (Matt. 24:14, 34). It is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for any failure to come in the accomplishment of this missionary program—making known in every land the message of the coming King. Thank God for the assurance, and thank Him also for the wonderful fiulfillment, in that today in so many countries and languages His coming is being heralded by messengers of this great movement. It is all a marvel.

The possibilities before us are limitless, for God has undertaken great things for us. Before us seems an impossible task. There are great deserts, Red Seas, high barriers to cross; but God says, "Go forward, it must all be done in this generation." He encourages us by saying, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit" (Zech. 4:6). "Never mind the mountains of difficulty," He seems to say, for "who art thou, O great mountain? . . . thou shalt become a plain" (Zech. 4:7).

And again He says, "I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted" (Isa. 49:11). What seem great barriers and mountains of difficulty, become a way of progress. How marvelous are God's doings! How often have we been led to observe the way God has been leading to a speedy and victorious accomplishment of His divine purpose. One great fact must not be overlocked, and that is that this is primarily God's work, not ours; He will finish it, not we alone, and He will cut His work short in signal victory, for He has given out the word (Rom. 9:28). So His work will all be done in this generation, notwithstanding the hardness of the task and the multiplicity of obstacles in the way. He is the triumphant Leader. By His Spirit we shall also be more than conquerors. Here and there in mission lands we learn of cases in which it is difficult to trace back to the human agent who had any part in the remarkable changes in men and women who have been led from darkness to light—far on the way to Christ. "God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform."

Let us have faith. Though long He apparently delays, for us there will be no delay. He will finish the work in this generation.

"The Son of God goes forth to war,
A kingly crown to gain;
His blood-red banner streams afar:
Who follows in His train?"

Notwithstanding the difficulties we face in preaching the message throughout the world, we must not lose heart, but remember that we have our marching orders. We are to go forward, relying upon our great Master, the General who has never suffered defeat and whose work will finally triumph.

It was Robert Morrison, the great missionary to China, who was asked gruffly and abruptly by the captain of the ship, what he could do in China. "Do you think," he asked, "you can make any impression on the great nation of China?" Dr. Morrison's reply is worth remembering, for he said to the captain that he did not think he could make any impression, but he was sure God could.

Great Painting Illustrates.

There is a great painting called "Anno Domini," which some of you may have seen, that illustrates this subject. It represents an Egyptian temple from whose courts a brilliant procession of soldiers, statesmen, philosophers, and priests is advancing in a triumphal march, bearing a huge idol which was the boast and the challenge of heathenism. Across the pathway of the procession there passes a lowly beast whose bridle is held by a man, and upon the back of this insignificant animal rides a fair young mother with her little child. It is a picture of Jesus entering Egypt in flight from the wrath of King Herod, and thus crossing the path of an arrogant and aggressive heathenism.

Many long centuries passed before the parable had any notable semblance of fulfillment, but as we view God's mighty work in the earth today, whether in Africa where this scene took place, or in Asia, or in any other heathen land, we now find that Jesus marches across the pathway of the boasted heathenism and philosophies of these darkened lands. And the commission of the Saviour that seemed so far from its accomplishment—yes, even so unlikely of accomplishment—is now being most wonderfully fulfilled in all mission lands.—J. E. Fulton, in Review and Herald.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

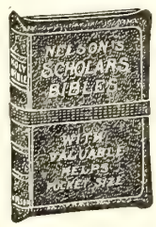
India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1¼ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION
TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

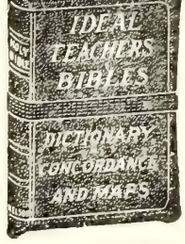
112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.
RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.

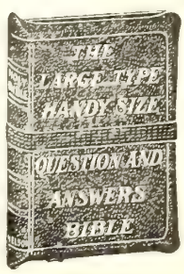


Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.



1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22:25-27.

MONDAY.

AUTOMATIC PARDON.

"And Jehovah said, I have pardoned him."—Num. 14:20.

"Before they call I will answer."—Isa. 65:24.

These words of our Lord are a guarantee of His nearness and of His anxiety for us. It is most delightful to believe and feel that by the time one ever thinks he is sorry, that the Lord hath put away his sin.

The man of our text had hardly got the words out of his mouth before he had the assurance that he was pardoned. It was not a transaction of even a moment. It was instantaneous as the touch of the telegraph key and the tick of the sounder on the other end of the line. Likewise, David, too, stood before Nathan a sinful soul, and the next minute his sin was gone.

"Whenever I humbly begin
To search my heart and own to Thee
My great perversity and sin,
Thou forgivest me.

"Miserere is not said
Ere benediction is begun;
O visit not upon my head
What I have done."—Burston.

Prayer.—The Lord's Prayer.

TUESDAY.

TASTE THE TEST OF CHARACTER.

"If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink."—John 7:37.

The first and last test of one's character is in what he really likes. Go out in the crowds and ask different ones what their "taste" is; and if they will give you a candid answer, you will know them, body and soul.

We are so constituted that we have not brought ourselves under self-discipline, self-suppressive, and self-evolution, consequently our low desires overgrow our loftier ones, and they kill our better selves like weeds destroy a crop, like water puts out fire. Some of us are so taken up with gratifying our lower natures that we leave our inner man—our higher selves—entirely uncared for.

Christ recognizes this in the words of our text by speaking of "thirst" for righteousness as by no means universal; and, alas! it is not.

Before we can appreciate water, we must be thirsty. Before we can know righteousness, we must thirst for it. We must thirst for Christ before we will realize that He is a well springing up into everlasting life from which we may draw and be satisfied.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, create within us a hungering and thirsting for righteousness. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

FRUIT OR THE AXE.

"Bring forth, therefore, fruits meet for repentance."—Matt. 3:8-10.

By your actions, prove the genuineness of your repentance. Do not let pride deceive you and lead you astray. If you do, you are like a barren tree, good only for fuel, judgment is already at hand, the axe is already cutting you down.

Let your life be evidence that you are the Lord's. Walk humbly, honestly, practice self-denial and charity, and be a friend to God. "Ye are my friends if you do whatsoever I command you."

Live today with greater care than heretofore, blameless in His sight.

Prayer.—Give us to this end, dear Lord, the power of Thy spirit. Grant that we may bring forth fruits meet for repentance, to the glory of Thy name and to the salvation of our souls. Amen.

THURSDAY.

A CLEAR CONSCIENCE.

"I have fought a good fight; I have kept the faith."—2 Tim. 4:7.

There is true pride in true achievement. As Paul looks back over his life, his metaphors are drawn from the arena. The "fight," the "keeping of faith," and the "crown." It is interesting to compare these verses with Tennyson's "Crossing the bar."

"Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me;
And may there be no moaning of the bar
When I put out to sea.

"Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness or farewell
When I embark."

Prayer.—We thank Thee, Lord Jesus for all things, but we thank Thee very specially for the heavenly blessing of power to live purely, faithfully and in good conscience. When we come to the end of our day, may we be ready to be offered up. Amen.

FRIDAY.

EVERY THING GOOD IS FROM GOD.

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of light."—James 1:17.

A Christian who keeps careful watch over himself, who in patience resists temptation, and who walks his way with meekness, can receive and keep the words, that it may perfect the good work which it has begun in Him. The end will be glory.

Prayer.—Lord, make us swift to hear Thy Word. Make us willing doers; and give us thereby more light and life from day to day, until we see Thee face to face. Amen.

SATURDAY.

LIVING SPIRIT AND POWER.

"My speech and my preaching was not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power. That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."—1 Cor. 2:4, 5.

Thank God that Christianity is not by nor in the wisdom of men, but by the indwelling of the Spirit of God—the spirit of righteousness and the spirit of the glory of good.

Paul, no doubt, feels a painful inadequacy of his preaching, but he has the consolation of knowing that he had not tried to show himself off with wise and profound arguments to attract the wisdom of men. Paul believed that the "wisdom of this world is foolishness" when it comes to a matter of religion. Faith rests not on intellectual brilliancy, but on the power of God. They are His preaching was pervaded with a convincing note, supplied by the Spirit and the power of God. And so he says, "We are fools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise; . . . ye have glory, but we dishonor."

Prayer.—Dear Heavenly Father, we pray for the spirit to dominate our every thought and action today. Give us the deep sense of reality of God's indwelling. Amen.

SUNDAY.

FAILURE OF ARDENT CHRISTIANS.

"O Faithless generation, how long shall I be with you?"

Against whom is this passionate outburst of our Lord's directed? Clearly He feels that something is in violent contrast with the tense majesty of the spirit and experience of the disciples on the Mount of Transfiguration from which they had just come.

The disciples had been left behind to effect a cure, and they, it seems, expected to effect it. They should have been able to effect it, but they failed. Our Lord ascribes their failure to prayerlessness.

In all the teachings of our Lord, He sets no limit to the power of prayer of faith, and as prayer without faith is as nought, so one without the other is pure, unadulterated faithlessness.

The futility of so many of our own prayers makes us discouraged. The disciples may have been discouraged, but we note that they did not give up. Their lives and their ministry revealed the leavening power of God. It revealed the unfolding will of God in humanity. It brought to us what we have of His Word. What the world knows today in Christianity is the fruit of these beginnings. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

Prayer.—Dear Lord, make us wholly Thine this day. Make us faithful forever. Amen.

DISCUSSING CHURCH UNION.

When the Presbyterian General Assembly meets in Cincinnati, May 29th, the plan, already proposed, of merging the Dutch Reform Church, the United Presbyterian, and the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, will be acted upon. The same assembly will also consider the question of organic union with seven other branches of the Reform and Presbyterian Churches in America. When the Southern Presbyterian Church meets in its General Assembly at Charlottesville, Va., May 22nd, recommendations will be considered for taking important action on the plan of union already proposed to and by this body.

When the Northern Baptist Convention meets in Cleveland, Ohio, May 28th to June 2nd, one of the important questions in the convention will be that of the proposed union with the Disciples of Christ. These are some of the bodies who, in national council this year, will debate and consider close affiliation between the denominations, and, in some instances, organic union. The question of Church union is one of paramount importance in the various ecclesiastical assemblies, and a result is a better understanding and a closer affiliation between all denominations of Protestantism. In His longest recorded prayer, our Saviour fervently prayed "That they all may be one . . . that the world may believe that Thou didst send me." A united Christianity, following and pressing on toward an uplifted Christ, will do much to hasten the day of His coming again and of His complete vindication and victory over the forces of sin and evil. J. O. A.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

All our children attend the village Sunday School on Sunday mornings. The larger boys and girls attend Church service at the community Church on Sunday mornings. On Sunday afternoon we have a special religious program in our own chapel at 3 o'clock, which service all the children are expected to attend. We invite some one each Sunday to come and talk to the children, which gives us a varied and interesting program. On Sunday evenings the larger boys and girls attend the programs put on by the college students at the auditorium. This leaves the smaller boys and girls at home. But these little fellows have organized and carry out a simple but impressive service of their own, which is interesting and helpful.

It was our pleasure to attend this little service last Sunday evening. The children had arranged their own program in their own way, and at the beginning of the service they handed the program to the matron, who called it out. The program was arranged as follows: First, a song, which all joined in, without the use of the piano. You would be surprised to know how sweetly they sang. They then had prayer, led by a little girl less than ten years old. Another little girl read a chapter in the New Testament, after which another little girl led in prayer. It was touching, because these prayers were from the promptings of the heart and expressed the yearnings of their little souls. It made it more touching because in each of their little prayers they asked the Lord to bless each of the matrons who had them under their care and who were trying to be a mother to them. They very tenderly asked the Lord to bless the superintendent and his wife who were giving their life to help them in their young and tender years and give them a chance in life. Then they called on the writer to make a talk. After the talk they sang a closing song.

These little services would touch the heart of any one. We have real nice little boys and girls in the orphanage, and it is a real joy to see them develop so beautifully.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 15, 1930.

Brought forward		$6,524.51

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Virginia Conference:

High Point	$ 6.67
Greensboro, First	14.54
Durham	28.57
Lebanon	2.14
Rocky Ford	1.00
Long's Chapel	2.70
Liberty	1.73
Happy Home	1.83
Bethlehem	5.76
		64.94

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Turner's Chapel	$ 1.50
Damascus	2.25
Liberty Vance	4.27
		8.02

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Hill	$ 7.10
Ramseur	5.13
		12.23

Eastern Virginia Conference:

First S. S., Richmond	$13.76
Suffolk	30.00
Rosemont	9.50
		53.26

Valley Virginia Conference:

Dry Run	$ 1.35
Bethlehem	3.10
Timber Ridge	1.71
		6.16

Special Offerings.

C. A. Hughes	$ 5.00
Mrs. K. C. Rountree, Sunbury, N. C.	2.00
K. C. Rountree, Sunbury, N. C.	1.00
Mr. Bullock, support of Hazel	20.00
C. A. Penn, N. Y. City, support	50.00
E. M. Davenport, support children	37.50
Cash item	1.00
M. Y. Wilson, support children	20.00
R. J. Miller, support children	62.50
		199.00
Grand total		$6,868.12

BIENNIAL REPORT.

(Continued from Page 9.)

Summary.

Total receipts for biennium	$26,616.76
Total disbursements for biennium	25,449.07
Balance on hand	$ 1,167.69

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. H. S. HARDCASTLE,
Treasurer.

I have audited the books and accounts of Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, Treasurer of the Woman's Board of Missions, S. C. C., for the the period from April 25, 1928, to April 26, 1930, and

I certify that the preceding statements of income and disbursements agree with the books, with the addition of $494.40 which is deposited as a savings account in the Farmers Bank of Nansemond; and in my opinion correctly set forth the true condition of the Woman's Board of Missions, S. C. C., as of April 26, 1930.

Suffolk, Va. HERBERT C. JANUARY,
April 26, 1930. Certified Public Accountant.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ---------- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better | a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 76. 1. & 57. 1. 2 or, all | 1

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x ---- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [26]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed or Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible.
No. 03255x ---------- $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x ---------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR ENLARGING PROGRAM.

(An address delivered before the Woman's Missionary Rally of the Rockingham District, held at Reidsville, N. C., April 8th, and published by request of that body.)

For many years the Christian Church has sought ways and means through which the great commission of the Master to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature might be realized, and that the answer to His prayer, "that they all may be one," might have a beginning.

Happily for those who love His cause, we have at last found some ways and means to satisfy our ambitions. These ways and means have been revealed through meeting and coming to know the leaders and their followers in the Congregational Church, which, like our own, but for a much longer time and in a much larger way, have sought to make Christ known to the world and to bring about union within the ranks of His followers.

Through this new communion and union, we have greatly enlarged our program, and the opportunity which is now ours is a challenge to our deepest desires, our highest hopes, and to our broadest visions in regard to the task of taking the gospel to these new countries and new peoples.

We are living in the light of the brightest day the Christian Church has ever seen. We have joined hands and hearts with a million more who are anxious that we share with them the joy of serving the millions whom we have not known in our work up until the present time. The Congregational Church has blazed the way into these lands, and they are now asking that we join them in completing the task they have so well begun.

Up until last October we were serving only two foreign countries in our missionary efforts. In one day we entered six more countries; and it is of that new work that I shall speak.

The change is so sudden and so vast it is hard to comprehend our new opportunities, but we shall try.

I feel, however, that in order to make our journey complete we should go by the way of Porto Rico and Japan on our way out to Africa, India, China, Turkey, Greece and the Philippines, which is our new work.

In Porto Rico we are to carry on the work for the present as we have been doing. Later the work will be united there. On this field we have the Barretts and Miss Adams, with five native pastors, one Bible worker, one kindergarten teacher, and other part-time workers. We have a membership of 450, ten outposts, thirteen Sunday Schools with an enrollment of 1,000. Much good is being accomplished through the young people's work under Miss Adams' direction.

In Japan, the Congregational Board is to share $10,000 with us, and we are to share a like amount in the work in their fields. On the field we have nine missionaries, fourteen pastors, sixteen kindergarten teachers and twelve other workers. We have sixteen Churches, with 1,966 members; 23 Sunday Schools, with an enrollment of 1,629. In Japan we meet the work of the Congregational Board, and the plan of union in this field is being worked out as fast as possible. The work of the Congregational Church is already well established in Japan, and many workers and much equipment is available and in operation.

We are now helping to support a union seminary, which is a telling force in the work of the Churches in Japan. We are also assisting in the publication of a paper and magazines which are being distributed throughout the country. With the mission schools, our press, and the union of our forces, the work will move steadily on.

The work in Africa is much larger than that in Porto Rico or Japan. There we have ninety-nine missionaries under the employ of the American Board. Assisting these in the work are 1,850 trained native workers, with twenty-nine stations in centers of activity. We have 318 schools which have an enrollment of 20,000 students. There are 611 places of service in the territory covered by our workers, and the total attendance is 8,500. We also have a splendid hospital and dispensary as sources of reaching the needs of the body.

The schools which we help to support are a source of joy to us, because they are modern in the courses offered and in enrollment. The young men and women are being trained in agriculture and in other branches as important.

The work in Western Central Africa is under the direction of negro workers and is being supported by colored Congregational Churches.

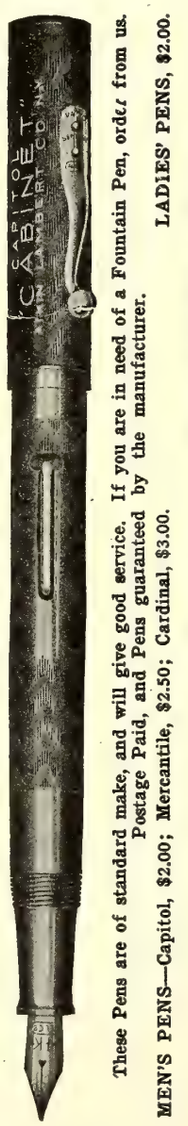
Of the 320,000,000 souls in India, only 5,000,000 can be counted for Christ. Other religions, such as Hindu, Mohammedan and Parcee. Rivalry between the religions is strong, but the situation is encouraging for the Christian forces because the faiths are judged, in part at least, by the results they produce, and there is nothing that can compete with the great work of the Spirit of Jesus Christ in the lives of men; therefore we may take heart.

We have in India 129 missionaries and 2,200 native workers, with twenty-five stations and more than two hundred outposts. There are 593 places of regular worship, with 51,000 worshipers. There are 584 mission schools, with a total enrollment of 37,000 pupils. There are seven hospitals and fourteen dispensaries to administer to bodily sufferings.

One of the most influential units of the work in India is the Lucy Perry Noble Institute at Madura. In this school are taught people of all ages. The grown-ups come to learn the simple principles of education, while the young children come to learn the same, and to be led into further preparation, including the biblical instruction which enables them to take a great part in the work of Christian leadership among their fellows. Another fine feature of this school is that it is the home for those who are driven from their homes because of their Christian faith. Many are disinherited for becoming Christians, and to know that they may have a home where they are taught more of Christ is a bulwark for their faith. Principles of modern business and living are also taught in this school.

Near this school stands a magnificent Hindu temple which cost millions of dollars, with its

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN



These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

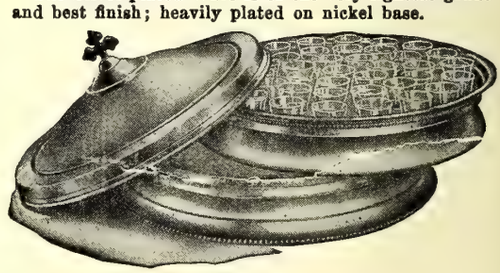
Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

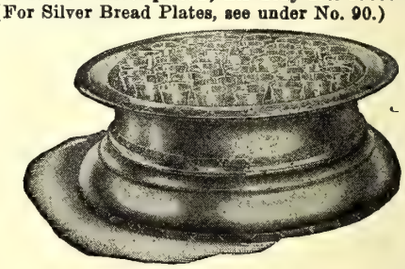
The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

idols, its domes and decorations offering attractions which are almost irresistible to the millions who come to Madura. But the simplicity of the buildings of the Christian school, with the purity symbol of white, makes a great impression upon the passers-by, and the contrast has its effect.

Although China is in constant turmoil and civil strife, the work of the kingdom goes on. But at times, as at present, some anxiety is felt for the workers because of the bandits.

The American Board has 173 missionaries and eight hundred trained native workers behind the work in China. We have a number of hospitals and dispensaries which are assisting greatly in the work done through the many Churches, with their outposts and Sunday Schools. Some of the best talent on the entire field is in China, and its consecration to the work of the kingdom is sure to mean much by way of meeting the needs of this great backward people and the seed being sown will bring a great harvest for the Master in time to come.

It is not strange and striking that we now have, in some cases, workers going out over the roads which St. Paul traveled as he preached the unsearchable riches of the kingdom, and even where our Lord walked and taught the ways of truth and life? It is virtually true, and all because the people refused to hear the word! It further exemplifies what may be expected of any people which refuses to hear the gospel of Christ, which is their only hope.

In Constantinople, the capital of the ancient kingdom, stands the school of religion which we help to support and which is training the workers who go out to teach and preach Christ, and, through His power, to make over a people who would not hear; a people who had the greatest opportunity of any who have lived; but they rejected, and through the centuries they have been paying the penalty.

In this school of religion sit young men and women of different races to learn from a common teacher the lessons which they might have been taught by their parents, "but they know not Christ." A great influence is being radiated from this school through those it is trainnig. They go out and organize Sunday Schools, conduct daily vacation Bible schools, and organize and conduct boys' and girls' clubs. Much work is being done in the refugee camps in which a great work was done during the distressing times of the siege of the enemy.

The work in Turkey is very interesting and differs greatly from that in other fields. Turkey is undergoing some great changes. A language is being perfected which will help the country and the workers. In other respects, Turkey is becoming modernized. She is not ready to hear the gospel, but desires a religion which can demonstrate a power sufficient to lift her from her present state of confusion to levels of progress yet unknown to her. The work must, therefore, be carried on through social contacts. Playgrounds have been built where the workers give their time to the teaching of games. Already there are thousands who come to these places to enjoy the contests of games, and as a result they are learning many of the rules which shall govern them as they play the greatest game of all—the game of life.

In the Philippines we have a half-million minds tainted with Mohammendan ideas who need Christ, and they have been assigned to the work of the American Board.

At Cagayan we have our training-school for evangelists and other types of workers. Here, too, is the hospital where our own Dr. and Mrs. M. J. W. White are located and doing a fine work. We rejoice that the Philippines have our school system, and therefore many problems which we encounter elsewhere are solved for us.

We have in the Philippines twenty-six missionaries, 266 native workers, and ten stations, with 297 outposts, 320 places of worship, with 30,000 worshipers or seekers.

As a matter of summary, let us set before us as briefly as we can the salient facts about our enlarging program. The work now embraces eight foreign countries. There are 730 missionaries under the employ of the American Board, and they are being assisted by 5,000 trained workers who are natives of the countries in which the work is being done. We have 80,000 students in our mission schools, a great per cent of which will become helpers in the work.

The annual budget of the American Board represents an outlay of $1,850,000. This amount is not as great as that spent by us yearly for chewing-gum, but as the years go by we hope to catch a clearer vision of the great work and increase our giving.

It is rather difficult to realize the bigness of our present work, for it is indeed large; but may we study and pray that our vision may be enlarged, our faith become more sturdy, and that our willingness to sacrifice for our Christ may become more evident through our increased support of the work. If we fail to meet the great challenge of this enlarged program, it means that these for whom He died shall have to wait until a vision can be caught, and in the meantime die without the joy of knowing the truth which makes men free, and without knowing Him who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.

CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr.

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
REV. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the first week of month following renewal, provided it is received befort the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: "Want Ads," 2 cents a word an insertion. Display rates quoted upon request.

Remittances for advertising and other business matters will be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Notices: Obituary and Marriage notices, limited to 100 words, are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittance should accompany copy. Write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

MUNCH.

Mrs. Lucy Alice Munch was born January 12, 1866, and died April 20, 1930, aged 64 years, 3 months and 8 days. Sister Munch was a faithful member of Dry Run Christian Church and loved and respected by all who knew her. She is survived by one daughter and by seven grandchildren. Funeral services were held at Dry Run April 22, 1930.

A. W. ANDES.

ALLEN.

Sister Alie Fulton Allen was born April 10, 1842, and died March 21, 1930. She was married to Rev. P. W. Allen in 1862. Her husband preceded her to his reward nearly thirty-four years. To this union were born eight children, seven of whom survive to mourn their loss in the death of their mother.

Sister Allen did much while quite young toward the organization of Salem Chapel Church, and assisted greatly in soliciting funds for the present Church building. She was the last surviving charter member of this Church. Her life was one of noble consecration to the cause of Christ. Although in very poor health for many years, she bore her suffering with Christian fortitude with unfaultering faith in her Saviour.

Not long before she was called home the writer visited her, read the Scripture to her and joined her by her bedside in prayer for His sustaining grace until her coronation with the crown of life.

"There is the throne of David,
And there, from care released,
The song of them that triumph,
The shout of them that feast.
And they who, with their Leader,
Have conquered in the fight,
Forever and forever
Are clad in robes of white."

W. C. WICKER.

MARRIAGES

COBLE—PACE.

On April 16, 1930, Rev. R. H. Coble, of Burlington, N. C., and Miss Lillie Mae Pace, of Burlington, N. C., Route 3, were united in matrimony by the writer at his home in Elon College. Only a few friends were present. Both parties attended school at Elon College. Mrs. Coble graduated in 1926 and has been teaching since. They will make their home near Burlington. Their friends wish them much happiness and prosperity. J. F. APPLE.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

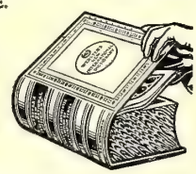
The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.



Get The Best!

HOLMAN BIBLES

THE WORLD'S BEST BOOK — DURABLE FLEXIBLE BINDINGS — WILL NOT BREAK IN THE BACK

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

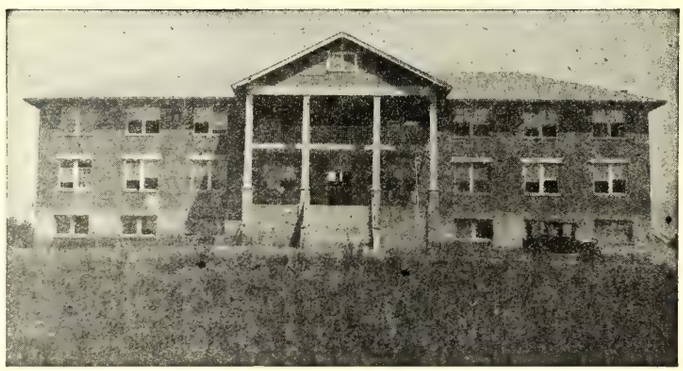
PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.



GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1930. NUMBER 21.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches
Mrs N T Farmer

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

THE PROHIBITION POLL.—

The Literary Digest prohibition poll has stirred a wave of discussion that has swept the country. It has been talked about everywhere—praised by some, denounced by others. The moral right of the Digest to conduct such a poll has been called into question. The method of selecting the recipients of the ballots and the methods of tabulation have been criticised. It seemed that every possible side of the question had been presented, until the Christian Century called attention to the outstanding fact that appears stamped upon the face of the tabulations themselves and which had certainly escaped one who had followed the tabulations closely.

The fact which the Christian Century pointed out in an editorial entitled "The Sixteen Million," is the number of ballots that are unaccounted for. At the time the editorial was written, only about four million of the much-heralded twenty million had been heard from. The belligerent "drys" and the vociferous "wets" had registered their convictions. The ordinary run of people who shape the destiny of this nation had simply failed to rise to the tempting bait of the Literary Digest.

A TRAGIC SITUATION.—

If one should judge from the accounts appearing in the public press, the most important question before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is what the conference is going to do with the charges that have been preferred against Bishop Cannon.

This is no attempt to try the case. At the time this is written, the public has no way of knowing whether the charges will be brought before the conference; nor would we attempt to pass judgment as to whether the issue should be brought before the conference or not. There are perfectly capable men who will decide what should be done, and the conference will surely do what seems best in the light of the facts.

Every one is aware that the wet press and the wet politicians have made capital of Bishop Cannon's case. It has been magnified far beyond its real importance. But beyond all the exaggeration which may have attended the publicity, and besides the interest that has been created by the prominence which the question has received in the daily papers, there lies an issue that is of vital interest to all the Protestant Churches in this country. It is a question that reaches farther than the bounds of Southern Methodism. It has given occasion for rejoicing to the enemies of the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ, that one who has been so highly honored should be the object of such accusations. Christians every where ought to desire to see the Church and all those who represent the Church stand irreproachable before the world. If mistakes or false steps have been made, Christendom has a right to expect that they shall not be condoned. If those who are blameless have been falsely accused, then Christendom has a right to expect that those who are in a position to do so shall establish beyond question the integrity of those who represent the cross.

FAITH TRIUMPHING.—

We are not accustomed to think of the age in which we are living as primarily an age of faith; and yet there are evidences that there is taking place in this generation one of the finest triumphs of faith that the world has seen for centuries. We refer to the faith that is being manifested in the native Churches and the native leaders on mission fields to manage their own affairs, and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit to carry on the work of evangelism in their own lands.

This confidence in the ability of native Christians is not confined to any particular denomination or to any one mission land. The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which is now in session in Dallas, Texas, has approved autonomous Church governments for the work in Korea, Brazil, and Mexico. No doubt, similar action would have been taken with reference to the Methodist Church in China had not the delegates from China felt that they were confronted by too many pressing problems to undertake at this time the complete management of their own local affairs.

Other denominations are entrusting larger responsibility to native leaders, and taking steps toward arousing a deeper interest on the part of the native Church membership. It was but natural that the missionaries should have felt a grave concern for their converts and for the development of the Churches which they had established. It was realized all along that the time must come when the missionaries should begin to withdraw their supervision and commit direction to native Christians. But it is almost impossible for those who are as vitally connected as are the missionaries to realize when their changes have reached the age that they are capable of managing their own affairs.

This same spirit of faith in others is manifesting itself on the home fields. Christians everywhere are coming to have a larger confidence in other Christians. There is absolutely no authority in the New Testament for the exercise of such authority as the average denominational body exercises over its constituency. The New Testament makes supreme the authority of love. But ecclesiastical courts and denominational governing bodies have never been able to master the technique of exercising the authority of love. It is not likely that they ever will. But they are learning something better. They are learning how to trust one another, and to leave the task of guidance to the Holy Spirit.

THE PRISON CHALLENGE.—

As was to be expected, the prison mutinies and the prison disaster at Columbus, Ohio, have stirred up a wave of interest in the prison population of the country. The tangible results to date are to hurry the projects that were all ready under way, to build larger and safer prisons, and to create discussions of the needs of most States to provide adequate prison facilities.

The time is ripe for the undertaking of a real program that will look toward the reclamation of the criminal. It has long been an accepted fact that our prisons as at present conducted do but little save restrain the hardened criminal, and that they are turning the petty offenders and those who are in jail for the first time into hardened and desperate criminals.

It is at best a difficult problem. There are many evidences which point to the fact that for hundreds of prisoners it is not an impossible task. There have been a few prison wardens who by introducing humane methods of dealing with their charges have accomplished wonders. There are those who have made a study of the criminal and who believe they have suggestions to make as to the method of dealing with the criminal that would save many of them. But such methods of helping the criminal back to ways of honesty and dependability as have been suggested are impossible in most of the large prisons as they exist today.

The criminal population of the country offers the biggest challenge to modern psychology. Some investigation has been made in this field, but in the main it is a great unexplored realm. A far more detailed study has been made of the inmates of the insane asylums of the country than has ever been made of those who crowd our prisons. Yet no one who has any acquaintance whatever with the psychology of the present day would doubt that there is far greater promise of reclaiming the criminal than of curing those who are mentally unbalanced.

It is a challenge to the Church, and the Church has long been aware of the challenge. But for some unexplainable reason, the Church has never seen fit to attack the problem in a wholehearted manner. There is simply not enough interest in the criminal to make it possible for either Church or State at the present time to undertake an adequate program for trying to reclaim those who have fallen into the ways of crime. It is surprising that some rich man has not seen the possibility that is offered, and given millions to finance the work of saving the criminal.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Bro. J. A. Kimball, Manson, N. C., writes: "We had a great and good day at Mt. Auburn Sunday, the 11th inst. Had Dr. D. A. Long with us." Dr. Long was a former pastor and is much beloved by Mt. Auburn.

A correspondent, in writing of stewardship, says: "The constructive side of stewardship is the Church at work doing its best and, day by day, applying itself to know how to do better the next day; in other words, the Church in the hands of loyal workmen at its best work."

Rev. James Cheshire, Colquitt, Ga., president of the Midway Freewill Baptist Association, writes: "We are glad, indeed, to have Bro. A. R. Flowers in our midst and in our Churches for work among the young people especially, and to have the greetings that he brings to us from other Christian brotherhoods with which he is affiliated. We can assure him and all concerned that we, as a denomination, are for that fellowship and co-operation among all Christians that will make us all one big brotherhood in Christ and co-workers in His kingdom."

The Southern Baptists, in convention in New Orleans last week, made up and adopted a budget for their Churches in the South of $3,000,000. It is noticeable that the Baptists did that for which they are noted, viz: they gave first place to missions—to foreign missions. From a total budget of $3,000,000 to be raised for all purposes, exactly one-half, $1,500,000 goes to foreign missions; to home missions, $725,000. God seems to permit a people to grow only as they lift their minds and their hearts to others than themselves and become willing to give their best, that the great commission of our Lord shall be carried out and that His saving power shall be proclaimed at home and abroad, and even to the uttermost parts.

The Greensboro Daily News carries this about an interesting event in one of our good old Churches: "The memorial service at Shallow Well Christian Church, four miles east of Sanford, in memory of the members who have passed away, which is held annually in May, was this year largely attended, and one of the most interesting held during the forty years in which the custom has been observed. Early in the day people began gathering on the beautiful grounds of the historic old Church, many of them were former members, who had wandered afar. The program for the day included addresses by Rev. G. R. Underwood, Pittsboro, a former pastor; Rev. T. Fred Wright, the present pastor; Rev. Ivey L. Poole, pastor of Jonesboro Methodist Church; Rev. J. T. Barham, pastor of Buffalo Presbyterian Church; J. Walker Kelly, Jonesboro, and H. M. Jackson, Sanford."

The episcopal message which the bishops of the M. E. Church, South, delivered to their quadrennial convention, now in session at Dallas, Texas, had, as its heart and soul, we think, these lines which pertain to our own as well as to every other communion of Christians: "What we most need is the deepening of the religious experience of our own people; the revival of family religion in the homes of our Church members; the fuller interpretation of the mind of the Master to the men of today with reference to all aspects of human living; the bringing back of the sense of the divine presence into the common, every-day life of men; the development of a broader spirit of brotherly love amongst ourselves and with reference to all God's people everywhere; and a very definite effort by personal and pastoral evangelism and by the faithful preaching of the gospel of the grace of God to bring to Christ the multitudes who as yet have not been reached through the ordinary channels of Church activity."

A friend, in a personal letter, says that for him, Joshua 14 is the "sunshine chapter" of the Old Testament: "The words of Caleb, and his heritage, and the blessings which resulted, make a contribution to the glory of God which outshines the sun. Caleb said in the days of his old age, 'I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me; as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out and to come in.' This Caleb, who was a slave upon the planis of Egypt, through faith, became the prince upon Mt. Hebron, for 'Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb, because that he wholly followed the Lord God of Israel,' the latter days of Caleb making a contribution to Israel's glorious history which demonstrates that, although giant sins are entrenched in strong mountain fastness, yet such become helpless before a faith born of God" (Josh. 14:12). For words of sunshine, comfort and cheer, give us the Bible. Its optimism and its joy, as well as its faith and its hope, will, through its all-conquering Christ, yet be victorious over Satan and sin.

A booklet of twelve pages just received tells of the proposed union in Porto Rico under the name of the Evangelical Church of Porto Rico of the following denominations: Congregational, Christina, Disciples of Christ, Methodist, Presbyterian and United Brethren. On March 4, 1930, thirty-seven representatives of the seven Churches comprising the Evangelical Union of Porto Rico, met in the Y. M. C. A. building of San Juan to study anew the question of uniting these Churches, and the following resolution was adopted: "Be it resolved by the representatives of the Congregational, Christian, Disciples of Christ, Methodist, Presbyterian and United Brethren Churches assembled in San Juan this fifth day of March, 1930, That it is our conviction that the time has come when our respective Churches in Porto Rico should unite in one body, to be known as the Evangelical Church of Porto Rico; and we therefore request that the respective mission boards and denominational organizations in the island grant authorization for such a union at the earliest possible date." Church union is taking place in the mission fields even more rapidly and more completely than at the "home base."

Dr. W. M. Jay, having resigned his professorship in Elon College, to take effect with the close of the present session, is available for the pastorate, and here is hoping and believing that some one of our strong and forward-looking pastorates will not be long in engaging this man of ability, scholarship and of achievement in the class-room and in the pulpit. Dr. Jay was a very successful and much-beloved pastor, as well as an able and eloquent preacher before coming to the chair of English in Elon College. While in the college, he has kept up his contacts by frequently preaching on the Sabbath and serving successfully one or more rural Churches, who, without his service, were without a pastor. We commend Dr. Jay most highly to any pastorate needing a capable and competent preacher and leader. He has an interesting family also that enters heartily into his work, Mrs. Jay being at present the esteemed president of the Woman's Missionary Society at Elon and the Woman's Missionary Convention editor, who supplies the programs in THE SUN for the monthly meetings. She is deeply interested in missions and all that pertains to kingdom enlargement, and is to her preacher-husband a real helpmeet. Whatever pastorate is fortunate enough to secure Dr. Jay will, in that act, secure two capable and competent workers in the Church.

A schoolmate and friend of the editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN was a member of Congress for some years from North Carolina, and possibly did more than any man in the Congress to pave the way for prohibition, being himself the father of the "Webb act," which was the forerunner of the Volstead act. This friend is now Federal Judge E. Yates Webb, and as a judge on the bench, is waging the same war for sobriety and prohibition that he waged so valiantly and successfully as a member of Congress. In opening the Federal court at Asheville last week, the daily papers report Judge Webb, in delivering his charge to the grand jury at the opening of court, as condemning, in no uncertain terms, "the increasing agitation for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and ascribed the success of the "wet cause" in the Literary Digest's straw vote on prohibition to the failure of the poll to reach the women of the rural communities. Judge Webb declared the luxury and comforts now enjoyed by the people of the United States are the fruits of prohibition, and insisted the return of the saloon would make automobile travel unsafe, undermine the schools and destroy the homes. Asserting the prohibition law "is one of the best enforced laws in the State," Judge Webb declared that North Carolina would always be dry, regardless of action taken by other States in the Union. He said the women would not permit the return of the saloons, because they had suffered most when the State and nation were wet.

WILL YOU DO YOUR PART?

The heart of every true member of the Christian Church should rejoice in the widening opportunities that have come to us in missionary endeavor, through the union of the Congregational and Christian Churches. Instead of confining our missionary efforts outside of our country largely to two fields, we are now privileged to go literally and actually into all the world. This indeed is a privilege and a joy to all who have caught the spirit of Christ and who have a world view of things.

This, however, increases our responsibilities fearfully; to see and to know, demands that we go. Not every one can go in person, but every one can go in gifts and offerings. I am, therefore, appealing to every pastor and every individual member throughout the entire Convention to take this increased responsibility in missionary endeavor as individual, and to take this privilege of giving as personal and imperative.

We are now far from our goal for missions. Have you made your offerings? Has your Church raised its share—one-third as much as you pay your pastor?

If not, pastor and people, won't you please set yourselves to this task now? See that your Church does not fall behind. Will you do your part?

Our Mission Secretary, Dr. Atkinson, cannot see everybody. This is a physical impossibility, but every individual can make a gift. Let every Church in the Convention send in an offering on or before June 10th.

Will you do your part? Christ is depending on you.

L. E. SMITH, President.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

PREACHING PENTECOST.

By Rev. John G. Truitt.

"Looking unto Jesus, who . . . endured the cross . . . Consider Him . . ."—Heb. 12:2.

When Peter stood up with the eleven to preach on the Day of Pentecost, it seems to me it would be a fine thing if we could see again Peter flash out a sword to defend his Lord Jesus. And this time he stood with a sword not of tempered steel, but one of empowered faith and love. He stood up that Pentecost Day with a drawn sword in his hand, and no one said this time, "Put up thy sword into the sheath" (John 18:11). Ah! how beautifully the words of John 18:10 ring out now: "Then Simon Peter having a sword drew it." And he drew the mightiest sword ever handed down from the armies of heaven, namely: the sword of the Spirit as exalted in the preaching of the cross. And on this Pentecost Day he cut more than a servant's ear, but rather he pierced the souls of men. His preaching was of that type which could be said to be "looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.' The following two words are "consider Him," and this is what Pentecost preaching does.

Peter's sermon. Peter's sermon turned to the Bible. He was not afraid of the Scriptures. And the Old Testament Scriptures at that! He did not tell them when Joel wrote. He did not "suppose" he was "early," or "late." He told them what Joel prophecied. Joel's prophecies were not psycho-analyzed; they were preached. Peter got the meaning of Joel. He saw what Joel was in faith believing, and he told the people plainly "this is that." There was a ring of authority in Peter's words that wrought conviction. Upon that conviction he preached Jesus. He "considered Him." "Ye men of Israel, hear these words, Jesus of Nazareth . . ." How much doubt is there in that? There was no begging of the question. It was Jesus of Nazareth, a despised town on a far edge of the country, but a town well known, nevertheless, and Jesus was of that town. Furthermore, while more than five hundred people had seen the resurrected form of Jesus, Peter plainly states that He was "a man," no ghost, no spirit, no fake, no vision, no theory, no dream, but "a man approved of God." How I wish those words could ring out for us today: "Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you." Peter had seen Him, known Him, loved Him, served Him, denied Him; but now never again would he deny Him. With a drawn sword in his hand, he does not strike for controversy, but conviction.

And who was Peter that he should be able to do this great thing? He was a frail, often faltering vessel of earth, used mightily by God to plant the faith once and for all in the hearts of his thousands. I am further glad to observe that "the eleven" stood up with him. "Our good old Simon," they said, "week, impetuous, hasty, lovable; and we are standing by him, for him, and with him." Great work that! What poor preacher today would not preach a thousand times better if his people stood by him in mighty prayer? He did not fight his battle alone. It was not a cold, indifferent pew that went with him to the hearts of the unreached. Joseph Parker preached his great sermons in London town, and men went away saying what a preacher! At the same time, Spurgeon, a much less known preacher at that time, went before his congregations, "looking unto Jesus . . . considering Him," and men went from his services saying what a great Saviour! Spurgeon says two hundred people in an adjoining room prayed for him while he preached—that made the difference.

"Ye . . . by wicked hands have crucified and slain." When the people hung on the words of Peter, he told them the truth, and it did not drive them away. He told them how Jesus met His death, and at whose hands. He did not for one moment leave out the cross. "Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it." He did not debate Jesus' resurrection; he preached it: "Whom God hath raised up." He was not afraid of the good news any more than he was afraid of the Old Testament. I used to wonder how Dr. John Urqhart Newman could see so much in Peter's sermon as he used to lecture his pupils at Elon College; now I wonder how his pupils could have seen so little. I cannot yet analyze it so beautifully as did my great teacher, but I begin to catch something of the meaning of that sermon. Back to the Old Testament Peter goes, and with no apology: "For David speaketh concerning Him." And then having said still other things, Peter concludes: "Therefore, let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." It was Peter who had said some time ago: "Thou art the Christ." It took poor doubting Thomas to put the mightier confession upon his lips, "Lord." "Both Lord and Christ" God had made Him, and even doubting Thomas could help him to see it. My friend, do not count yourself out because you, too, may demand proof; Thomas demanded it, and received, and the world has been helped by his doing so. Demand proof. Demand it of your pulpit; demand it of your pastor; demand it of your Christian neighbor; and, having it, do not turn away, but rather fall at the feet of your proved Christ, crying, "My Lord and my God."

Ponder the preaching of Peter. "Jesus is Lord," not Mohammed, not might, not money, not the many; but "Jesus is both Lord and Christ." Jonathan Edwards is said to have preached a sermon on falling into the hands of an angry God. Be pleased to let yourselves fall into the hands of Jesus as your Lord. In the hands of Jesus, in the judgment of Jesus, in the fold of Jesus, in the service of Jesus, and in the love of Jesus, and let Jesus be for you "both Lord and Christ." Such Pentecost preaching enlisted its thousands in a day when thousands were scarce indeed! "Now, when they heard this, they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles (those who stood up with him received their reward, too), "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Results, "And the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls."

Years passed, many preachers arose, sermon-tasting began, and the newly founded Church began to grow its troubles. "Every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I am of Apollos, and I of Cephas (Peter), and I of Christ (said the holier-than-thou group). Was Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you?" Paul's very questions are the preaching of Christ, the "considering Him," and neither is Paul leaving out the cross: "Was Paul crucified for you?" Any one save Christ will divide us, but about the crucified and resurrected Christ we may be joined forever. "O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you. . . . I marvel that ye are so soon removed . . ."

Still other years have passed. Paul is long since dead. Jesus has appeared to John the last of the twelve. Hear Jesus speaking (and as we hear Him, think how truly these words could be used of some of us! How up-to-date they seem). "I know thy works (we are such great workers), and thy labor (how busy we are), and thy patience (truly), and how thou canst not bear them which are evil (how we criticise them and cast them out); and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not (we brand them bravely), and hast found them liars (and often told them so); and hast borne, and hast patience (how good we've been), and for my name's sake hast labored (with multiplied machinery, and with experts for efficiency), and hast not fainted (no, for we are still at it); nevertheless, let us in all seriousness hear that word: I have somewhat against thee, because thou has left thy first love."

Oh! cannot we all in these days when we really so much desire the Pentecost hear Jesus speaking to us: "Thou hast left thy first love"? Our first love—our first love for His commands; our first love for the Church; our first ardor of enthusiasm; our first love for missions; our first love for soul-winning; our first love for the true gospel; our first love for Jesus, our Saviour and our Friend? We have thought much about Church buildings, and have too often forgotten the Builder. We have thought too much about the work, and forgot the worker—the Author and Finisher of our faith.

This state of forgetfulness in Paul's and John's day brought forth the gospels and the letters. How the gospel races through to a mighty end, and then slow down to a snail's pace when it comes to the crucifixion and resurrection of our Lord Jesus! Not one word must be omitted from these sacred lines there. Reread the gospels to see how much space is given to these subjects. And the epistles are re-preaching the crucified and resurrected Christ. In other words, they are "looking unto Jesus, who . . . endured the cross . . . Consider Him." Such is the Pentecost preaching.

Next Sunday we will close this series with "Practicing Pentecost."

MOTHERS' DAY OBSERVED.

The Mothers' Day program which was rendered by the Christian Endeavor Society at Wissler's Chapel Church, near Mt. Jackson, Va., Sunday night, May 11th, at 7 o'clock, was presented before a large and appreciative audience.

The program opened with a hymn by the congregation, which was followed by a prayer by the pastor, Rev. B. J. Earp, and the reading of the secretary's report. Next was a short talk on "My Mother," by A. N. Green, followed in turn by the Scripture lesson by John Dean. The program consisted of songs, recitations and readings. Others who took part were Hilda Foley, Florence Arehart, Amanda Fry, Salena Hines, Junior Williams, Charles Walker, Nina Green, Edna Lee Ettel, and Gladys Green. The choir also rendered several selections, and at 8 o'clock the pastor preached a splendid Mothers' Day sermon. E. E.

(We thank E. E. for the above news letter. Are there not others who are just as interested in the work of their Churches who will write The Sun?)

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

CREDO.

I believe. I believe very intensely. Some of my beliefs are so tenacious and of such long standing that they have come to be a conviction, a sine qua non of my thinking. To part with such beliefs would be tearing up the foundations. To believe otherwise would wreck the scaffolding on which the building of my thoughts and life are erected.

I believe that God is. I believe that God is a Person. I believe that He is a perfect Person. I believe that in order to make that perfect Person comprehensible and intelligible, three are necessary—Father, Son and Holy Spirit. I believe in God, the Father, exercising His loving ministry over the household of His making. I believe in God the Son, the Father incarnate, through whom He revealed Himself as perfect personality in the flesh, and through His sinless nature revealed what man may become. I believe, therefore, in Jesus Christ as my Saviour and the world's Redeemer. I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Guide and Comforter, the Holy Personality, guiding in the way of truth and righteousness and peace.

I believe in the Bible—all of it—as the revealed Word and will of God. It tells what God, through individuals—many of them very weak individuals—can do in leading them to a knowledge of Himself. I believe that Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is building the Church in the world and, through it, bringing about the kingdom of heaven on earth. I believe that there are certain very definite and specific things about the Church He is building, at least five of which may be succinctly stated in language of this kind:

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church. And He is sufficient.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church. That takes in people of many faiths and sundry beliefs.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice. God gave that, and man cannot improve upon it.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership. It is the one and only test, after all.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all. People inherently have that right, and they will have nothing short of that privilege.

I believe in the spiritual union of God's people on earth, and that through the work of His Church, which is the Body of Christ, this spiritual union will result ultimately in organic union.

I believe these and many other things similar to these which would fill more than a column or two columns of this paper. They are fundamental in my thinking, and in that which I call my life, my attitude to life, to the world and to God.

All this is given not because the writer presumes to think his own beliefs are of any particular moment or worth advertising, but to state one single belief not given in the above which he holds very definitely, very tenaciously, very emphatically. And that is that there are some very good people in the world—many very much better people in the world than he himself is—who do not hold, certainly not tenaciously, to each and all of his beliefs as he himself does. Moreover, since these other and better persons are willing for him to hold his cherished "credo," he should allow these others the same privilege he claims for himself. He would, if he could, convince these others of his own cherished views and very strong convictions. But he would not, if he could, compel them against their will and knowledge to believe as he believes, nor force them to his way of thinking and of living against their knowledge and will. I conversed with one recently who differed very widely in his view and belief of baptism from that which I myself hold. And yet that other one was, I think, a far better man, more devout, a more consecrated Christian than I myself was. We parted as we met, he holding to his views, I to mine; but somehow in my heart, feeling that while my own belief in the matter had not been shaken in the least, and while I believe as strongly as I ever did in my chosen way and mode, that I was willing for him to hold to his chosen way and mode. I felt that my way was certainly the right and the only way for me; and it also seemed to me mine was bound to be the better belief for him. We parted as we had met—friends, brethren, a common bond between us, a fellowship that could not be broken even by views that differ, where differences seemed so little in the make-up of life, and the character and the conduct of those who held the two different beliefs.

I believe all right, and since you permit me the privilege of my belief, I shall permit you the privilege of yours; provided the test of Christian character and fellowship in service of Christ may obtain. That sentence, transmitted to us from ancient times and authority, still holds good: "In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; in all things, charity." J. O. A.

FREEDOM.

We who enjoy comparative freedom of thought and life think little of the source from which our freedom comes, nor do we stop to reckon the strength and the joy that freedom brings. The great Liberator of all time is Jesus our Lord. He did more to break the shackles of physical, mental and moral servitude than any person ever on the earth. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." One never knows freedom till one knows it in the fullness of His life.

The contribution that the gospel is making in pagan lands to the cause of freedom cannot be computed. The release of childhood and youth in non-Christian lands, brought about by missions and missionaries, has been worth a thousand-fold—more than all that foreign missions have cost from the beginning till now. If missions had done nothing else than release childhood and youth from binding superstition and servile prejudice, they would have made a contribution to mankind beyond all computation.

Mrs. W. H. Fisher, long time in India, has written a volume entitled "Freedom—A Story of Young India" for the youth of America. We wish every American youth could read this thrilling story. It relates the life of two youths, a son and daughter, in a well-to-do home of India. The parents were educated, the father occupying a government position; the mother, a type of the more cultured and refined class of Indian womanhood. They have the wealth and the ambition to give their son and daughter the best that the schools have to offer. This son and daughter, coming in contact with teachers, some of whom were Christians, embraced Christianity. These two youths, this boy and girl, brought up in the best traditions of their country and native religion, discovered the truth as it is revealed in Christ Jesus, and this truth discovers to them how they and the other youths were bound by inflexible prejudices and superstition, and also discovers to them how their mother, especially, has been bound all her life with "purdah." This mother loves her children, and in turn is loved by them and remains their companion and friend, and they remain true to their devoted mother. She is bound by purdah—the veil that screens her from all public gaze and keeps her enclosed and buried behind the doors of her own house; she is incapable of breaking away from the superstition that has now become engrained and a part of her existence. This mother struggles to be free and enjoy the laughter and the frolic, the ecstasy and the bliss of her healthy, vigorous, happy children who have found their way to freedom through Christ. (The contrast between this mother, bound by "purdah," and her children is greater and more striking than that between father and children, because the father was a man in touch with the outside world and already acquainted with the teachings of Christianity, a judge of the courts and an observer of the marvelous freedom and liberty that truth gives.)

Mrs. Fisher reveals the fact that this home is only typical of thousands and tens of thousands of others in India, the land of more than a million gods and of infinite, binding and paralyzing superstition. And yet into this land the missionary has gone with his story of love and life and liberty. The missionary is teaching the childhood of India to sing happy songs, to be glad in the sunlight of a loving Father's care, and to rejoice in knowing things and doing things that give freshness, vigor and wholesomeness to life. Christianity is giving the children of India and of China and Japan the way of light and laughter, the way of fun and fullness, the way of love and largeness, the way of frolic and freedom. Again, we repeat that if missions had done nothing else than to release the childhood and the youth in pagan lands and set them free from binding and burdening thraldom and superstition, they would have more than paid for every dollar spent and every effort made to give them the Man of Nazareth, who said: "Suffer the children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

This charming volume by Mrs. Fisher is printed by the Friendship Press, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York, and can be had for 85 cents the copy. How we wish every child into whose home THE CHRISTIAN SUN goes might have and read Mrs. Fisher's thrilling story of how a bright boy and a charming girl in India found freedom in the truth of our Lord. Christianity, through its missionaries, is saying to the childhood and youth of the pagan world, paralyzed and bound to its bed by superstition and ignorance, "Arise, take up thy bed, and in thy new-found freedom walk."

J. O. A.

OUR CHIEF MISTAKE ABOUT LIVING.

We naturally wish to get out of life all we can. Many of us fail of this good end because we put major emphasis on minor values. We regard as essentially important things which are non-essential and not important. As Bernard Iddings Bell declares, we lay the emphasis on "externalities," and expect them to make up life only to find that they disappoint and in the end delude and deceive. In order to get a proper perspective of these "externalities," Dr. Bell thinks we must consider them with the remembrance of death in one's mind:

"These externalities, for which most modern people live, are absurdly inadequate as objects of cultivation when one views them with a remembrance of death in one's mind. 'Money?' There are no pockets in a shroud. 'Prestige and reputation?' Most people are forgotten by the world before their bones have rotted. Even the greatest and most exceptional men and women of the past are to almost all of us only disembodied names. And lucky they are, perhaps, at that. They might have been ridiculed by some John Erskine or given a post-mortem psycho-analysis such as Mr. Woodward has lately given to poor old General Grant, or as Lytton Strachey has given to Queen Elizabeth. Oblivion is the happy lot of most reputations. 'Power and authority over men?' To possess them even in this world is dust and ashes; and after this world they mean nothing. Even the captains and the kings depart. 'Passion?' If we live to middle age we know, long before we die, that that is a Dead Sea apple. All these things—money, prestige, reputation, power, authority, passion—are external to the inner man. As such, they depart—some of them long before death, all of them at death. It is only the naked soul which may go on."

Only that which contributes to the soul, to the inner life, enhances the value of living and makes existence permanent and worth while.

If our living is to be made worth while, it is through ever-increasing soul-expansion, soul-development, soul-enlargement. The inner life is what counts. Happiness must be within. It cannot be bought. The inner life is the current that moves steadily down the stream of time and flows out enlarged, purified and wholesome into the boundless ocean of eternity. We are not getting what belongs to us; we are not living our best; we are not becoming permanent and making a contribution to life, to society and the world, unless we are cultivating the inner being, developing the soul within us, enlarging the current of life from the pure sources of that eternal fountain that never dries up. This is what our Lord meant when He said to the woman of Samaria: "The water that I give shall become a well of water, springing up unto eternal life."

J. O. A.

WE HURRY.

A noted American humorist recently remarked that we of the United States no longer thought about going any place; our sole thought was of "arriving." We put the time limit on ourselves and then step on the gas. We arrive—provided there is no fatality to prevent. And this fatality ever mounts upward and shows the price we are paying in order to arrive "ahead of time."

During 1929 there were in the United States 31,000 victims of automobile accidents; nearly one-third of all deaths from accidents in the United States. This is an increase of 3,000 accidents over those of 1928. We are in a hurry and pay for our speed with a price far surpassing in fatalities those occurring on the battlefields in the worst days of the World War.

This is only one and a very small part of the price we pay for being in a hurry. After rushing to Church on Sunday and singing "Take Time to be Holy," we criticise the preacher if he detains us more than thirty minutes, since we are in a hurry to get back home for a hurried lunch that a hurried trip of the Sabbath afternoon may be hurried through. Not much time on the Lord's Day to obey the words we sang in the hour of worship, "Take Time to be Holy." Then on Monday morning the phone is ringing, engagements are calling, machinery and gasoline are pressing for multitudinous duties (and blessings), and another week of toil, all on schedule time, or trips requiring "arrival" ahead of time is begun. The hospitals for nervous wrecks and fatal accidents are increasing, and statistics show that they were never so crowded as at present. Hospitals, with their roster of nurses and skilled physicians, are another evidence that we are paying a tremendous price for being in a hurry.

MURDERING SOULS.

A special correspondent of the press, returning a while ago from Moscow, in Russia, writes: "More tragic than the murder of priests, or their execution on slim political pretexts, and even more tragic than the closing of thousands of Churches and preventing any and all forms of worship, is the murder of the Russian soul as carried on by the anti-God campaign in the schools of the Soviet government." The correspondent means by the murder of the Russian soul in the schools of Russia, the carrying on of intensive and extensive propaganda by the anti-God society and government. Children are being taught in all the schools that there is no God and that all thought of such a being must be forever put out and kept out of mind.

This is, indeed, murdering the soul of Russia, for it is out of the schools and the minds of youth that come those influences and powers that mold the character of a nation and shape the destiny of its people. Poor, pitiable Russia! As sure as her people exist, she is sowing to the winds and will one day reap the whirlwind: is in fact sowing dragons' teeth on fertile soil from which only reptiles and beasts of destruction can spring.

There is one gleam of hope for Russia. Right now, while this paragraph is being written and read, in spite of their drastic restrictions to the contrary, men and women who fear God and trust Him are risking their lives in that godless country, that they may carry the message of life to those who are perishing. Twelve thousand tracts, says the American Tract Society, have already been distributed, and 24,000 more are being sent by the urgent request of missionaries. These dare not let their mission and their work be known, lest they lose their own lives, and they proceed with utmost precaution that their work of saving some may go forward. This has ever been the work of the missionary—to carry hope where there was despair, love where there was hate, and life where there was death.

J. O. A.

THE CHURCH AND THE STATE.

The Church works on the hearts of men and endeavors to plant in human minds divine principles and spiritual aspirations. In other words, it seeks to plant the seeds of right living and Jesus-like character. The Bible puts this in plain language in Proverbs 22:6: "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

The Church seeks to prevent a wrong life by leading the young to Jesus Christ. The Sunday School, the evangelistic services, the prayer meeting, and the regular Church services, all aim at this major object to lead into and keep in the "path of the just that shineth more and more unto the perfect day" (Prov. 4:18). The Church, when true to Christ, has never used force as a means of saving men nor of keeping them in the right path. There is no predigested spiritual food for man; he must receive and assimilate truth as the body receives and digests food. Truth thus becomes a part of his life and is converted into character. What the world needs more than all else is the regeneration of individual souls, the transformation of society, the cultivation of pure thoughts, clean speech, honest purposes, and genuine love for God and man. "Love never faileth." A great revival would do more for world peace than the London Conference, as good as that works for friendly nations. Peace with God. "The fruit of the Spirit is peace" (Gal. 5:22). The world needs a big crop of this fruit. Prayer and praise will do more than armies and navies. The State works from a different angle. It seeks to discover violations of law and to punish those who offend. There is some mercy in the administration of justice in the Christian state, but that is derived from the character of officials who are identified with the Church or associated with members of the Church. The State can make men sober by penitentiary confinement, but the State cannot make men temperate. The State can keep prisoners from stealing, but the State cannot make men honest. The State does its work by force. Officers of the law use force in arrests, and the courts exercise authority over prisoners at the bar. That is the fundamental reason for the separation of Church and State in this nation. If the Church would do more to prevent wrong, the State would have less of correction for doing wrong. The eighteenth amendment, or prohibition, is supported more by Christian temperance than by law enforcement. The altar is more powerful than the bench in the support of the eighteenth amendment. But there can be, and there is, co-operation in obedience to law. The Church and the State can work together in the cultivation of a public sentiment that respects law, obeys law, and strives to win the world to temperance, which is one of the fruits of the Spirit. W. W. S.

Recent excavations around the walls of ancient Jericho confirm the scriptural account of the conquest of the city by Joshua. The Bible says: "And it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city." A section cut through the mound under the city has revealed some of the old wall lying flat and unbroken. Interesting pottery was also found under the walls, which has been identified as belonging to the period of about 1400 B. C.—Methodist Protestant.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Life is made of little things and the world is maintained by little people. The babies of today are the leaders of tomorrow. The common people support the State. The big things count in their place, but they are few compared with the small things. Even in war the big guns sound louder, but the little guns do the work. The architect is important, but the bricklayers and nail-drivers build the hotel. The world looks too much at the big things and big folks, and not enough at the small things and small folks who make up the strength and do the work of the world. The market does not furnish ostrich eggs, but hen eggs, for table use. The egg value in the United States is more than the money value of any one farm crop. Ostrich farming is valuable for feathers, but poultry raising is more important. It is the little eggs that help to feed mankind. The great fish markets are supplied from the tiny roe in all the waters of the world. The ostrich is the largest bird and lays the largest egg, but the little eggs bring in the money and supply the homes and the big hotels.

The worst troubles are the little troubles. A big thorn in the flesh can be removed easily, but the point of the thorn under the skin gives the most trouble and the most pain. It is the little bad feeling or the little word spoken that divides human feelings and breaks human hearts. When Elisha told Naaman, "Go wash in Jordan seven times, and thou shalt be clean," Naaman went away in anger; but his servant said unto him: "If the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldst thou not have done it?" Then he went down and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, and he was healed of his leprosy. It is the simple way of life in obedience to God's word that cleanses and saves men. The safety of the great train does not depend alone upon the great steel rails, but upon the little spikes that hold the rails in place. It is the little difficulties that perplex man, and it is the little dust particles that annoy the careful housekeeper, and not the big lumps that may be found on the floor. The finer anything is, the more little things mar the whole. It is the little spot on the garment that is hard to remove. The little slight, the small criticism, the trivial injury, that hurts. One can meet big insults, gross neglect, intended wrong, but it is the little experiences that test relations and determine character.

It is the slight sickness that worries people and makes them complain. Real sickness quiets patients and makes them submissive. It is the little sins that rob souls of peace. Those who commit gross sins repeatedly become hardened and do not worry over wrong doing; but the better Christians are, the more they suffer over sin; they suffer not only over their own sins, but the sins of others. It was this that made Jesus suffer "the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God." Good roads make neglected roads seem worse; good people make careless people seem worse. Little sins look large to the good Christian, and poor manners are repulsive to the refined. The least sins are the most difficult to remove. The little bootlegger seems worse than the legal saloon.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

It is generally supposed that the opportunity of four years of study in a college environment qualifies for larger achievement in life. And yet, according to the conculsion of experts who have made very careful study of college graduates, only one in forty is able to attain distinction. This is a very good showing, however, in comparison with those who terminate their educational preparation at the close of high school, because, of these, the experts tell us, only one in ten thousand achieves distinction. This means that four years spent in college multiplies one's opportunities of making a contribution to human welfare two hundred and fifty times—an advantage that the wise youth will not neglect to avail himself of.

There are reasons why we meet with these conditions. People who have promise of real success in life fail to achieve it, or come to grief in their careers because of certain definite deficiencies.

Some people fail because they neglect their health. A sound body is a fundamental condition of an achieving life. People will sympathize with one who is delicate, weak, and sick, but they do not promote such a person to places of leadership and responsibility.

Some people fail because they lack application. They do not expend energy in the pursuit of their aims. They are inclined to "get by" with as little exertion as possible. Sometimes we say that these people are lazy. The person who goes forward successfully in life is one who devotes himself energetically to his business or enterprise, whatever it may be.

Others fail because they apply themselves unintelligently to the tasks which they undertake. They may have strong, vigorous bodies, and energy in abundance, but there is the fatal lack of co-ordination and concentration. They do not seem able to organize themselves in terms of a consistent objective, and so their energy dissipates. We used to think that this type of failure was irretrievable, but now we know, through the study of psychology and psychistry, that it is possible to integrate personality itself and to bring out of disorder and chaos orderliness and successful accomplishment.

But most persons who fail to achieve, as my observation has sensed the situation, come to grief in their life because they lack moral purpose and earnestness. They are spiritually defective. In a crisis they will do the shady thing. In a conflict of interests they will act selfishly rather than socially, rather than altruistically, rather than in a Christian spirit.

It is the motive which controls men in their contacts and attitudes which really counts, which really brings failure or success ultimately. One of our most distinguished educators said that a man at twenty-five who did not have a settled philosophy of life could not be counted upon to make a success of his career. And the more I think about the statement of this distinguished educator, the more I am inclined to believe that he was correct.

Broadly speaking, there are but two philosophies of life—the selfish, the pagan view which is self-centered, and thinks only of self-aggrandisement and self-achievement, and the Christian, which thinks in terms of others, which looks upon life and its opportunities as an arena of sharing with others, which regards service and not profit as the actuating principle by which we should live.

Achievement in the pagan sense is a personal accomplishment; in the Christian sense, it is a social accomplishment. The pagan lives for himself, but the Christian lives for others, and with others, and always in terms of those highest values of life which we associate with God.

W. A. Harper.

HELPING THE SINNER.

By Rev. D. M. Spence.

"He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone." In every age we find those who are willing to condemn the sinner. Yes, even those who gladly place the sinner in the midst of the crowd, around which arrows of criticism will be flying. Sin needs to be condemned now even as when Jesus was here in His earthly ministry, but while condemning sin let us not make the mistake of condemning the sinner instead of the sin. The sinner doesn't need to be condemned; of all men, he needs some helping hand to lift him up. We note that Jesus said to one man, after having healed and forgiven his sin: "Behold, thou art made whole; sin no more."

The same was true in Jesus' day. There were many who were ever ready to detect the sinner and delighted to cast him out. In His day it was as ours, in that the sinner tried to cast out another sinner; it was to such a class of people that Jesus said, "Thou hypocrite! cast out first the beam of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to pull out the mote that is in thy brother's eye" (Luke 6:42). Jesus did not teach that we should cast the sinner out. He taught by word and deed that we should practice just the opposite. Upon a certain occasion, as He was associating and eating with sinners, some of the scribes and pharisees were criticising, and Jesus said, "They that are whole need no physician, but they that are sick."

Those who brought this woman, who was caught in adultery, before our Master and placed her there in the midst of the crowd were not trying to help her. But they brought her, exposing her guilt and sin to the letter. They didn't seem to care how many knew about her sin, or how depressing the embarrassment might be. Not only were they not trying to help this unfortunate and sinful woman, but were desirous to punish her to the extent of the limit of the law. I know some may say the Pharisees were tempting Jesus in this case, but at the same time it presents to us a true picture of the type of help the sinner received in Jesus' day.

This tendency was not changed much. Today the sinner is pointed out, and around his name will center a vast amount of criticism, and black marks will be given, whether deserved or not. James says, in James 5:20, "Let him know that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." In this we surely find the teaching of our Lord and Christ. And it puzzles one to think that so many Church people, after all these centuries of the teachings of Jesus, practice just the opposite. It hurts me to hear people center their conversation around some neighbor's sin. I don't mean that anything is to be covered that should be revealed. The way the converted man's sins shall be hid is that they shall be covered with Christ's own blood.

Do you delight in discussing the faults of other people? If so, you will do well to look into your own heart and life, for something is sadly wrong.

"They say unto Him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. Now, Moses, in the law, commanded us that such should be stoned, but what sayest thou?" We notice that the Master is completely composed, and stooping down, He writes on the ground as one not even hearing what is being said. To one who knows how to use silence, it is a jewel, and Jesus knew when to speak, and when silence would speak and pierce through the hearts of the accusers. When we feel inclined to speak words about another which might have a tendency to lower that name, or turn some one against that individual, if we could only realize that such is casting a stone, perhaps we would criticise less than we do. For condemning the sinner is surely casting a stone. "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone."

Can you remain silent while among those who are condemning? Watch and see how long before you hear another's name spoken of in a careless way. What right did the scribes and Pharisees have to condemn this woman whose life was stained with sin? What right have you to cast a stone at another?

In this day of much crime and crowded prisons, many are asking why so many ex-convicts are caught and imprisoned again. A man who has worn stripes comes out of prison, goes out to secure a job, and, if he succeeds in getting a place, to make an honest living. After a while it is whispered around that he is an ex-convict, and he loses his job, soon drifts back to crime and to prison. If it is once known that you have worn stripes, you will have a hard path to travel to regain a respectable name. I am not saying that we should uphold the sinner and criminal in his evil ways, but what I am advocating is that we seek to deal with him in the Christ-way. "Condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned" (Luke 6:37).

The accusers of this sinful woman were convicted by their own conscience, and they disappeared. Oh! if our Master could appear in visible form today in some of the groups of gossipers, He would soon have the room to Himself. And Jesus looked up into the fact of the woman and saw no one save her. "Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee? She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more." Jesus was willing to forgive her and give her an opportunity to make a new name and new record for herself. If we are Christians, we must have some of the Christ-like spirit, and then it will be manifest in our attitudes and dealings with others. Jesus said, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you" (John 13:34). And again, "God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world, through Him, might be saved" (John 3:17).

We find our Lord saying, according to Luke 15:7, "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth." This being true, why do we not rejoice more at the effort of some sinners, trying to live a true life? Yes, why don't you rejoice? You were once a sinner, if you are saved now. "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). Also, "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Rom. 5:8).

A modern young woman was tempted and yielded, and it was known by those around her that she was a sinner. But while still young, during a great revival she was convicted of her sin and wonderfully converted. Now for a new life as she goes with the words of our Master, "Go and sin no more." But in spite of her sweet Christian spirit, the people of her community would not forget her sin, and even sought to push her out into the darkness of night. She went out into a new community away from friends, there to live anew. She won many friends and continued to live a Christian life, and there worked in the Church as a true follower of Christ and was doing a worthy work. And the time come when she was engaged to the young minister of the Church in which she worked. But somehow, a so-called "society woman" from her old home drifted around, and knowing, too, the sincerity of this converted woman's Christianity, did not fail to make all of the past known, and painted the life of this bride-to-be as black as midnight, poisoning the minds of the leaders of that Church. My friends, many people are going to have to answer for this type of sin.

Whether it be an open sinner or one who thinks the world knows not of his sin, he needs the help of the Christian people. Watch for your opportunity to help some sinner.

"He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone."

Ocean View, Va.

UNION.

The Sunday School and Church services were largely attended at Union on the second Sunday in May. An excellent Mothers' Day program was rendered by the Sunday School, consisting of songs, reading, recitations, male quartet and other appropriate exercises. The pastor preached at 11 A. M., and Rev. S. A. Bennett, Carlton professor of Christian literature and methods at Elon College, preached to good acceptance in the afternoon to a large and interested audience. We were glad to have Bro. Bennett with us and to hear him preach.

Following the morning sermon, the Lord's Supper was administered to a large audience. Rev. Bro. Bennett assisted the pastor in the service. Dinner was served on the ground. The music for the day by the Sunday School, Church choir, and the solo by Miss Pressnell, of Elon College, were much enjoyed. We were glad to have Miss Pressnell with us and to hear her sing.

P. H. Fleming.

WINDSOR, VA.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Windsor Christian Church is climbing up the great chain of life. The young people have made our society a success. We are divided into two sides. We are racing to see, of course, who can outrate the other. We put on a fine Mothers' Day program last Sunday night. There were poems, songs and papers on Mothers' Day. After the meeting, we stayed to Church.

Our pastor, the Rev. E. B. White, delivered a splendid sermon. His subject was, "The Ideal Mother." The sermon showed that Mr. White had put some work and thinking behind his sermon. All the mothers had reserved seats at the front. The society gave special music at the evening service.

In a few weeks the pastors of this town are going to get the young people of this town to put on programs at the midweek prayer meeting. We know our young people will make a success of this kind of work. Come on, Christian Endeavorers—show 'em what you can do!

Martha Bailey.

Many of our preachers have been busy of late speaking at high school and college commencements, preaching sermons to graduates, to faculties and pupils. What a marvelous opportunity for good the speaker has on such an occasion to carry a message of inspiration to the youth of the land, and the very youths who are trying to learn and who give heed to the best.

Our grand business is, not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies closely at hand.—Carlyle.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gā'li-lee; and the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 — The three wise men

carrying away into Bāb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A DAILY PRAYER.

We thank Thee, O God, for knowledge of the Holy Spirit's broadcasting as first demonstrated in the experience of Pentecost; that, far in excess of the might and magnitude of present-day messages on the air, the Holy Spirit's mystery and power permeate into eternity, delivering all of life from the curse of death. With many, at the recurring Pentecostal season, may it be that the soul's antenna shall be set to receive the wave which bears upon it the unmistakable sound of that "rushing mighty wind," and, in sequence, may it "sit upon" to the unfailing witness of the eternal Source from which it comes. In our Saviour's name. Amen.

IMPORTANT TO PASTORS AND CHURCHES.

It is now a month since Easter. Some pastors and Churches have reported, and favorably, on their Easter exercises and their mission offering. But a great number of pastors and Churches have not yet reported. We are unwilling to believe that since only one offering a year is asked of the Churches for missions, any Church will neglect this cause for which the Church exists. Christ planted His Church, that His Messiahship and saving power might be proclaimed to the world. He went away in person, but He planted the Church which is His body and of which He is Head. The Church must testify of Him or there will be no testimony. The Church alone is responsible for every missionary in every home and foreign field. The Church alone must support every missionary at home and abroad. The Church alone must build Churches at home and abroad and support the gospel, or it will never be done. There is no other agency or organization assisting in this spiritual and world-wide task of our Lord.

It is, therefore, unbelievable that any Church, however poor, that cares for its own soul and safety, will refuse or neglect to take a missionary offering. The Church that is not missionary will sooner or later shrink, shrivel, die. Its doom is only a matter of days and of time. Christ planted the Church to be missionary and gave to the Church the great commission. Any Church that will not obey that commission ought not to be called a Church and, under God, will not long remain a Church.

Every member in every Church should be given a chance to help do the missionary work. The missionary zeal is the spiritual barometer of the Church and of Church membership. For the sake of the Church itself and the individuals who compose it, the missionary offering should be taken, the mission message should be emphasized, the one task of the Church should be constantly held before the Church as its chief goal and achievement.

And surely in a time like this, when those who give must give in self-denial, no Church will neglect the opportunity, no pastor will neglect the privilege of pressing upon his people the necessity of self-denial for their Lord, of carrying home to the hearts of their people the need of self-denial, for the sake of their Lord, that His gospel may be supported at home and abroad, that His Church may enlarge her borders at home and abroad, that the lifting and saving knowledge of Him may be carried to men and women at home and abroad.

Should any member of any Church that has not taken the missionary offering read these lines, let such a reader take the matter to heart and to God in prayer and see to it that the Church of which he or she is a member and a part take the offering if it has not been taken.

J. O. Atkinson,
Mission Secretary.

WHY MISSIONARY CONTRIBUTIONS DECLINED.

The symposium on this subject in the April number of The Review has attracted wide attention. It has been referred to in many weekly religious newspapers, in several daily papers, and we understand that it is to be discussed in some of the monthly missionary magazines. The statements of the twenty pastors, laymen, women and secretaries give the most representative cross-section of prevailing opinion that has yet been published. The causes mentioned are so numerous and varied and interlocking that it is not easy to get a consensus out of them. The ones most frequently mentioned are increasing secularization of Churches and general lowering of standards; the merging of all causes in a single budget and the exclusion of special appeals; reaction from the idealism and the high-pressure campaigns for money which followed the World War; dulling of the original missionary motive of home and foreign missions as primarily an evangel, and subordinating it to education and social work; expenditure of huge sums on Church buildings and other local enterprises that absorb available money and create debts whose interest increases annual burdens, etc. The causes are apparently not peculiar to any one denomination or even country, since reports from Germany are that the income of Protestant foreign missions throughout the world last year was $3,500,000 less than in the preceding year, and $19,000,000 less than in 1924, although most of the decline was in America.

Prominent among the remedies mentioned are more adequate education of the home Churches as to the true place of missions in the work of the Church; better methods of missionary study to interest both young and old; supplementing the annual every-member canvass for a general budget by concrete information in special missionary sermons and offerings; deepening the spiritual life and strengthening faith in Christ as the only Lord and Saviour; returning to the simplicities and spiritualities of the gospel as the supreme function of the Church; renewed emphasis on stewardship; and frequent and earnest prayer.

The editor feels disposed to make a few thousand remarks upon the assigned causes and remedies and to add some of his own. But he contents himself for the present by inviting suggestions from readers of The Review and in making a few observations.

First, the list of causes is significant for the absence of some objections that were current a few years ago. Apparently the position has shifted.

Second, the major causes cited do not lie in boards and missionaries or the policies and methods of missionary work, but in lowered ideas of the spiritual character and mission of Christianity itself, a lowering that finds expression in secularization of thought and activity, provincialism of spirit, weakened evangelistic zeal, and concentration of effort and money upon local buildings that gratify community pride.

Third, the paralyzing effort of the inclusive budget system as it is operated in the average Church is justly emphasized. The effort to induce members to subscribe definite sums at the beginning of the year in a general benevolence budget was intended to assure their people that if they will subscribe to the budget, they will not be called on again during the year, and the average man, not knowing what developments may affect his income, "plays safe" by subscribing a minimum sum. Thus the appeal is on a low ground of selfish interest, a bribe "not to be bothered again" rather than an appeal to high spiritual motive, while shutting out presentation of particular boards prevents people from getting specific information regarding the work and its needs.

Fourth, spirituality does not necessarily beget interest in missionary work, unless it is supplemented by education. Some spiritually minded Christians have no interest whatever in missions, either home or foreign, not because they are opposed to them or object to the methods of the boards, but because they do not know anything about them and their pastors do not tell them or open their pulpits or midweek meetings to those who can. Their spirituality ends in their own communion with God, the saving of their own souls on their solitary plank. If they have any concern for the salvation of others, it is for their relatives and friends, or at most the unconverted people in their community. Manifestly, what such spiritually minded Christians need is education. How can it be given? Authors and editors can do something and are doing it, but most Christians of the type under consideration do not read missionary books or periodicals. Secretaries and missionaries do the best they can, but it is physically impossible for them to reach one-tenth of the home Churches. Women's societies are doing much, but only a small percentage of the women in a given Church are in these societies. The major effort must be by the pastor. He, and he alone, has the ear of the whole congregation.

The boards of home and foreign missions are staffed by intelligent, alert, and consecrated men and women, and there are many, and we believe an increasing number of, devoted ministers and Church members who realize both the peril and the opportunity of the present crisis. Theological seminaries are giving increased attention to missions. The purpose of God for men is not to fail. "He is able." If the Church will make this a Pentecostal year in fact as well as in name, a new wave of splendid missionary spirit and power will soon come upon all our Churches. Every individual Christian can help to bring this about by familiarizing himself with missionary work, giving to it, and, above all, praying for it. —A. J. B., in Missionary Review.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING MAY 17, 1930.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,912.77
Sunday Schools.
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	40.00
Sanford, N. C.	4.75
Antioch, Harrisonburg, Va.	11.81
Vanceville, Tifton, Ga.	1.00
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	2.09
Pleasant Ridge, Guilford College, N. C.	1.56
Ingram, Va.	3.00
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	2.29
Wood's Chapel, New Market, Va.	1.00
Union (Va.), Virgilina, Va.	5.00
Hanks Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	7.20
Hanks Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	4.97
New Lebanon, Wentworth, N. C.	4.91
Total	$ 3,002.35

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,114.69
Shiloh, Ramseur, N. C.	14.00
Barretts, Wakefield, Va.	4.09
Johnson's Grove, Courtland, Va.	3.75
Member Cary Church, Cary, N. C.	1.00
Roanoke, Ala.	10.00
Zion, Moncure, N. C.	18.50
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	24.02
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	3.88
Christian Chapel, Harrisonburg, Va.	1.00
High Point, Swift Run, Va.	1.35
Island Ford, Harrisonburg, Va.	1.00
Palmyra, Edinburg, Va.	2.50
Whistler's Chapel, Quicksburg, Va.	10.30
Wood's Chapel, New Market, Va.	4.80
Auburn, N. C.	10.25
Bethel, Corbett, N. C.	2.50
Patterson's Grove, Franklinville, N. C.	5.00
Newport News, Va.	20.50
Amelia, Clayton, N. C.	3.02
Total	$ 3,256.15

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$1,259.22
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C.	35.00
Woman's Bible Class, Rosemont, Norfolk.	12.50
Total	$ 1,306.72

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$12,758.88
Sunday Schools, regular	89.58
Individual and Church collections	141.46
Specials	47.50
Total to date since Oct. 1, 1929	$13,037.42

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

STEWARDSHIP—JUST WHAT IS IT?

Is Christian stewardship a confused term, as some would claim? If so, the confusion should be cleared. By way of example, perhaps some comparison of stewardship and spiritual life may be helpful in bringing to light the unreality of supposed duplication in kindred enterprises. In striving for spiritual excellence, often relative movements not only are justified, but necessary.

Any one knows what it is to be a steward of men's affairs. Why difficult to fix the inclusion of a steward of God who owns the earth and seas and all that in them is, and of which ownership "men's affairs" are but an entailed possession? In big business of legitimate, honest standing and without claim to Christian foundation or affiliation, is it hard to understand what is the relation to such of one who for a period is placed in charge? or what the requirements of accounting?

In Christian living, fulfilled obligation first to the sovereign Owner of all things, then to social benevolence, is but the newer way of expressing the Pentecostal fellowship wherein each shared for others' good by laying down all things at the apostles' feet until emotion, confusion, mystery subsiding, under the marvelous organic leadership of Paul, for its support the Church began (and yet hardly is past the beginning) to make practical use of his inspired teaching as per 1 Cor. 16:2.

Stewardship is of and for the Church. It is essentially structural. Through fidelity to its foundational virtues we build up to its spiritual attainment. To become a profitable steward of our Father's domain, applied knowledge and energy precede the crowning act of completeness which is no more nor less than a just return for the use of capital. In the Church, ability and service faithfully given lead to the state of being which says, "Nothing, not even my money, shall be able to separate me from th elove of God." Mind, body, means, all are for Him and for others. And to prove my holy covenant, unceasingly I must learn, I must do, I must be! "Being" (defined worship, in the sense that only the soul can "be") or paying and giving is the most stabilizing, convincing, of all phases of worship. For this reason, money is self. Always God has claimed a part of one's self—one's being. At best, possessions are assumed. For their use should not something revert to the owner? The tithe is the least that God accepts.

In a sense, the Spirit life is difficult. Its grounding is precipitate, eternal. In actuality, the Holy Spirit is caught, not taught. It is a divine gift, purely devotional in aspect, sustained by nurture. It is a mighty test of stewardship. In vital meaning it denotes a realm unmixed with things of earth. Thus one differentiates easily between Bible reading devotionally, and study of the Bible and of the Church's literature historically, organically, promotionally. Also, the intimacy, secrecy, efficacy of the prayer-life alone with God surpass, rather than parallel, group or public prayer by God's workers in the interest of material and general Church advancement. Both types of prayer are indispensable, each supplementing and sustaining the other, and yet each holding its peculiar place and distinctive power.

Is not the Church, en masse, shamefully stupid and uninformed? Is it not sadly neglectful and dilatory of loyalty and progress? Is it not losing the sense and sufficiency of worship? Because these things apparently are so, one little conference is trying to lay a foundation in stewardship through first, information—the Church learning; second, administration—the Church doing; third, dedication—the Church being. These, in the order given, furnish adequate initial for training in Christian stewardship. Expanded to the full of their capacity, may they not be made inclusive of stewardship's entire content?

In its full reality, stewardship is deeply spiritual. It becomes so by being first constructive.

S. S. L.

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Previously acknowledged	$1,069.25
Total cost of memorial	$1,275
Total paid to contractors to date	1,050
Balance to be paid	$ 225
Since above was reported, May 15th, we have received the following:
Woman's H. & F. Mis. Soc., Suffolk, Va.	5.00
Dr. Warren H. Denison, Dayton, Ohio.	5.00
Total received to date	$1,079.25

At the Southern Christian Convention, at Raleigh, several pledges were made, and the two cash items acknowledged above were on these pledges. We are still due the contractors $225.00.

The memorial is erected and is a credit to the Church and the pride of all who have helped. Let others who read this send in their contribution, that this work, now long standing, shall be finished at an early date.

Respectfully,

J. O. Atkinson, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Memorial.

Elon College, N. C.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of The Christian Sun offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

Option

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of The Christian Sun from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance The Sun.

Chas. D. Johnston,
Circulation Manager.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson IX—June 1, 1930.

Contrast Between Faithfulness and Slothfulness.

Golden Text: "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."—Matt. 25:21.

Lesson: Matt. 25:14-46.

The general subject of the lesson is fidelity in Christian living. It has as its background the parable of the talents, and of the judgment of the nations.

Stewardship.

There have been entrusted to every one of us certain gifts and capacities, certain powers and potentialities, certain things and influences which are really not our own, but for which we are personally responsible. "To every man according to his ability"—God entrusts according to His infinite knowledge. Whatever has been entrusted to us is evidence that God knew that we were potentially capable of making the most of it.

Opportunity.

One of the most stirring facts in life is the infinite potentiality of which we are and have. God has put within our power the opportunity for unfolding and developing these infinite possibilities, and for enriching our lives, and for influencing others.

Reckoning.

Sooner or later there comes a day of reckoning. "So then every one of us must give an account of himself to God." We must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." We must render an account of our stewardship. For the gifts and capacities that God entrusted to us, and for the material things which we possessed, and for the things which we did, we must give an accounting.

Faithfulness and Its Rewards.

"Well done, good and faithful servant." In that great day, how little it will mean to hear God say, "You have been clever, or brilliant, or lucky, or successful as the world counts success?" and how much it will mean to hear Him say, "You have been faithful." Our modern world needs an insistent emphasis upon faithfulness. Business men, school teachers, religious workers, all who handle people know how difficult it is to find those who are faithful. "Thou hast been faithful" is one of God's highest compliments.

"I will make thee ruler over many things." The reward of faithfulness in few things is the enlarged capacity for doing well more things. The law of faithfulness is growth. And then, of course, there is the joy—"enter thou into the joy of thy Lord"—which always comes from the sense of duty well done, of faithful performance of duty.

Slothfulness and Its Penalties.

The man with one talent said he was afraid. His Lord said he was wicked and slothful. Alas, for him! he not only lost the joy of work faithfully done, and the increased capacity for doing more work well, but he lost what he had. What seems like a terribly cruel judgment on the part of his Lord was but the inevitable working out of the law of nature and of God. He that does not use what he has, loses what he has.

Judgment.

In that dramatic and majestic representation of the judgment of the nations which Jesus graphically portrayed in His parable, one thing needs to be emphasized. The basis of judgment was not theological creed, or lip profession, but the presence or absence of the humane and helpful spirit toward those who needed us. "Inasmuch as ye did it . . . or did it not." Not every one that saith Lord, Lord shall enter into the kingdom, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, June 1, 1930.

Topic: "How May We Avoid the Summer Slump in Our Society?"

During the summer months, our Churches face the problem of losing their attendance upon the services of the Church. It is very hard for some Churches to plan their programs in such a way that they will avoid this "summer slump," although they know for months in advance that it is likely to come. Our young people's societies sometimes face the same problem, though there is not generally so noticeable a "slump" as there is in the regular Church service. The cause of this falling off in the attendance is generally said to be the hot weather! It becomes so uncomfortable in a Church building, motoring out into the country where it is cooler is a temptation, and—then, it is vacation time!

As is the case with most problems, this problem can remain unsolved and bothersome or it can be solved. Whether it is to remain unsolved or to be successfully solved depends upon the society. It is easy to take the attitude that (since it is so hot, and several of the officers and chairmen of the committees will be away each Sunday evening on their vacations, and perhaps the society needs a vacation, too) there's nothing to be done about it but just to wait for it to be over.

Well, perhaps so! But there is surely a better way. Does it look impossible to have a good society during the summer? Well, who specializes in the "wholly impossible"? Aren't you some of them? Then, come on. Let's have good meetings with good programs this summer!

How?

1. Plan programs that are of especial interest to the members of your society, even if you have to discard the regular outlined programs for a while. (Or for all the time, if you want to!) Discuss things that you like to discuss, such as ideals, good sportsmanship, friendship, recreation and fun, how to use money, how to be a leader, etc. (You can get a little booklet for 35 cents called "Christian Life Problems," by Stock, that will help in these discussions. Order this booklet from the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, Ohio.) Let the members of the society hand in a list of the things they would like to have discussed. Your pastor might be glad to prepare a sermon on some of your suggestions. Vary your programs. Use a play or a pageant occasionally. Use pictures in your worship program. Do something each time that you do not usually do. Make your meeting attractively different.

2. Give especial attention to the worship programs. Have your meetings out-of-doors as much as possible. Find a cool, inviting spot, or the Church-yard and steps will do if you cannot get anything better. Be sure that your program is well planned so that no one loses interest for a moment.

3. Provide an adequate social program for the members of the society. Do not make parties, hikes, etc., a means of keeping members in the society, but have enough of them. If the community provides a social program that is big enough and of the same type that the Church would offer, then this feature may not be necessary. However, there are a very, very few Churches that can escape this task for the reason that there is too much done in the line of wholesome recreation.

4. Give an opportunity for the members of the society to share in great tasks. Find out from the pastor and the officials of the Church just what they would like to have the young people do during the next three months. There is probably some community work that the society can do, such as visiting the sick, planning and supervising a playground for small children for two or three hours each afternoon, providing for a weekly story hour for children, or assisting in a Church vacation school. Then there is the splendid chance offered through our project plan for supporting missions. Plan to use at least thirty dollars in this way. Take two shares of work in Japan or Porto Rico and one in either India, China, Africa, Turkey, Greece, or the Philippine Islands. Write to Dr. J. O. Atkinson for literature and plan to do this! This opportunity is a challenge to every young people's society.

5. Set your ideals high for your society this summer! Then work to reach them. This is not classic poetry, but it says something anyway:

"Hitch your wagon to a star,
Keep your seat, and there you are!"

And why not hold on to the ideal of what you think your society can be?

For the Next Four Sundays.

Our topics are on "Leadership." Do you think it is easy to be a leader? Are leaders born, or are they made? Does leadership cost anything? What? What are its rewards? Are you a leader? Would you like to be a leader? Are you willing to pay the price?

CELEBRATION AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

The merging of the Congregational and Christian denominations and the tercentenary of the founding of Boston by the Puritans in 1630 will both be celebrated at the annual meeting of the Congregational Home Boards, to be held in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, Tuesday to Thursday, May 27-29, 1930.

The Rev. Dr. Frank G. Coffin, Columbus, Ohio, president of the General Convention of the Christian Church and co-moderator of the General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches, will speak Tuesday evening on "The Challenge of the New Order." Preceding the evening session will be a fellowship dinner at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, at which the toastmaster will be Dr. Fred B. Smith, New York, N. Y., moderator of the National Council of the Congregational Churches and the colleague of Dr. Coffin as also co-moderator of the General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches. The merger of the two denominations was voted by each last year, and re-organization in accordance with the plan of union is now in process.

The significance of the Puritans for American life today will be the theme of the opening address Tuesday morning by the Rev. Dr. William Horace Day, pastor of the United Church, Bridgeport, Conn., and president of the home boards.

The Pilgrims who founded Plymouth in 1620 and the Puritans whose most noted settlement was will speak, following the Rev. Dr. J. Percival Huget, pastor Tompkin's Avenue Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A woman's luncheon will be held at the Leverich Towers, Brooklyn, Wednesday, with Lieutenant Mina C. Van Winkle, of the woman's police bureau, Washington, D. C., as guest of honor. A men's luncheon Wednesday, at the Hotel Margaret, Brooklyn, will be addressed by State Senator Seabury C. Mastick, Pleasantville, N. Y., on "Old Age Security."

"The Plan of Advance" for Congregational and Christian Churches will be discussed Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Morrill, New York, N. Y., secretary Commission on Missions, and by Mrs. Charles L. Fisk, Cleveland, Ohio, the first woman to be an assistant State superintendent of the Congregational Churches. The annual meeting of the home boards will be preceded by a religious education institute on Monday.

The home boards are meeting in Brooklyn at the invitation of the Brooklyn Brotherhood of Congregational Churches. Arrangements for the meeting are being made by a committee representing the Churches of Brooklyn, Manhattan and Queens, with the Rev. Dr. J. Stanley Durkee, pastor of Plymouth Church, chairman.

This is the first national Congregational convention to be held in New York City since 1908, when the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the foreign mission agency of the denomination, held its annual meeting in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn.

The home boards comprise seven corporations which were unified in 1925 under an identical board of thirty-six directors. They constitute the national agencies of the Congregational Churches for missionary and Church extension work in this country, for religious education and publication, and for ministerial pensions and relief. In their present form, the boards are the fruit of a long development in American Church life, beginning with the formation of the American Education Society in 1816, the American Home Missionary Society in 1826, and the American Missionary Association in 1846, all of which, together with other organizations formed later, are continued in the Congregational Home Boards.

The funds and other property now held by the home boards, including the resources for ministerial pensions, are about $30,000,000. The annual expenses of the work they administer is more than $3,000,000. The missionary and Church extension work is conducted in co-operation with the Congregational State conferences and includes aid toward the salaries of the pastors of 1,800 Churches. The religious education work includes the development of curricula and the promotion of Church schools on Sunday and week-days, the maintenance of colleges and secondary schools for "underprivileged" racial groups, and co-operation with the self-supporting colleges of Congregational affiliation. The missionary schools include four colleges and fifteen academies for negroes in the South. The colleges of Congregational affiliation number forty-one, with 24,700 students and endowments amounting approximately to $99,000,000. The ministers or ministers' widows and orphans receiving pensions or old-age annuities number 1,275.—News Bulletin of the General Council.

REV. G. D. HUNT'S LETTER.

Since I last wrote THE SUN, I have been to North Alabama and to Forest Home and McGuire's Chapel Churches, in the Alabama Conference, and am now at LaGrange, Ga., with Rev. H. M. Gray, in a revival at Hillside Christian Church. I had a fine trip to North Alabama, and found Bro. Hughes and his good family on their job looking after the interest of the Church and community, as usual.

I was glad to meet with all my old friends and also a number of new ones. We had a fine social meeting with the Woodmen of the World on Saturday night, and also fine services with the Church at the appointed hour Sunday and Sunday night. They have at the Pisgah Christian Church, I think, the best Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society in the Alabama Conference, and also a live Woman's Missionary Society. The Church Sunday School and C. E. Society agreed to pay $25.00 on the field secretary's salary extra of all other Conference claims. I trust our women will carry a missionary program to Pisgah some time this year. I am praying that our people will do our whole duty along these lines this year.

We are having a fine meeting with Bro. Gray at Hillside, in LaGrange, Ga. Rev. C. W. Hanson has just closed a fine meeting with First Church, with more than twenty additions to the roll.

I will be in revival meetings until late summer, and perhaps early fall. I am enjoying the work and am doing my best to get our program of missions, education and evangelism before our people in the name of our Christ. I am seeking to raise His banner. Brethren, pray for me and pray for the work.

G. D. HUNT.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

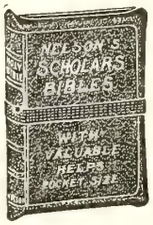
India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold..... $3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold... $1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold..... $3.75

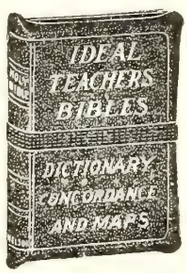
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



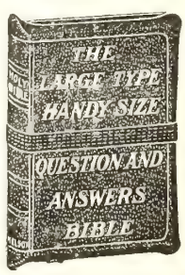
Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25



60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

MONDAY.

THIEVES.

"Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven . . . where thieves do not break through nor steal."—Matt. 6:19-24.

This is a thievish world. No good thing can be held unguardedly—not money, nor friends, nor home, nor health, nor reputation, nor country, nor Church, nor school. Thieves are watchful, if we are not; and alert, if we are asleep. Constant vigilance is the price of any continued possession in this world.

A fine stanza by Emma Herrick Weed tells us that—

"They that find gold—find care.
The yellow dust is, after all, but—dust!
Through their walled treasure-houses moth and rust
Creep and corrode, despoiling unaware,
And thieves break through and steal without redress
Love, joy, trust, faith, and quiet happiness."

Is it not astonishing that, though we guard our lesser possessions against thieves so carefully, putting into steel vaults our gold and jewels and bonds, we leave open to thieves our priceless possessions, such as love, and friends, and peace, and purity? Is it not amazing that we rent safe-deposit boxes in banks for the things that can easily be replaced, and can last only a few years at most, while we take no pains to lay up enduring treasures in the only place of permanently safe deposit, that is, heaven?

Prayer.—Our Father, who art in heaven, we put our life in Thy care, with all that our life means to us. Thou alone canst preserve it from the thieves of time, and make it worthy of eternity. Accept it, we pray Thee, and guard it forever. Amen.

TUESDAY.

WHY FEARFUL?

"Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?"—Matt. 8:23-27.

Few records of Christ's life are more impressive to the thoughtful mind than His peaceful slumber in that tossing little boat on the Sea of Galilee, lashed by the tempest, His rebuke of the terrified disciples, and His masterful quelling of the storm. It was, perhaps, the greatest of His acted parables, and the essence of it was His clear implication that the secret of His peace and power was His faith.

Well may we ask ourselves the Saviour's question, why we are anxious and afraid. It may be an unreasoning fear, but it has a cause which we can discover. We are afraid because we are not living with Jesus Christ, we do not rest our lives with all their interests on our Heavenly Father in the spirit of the Son. If we had truly surrendered ourselves into the keeping of Infinite Love, we should know that no real harm could come to us in time or eternity, and we should be at rest.

Prayer.—Lord Jesus, may we be no more fearful, because there is no longer any reason for fear. Dwell, Thou, in us, with Thy peace that passeth understanding. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE MEEK ARE THE MIGHTY.

"Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth."—Matt. 5:1-12.

Charles Kingsley once wrote that "patience is the truest sign of courage." He instanced the case of soldiers, and the common testimony that the bravest men, those who can stand for hours under fire with nothing to do but hold themselves in readiness for a charge, are not the loud boasters, but the quiet, self-effacing men, the meekest men in the whole regiment.

It is so also on the battlefield of life. We readily admit that the meek are to inherit heaven, but Christ gives us the surprising news that they are to inherit earth as well. Nothing is reserved against them. Who can stand against the meek?

So that the blustering, domineering way is never the way to success and power. It is rather the assurance of failure, because it is the admission of weakness. Loud voices testify that the spirit cannot speak effectively. A domineering bearing is witness that the soul cannot take command. Pride is a confession that one has nothing of which to be proud. These who do not inherit the earth, disinherit themselves.

Prayer.—O Thou meek and lowly Jesus, we learn of Thee. As Thou wert dumb before Thy judges, as Thou didst endure the mockery and torture, the final shame and agony, so we, too, would silence our complaining souls and put to death our self-esteem and become the least of all and the servants of all. Not that we may enter into Thy glory, but that we may receive of Thy Spirit. Amen.

THURSDAY.

GIFTS AND GRACES.

"As ye abound in everything, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all earnestness, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also."—2 Cor. 8:1-9.

Paul makes a well-grounded and very important distinction between spiritual gifts and spiritual graces. The Corinthian Christians, he knew, had many spiritual gifts. They had faith in and knowledge of the truth; they had earnestness in action and ability in testimony, and they had an undoubted love of Paul, but they were lacking in the Christian graces, such as generosity, which he particularly urged upon them.

Graces are far more important and necessary than gifts. Graces come only from the incarnation of spirit in life. When Christ dwells in our hearts, He expresses Himself in our lives, and we have His graces. They are the evidence to the world of His indwelling. Through us they draw men to Him. This is the most blessed result of any human life.

Prayer.—We seek to be lovable, O Christ, and to be lovable we must have Thee, O Thou Immortal Love. Come to us, we pray Thee. Incarnate Thyself in us. Show Thyself in us to the world that is hungry for Thee. Amen.

FRIDAY.

A SHINING LIGHT.

"He was the lamp that burneth and shineth; and ye were willing to rejoice for a season in his light."—John 5:30-40.

A great light has been invented for the purpose of illuminating the landing-fields of airships, and it is so bright that the planes can be maneuvered as if it were broad daylight.

Now, Christ said that John the Baptist was "a lamp that burneth and shineth," so that men rejoiced in his light. Over all Palestine, that illumination spread: and not for Palestine only, but over all the world; and not for the three years of Christ's ministry only, but for the two thousand years since, and to the end of time. Verily, no light that man can ever hope to make will rival the illuminating power of a godly life.

Yet even John the Baptist said of Christ, "He must increase, and I must decrease." Jesus only is the abiding Light of the world.

Prayer.—We come to Thee for light. We come to Thee for vision of the light. Open our eyes, O Christ, that we may see. Open our hearts, that we may pass the light to others. Amen.

SATURDAY.

SMOOTH-RUNNING LIVES.

"Oh that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! Then had thy peace been as a river."—Isa. 48:17-22.

When King George was removed from London to the seashore for recovery from his long and severe illness, every precaution was taken against jar in the ambulance used. Lord Dawson of Penn, the chief physician to the king, himself selected the car. The tires have seven-inch treads. Under the body of the car are compressed-air cylinders. The bed of the royal patient was swung on springs which ran from the ceiling to the floor of the car.

If our lives do not flow thus smoothly, it is because some hindrance of worldliness, of selfishness, of sin has fallen into them. It is not easy to keep them clear of impediments, but it is well worth while, for our soul's life depends upon it.

Prayer.—Our Father, lift us, we pray, on the river of Thy pleasures. Grant that we may float softly down the stream of time. Save us from the eddy and the treacherous rock. For Thy name's sake. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE NATION'S PERMANENCE.

"What great nation is there that hath a God so high unto them as Jehovah our God is whensoever we call upon Him?"—Deut. 4:1-8.

The only real patriotism is born of religion. If this is not felt to be God's country, it is not felt to be our country. The Christian feels that his civic duty is part of his stewardship. He mourns over national sins as Christ wept over Jerusalem. He exults in the glory of his country because he feels it to be part of the glory of God.

Bishop Newman once said: "I believe in Churches, colleges, and houses of mercy, and support them all; but my hope is in a citizenship born of Christian faith and practice. Give us these, and the republic will live forever." And without these, as Bishop Newman implies, the republic which we love will go the way of the many republics that have preceded it, and will end in a tyranny; for only faith in God and obedience to His laws can preserve any institution in freedom and peace.

Thus let no Christian divorce his politics from his prayers. Let every Christian know himself to be a partner of the Most High in the sacred duty of perpetuating liberty. A great God and a great nation must find their union and permanence in a great citizenship.

Prayer.—Lord of our land, be Thou also the Lord of our hearts. Keep our motives pure, our zeal fervent, our courage strong. May Thy kingdom come and Thy will be done on earth. Amen.

(Amos R. Wells, in Christian Herald.)

Christian Orphanage

REPORT FOR MAY 22, 1930.

Bright forward		$6,868.12
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Greensboro, Palm St.	$ 5.66
Ingram	3.00
Danville, Third Avenue	3.94
New Lebanon S. S.	3.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class	2.00
Mt. Zion	1.60
Howard's Chapel	2.00
		21.20
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Mt. Auburn	$ 7.30
Bethel	1.83
Hines Chapel	7.98
Sanford	6.68
Clayton	5.50
		29.29
Western N. C. Conference:
Shiloh	$ 1.00
Pleasant Ridge	2.85
Biscoe	1.60
		5.45
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Wakefield	$ 5.46
Franklin	7.70
Berea, Nansemond	10.00
		23.16
Valley Va. Central Conference:
Antioch	$ 7.01
Wood's Chapel	1.00
		8.01
Alabama Conference:
Wadley	$ 2.00
Pisgah	1.38
Roanoke	3.33
		6.71
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Vanceville		1.00
Special Offerings.
Refund on gasoline	$24.95
Mrs. D. E. Armentrout, Harrisonburg	5.00
Member Cary Christian Church	1.00
T. B. Roberts, support children	64.00
		94.95
Lawrence S. Holt endowment fund		150.00
Grand total		$7,207.89

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

THE HIGH COST OF FOOLISHNESS.

If the immortal Shakespeare was in London today writing his stuff he would no doubt be behind with his rent, while Amos and Andy took in a hundred thousand dollars a year for giving the radio crowds fifteen minutes of plain negro foolishness each night in order to sell tooth paste to the average man.

Will Rogers gets five hundred dollars every evening he broadcasts his plain, unadorned foolishness. Will never saw a college, except riding by, and then he didn't know what it was; while thousands of professors who have strings of college degrees and can shell out Greek roots and Latin conjugations like squirrels eating nuts, are wearing patched pants and are two jumps from the sheriff.

Charlie Chaplin gets millions for walking like a fool and slapping an innocent bystander in the face with a pie, while the scholars who have burned midnight oil to build a civilization, translate languages and produce literature and art, are hardly able to get their extra shirt from the laundry on Saturday night.

It is a strange comment on this strange set of animals called humans to have these reflections, but we must remember that money does not determine the worth of a man to his race nor his happiness and usefulness.—J. M. R., in Richmond Christian Advocate.

ADVENTIST LIBERALITY.

The 112,276 members of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination throughout the United States and Canada gave $2,839,674.09 in free-will offerings to the advancement of foreign missions in 1929, or an average of 48.6 cents per week for each individual. This is an increase of $19,559.98 over 1928, but on account of the larger membership in 1929 the average cents per week is one-half cent less. During the past ten years this denomination has paid $24,708,835.09, an average of $24.13 per year for each Church member. The goal for mission giving is 60 cents a week among the white constituency, but the negro work in the South is based on 50 cents a week. Two of the twelve union conferences—Columbia and East Canadian—report the largest total per capita receipts for 1929 that they have ever raised in their history; while three more show larger averages than last year.—Missionary Review.

THE "WET" POLL IN DENVER.

The Denver Post, in discussing the "wet" newspaper poll taken in that city, said, "It was a dismal failure, as it deserved to be. After all the ballyhooing attending it, only 8,091 ballots were cast. In a city claiming 325,000 population, that is about the same as nothing. The great mass of people recognizing this prohibition poll as nothing but an attempt to create contempt for law and order, would have nothing to do with it. The "drys" had no confidence that the count would be on the square. And even the "wets" ignored the poll as a waste of time. The sentiment toward prohibition in Colorado is so well known, there is no occasion for anybody or any agency to take a straw vote. No good can come out of such a poll."—Congregationalist.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.
10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ---------- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better
a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1.
2 or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x-- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2b]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

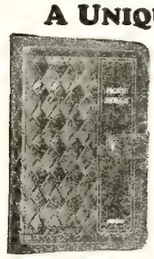
A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding



The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x--------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition
No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

REPORT OF BOARD OF EDUCATION.

To the Southern Christian Convention, at Raleigh, N. C.:

The Liberal Arts College Conference, which assembled in Chicago, Ill., March 18-20, 1930, gave national emphasis to the importance of this typical American institution. Nearly three hundred colleges sent representatives to this conference, which was addressed by leading educators of the nation. The conference not only gave emphasis to the importance of the liberal arts college, but particularly emphasized the need for the Christian college in the American educational system.

It was noted to set up a steering committee of fifteen, who will undertake to impress the country with the need for financial support for the four-year liberal arts college to the extent of giving one billion dollars to these institutions individually. Each college will, of course, be responsible for its own financial campaign, but the prestige which this outstanding committee of fifteen will give to the united cause should prove a real asset for these institutions in securing the necessary funds for their maintenance and expansion. It is clear that American educators are not willing that the small college should be junked, nor that Christian education should cease its contribution to the development of character in American youth.

Elon College.

1. History. Elon College was chartered by the General Assembly of North Carolina, March 11, 1889, and opened its doors for students September 2, 1890. The college, therefore, this year completes its fortieth session and has served the Christian Church in the preparation of leaders for pulpit and pew most effectively during these four decades. The place of its work for the future is most promising. Elon College evidently has filled a large and real place in the total program of the Christian Church in the South and it is destined, in our judgment, to fill an even larger place in the total program of the United Church in this territory. It is true that the denominational college is the backbone of the denominational structure, not in that it strives to teach sectarianism nor to perpetuate it, but that leadership for denominational enterprises, experience teaches us, comes almost entirely from this type of institution. This committee cannot too earnestly recommend Elon College to the support of the Congregational and Christian Churches in the South and the nation.

2. Plant and endowment. The Elon College plant, as inventoried and as carried on the books of the business manager, consists of the following items:

Buildings.	Value.
Alamance Building	$143,961.06
Alumni Building	107,000.00
Carlton Library Building	99,909.08
Duke Science Building	98,105.89
Mooney C. E. Building	121,115.35
Whitley Auditorium	99,577.06
East Dormitory	15,500.00
West Dormitory	84,400.00
Ladies' Hall	30,500.00
Power Plant	12,000.00
Total of buildings	$812,069.34
Equipment in buildings and campus, with improvements	$336,486.53
Grand total for plant	1,148,555.87
The endowment of the college	530,896.81

The college carries insurance on the buildings and equipment of $599,800.

The friends of the college carry insurance on the president's life amounting to $200,000, payable to the college.

3. Alumni. Those who hold the bachelor's degree from Elon received during the last forty years, including the class of 1930, total 832 in number and are distributed in the following groups:

	Men.	Women.	Total.
Education	176	237	413
Ministry and missionary	114	4	118
Business	112	19	131
Home-makers (women)	...	81	81
Public service	26	11	37
Law	18	..	18
Medicine	18	1	19
Engineering	12	..	12
Fine arts	1	2	3
Total	477	355	832

It is easy to discern the type of institution which Elon College is from these vital facts regarding its alumni.

4. Current finances. At the Richmond session of the Convention it was voted to pay the interest on the name of the Convention which the college holds as endowment in the sum of $112,500, and on the bonds which it holds also as endowment in the amount of $100,000 out of the Convention apportionment. The interest on these two items amounts to $12,750 annually. In order to guarantee the integrity of the college endowment, it is necessary that the Convention should continue to pay this interest. The Finance Board ruled that certain items should take priority in the distribution of the Convention apportionment, and that has left the college to receive the payment only of the residue of the Conference apportionment. The first year, there was paid on this account $7,265.56, and this year there was paid $4,317.42. The remainder to fill out the balance of the $12,750 for each of the past two years has been contributed by individual members of the Church. This committee recommends that the Convention at this time take steps that will insure the payment to the college of the interest charge of $12,750 annually on these endowment obligations.

The Richmond Convention also provided that, in addition to this endowment interest obligation, $24,000 should be raised each year in the bounds of the Convention as interest on the $400,000 of bonds given the college to offset its indebtedness. To meet this $24,000 item, it was provided that there should be voluntary offerings in the Sunday Schools on the fifth Sundays for the benefit of the college. (To be Continued.)

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00.

LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

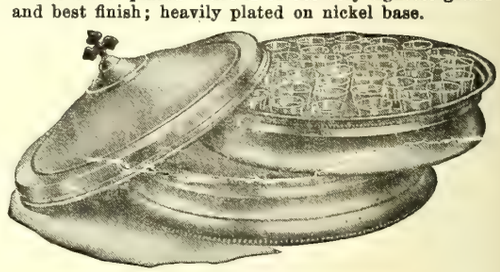
Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

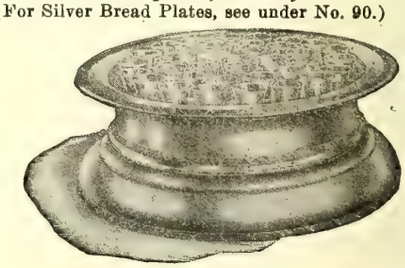
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

OBITUARIES.

FARRELL.

We, the members of Hanks' Chapel Church, feel very keenly the passing of our most faithful member, Miss Lucy Farrell, who departed this life April 6, 1930. While we mourn the departure of our sister, who has been a patient sufferer for many years, we feel that our loss is her eternal gain. May we ever strive to imitate her example by being more faithful in our duties to God's cause.

We bow in humble submission to His will, and extend to her loved ones our deepest sympathy, and we recommend that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy spread on the Church record.

RALPH RIDDLE.
CLAYTON FARRELL.
ELSIE RIDDLE.

SHARPE.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., feel very keenly the passing of one of our oldest and most faithful members, Mrs. Anthea Sharpe, who departed this life on March 19, 1930, age 82 years.

While we mourn the loss of our co-worker and friend, we feel that our loss is her gain, and may we strive to imitate her example by being more loyal and faithful in our duties to God's cause.

We bow in humble submission to His will, and extend to her loved ones our deepest sympathy, and recommend that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to The Christian Sun, and a copy be recorded on the minutes of this society.

MRS. B. E. WHITE,
MRS. E. L. GRAY,
MRS. KNOELLER,

WHITESELL.

Wilmouth E. Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Harper, was born July 14, 1881, and departed this life May 14, 1930, aged 48 years and 10 months. She was married to Edwin P. Whitesell on February 15, 1903. To this union four children were born—John C., of High Point, N. C., and Percy Joe, Mary Clara and Allene, of the home. She spent the most of her life in Tennessee. It was there that in her youth she first gave her life to the Lord and united with the M. E. Church. She continued her membership there until after their removal to Elon College in January, 1920, where, under the ministry of Dr. W. S. Alexander, she transferred her membership to the Elon College Christian Church, where she was a member at the time of her death. Besides the husband and children, there are left to mourn her departure her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Harper, of Dyersburg, Tenn.; three brothers, and three sisters.

All who knew Mrs. Whitesell share with the family in a sense of personal bereavement. She loved her neighbors and friends and they in turn loved her for what she was. ALFRED W. HURST.

HEARNE.

We, the members of Hanks' Chapel Church, feel very keenly the passing of our most faithful member and co-worker, Bro. J. E. Hearne, who departed this life April 5, 1930. While we mourn the departure of our brother, who was a faithful worker and financial helper for many years, we feel that our loss is his eternal gain, and may we ever strive to imitate his example by being more faithful in our duties to God's cause.

We bow in humble submission to God's will, and extend to his loved ones our deepest sympathy, and we recommend that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy spread on the Church record.

RALPH RIDDLE.
CLAYTON FARRELL.
ELSIE RIDDLE.

RIGGSBEE.

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst our brother, G. W. Riggsbee, whose death occurred on April 6, 1930; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That in his passing, our Church, Turner's Chapel, has sustained the loss of a consecrated and efficient member and deacon.

2. That the Church realizes the love and interest he had in all Christian activities, and commend that spirit as worthy of imitation.

3. He was clean physically, mentally, and morally, and had an unfaltering faith in Christ.

4. He loved the service of worship and attended whenever his health would permit.

5. We extend to all his loved ones—brothers, sisters, children, and especially his widow—our sincere sympathy, and commend them to the care of our Heavenly Father, in whom he so trusted.

6. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our Church record, one sent to the bereaved family, and one sent to The Christian Sun for publication.

B. C. DAWSON.
B. F. KELLY.
E. J. JOHNSON.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.

CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL. D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

WARRINGTON.

In the passing away of our friend and neighbor, W. B. Warrington, our Berea Sunday School has lost one of its best members, for he was regular in attendance, active in his class-work, and a generous contributor to every worthy cause. We cannot know why he was taken from us, yet we submit to the divine will of our Heavenly Father, who knows all sorrow and whose great heart is filled with love and compassion. He stands with outstretched arms to comfort and shield His children, who through faith will come and lean upon Him. Therefore, be it resolved:

First: That we extend to each of his loved ones our deepest sympathy, and especially to his beloved companion do we give our tenderest love and assurance of our share in her grief. May her trust in God sustain her in this hour, and may His grace be sufficient unto her need.

Second: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy written in our Church book, and a copy sent to The Christian Sun for publication.

MRS. E. L. EVERETT,
MRS. H. P. HARRELL,
MRS. A. S. HARGRAVES,
Committee.

MEDLIN.

Our community was made sad when on Monday, April 7th, the death angel called for the spirit of little Amarylies Lindberg Medlin. Amarylies was the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Medlin, and was a member of the missionary cradle roll, and the Sunday School cradle roll of Liberty Vance. She was such a sweet, bright, brown-eyed baby, full of life, and wanted to go to Sunday School the day before she died. On Friday, April 4th, while out playing where her father was putting up a wire fence, the little girl slipped on the wire and hurt her foot. The foot, however, showed no sign of being hurt until Sunday noon, when a red ankle was discovered, proving to be a bone infection that caused sudden death. All was done that physician and loving hands could do, but God wanted the beautiful rose-bud to blossom up yonder. The parents were very submissive to His will and bore their sorow with Christian fortitude.

Little Amarylies was born December 10, 1928, making her abode here only 27 months and 28 days, yet long enough to win the love of all who knew her. She leaves to mourn their loss her parents, two sisters, three brothers, grandparents, and a host of other relatives and friends. The funeral was in charge of the pastor, Rev. H. E. Crutchfield. Six little girls from the primary department carried the flowers. Interment was made in Liberty (Vance) Cemetery.

MRS. R. J. N.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

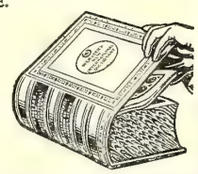
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ m From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, n I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ m From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, n Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY 1956
Southern Convention of

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Official Organ of the Southern Christian Convention.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND VA., THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1930. NUMBER 22.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

A BASIS FOR CHURCH UNION.—

The Christian Herald conducted last week, at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., an institute of religion. The institute was financed by James Cash Penney, and had for its purpose the study of the question of Church union among Protestant denominations. An effort was made to formulate a possible basis upon which Protestants might unite. President George Warren Richards, of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church in the United States, presented such a declaration which might serve as a possible basis of union. Those of our readers who are acquainted with the Cardinal Principles of the Christian Church will be interested in making a comparison between that for which the Christian Church has always stood and the following declaration which President Richards submits as a possible basis of agreement.

"1. The Bible as a rule of faith and practice.

"2. The Apostolic or Nicene creed, or both.

"3. Shifting from emphasis on doctrine to emphasis on Christian ethics.

"4. Recognition of the fact that the statements of all denominations are equivalent, and any one is adequate.

"5. Jesus as Lord and Saviour."

THE BAPTISTS AND EVANGELISM.—

Reports from the recent session of the Southern Baptist Convention, held at New Orleans, are to the effect that one of the outstanding notes of the convention was the emphasis upon evangelism. It was also reported that the recent session was one of the most harmonious and enthusiastic meetings that has been held for a number of years. The Southern Baptists' annual gatherings have been, in former years, storm centers of the modernist-fundamentalist controversy. But they seem to have left off the wrangling and settled down to the real business of the Church, with the emphasis upon evangelism, and the adoption of an annual budget of one and a half million dollars for foreign missions.

Many of the things that were emphasized by my seminary professor in Church history have been forgotten; but his explanation of the firm hold which the Baptists have in this country is clearly remembered. According to the professor, who was a Presbyterian, the Baptists had centered their efforts on the preaching of the gospel throughout the early years of their history. He outlined the part taken by other denominations in the controversies that raged during those early days. But if the professor's statement is to be accepted, the Baptists left others to fight the battles over the controverted points of doctrine, and busied themselves with the carrying of the gospel to lost sinners. And this course worked out with great profit both to the sinners and to the Baptists.

It now seems that the Baptists are calling for an increased activity in the work of evangelism. The preaching of the Word never fails to bear fruit. There is no promise of the Bible which is fulfilled so unmistakably and so constantly before the eyes of men as the prmoise that God's Word shall not return unto Him void. It is time for all other denominations to return to a program of distinctly evangelistic preaching.

THE OTHER SIDE.—

It is always interesting to see a question from the viewpoint of the other fellow. To do so is generally to find that we are all pretty much alike in our suspicions and in our supposed grievances. Church Management for June, 1930, carries this story under the caption, "Catholic Priest Protests Newspaper Policy":

"Protestant Church people sometimes complain that the Roman Catholic Church gets more newspaper attention than does the Protestant Church. Such critics will be enlightende by reading the following, which is copied from the newspapermen's trade weekly, the Editor and Publisher:

"Attack 'Secular' Press—New York Priest Says Dailies are Unfair to Catholics. An attack upon the 'secular' press for alleged unfairness to the Catholic Church was made in a sermon February 23, 1930, by the Rev. Henry F. Hammer, at the vesper services of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. Father Hammer criticised the metropolitan newspapers as a group for their selection of Catholic news, and charged that the reports of services in Catholic Churches are not only given in a very brief form, but are insignificantly placed in the columns of the newspapers.

" 'The secular press is manifastly unfair to Catholics,' he said, 'not in an antagonistic or hostile sense, but surely in an unfriendly manner. Take the so-called religious page of a New York paper any Monday morning, and notice that practically every column is headed with the reports of non-Catholic sermons, while away down at the bottom of the column you may find the report of a Catholic service.'

"Father Hammer added that the managers of daily papers should be 'taught better manners,' and averred that they would be 'more considerate' if there was a good Catholic daily paper in the city. His sermon was in keeping with 'Catholic Press month,' which, he said, had been promulgated for February by the bishops of the Catholic Church."

THE LEAVEN OF IDEAS.—

Strange things are taking place in India. They are things that are extremely puzzling to the rest of the world. Gandhi and his followers are stirring the land, and will eventually stir the world with the leaven of their ideas. The world must occasionally have such stirrings. And if there be any one outstanding need of this present day, it is the need for new ideas as to how desired goals may be reached. The world of today is catching a vision of ideals, which every one can easily see are consummations that are most devoutly to be wished.

Out of the World War was born a realization of the necessity for lifting the world from the plane upon which it had been operating for a long time, onto a higher and loftier plane of peace and human brotherhood through co-operation. The world wallowed through a sea of blood to a desire for universal peace. From the sheer folly of the attempt to shape and fashion the course of human history by the exercise of brute force, there came a realization that there must be a more ideal way to determine the course of human events. Woodrow Wilson, with an almost uncanny ability, voiced the ideals and the longings that were stirring deeply in the heart of humanity everywhere. It was Wilson's declarations which brought the world to a renunciation of the policies for which it had been striving.

But it was one thing to give formal expressions to the desires which were inarticulate in the heart of the world; it was an entirely different task to devise practical means by which to attain the desires which had been expressed. Students of history and international politics have very correctly pointed out that the treaty of Versailles falls a long way short of conforming to the basis of agreement upon which the armistice had been signed. The failure of the treaty to measure up to the eighteen points has often been cited as an evidence of the breaking of faith on the part of those who formed the treaty of versailles. Taken as a whole, it was perhaps not so much a failure to keep faith as it was a failure to find the means whereby ideals might be turned into practical relationships.

The same thing happened at the London Conference for the Limitation of Armaments. The Kellog Pact had given a definite expression to an ideal. But when the London Conference met, and starting with conditions as they existed, sought to find a way whereby the pact might definitely be related to the armaments of the leading world powers, it was found that traditions and principles which had been followed by all nations up to the present, had the world fastly bound with the grave clothes of the past. If it is assumed that the delegates at London were sincere, the conclusion is that they were seeking to accomplish a task for which there was no prescribed formula.

Gandhi is introducing a new formula for handling an age-old question. He is insisting that "non-violence" be substituted where force has always been used. It may be that Gandhi is contending for the very method of procedure which the world so sorely needs.

NOTES-PERSONALS

We regret to learn that Mrs. R. A. Whitten, Reidsville, has been quite unwell in recent weeks. Rev. R. A. Whitten reports she is improving, and this joins in the hope and prayer that she will soon be entirely recovered.

Mrs. Nannie L. Hawkins, Cedar Grove, N. C., ever faithful to her Church and its interests, cheers THE SUN with this sentence: "THE SUN has been a regular visitor in my home nearly thirty years. My intention is to have it as long as I live. It is next to the Bible in our home, and I cannot do without it."

It is learned that Mrs. C. H. Rowland was carried to the hospital for a serious surgical operation Friday, May 23rd. The last reports were that she stood the operation well and gives hope of coming through the ordeal in safety. Our anxiety goes out for Dr. Rowland and his family, joining them in the hope that Mrs. Rowland will soon recover.

Our Mebane Church has united with the other Churches of Mebane in a simultaneous evangelistic campaign, to begin June 18th, with preaching each night in each Church by the pastor, or a visiting minister, and a union service in one of the Churches each day at 8 A. M. by one of the pastors or visiting ministers, to continue for ten days. Rev. J. H. Dollar, of Reidsville, will direct the music and assist our pastor, R. A. Whitten, in this simultaneous campaign.

Through the courtesy of the Southeastern Passenger Association, the summer school of Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., has recently been added to the list of colleges approved for special round-trip rates to teachers and students who may attend the summer school at Demorest this summer. This item will possibly be of interest especially to many of our Georgia and Alabama readers who may desire to attend the summer school at Piedmont College.

Rev. Jesse H. Dollar, pastor, is conducting a revival in his Church at Reidsville, N. C., the Church having requested the pastor to do the preaching and conduct the services as the culmination of a loyalty campaign carried on for some weeks. Bro. Dollar is exceedingly solicitous of the outcome of the meeting, trusting and devoutly praying that souls shall be won for Christ and the Church, and that the kingdom may be built up through this evangelistic effort. He covets the prayers of his friends and brethren.

The Afro-Christian Convention will meet in regular biennial session in Manly Street Christian Church, Raleigh, N. C., June 7th. At this session the Convention will consider the matter of the merger with the Congregationalists. It is expected to be a very largely attended and important session. During the session, one of the features will be a service celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Rev. S. A. Howell, D. D., Newport News, Va. Dr. Howell served the Convention as its president for several terms, is widely and favorably known throughout the Convention, and has rendered efficient service in many capacities during the fifty years of his ministry.

One interested pastor writes: "Acting upon the suggestion, which I think an excellent one, that, since on no one Sunday are all members of a Church and congregation present, I asked my people who had not contributed to missions when the offering was taken to do so next Sunday. I hope the response will be liberal, as I am sure that some, at least, of our substantial members were away the Sunday the offering was taken." This is a suggestion that many pastors and Churches may follow to advantage, because those absent from a Church on any given Sunday may be as willing to make a contribution as those who were present on that day. All should have a chance at the missionary offering.

Rev. J. L. Neese, pastor, and his Palm Street people are rejoicing in the results of a great evangelistic campaign in the Church the past two weeks. The spirit of the meetings throughout was inspiring, congregations were large and steadily increased, and there were conversions at almost every service. The meetings resulted in possibly more than a hundred conversions and reconsecrations. Large numbers have been added to the Church and are being added. Bro. Neese is naturally gratified and rejoiced for this visitation of the spirit in his Church and for the awakening to religion and righteousness in his community. We rejoice with him and his happy people. He was assisted in the meetings by Rev. L. A. Nall.

The following will be of interest to many SUN readers who personally know and highly esteem Dr. Long, and they too will join in the hearty congratulations so considerately expressed: "Dr. Daniel Albright Long, 108 North Guerry Street, Florence, S. C. Dear Dr. Long,—The faculty and student body of Antioch send you greetings for your eighty-eighth birthday. We hope that your health will continue good and that you may find joy in living. We are sending some pictures of Antioch today which may revive old memories and indicate recent progress at the institution where you so ably held the fort in years gone by. Sincerely yours, (Signed) Arthue E. Morgan, President Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio. May 6, 1930."

Mrs. Dr. M. J. W. White, Jr., writing to her home paper, Luray, Va., under date of Cagayan, Misamie, Philippine Islands, March 14, tells of the following very interesting event: "The big event of this week was the visit of Governor General Davis to our city. The party arrived by private boat at 8:45 A. M. Tuesday. The pier was gayly decorated with cocoanut leaves and many welcome signs could be seen everywhere. There were troops of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the city officials, and many school children and ladies in beautiful Filipino dress representing the Woman's Club, all carrying flowers to present to the ladies of the party. Soon the governor came off, smiling. We were introduced by Representative San Victores and received a pleasant greeting. He was followed by his daughter, Alice, and niece, Miss Davis; his aid, Mr. Murray and Mrs. Murray, Colonel Winship and Mr. and Mrs. Early. We followed the party to the provincial building and public buildings down town and then came back to be ready to receive them at the hospital. It was 9:30 when they arrived here. The whole party went around the second floor porch, looking in the wards and private rooms. They all commented on our nice hospital. They then told us good-by and left for Bukidnon, the pineapple plantation where they were to spend the night. We were lucky enough to get an invitation to luncheon with them there as Dr. White is attending the manager's wife. There were about forty people there when we arrived, most of whom we had already met. And what a delightful time we had eating fried chicken, ham, salad and many delicacies which we had not tasted since leaving the States. And the best cake imaginable! And every one so friendly and agreeable. Well, I could only wish we had more such visitors."

FRANKLIN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

One of the most interesting pieces of work that the Young People's Missionary Society of the Franklin Church has been engaged in during the past two years has just been completed. The piece of inspirational study was our mission study class. We met consecutively for three weeks in the evening in our superintendent's home and studied "Seven Thousand Emeralds," by Laubach. The young people, along with the leader, have declared that never have they studied such an interesting mission study book. The first evening of the class, an exhibit of the products of the Philippine Islands was arranged. This added much interest and helped in making us feel more indebted to these emerald islands for their contribution to us. Posters and maps were also arranged for the benefit of our study. Many outside references were given on points of interest discovered in the text.

On the last evening of the study class, after the entire book had been presented and we, as young Americans, yearned to help the youth of the Philippine Islands in attaining that "sublime ideal," the group placed their gifts into the treasure chest which had been purchased and placed for that purpose. This chest, like dolls to Japan, and school bags to Mexico, is to be sent with thousands of others to bear good tidings of peace and good will to the children and youth of the Philippines. These treasure chests can be purchased from the Committee on World Friendship Among Children, New York City. It was a fitting climax to our study on the emerald islands to pack our chest and have it ready to send to the Philippine children for next Christmas.

Those of us who are missionary thinking realize how significant the year 1930 is in world mission and Church vision. This year marks the 1900th anniversary of Pentecost, and those who carry the responsibility of missions on their hearts have paused in gratitude for the nobleness of purpose and sincerity of endeavor of those men and women who carried on centuries ago.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Franklin Christian Church has also, as a group, paused in gratitude not only to those early leaders of the first and second century, but to those of our own Church membership who, in days that are gone, carried the responsibility of world missions. On February 17th the Society celebrated its thirty-fifth anniversary. Green and white were used in decorations, with a large poster which read "W. M. S., 1895-1930."

A very fine devotion was conducted by one of the members of our society, followed by the trilogue, "Three Boxes." A very comprehensive resume of our mission work, both in our old fields and in our new fields, was presented. Portions of the minutes of the first Woman's Missionary Society were read, dating from 1895. Six girls from the Young People's Missionary Society gave a hymn pantomime, "The Whole Wide World for Jesus," accompanied by vocal music and violin music. This was very effective and most interesting. The violin was played by one of our town boys whose uncle had just presented him with a real Stradivarius violin.

A birthday offering was received, each person having been given attractive little white bags with green shamrocks in which to bring their free-will offering.

A social hour was enjoyed, and the people seemed glad to have celebrated this the thirty-fifth anniversary of our missionary society in Franklin.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

PRACTICING PENTECOST.

By Rev. John G. Truitt.

"And all that believed were together."—Acts 2:44.

The Pentecost Church was united. In the practice of the Pentecost spirit, there was unity. There had been divisions, and there would be divisions; but Pentecost was a unity. Yesterday they had desired fire from heaven to come down upon others because of differences. And there could be discerned murmurings among themselves that were distracting, not to say destructive; divisions that drove them away from their Lord and divided them from one another. Different were their hopes, and divided were their aims, but Pentecost put them together. And as they began to practice their spirit of Pentecost, they found themselves bound together in inseparable bonds. "All that believed were together."

1. In practicing Pentecost, they were together in faith. "They that gladly received His word were baptized." They didn't begin to argue over methods, forms, and foibles; they have left that for a less spiritual age to do; but they began immediately to practice what the preacher had said. Christ had been preached as the promised one, as the one who would redeem Israel, as one who would take away their own sins, and as the one who would present them spotless before the throne of God. His miraculous life, death, and resurrection, along with His command to disciple the whole world, had been emphasized. That word they gladly received, and it they began to practice. They were told to believe, and they believed; to be baptized, and they were baptized.

Jesus had been killed. What would hinder the same spirit that had killed Jesus from doing likewise to any who espoused His cause? How did those who were "gladly receiving the word" know that there would be safety in such a step? They did not know it, but they had a faith that gladly ventured all in the doctrine being preached to them by Peter. "They continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine," and any who may have warned them of the danger found little thanks for their advice because they gladly took the risk.

Is there the same need to give one's self so gladly to that same faith today and take like venture? Yes, except the need is greater than ever before. Today, God is calling young men to give themselves to the doctrine preached by those apostles whole-heartedly and unreservedly, and there is a romance in it yet that is plenty real and rigorous! God is calling you to stand up straight and steady for the spirit of Jesus in an age that could do more with His spirit than any age of the past. God is calling young men and young women to get "together with Him" in wiping out hate, crass materialism, crime, ignorance, disease, and suffering. At every front the world is waiting; yea, "even the creation waits with eager longing for the sons of God to be revealed." They are the great words of Paul challenging you to take up where the apostles and saints of God down across the centuries have left off, and help to manifest the kind of generation the world is waiting for. For that is not all Paul says; he adds, "To this day, we know, the entire creation sighs and throbs with pain."

Let me challenge you to believe, to accept gladly the apostles' doctrine, and to begin in this Church today to practice by our common, united faith the spirit of the Pentecost. Do not be among those who think it is wise and erudite to deny the faith, to question its foundations, and to crucify afresh its Founder. Do not laugh at the beliefs of the apostles, nor the creeds of Christendom; but rather learn from them as from a schoolmaster in order that you may make better ones and practice your faith as sincerely.

2. In practicing Pentecost, they were together in fellowship. "All that believed were together and had all things in common." In all probability, their fellowship took a practical turn that would not be necessary in our present day; but, nevertheless, it was a whole-hearted fellowship. It was a fellowship unafraid. We may question its method, but we dare not question its spirit. It is the letter that killeth, but if we have the spirit of fellowship which prompted those folks to "sell their possessions and goods, and part them to all men, as every man had need," we would certainly be rid of a great deal of our denominational strife, overlapping and bungling with the Church's money. We not only hold on to our own goods and possessions, but—and heaven help us—we bungle the money laid by our brethren on God's altar. A faith functioned then in such way as to pool all, a lack of faith functions today in such way as to make poverty-stricken whole nations and countries! While Argentina's children suffer because their wheat rots in their granaries, China's millions die for lack of food. To some extent, at least, the Church is a world power today. The powers that be are so-called Christian powers. There is a lack of Pentecost fellowship. When Christian nations meet to confer on laying down some of their bloody weapons of war instead of a full-grown fellowship, there is a full-blown fear!

But does this thing stop at so secular a door? No, it enters the sacred altars of our land, and fear, competition and bigotry are still alive in the Church today. Men and women, it is ours to strive to catch a spirit of Pentecost fellowship and make the Church a real fraternity, and consequently a real power.

3. In practicing Pentecost, they were together in fruit-bearing. "And fear came upon every soul, and many wonders and signs were done." My! if only the Church, gentle, meek, and as powerless as much of the world still thinks it is, would arise in a united faith, and a united fellowship, how it would strike fear upon many souls today! When God's people get together, it strikes fear into the heart of sin. When God's people get into one accord, the Church bears fruit! They struck fear upon every soul! But, my friends, before they did that it is recorded of them that "they continued steadfastly in the apostle's doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." Ah! Church of God today, there is your Magna Charta! "Doctrine," do not let people make you believe that we should run from a real study of Gods word. Too much present-day Sunday School teaching is a sort of an attempt to psycho-analyze somebody. A senior in high school in this city came to me the other day in a timid sort of way and said, "About my Sunday School class I wish to say, I believe we talk in it too much about modern situations, and not enough about the historic Scriptures themselves." How my heart went out to that bright young chap! Do not be afraid to teach something. That is what doctrine means!

"And in breaking bread, and in prayers." There are two other cardinal essentials. The holy of holies in Church worship is the Lord's Supper. It is a time of heart-searching, a time of real communion, and a time of high spiritual resolving. We cannot forsake the Church for every other whim and expect God to honor us with His special blessings. We cannot run away from Communion and stated prayers and expect our children to respect us when we boast of our Church, or our life. In the practice of Pentecost we will find our Churches crowded to the curbs, and we shall find some real indoctrination going on within, and some mighty, godly living going on without. We cannot have too much practice of the fine, safe apostolic principles of the Lord's upper room Church. It carried those members "from house to house (throughout the world), eating their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God and having favor with all people." "And the Lord added to the Church daily."

OUR WINGS.

"But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."—Isa. 40:31.

The eagle, as he soars through space above all the barriers of a lower sphere, upon those mighty wings which God has given him, reaching heights unknown except to the infinite God, is a picture of might and power which is beyond human perception.

Yet, the prophet says that if we wait upon the Lord we shall mount up on wings as eagles, wings that will take us above all that troubles or annoys, or that impedes our spiritual progress. These wings are faith and trust, and they are perfectly balanced, for they bear the inscription, "God is" and "God is able." Stronger than eagle's wings are they, and they carry us into the secret place of the Most High, where we may hear things that are not lawful for man to utter.

The "I am's" of promise that were spoken throughout the Old Testament to the patriarchs of the ages and echoed by Jesus the Christ in the revelation to John are ours by right of inheritance.

"Faith takes, trust gives," and we need only to take what our God is so willing to give and wait upon Him, trusting our lives to His keeping, giving Him full control, for He is able to give power to the faint and strnegth to the weak; to feed His flock like a shepherd, and to lead them by still waters in green pastures.

Surely in these troublous times these wings are sorely needed, and they are ours to carry us above the trials of this present world into the calm and sweet repose of the perfect peace and trust in the infinite God. "When all around my soul gives way, He then is all my hope and stay."

As the eagle soars through the upper heights of ether with no perceptible movement of his wings, so we may rise in complete faith and trust, committing our way unto the Lord and He will work for us. The seeming impossible, the seeming impractical, shall come to pass in His own good way and time if we use these wings of faith and trust and wait patiently for our Lord to work out His plans in the lives of men.

With the use of these wings, peace and power are given in perfect balance and makes us to triumph over the circumstances of life which would keep us on a low spiritual plane. Why should we worry along in the dense traffic of life when we can rise above its sordidness into the clear, pure atmosphere of God's eternal mightiness?

"Be like the bird that, halting in her flight
Awhile on boughs too slight,
Feels them give way beneath her, and yet sings,
Knowing that she has wings." W.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, Elon College, N. C.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER

S. C. HARRELL

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

EDUCATION AND STRONG DRINK.

Law does not prohibit one from doing evil. Law gives one the privilege of doing right and makes it possible and virtuous to do right. Law has been defined as "the organized virtue of the community." One may protest against that virtue, take exceptions to it, depart from it, but the organized effort and consensus of opinion make it easy and inviting to do right when one so wishes.

Prohibition never has prohibited the individual who is determined to have liquor. His taste was supreme. He put his appetite above the organized virtue of the community, in so far as that virtue had expressed itself in the community, State, or nation against the evils of strong drink. As long as there are individuals who have the taste for liquor and the determination to have it, the work of education, despite all the laws that may be enacted, must go on. The finest and best thing in all the prohibition talk and propaganda was the process of education carried on which taught the individual the evils of strong drink. Those of us who lived through that intensely educational era recall how the mails were crowded with printed pages of matter which taught the poisonous and the deadly effects on the human system of alcohol. Pamphlets and books were written by the score and by the thousands, showing how the whole human system was affected by strong drink, and how the one who drank became such a victim to poison that he was physically, mentally, if not morally, unable to compete in the race of life with those who did not drink. Speakers in pulpit, in the class-room and on the platform by the thousands taught youth and age the baneful effects of rum. It was rum and ruin versus reason and riches. This was the finest and the best contribution that the whole prohibition movement has made to our country and to civilization.

The fact that a prohibition law was enacted did not destroy the individual taste nor prevent those inclined and determined to have liquor from having it. After prohibition had won a partial victory by getting a law enacted and an amendment adopted, much of the educational process and propaganda ceased. This is proving detrimental to the youth and the rising generation who are not receiving the advantages of instruction, teaching and education with regard to the ruinous and baneful effects and influences of alcohol.

If the Literary Digest straw vote and other wet propaganda which ex-saloon-keepers and whiskey soaks in general have never ceased to carry on shall stimulate the dry forces, the educational activities, and if again the process of teaching the youth and the adults of the land the results of intemperance, it will have all served a good purpose, and the folly of man will again be made to result in good for a righteous cause, to the glory of the organized virtue of the community and the world. More than eight weeks after twenty million votes were sent out by the Literary Digest, only about four million had been returned. This leaves one to wonder what became of the nearly sixteen millions sent out not returned. True, that some over 40 per cent of the votes returned favored repeal, and over forty-six per cent of the repeal votes came from the six States containing the largest cities. Very many dry leaders urged prohibitionists in all directions to ignore the straw vote. Whatever the results of the issue may be, if those who care for sobriety and the organized virtue of the community are stimulated to educational activity in again showing each and every individual the baneful effects of alcohol on the human system and on society, it will all be worth while and prove a contribution to virtue and to righteousness.

J. O. A.

SATAN.

Many of "the intellectuals," and not a few philosophers decry the idea of a real Satan, of a personal devil. It might be convenient and exceedingly comfortable to agree with the intelligentia, if the facts were not against them. There are three incontrovertible facts, however, and rather stubborn ones, which compel us to believe in a real Satan, a personal devil.

First: Human experience. Most rational human beings, out of their own experience, can say, with certainty, without adding the authority of an ancient and reliable writer, "When I would do good, evil is present." One knows from experience that such evil is not a mere abstract thing or a thin generalization. That evil often comes with such impact and such power that one feels and realizes that there is personality back of it. Often the power of tempetation is so concentrated, so strong, so irresistible, that one fully realizes that the force is not impersonal but personal, and that the driving power is so direct and eminent and compelling that there is personality behind it. No impersonal force, no misdirected or aimless force could come with such penetration, persuasiveness and power if there were not personality behind it. Every one who has striven, and does strive, to do right, has had the experience time and again that evil, concentrated and personalized evil, was present and was getting in his deadly work.

Second: Most ancient and authentic writers, inspired and uninspired, believed in a real Satan, a personal devil; and these writers and teachers had such weight and influence in their day, and since their day, that we cannot doubt their wisdom and their testimony. Moses, the writer of Genesis, believed in a real Satan, a personal devil, and, in the light of such belief, instructed his day and generation with such wisdom that one cannot believe he was mistaken in his teachings and in his conclusions.

They tell us that Job was one of the most ancient books not only of the Bible but of time. In no writings do we have the personal work of Satan set forth with more vividness and personal power and approach than in the Book of Job. The writer of the Book of Job, which writing has had weight through the centuries, believed that there was and is a personal devil. The writers of practically all of the books of the Old Testament in their writings teach that Satan is, and that he is personal and powerful.

Third: Jesus not only declared that He Himself knew the truth, but that He was Himself the Truth. No one can read the sayings of Jesus and have any doubt about His belief, not only that there is a devil, but that the devil had strong, strange power and a kingdom. When He was casting out devils, they accused Him of casting them out by the power of Satan himself, and then Jesus said: "If Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand." In this simple statement, Jesus declares both His belief in a personal Satan and in the kingdom of his Satanic majesty. "But if I cast out devils by the spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you." Here Christ declares His power to cast out devils by the overcoming, overruling, ever-conquering spirit of God.

We can well afford to believe that our Lord was not mistaken in His beliefs, but that He knew His world and His kingdom and His work; and He also knew the world and the kingdom that was under the dominion of His enemy and foe, and that Satan must be conquered and driven out if the kingdom of God was to prevail.

It may be uncomfortable and inconvenient to think of a personal devil exceedingly busy in trying to trounce and destroy the works of righteousness, but human experience, the wisest teachers and personal embodiment of truth all declare that Satan is and that he is a personal power seeking, with all the passion of the soul of hate, to tear down and to destroy the works of righteousness.

J. O. A.

LIBERALITY.

People generally think of liberality in terms of giving money generously to good causes; but the term may be applied to thought and feeling as well as to money. It is expressed in a common phase as "giving and taking." All people do not think alike, but exchange of opposite thought may result in better thought for both parties. It recognizes value in thoughts, actions, and attitudes of others. The two realms in which liberality works, or fails to work, are religion and politics. Religion has been a divisive subject from the days of Judaism, and down through the Christian centuries until the present. The same is true of party politics. Ambition obscures liberality in thought and feeling and sets men against each other; and parties, too. Creeds and ambition in the Church do the same. Yet, in these two realms, liberality is greatly needed to harmonize thought and relations for the good of the Church and the State. Liberality consists in giving our best to others and respecting the thought of others. Some people are generous in expressing their own thought and opinion and illiberal toward the thought and opinion of others.

Liberality is not one-sided; it works both ways and cultivates the spirit of good feeling and cooperation both in Church and State. Every knee will not bow and every tongue will not confess until the whole Church is liberal toward one another in the true Christian spirit. But liberality in giving to good causes, and the support of the Church, is one question that deserves prayerful consideration. This question involves thoughts, feelings, and attitudes as well as contributions. Wrong thoughts may exist in the minds of those who are able to give much and those who are not able to give but little. Those who consider themselves poor, feel that the rich ought to give more and that they should be excused from giving. On the other hand, the rich feel that they ought not give all, but that all ought to give. These two feelings reduce liberal giving and keep the Church in a strain.

Poor people often think that they are more willing to give than rich people. But liberality is not measured by what people think they would give, if they had more; but it is measured by what they give of what they have. If poor people would all give to the support of the Church, rich people would give more than they do. The two are as illiberal in their thinking and feeling toward each other as they are in their giving. Rich people are just as liberal in their thought and giving as poor people, and there is no difference in their sacred obligation to God and each other.

W. W. S.

UNABLE TO STAND PROSPERITY.

As we have read recently the Bible history of the Church, we have been impressed with the inability of mankind to stand prosperity. There is something in the human heart, in the processes of human reasoning, which leads man to take glory to himself instead of giving it to God. He forgets that God has given him power to get wealth, that God has elevated him to some position of influence, that without the blessing of heaven his efforts would have been fruitless. He feels that it is by his own ability, his own genius, his own intelligence, his own inherent wisdom, his good sense, that he has advanced himself above his fellow men, or has achieved where others have failed. He thinks he has foresight which they lacked; received a vision which was not given to them; saw the trend and bearing and logical outcome of things which they failed to observe.

It was this process of reasoning that led Nebuchadnezzar to say, "Is not this great Babylon, that I have built?" And because of this exaltation on his part, and in order that God might save him and teach him lessons, the judgment of the Most High fell upon the king. The good sense he had exercised and which he thought had brought him prosperity, was taken from him. He was driven from his throne, and his habitation was with the beasts of the field, until he saw that, after all, goodness, greatness, and power emanate from God.

When the Lord called Saul to be the first king of Israel, he was small in his own estimation. He was so modest and backward that when the time came for his appointment to be announced to the people, he hid himself, and they had to go and search him out. But a few short years transformed the humble, modest Saul into an arrogant, imperious sovereign. Samuel reminds him of this. He says, "When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the Lord anointed thee king over Israel? . . . Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the Lord?" It was a spirit of rebellion and stubbornness, self-confidence and egotism, that led Saul to disobey; and because of his persistence in this rebellion, the kingdom was taken from him, and God anointed a humble shepherd lad to be captain over His people.

But few, comparatively, in the history of all time have been able to stand prosperity and maintain unsullied their character of humility. David in turn became exalted, and sent Jaob forth to number Israel in order to learn the greatness and glory of his kingdom. God humbled him through the terrible pestilence visited upon the people.

God exalted Jeroboam to be king of the ten tribes. He took him from the ranks as a young man, and set him upon the throne of Israel, and promised to build for him a house even as He had built for David, provided only that Jeroboam would walk humbly before the Lord. But the young man could not stand this exaltation. He soon established a worship in opposition to that at Jerusalem, and step by step he led Israel into sin until he became one of the most wicked of the kings of Israel.

God gave to Hezekiah prosperity, life and health, honor and glory, and finally in his later years he raised him up miraculously from a great affliction, and as a sign that he would work this miracle in his behalf, the Lord caused the sun to turn backward. This celestial phenomenon was witnessed by the nations of earth, and the king of Babylon sent ambassadors to inquire of Hezekiah concerning it. But Hezekiah, instead of being grateful for God's great deliverance and revealing to these heathen ambassadors the God of heaven, gloried in showing them all the treasures of his house, his own glory and greatness. This excited the spirit of cupidity on the part of Babylon, and later Jerusalem was given up to plunder. Hezekiah failed to stand the test of God.

The question for us to consider is a personal one. Are we standing the tests which God imposes upon us? It may be the test of sickness, of bereavement, of destitution. Somehow, these experiences have a tendency to drive us to the Lord. The great majority of men and women can stand adversity better than they can prosperity. Are we standing the test of prosperity? God has bestowed upon us, perhaps, abundance of health, vigor of mind and body. Do we recognize Him as the source of these blessings, and are we dedicating these talents to Him, or are we taking credit to ourselves? Perhaps he has given to us acquired ability in education. Has this exalted us in our own estimation? Do we count ourselves wiser than our brethren? Do we feel that the little book knowledge we have obtained entitles us to a recognition and a consideration which others of our brethren should not have?

Perhaps we have achieved something really worth while; we have been successful in accumulating a competency, in making for ourselves a name in the world; we have been successful evangelists, and the blessing of God has attended us as administrators of institutions, of conferences; we have edited a paper that has succeeded through the years; we have written a book that has met with a large circulation. Will we give God the credit for this blessing that has attended our labors, or will we take the glory to ourselves? Will the blessing of God humble us in our own eyes, or will it exat us? Will it make us proud and critical and self-righteous, or will it lead us to walk humbly before God? These are the tests that are coming to us today.—Review and Herald.

Dost thou love life? Then, do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of.—Benjamin Franklin.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN FOR THE SUN

* * *

Beginning May the First and continuing through the months of May and June, the Circulation Manager of THE CHRISTIAN SUN offers the following prizes:

(1) To the person sending the largest list of new subscribers or renewals, we will give a nice $15.00 handbag, provided the person sends not less than $60.00 in money.

(2) To the person sending us the second largest list, a $10.00 gold coin, provided the person sends not less than $40.00 in money.

(3) To the person sending the third largest list, we will give a $5.00 gold coin, provided the party sends us not less than $20.00 in money.

OPTION

We will give Twenty Per Cent on all collections in lieu of either of the prizes above mentioned if you so desire.

In sending in your lists, please state whether you are working for the prize or commission, so we will know just how to handle the same.

Get busy—you will win in either case!

We are making a special effort in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN from now to July First. Help us to get new subscribers and renewals. We need them to finance THE SUN.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Circulation Manager.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Big things and big folks are just as important as little things and little folks. It takes both big and little to make the whole. It takes the little spikes and the big rails to make the track safe for the hand-car and the hundred-car train of coal. They co-operate in railroad traffic and make business bigger than either of them. The government of the United States is the biggest thing in this country, but it could not exist without the governments of the forty-eight States. The President is bigger in his position than any Governor, but the Governor is just as necessary in his position as the President. Big and little are relative terms, and their relation, when properly adjusted, is that of co-operation in harmony. "The eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee; nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you. Nay, much more those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary: and those members of the body, which we think to be less honorable, upon these we bestow more abundant honor" (1 Cor. 12:21-23). What is true of the body is true of society. The artificial distinctions made in society are not in the nature of society, but manufactured often out of egotism that makes harmful attitudes among men. The head and the feet are far apart, but each is essential in its place and function. Human society is really a family and nothing is more repulsive nor more disturbing in the relations of family life than for some members to ignore other members because of conditions of education, position, property, or standing. The family tie is really a love-tie and not a tie produced by outward conditions.

God is the all-wise, all-powerful Being who is the Father of all men. The Church is His bride, and the members her children, and all we are brethren: "One is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren" (Matt. 23:8; Acts 7:26). Though God is great, yet He regards men as His children and His family. If the Church understood her relation to God and man, she would understand that she is the bride of Christ and all members are her children. If the Church understood herself she would know that denominational superiority in thought and attitudes violates true love and Christian brotherhood. Denominational superiority is egotistic and unchristian. Christ has but one bride and but one family. It is a scattered family in all parts of the world, but "God hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth" (Acts 17:26). And when men are born again they become one in Christ. God is above man in wisdom, power, and wealth, but He loves man with an everlasting love, and Jesus Christ took upon Himself the form of a servant. He does not hold Himself above us, but He dwells with us. We are little, compared with God; yet the burden of feeding and clothing the world, and saving the world rests upon man. God and man co-operate in lighting the world. Electricity has always existed since creation; but it remained for man to discover, generate and convey it to homes, factories, cities for light, heat and power. Little man co-operates with big God, and the world is lighted and blessed.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

The quarterly Sunday School offerings are evidently growing in popularity. The following schools have been added to the list of contributors for this year: Berea (Norfolk), Bethlehem, Damascus, Isle of Wight, New Lebanon, St. Luke's, Union (Surry), and Windsor, in the Eastern Virginia Conference; Concord, Lynchburg and Mt. Bethel, in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference; Biscoe, Pleasant Hill, and Ramseur, in the Western North Carolina Conference; Antioch (Va.) and Shallow Well, in the Eastern North Carolina Conference; and Bethel, Mt. Olivet (R) and Newport, in the Virginia Valley Central Conference—a total of 19 in all, with 74 schools contributing to the cause.

The contributions this year by schools and Conferences have been as follows:

Eastern Virginia Conference (27)

Antioch	$ 2.00
Berea (Norfolk)	16.14
Bethlehem	4.51
Christian Temple	675.24
Damascus	6.59
Dendron	7.06
Elm Avenue	29.48
First, Norfolk	14.77
First, Richmond	81.01
Franklin	11.82
Holland	42.47
Holy Neck	25.32
Hopewell	4.50
Isle of Wight	2.00
Mt. Carmel	19.91
New Lebanon	3.00
Rosemont	28.99
St. Luke's	1.00
South Norfolk	20.49
Spring Hill	3.07
Suffolk	134.92
Union (South)	5.31
Union (Surry)	8.19
Wakefield	9.99
Waverly	18.27
Windsor	7.80
Webster	19.40
Total	$1,213.25

North Carolina and Virginia Conference (18).

Apple's Chapel	$ 14.31
Berea	12.03
Concord	2.35
Elon College (through budget)	25.00
First, Greensboro	77.97
Hines' Chapel	4.59
Ingram	10.00
Kallam Grove	1.82
Lebanon	6.74
Liberty	5.87
Long's Chapel	4.46
Lynchburg	4.43
Monticello	1.39
Mt. Bethel	3.22
New Lebanon	9.65
Pleasant Grove	5.53
Pleasant Ridge	4.14
Rocky Ford	2.00
Total	$ 195.50

Western North Carolina Conference (9)

Burlington	$ 82.38
Biscoe	4.04
Grace's Chapel	2.25
Graham-Providence Memorial	14.87
Liberty	5.45
Pleasant Hill	12.13
Pleasant Ridge	7.88
Ramseur	4.24
Randleman	9.50
Total	$ 142.75

Eastern North Carolina Conference (9).

Antioch (Va.)	$ 1.14
Chapel Hill	3.00
Fuller's Chapel	8.73
Henderson	8.51
Liberty	14.28
Morrisville	3.82
Mt. Auburn	30.00
Sanford	13.72
Shallow Well	1.00
Total	$ 84.20

Virginia Valley Central Conference (11).

Antioch	$ 13.78
Bethel	30.00
Bethlehem	1.30
Linville	20.05
Mayland	7.40
Mt. Olivet (G)	4.27
Mt. Olivet (R)	1.00
Newport	3.40
Timber Ridge	8.06
Winchester	12.85
Wood's Chapel	2.00
Total	$ 104.11
Grand total	$1,739.81

Last year the total contributions amounted to $1,167.53.

The scholarships have been won this year by the following schools:

Eastern Virginia Conference—Christian Temple.
North Carolina and Virginia Conference—First, Greensboro.
Western North Carolina Conference—Burlington.
Eastern North Carolina Conference—Mt. Auburn.
Virginia Valley Central Conference—Bethel.

These are the same schools that won last year, except that in the Virginia Valley Central Conference Bethel won this year and Linville last. The young people who have received the Sunday School scholarships have reflected credit on their schools. In the long run, there is no doubt the bringing of the college before the Sunday Schools each quarter will build a constituency for Elon among the young people of the Church.

W. A. HARPER.

ORPHANAGE ANNUAL REPORT.

During the year 1929 the Christian Orphanage had many things to be thankful for, while its joys were mixed with some misfortune and disappointments.

We feel very grateful to God that the children's health was good, and we had no critical illness and death did not visit our institution. We feel very happy to say that during our thirteen years of service we have only had one death, which occurred during the year 1918, during the flu epidemic.

During the year 1929 we cared for more children than during any one year in the history of the institution. We have never been so besieged with applications as we were last year. We began the year with 118 children. We admitted eighteen new children. We discharged during the year twenty-four children and ended the year with 112. During the year we cared for 136 different children. We had 29 full orphans, 32 mothers dead, 61 fathers dead, 14 both parents living. We had 68 boys and 68 girls; between the ages 2 to 6 we had 3, between 6 and 12 we had 70, between 12 and 18 we had 63.

We gave 42,511 days of care. We served 127,

533 meals. The cost per child per day was .6393 cents for food, clothing, education and care. Our cost per child per day for 1928 was 6334, so you see it figures very close for the two years. Our expenses were more last year, but we had a larger number of children. We are trying to hold our number to 110, and are not taking any new ones unless we just have to.

We raised the largest crop last year that we have ever produced, and the cost of the farm and dairy figure in the daily cost of the children. I beg to say that the Carlton farm, in South Carolina, which is being developed and run for the Christian Orphanage, is a wonderful help to us, and it enables us to keep a larger dairy than we could otherwise do. We have our own feed mill and grind and mix our own dairy feed, which is quite a saving to us. This institution can never thank our good brother, H. A. Carlton, enough for his generosity and real help in this work. The boys who work on this farm in South Carolina really enjoy the time as an outing, and they get a broader view of life.

Three years ago, Bro. P. J. Carlton bought the Ward farm, fifteen acres, west of town, which is very fine wheat land, and in 1929 he bought us five acres adjoining it, which is fine wheat land, too. We have this entire field planted to wheat this season. There are about eight acres of very fine wheat land adjoining this tract which will go on the market soon. We are hoping and praying that the good Lord will touch some heart and inspire them to buy it, as it will make us a fine wheat farm on which we can produce our bread from year to year.

The year 1929 was our thirteenth year, and it seemed to be an unlucky year. While we raised the most bountiful hay crop last year we have ever had, still in the haying season it was so rainy it was impossible to get it cured, and we lost quite a lot in the field that we did not attempt to rake up.

Your superintendent was in Wadley, Ala., attending the annual Conference and was suddenly stricken with appendicitis, came home, went to Rainey Hospital, underwent a serious operation, and came very near crossing the river. While we were in the hospital, the hay in the hay-loft got hot and caused combustion and burned our barn, with all contents except mules and cattle.

A few weeks after all this misfortune we had two little boys to have appendicitis and had to have operations. Then, we had two little boys to get their legs broken on the same afternoon and had to go to the hospital for a number of weeks, which has made our expense account run up. But, after all, we are happy that we are all living and in good health.

We want to express our thanks to the board of trustees for their assistance during my serious illness and the service rendered at the time the Orphanage suffered its loss by fire. We beg to report that the barn has been replaced with a new one and built on a modern plan, and is modern in every way. Bro. H. A. Carlton secured the drawings from the State College of North Carolina without cost. The barn has cost us $6,357.81, of which $5,491.34 has been paid, which leaves a balance of $825.13 to be met.

We are very grateful to our good women throughout our Church for their kind assistance during the year, in sending us dresses, quilts, food and many useful articles.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

Financial Report.

Income from Jan. 1, 1929, to Dec. 31, 1929.

Sunday School and Churches	$17,662.10
The Duke endowment	2,520.79
Lawrence Holt endowment	900.00
Alamance County	300.00
Friends	5,311.40
Total income	$26,694.59
Brought forward January 1, 1929	8,116.77
Total	$34,811.36

Expense Account.

Administration	$ 5,583.63
Paid salaries for matrons	2,503.25
Paid for food	4,932.14
Clothing	2,721.45
Laundry	552.99
Household supplies	499.37
Recreation	70.40
Transportation	117.48
Health	493.06
Education	1,188.32
Plant account	49.00
Fuel, light and water	1,344.31
Repairs	754.86
Hospital bills	169.00
Farm and dairy expense	5,350.59
Capital investment	2,695.52
Total	$29,029.37
Balance cash on hand January 1, 1930	5,786.99

1929.

Income in cash		$26,694.59
Income in donations:
1,100 bushels oats, at 90 cents	$ 990.00
1,027 bushels corn, at $1	1,027.00
87 gallons syrup	60.00
Food	195.00
Clothing	1,084.57
		3,366.57
Total income		$30,061.16

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Total cost of memorial		$1,275.00
Previously acknowledged	$1,079.25
T. J. Holland, Ambrose, Ga.	1.00
		1,080.25
Balance to be secured		$ 194.75

Bro. Holland writes: "I noticed in THE SUN that you are trying to raise a balance on the James O'Kelly Memorial. I feel like every member of our Church would want a part in raising this fund. I had previously contributed $5.00. Seeing you are in need of more funds to clear off the indebtedness. I enclose an additional dollar."

It is greatly to be desired that friends in other sections do as Bro. Holland has done, since the memorial has already been erected and unveiled on the Elon College campus and is exceedingly attractive and seems to be entirely satisfactory to all who have seen it. Will friends who read this please send contributions, since it is the only channel through which we may reach the eye of our people?

In THE SUN of May 15th, we reported cash offering, S. C. C., Rev. S. C. Harrell, secretary, $25.00. This should have been stated as follows: Plate offering, $10.00; Col. J. E. West, Suffolk, Va., $5.00; R. C. Norfleet, $5.00; J. W. Lane, $5.00—total, $25.00.

Elon College, N. C. J. O. ATKINSON, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Memorial.

WHEN IN RICHMOND EAT AT

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria

805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Opposite Richmond Hotel.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x3⅛ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Bāb'-y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'-y-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A DAILY PRAYER.

We thank Thee, O God, for knowledge of the Holy Spirit's broadcasting as first demonstrated in the experience of Pentecost; that, far in excess of the might and magnitude of present-day messages on the air, the Holy Spirit's mystery and power permeate into eternity, delivering all of life from the curse of death. With many, at the recurring Pentecostal season, may it be that the soul's antenna shall be set to receive the wave which bears upon it the unmistakable sound of that "rushing mighty wind," and, in sequence, may it "sit upon" to the unfailing witness of the eternal Source from which it comes. In our Saviour's name. Amen.

ONE MORE MONTH.

Some of us react toward missions as if missions were an enterprise or an institution of man. We should not blame mission boards, missionary teachers, even mission fanatics, for precipitating on the Church the missionary movement. Christ instituted, and is solely responsible for, missions in the Church. Before going away, He declared He would build His Church and the gates of hell should not prevail against it. This is the purpose for which He is building the Church, that His mission may be carried on in the world; that of giving His message, the revelation of Himself as the Son of God, to all the world. It was to His immediate disciples and followers, the incipient Church, to whom He gave the commission, "Go ye into all the world." The Church, in its missionary program and propaganda, is carrying out, not the word of mission boards, nor the program of men, but the work of the Lord and the program of our Christ. He, through the Church, is responsible for every missionary in all the world today. The Church alone of all institutions seeks to build other Churches, to support and send out the gospel, to sustain and carry on missions. The Church of the living God, in its missionary task, is carrying out the commission laid upon it of its Lord, its Founder, its Body.

Missions become a spiritual task, in that it is a task undertaken solely in the name and for the sake of our Lord. The primary program of missions is not that of reaching individuals and saving individuals, but that of preaching Jesus Christ and Him crucified, and of giving Him a chance to reach and to save individuals. He is the lifting power. His is the saving grace. His is the life infinite and strong enough to reach and to save to the uttermost.

And the program He adopted for financing such an infinite task was that of self-denial. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself." It is through self-denial that we make our offerings for missions that our Lord may be glorified in our own lives and in the lives of others who, through our self-denial for His sake, may be reached and redeemed through His message.

There are some Churches yet to report that have not sent in anything for missions this year. We cannot believe that there is a Church that will deny the one purpose for which it was founded, the one commission given to it of its Lord, the one business for which the Church was established on earth. Every Church should give every member an opportunity to contribute to missions, and in our Southern Convention it was decided to have a mission period in which this might be done. One more month now and our mission period is over. We have had Easter and since Easter to do this divine thing in our Churches. A Church cannot neglect this and hope for the presence and the power of its Lord, since it is in His name and for His sake and through His commission and by His purpose. It is a part of His program that missions were established and made the big and the chief business of the Church. J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING MAY 24, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$3,002.35
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	2.60
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	9.57
Durham, N. C.	19.23
Windsor, Va.	2.50
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	2.13
Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Va.	18.61
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	3.52
Mt. Carmel, Zuni, Va.	9.86
Newport News, Va.	15.00
United Church, Lynchburg, Va.	3.62
Richland, Ga.	2.00
High Point, N. C.	3.89
High Point Philathea Class, N. C.	3.00
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	5.11
Oakland, Smithfield, Va.	4.00
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	3.11
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	5.00
Oak Level, Youngsville, N. C.	1.66
Chapel Hill, N. C.	7.30
Total	$3,124.06

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$3,256.15
Holland, Va.	200.00
Parks Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	20.16
Ingram, Va.	100.00
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C.	5.50
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	18.20
Liberty, Nathalie, Va.	8.31
Shallow Well, Jonesboro, N. C.	13.60
East Liberty, Shenandoah, Va.	3.50
Roanoke, Ala.	2.74
Lowell, Roanoke, Ala.	1.70
Hebron, Virgilina, Va.	8.00
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	92.33
Oak Level, Youngsville, N. C.	3.86
Newport, Harrisonburg, Va.	17.80
Leaksville, Harrisonburg, Va.	29.05
Joppa, Harrisonburg, Va.	11.25
Dry Run, Harrisonburg, Va.	24.01
Timber Ridge, Harrisonburg, Va.	19.80
Total	$3,835.96

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$1,306.72
Rosemont Class, No. 3, Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Total	$1,311.72

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$13,037.42
Sunday Schools, regular	121.71
Individual and Church collections	579.81
Specials	5.00
Total to date	$13,743.94

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

PORTO RICO LETTER.

No doubt there are many readers of The Sun who are interested in the work on this island, and naturally they would like to get acquainted with some of our native leaders among our young people's societies that are so actively engaged in the various departments of activities in our different Churches.

If you enter our Salinas Church you would be cheerfully greeted by the president of our Christian Endeavor Society, Josefa Campos, a splendid young Christian woman, who has been giving a great deal of her time to make our society a success. Josefa only has had fifth-grade education, but her interest and spiritual enthusiasm and Christian character have made her one of the leaders in this Church. She certainly has been a great help to me. May we not pray for this young Christian woman, so that she may keep her courage and march on like a Christian soldier for the betterment of His kingdom on this island.

Now we come to our Santa Isabel Church, which is one of the best-organized Churches on our field. Here you will find a fine group of fifty young men and women who are corner-stones of our Church. These young folks are practically carrying on all the activities of the Church and trying to make it a real religious education center. At any time of the day one entering this Church would find some of the young people engaged in some kind of work to improve the conditions of their Church. It has been a pleasure for me to help these splendid young people, and I have tried as much as I have been able to aid them with literature, suggestions, special programs, or meetings with them.

I would like to mention the different organizations that are actively working to carry on the Church program, namely: Christian Endeavor (junior and senior), Young Men's Club, Young Women's Club, Ladies' Society, Teacher Training Class, Athletic Club for Men and Women, W. C. T. U. League, and kindergarten. Of course, many times we hear said, too many organizations are killing the real Church program, but it all depends on the spiritual atmosphere that exists in each organization. If we only could take for our motto, "We can do all things in Christ, and He will lead us and give us strength," I could assure you that the Church would have a successful program.

I wish that I could tell you about a good many of these young men and women, but I must hurry on. Oh! but I do want you to meet the president of our C. E. and S. S. Conference. Franciso Laporte is very small in statue, but is a live wire in the kingdom of our Master. He is one of the most consecrated, enthusiastic leaders among the young people of our mission. He is a very busy young man, as he is a public school teacher; but this does not keep him from giving every spare moment for the service. Weekly he has come to Ponce to have conference with me and helped me to translate various programs for our different conference committees and other organizations. We certainly are proud of this little leader, and ask our Heavenly Father to bless and lead him on in his work.

Now we shall stop in our Ponce Church. This Church has been very unfortunate with her young people. As soon as they are able to be of some help they either go to the States or other parts of the island; therefore, we have not many young people. However, we must not forget those we have, who are very willing and active in all the activities of our Church program. Our Christian Endeavor has been carrying on splendid special programs, not only at our regular meetings, but at our Sunday night services. Just last Sunday, which was Mothers' Day, the young people took charge of the Sunday night service and presented a very impressive and attractive Mothers' Day program, which included special music, two short dramas, and a short sermon by Mr. Barrett, who is acting as the pastor of our Ponce Church. This program was prepared by all the committees of the society, with the help of Mrs. Barrett and the writer.

Alfred Barrett, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, is the president of our society. He certainly has been a great helper and pusher to make the program of this organization a success. He has been a willing worker in all the organizations of the Church. He has given me his cheerful and splendid co-operation and aid during the period that I have been here. Alfred graduates from Ponce High School this spring, and we wish him success in his future plans.

I must not forget my Junior Christian Endeavor, as this little society is one of the most active branches in our Ponce Church.

On Saturday a special program and social was given by these little folks for their mothers in our Church-yard. A very good time was enjoyed by all who attended the program.

These little folks also took part in the special programs in Sunday School and Sunday night service.

A cloud of sadness comes over my busy mind when I think that within three weeks' time I shall leave these happy and cheerful folks whom I have learned to love dearly. They have filled my life with happiness, and have given me courage to go on during my discouraging moments. My prayers and thoughts shall always be with them.

VICTORIA E. ADAMS.

Ponce, Porto Rico.

NEWS ITEMS

BY MRS. W. M. JAY.

The great Southern Christian Convention of Raleigh is past, and great it was in many respects. Those who were privileged to attend were amply repaid and will cherish the memory for many years for the helpful messages and good spirit manifested. The Woman's Convention's part was just as successful, and many things were accomplished. The many good reports of the work done in the past two years showed an ever-increasing interest and zeal on the part of the women all over our Southern Convention. Every society should avail itself of the "Annual" as soon as it is printed, so as to give its members opportunity to read the various proceedings and become familiar with the work.

Missionary Meeting.

An enjoyable affair was given at Elon College Tuesday, May 13th, at 4 o'clock, when the Woman's Missionary Society and their husbands and the cradle roll members met on the beautiful lawn of Dr. J. O. Atkinson for the annual cradle roll rally. Mrs. R. B. Tower, the efficient superintendent of this department, directed the events of the day, and it took on the form of a picnic as each lady was asked to bring a covered dish of anything she desired. Dixie cups and animal cakes were provided in addition for the little ones. My, what a feast of all kinds of good things and how the little ones and "big" ones too enjoyed it!

A series of games were enjoyed, sponsored by Mrs. C. M. Cannon, Mrs. S. A. Bennett and Mrs. J. W. Patton. A program of songs and drills by the children, in charge of Miss Vera Van Cleave, Mrs. Bennett, and Mrs. J. L. Foster, followed.

The mite-box opening revealed the secret of the winner of the prize for the largest contribution. This went to little Mary Frances Martin.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson and Rev. Alfred Hurst made brief talks. There were about forty children and thirty-eight adults present.

MISSIONARY PROGRAM FOR JUNE.

WOMAN'S SOCIETY.

As you all know, the month of June is set aside for our babies, and the program in the Woman's Societies usually is centered around the cradle roll. How fitting that we, as the mother society, should give of our interest both in attendance and help to these little ones! It is thrilling to watch their eager faces and to see how willingly they try to serve their Master in their little way. The following suggestions for a missionary cradle roll rally, by Mrs. L. T. Proctor, Dayton Ohio, superintendent of cradle roll of the General Convention, may be of help to those planning such a rally at the next meeting:

This year a theme has been selected for the rally program and suggestions will be given for the carrying out of the program, rather than a detailed program as in former years. The theme is "Jesus the Good Shepherd and Friend of Children."

Use any material you may find that is related to the theme. Show pictures of shepherds and sheep and of the good Shepherd. Point out the crook and tell how the shepherd uses it to guide the sheep and reach after them when they fall into places he cannot reach to get them. Talk about how the wool in the children's clothes once grew on the sheep.

1 Sam. 17:34, 35 tells the story of David and the sheep. Let some one tell how a boy named David took care of his father's sheep; was good to them; had names for them; found places where the grass was green, and water cold and pure; killed the bear, the lion, and said the words, "The Lord is my Shepherd." Have the 23rd psalm given in unison or by one child.

Using Luke 2:8-16, tell the story of the shepherds and the angels.

Have some one tell the story of how Jesus saw the shepherds out on the hillsides taking care of the sheep when he was a little boy, and when he grew up he told a story about a shepherd who had many sheep, etc. Matthew 18:11-14.

For one of the songs on the program, use "Savicur, Like a Shepherd, Lead Us." It is found in the books, "Joy to the World," "Hymns of Praise," "Awakening Songs," and others. Use any other children's hymns you prefer.

The poem, "Little Lamb," by William Blake, may be used as a recitation or read well by some one.

Little Lamb.

Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee,
Gave thee life and made thee feed
By the stream and o'er the meadow,
Gave thee clothing of delight,
Softest clothing, woolly bright;
Gave thee such a tender voice,
Making all the vale rejoice?
Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?

Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
Little lamb, I'll tell thee:
He is called by thy name—
For He called Himself a Lamb;
He is meek and He is mild,
He became a little child.
I a child and thou a lamb,
We are called by His name.
Little lamb, God bless thee;
Little lamb, God bless thee!

Wm. Blake.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY.

Every-Day Contacts and Our World Friendship Ideals.

Purpose: To emphasize in our minds that our ideals and our deeds must be consistent if we are sincere.

Program.

1. Hymn, "O, Master Workman of the Race."
Story.
Prayer by leader.
Hymn, "Follow the Gleam."
2. Project committee report.
3. Leader's introduction of theme.
4. A diary.
5. The question.
6. Sentence prayers for courage to live out our ideals.
7. Hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour."
8. Benediction, while music of last hymn is still played softly.

Suggestions.

Poster: Draw a calendar of one month. Write underneath it "Every Day a Test Day." Date, hour, place of meeting.

1. Leader should present the theme in the abstract, basing remarks on chapter 10 of Y. & W. O., the section called "The Test."

2. Prepare assignments enough for every person present. Some may be clippings from this chapter or other reading that pertains to the subject. Some should ask for personal observations of contacts with other races or nationalities, are they Christian contacts or not? Give two or three people question 3 under this chapter to answer. Express idea that if our daily contacts were kept in a diary and a stranger read that diary, it would be from our deeds that he would form his opinion of our ideals. It is what we do that the world sees.

3. Give the two paragraphs entitled "Popular Members," from chapter 10, and put to the group the question as to which was sincere in his or her ideals, George or Anne. Why? Would you act the way Anne did?

4. Let one person read the words of each verse before it is sung.

Note: Very interesting supplementary material may be secured from "Blind Spots," by Henry Smith Leiper, with special reference to race relationships.

JUNIORS OR WILLING WORKERS.

Theme: "Our Church."

Song: "When Morning Gilds the Skies."

Call to worship. Let the people praise Thee, O God; let all the people praise Thee.

Response: O let the nations be glad and sing for joy; for Thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

Song: "Jesus Loves the Children Dear."

Offertory song: Same as April.

Continue use of stories in leaflet. Carry on work begun last month. Let the children suggest topics for prayer, or make the prayer themselves for the group about whom you talk.

Close with Bible salute.

Bible over eyes. Open Thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law.

Bible held over hearts. Thy word have I laid up in my heart, that I might not sin against Thee.

Bible pointing down. Thy word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path.

Sing chorus of "Take It Wherever You Go." (Write Mrs. F. E. Bullock, C. P. A. Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, for free copy.)

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson X—June 8, 1930.

Jesus in the Shadow of the Cross.

Golden Text: "He went forward a little, and fell on His face, and prayed, saying, My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass away from me; nevertheless, not as I will but as Thou wilt."—Matt. 26:39.

Lesson: Matt. 26:1-75.

The lesson for today is the entire twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew, but these notes will cover only verses 31-46, the verses printed in the "Lesson Quarterly."

Overconfidence.

Jesus knew men. He was the world's greatest expert in all things that concerned men. He knew that in the critical hour that was before Him He could not depend upon even His immediate inner circle. He tells them frankly that when He, the Shepherd, has been smitten, the sheep will be scattered abroad. There must have been a tinge of sadness in His voice as He spake these words.

As usual, Simon Peter spoke up. What Jesus had said might apply to the other disciples, said Peter, but it would not apply to him. No, sir; here was one disciple who was going to stick by Jesus to the bitter end. He boldly asserted that he would even die for Jesus, but he would never, never deny Him. Alas! how human this big-hearted, impulsive fisherman was. He was not so sure about others, but he was absolutely sure about himself. With him, as with so many of us, overconfidence led to his downfall. The Book says, "When any man thinketh that he standeth, let him take heed lest he fall." Every athletic coach knows how important it is to guard the members of his teams against overconfidence. How much more important is it that we recognize our own limitations, recognize the subtlety of the tempter, and in humility ask for that grace which will make us conquerors.

Gethsemane.

Gethsemane is the world's most historic and momentous battlefield. Issues were at stake here which transcend all other issues in human history before or since. Jesus could have turned back. He did not have to go to the cross. If He had responded to the human in Him, He would not have gone to the cross. But He had come into the world to do the will of the Father, and in the supreme hour He finally yielded Himself to do that will.

And while He was in an agony, the disciples were asleep. Here as elsewhere in human life, the ultimate issues of life must be fought out alone. Friends can go so far with us, but when we finally come to our Gethsemane—and we always come to Gethsemane when we set out to do the will of God—we must face the issues alone. One feels that this is not the only time His disciples have been asleep in Gethsemane. In the midst of economic injustice, industrial oppression, ignorance, poverty, disease, paganism and heathenism, while countless millions are without the gospel, many of the followers of Christ are unmoved and untouched—asleep so far as any vital and practical interest in these things are concerned.

It is well enough to note that in one sense the prayer of Jesus was not answered. He prayed that the cup—the terrible fate which was impending—might pass from Him, that is if it were possible. It was not possible, and He had to drink the cup to the bitter dregs. But in a larger sense, He did get an answer to His prayer. The Father could not take away the cup, but the Father could give moral purpose and spiritual resources to enable Him to drink the cup. He who sincerely and earnestly prays will always get an answer to his prayer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, June 8, 1930.

Topic: "Prayer in the Life of Leaders."

Scripture: Mark 1:35; Luke 6:12.

"And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, He went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed. . . . and continued all night in prayer to God."

Topics for Talks in the Meeting.

1. True leadership. What is leadership? Why does being in a position where one can compel others to do one's bidding fail to make one a leader? What is essential to true leadership?

2. The task of the leader. What is the task of the leader? Is he a "getter" or a "giver"? or both? Which of the two characterizes him best in his relation to his fellow-men? What does he get? (Power, courage, faith, guidance.) From what source does he get all these things? How does a leader always stay "just a few steps" ahead of his followers? Is prayer essential to the life of a leader?

3. Can every one be a leader? Consider the following answers: (a) Every one should aspire to lead. Otherwise, a person loses courage and grows more and more useless. (b) A good follower is as important as a good leader; therefore, some of us will do better to choose our leader and be true to him. (c) Not all of us can be great leaders, but we ought to think for ourselves and be ready to fill less important places of leadership. (d) All of us must be both good leaders and good followers.

4. The price of leadership.

"It seams the face and it scars the brain,
It strains the arm till one's friend is pain,
In the fight for man and God."

If we are to be leaders we must pay the price. It costs much to be a leader. It costs in study. It means fighting physical handicaps. It means getting "in line" and learning with those you are to lead. It means being humble. It truly means heroism. How can prayer help one to be heroic?

5. Things prayer does.

(a) Overcomes the feeling of working alone. After communion with God, the true leader knows that God is with him.

(b) Gives one courage and cheer to carry on.

(c) True prayer reveals the way.

(d) Prayer sweetens life. Peace and power take the place of heartache and disappointment.

Prayer.

"The camel at the close of day
Kneels down upon the sandy plain
To have his burden lifted off
And rest again.

"My soul, thou, too, shouldst to thy knees
When twilight draweth to a close,
And let thy Master lift the load
And grant repose.

"The camel kneels at break of day
To have his guide replace the load;
Then rises up anew to take
The desert road.

"So thou shouldst kneel at morning dawn,
That God may give thee daily care,
Assured that He no load too great
Will make thee bear."

Quotations on leadership (from John G. Lonsdale, president American Bankers' Association):

"Leadership and success, in a general way, are synonymous. They are both founded upon simple codes of thought and action, upon the realization that he who wins the laurels must be a doer, not a waiter, that application of energy, not time or luck, is what counts most. A rabbit's foot is a poor substitute for horse sense."

"Both success and leadership, if they be of the highest quality, are the result of service to humanity. Analyze the lives and times of all great leaders of history and you will find that those whose names are enshrined in the hearts of their countrymen are those who sought to render a needed service to the populace."

"Leadership, like success, need not, however, be international or national to achieve great results. There is room for each of us to be a leader in his community, in his work, in his Church, and in various organizations."

"One of the indispensable qualities of leadership is the ability to persist steadfastly in the face of discouragements. If George Washington had not possessed the quality of persistence, he and his soldiers would never have survived the hunger and privations which were theirs at Valley Forge."

"The fellow who handles a little job in a big way is always on the road to greater fields."

CONVENTIONS AND SCHOOLS.

June brings in our Summer School and Christian Endeavor Conventions. These conventions offer us an opportunity to check up on the amount and grade of work that we are doing as a Church school. The young people who have been going to Christian Endeavor and studying and discussing various problems and topics also have a chance to meet in these conventions and share in the inspiration afforded there, along with the discussion of business and method.

The dates and places for the schools this year are as follows:

The Georgia and Alabama Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention was held March 29th and 30th, at Rose Hill Christian Church, Columbus, Ga. The Congregational young people of Georgia co-operated in this convention. A good session was held and a splendid program rendered.

Western North Carolina Cnovention meets on June 10th and 11th, with Hank's Chapel Christian Church, Route 1, Pittsboro, N. C. Western North Carolina will have its usual fine program.

Valley of Virginia Convention meets on June 12th and 13th, at Linville Christian Church, Linville, Va. A splendid program has been prepared for this convention.

On June 19th and 20th, the North Carolina and Virginia Convention will meet at Pleasant Ridge Church. The officers of this convention assure us that the Convention will be well worth attending.

Eastern Virginia meets on June 22nd and 23rd. A place has not been definitely decided upon yet.

The Alabama Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention will be held on June 28th and 29th, at Rock Springs Church, Roanoke, Ala.

The Eastern North Carolina Convention meets July 16th to July 18th with the Liberty (Vnace) Church.

Piedmont Junior Summer School meets July 6-11. We are expecting over a hundred at this school who will pursue the courses of study. Visitors will swell the crowd to near one hundred and fifty. A strong program for the school is being planned—the best the school has ever had.

Elon Summer School will be held July 26th to August 2nd.. Here, too, we are expecting the largest school ever held at Elon. The faculty is strong and a wide range of International courses will be offered for credit work. Let us count on you for one who will be there!

Church vacation schools will be held in most of our Churches throughout the South. Help the children of your Church by providing for them this opportuntyi to study in Bible, world friendship, play, music, and hand-work. The profits of such a school will repay your efforts.

JEWEL TRUITT.

EDUCATION WITHOUT GOD.

It is not alone in Soviet Russia that a determined effort is going on to drive God out of men's thoughts and lives. At Petrograd there is actually a so-called university founded for the purpose of teaching atheism which is supported by the Soviet state government. We are in no danger of such madness in this country, where we have separation of Church and State in the Constitution. Atheism would be as illegal for the State as positive Baptist teaching in State institutions. That is not our peril, though there are isolated instances of professors in State schools who openly taught atheism like one whose students told me that he stated to his classes that he was determined to drive belief in God out of the university. He is dead now.

But there are several definite lines of teaching in our country that are openly atheistic, quite apart from the American Association of Atheists. The philosophy called "behaviorism" tries to get rid of moral standards and ideals and make us all a product of environment with no need of soul or of God. We are all merely educated animals. Psycho-analysis seeks to explain everything by the sex-instinct, even worship and religion. There is a school of writers, novelists and essayists, who ridicule religion and morality in books and magazines as belonging to a past age before the present day of enlightenment. Self-gratification is the law of life for these men and women and all ideals of reverence and morality disappear.

The advocates of the new propaganda talk loudly about enlightenment and progress, but they desire education without religious restraint or constraint; that is, without belief in God and the bother of the conscience over moral values.

Unfortunately the very religious liberty of our land which we all justly cherish so highly tends itself to this very abuse. Because of the Jews and the Roman Catholics, many States forbid the reading of the Bible in the public schools. Indeed, many Baptists are opposed to this on principle. The result is that American children are growing up without religious education, without knowledge of God, except what they obtain at home, in Sunday School, or in Church. Most children today do not go to Church, but take the Sunday School in place of public worship. Family worship has practically died out in American homes, and the average child gets little knowledge of God in the homes unless the mother happens to be an unusually active and devout woman. Our educational system is not opposed to the knowledge of God, but it actually ignores God. There seems to be no hope of any change in the public school system.

The only alternative is the work of the home and of the Church, including the Sunday School. These are not functioning as well as they should to make up for the inevitable lack in the schools and to meet the definite and skillful anti-religious propaganda going on in our country.

Without God there is no recognition of any authority outside of self. There is no obedience to parents or to the State. If parents are not willing to teach their children about Christ and righteousness, about sin and punishment, about law and obedience to law, we may have more intelligent citizens so far as the intellect is concerned, but they will be dangerous citizens, fit material for the Bolshevistic propaganda. "In God we trust" is on our money. Without God our country and our credit will be worthless. Education without God is anarchy.—Christian Index.

Announcement has recently been made by the Presbyterian General Assembly that the overture permitting the women to have an equal voice with the men in the government of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America has won by a vote of 151 in favor to 114 against the overture. This means that women of that communion will be allowed to sit as members in congregational sessions in the local Churches, also of presbyteries, synods and general assemblies.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 col...red maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

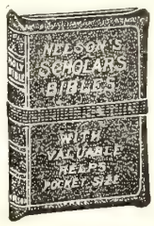
India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

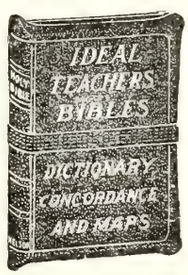
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8½ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

MONDAY.

GROWING INTO THEM.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

"When I was a little boy," remarked an old gentleman, "somebody gave me a cucumber in a bottle. The neck of the bottle was small and the cucumber so large that it wasn't possible for it to pass through, and I wondered how it got there. But out in the garden one day I came upon a bottle slipped over a little green fellow that was still on the vines, and then I understood. The cumumber had grown in the bottle.

"I often see men with habits that I wonder how any strong, sensible man could form; and then I think that likely they grew into them when they were young, and cannot slip out of them now; they are like the cucumber. Look out for such bottles, boys."

Prayer.—Help, Lord, and we shall be trained for the good of the world and Thy glory. Amen.

TUESDAY.

SMASHING OUR DREAMS.

"Wait on the Lord; be of good courage, and He shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the Lord."—Psa. 27:14.

Two painters were employed to fresco the walls of a magnificent cathedral. Both stood on a rude scaffolding constructed for the purpose, some distance from the floor. One, intent upon his work, forgetting where he was, stepped back slowly, surveying critically the work of his pencil, until he had neared the edge of the plank on which he stood. At this moment his companion, just perceiving his danger, seized a wet brush and flung it against the wall, spattering the picture with unsightly blotches of coloring. The painter flew forward, and turned upon his friend with fierce unbraidings. But later he blessed the hand that saved him. Just so, sometimes we get so absorbed with the pictures of the world, unconscious of our peril, when God in mercy dashes out the beautiful images, and draws us, at the time we are complaining of His dealings, into His outstretched arms of love.

Prayer.—Dear Lord and Master, if Thou dost see fit to take us through broken dreams and hard places, help us to be true and depend on Thee for Thy good for us in it all. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

WORKED TO DEATH.

"The sleep of a laboring-man is sweet, whether he eat little or much."—Eccl. 5:12.

It is a mistaken idea that hard work kills men. Hard work never killed a man. It is the improper care of one's self, when he is not working, that does the damage.

The more a man does with his brain, the less his hands will have to do. The better a man's reasoning and common sense are, the more successful he will be. It requires hard work these days to keep up with the race.

You cannot make a success unless you work hard. Success comes by inches, not by leaps or bounds. Success is the pushing forward each day by hard work.

Burn the candle at one end only, and you replace each day what you have burned, by rest, sleep and recreation. By burning the candle at one end only, and replacing it fully each day, your candle will not burn out.

Prayer.—Dear Father, turn our hearts daily to true proportions in all things, that whether we work or play we may live the life that goes on. Amen.

THURSDAY.

THOU ART THY JUDGE.

"Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee."—Luke 19:22.

In the New Testament, knowing demands doing; where much is given, much is required. Our discernment and emotions may get us into serious trouble in the judgment. Once, on a dusty, much-frequented road, a brother pointed to a place by the roadside, and said that with very little work there could be developed a spring which would be a great blessing to thirsty horses and men. His suggestion complimented his perceptions, and showed him a man of practical wisdom. But he traveled that way a number of times every week. Why did he not do it himself? Of what use will his understanding be in the final reckoning? The words uttered are recorded, and out of his own mouth will he be condemned.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, so occupy our lives that in us may be Thy Spirit and that we may be approved of Thee. Amen.

FRIDAY.

GOD'S REALLY GREAT PEOPLE.

"He that is greatest among you, let him be your servant."—Matt. 20:23.

The world is full of unrecognized people, men and women, boys and girls. We do not see their names in the paper. We do not find them heralded on special programs. Their names are just as good as some other people's, and when you see them in print you know how to pronounce them, and when you hear them speak you know what they are talking about. But they do not have "the public ear"! The world is made up of just such people. The folks who do things, the unseen people, the unheard people, God's really great people. You have them in every congregation, the people who "make the wheels go 'round." Both classes of people are needed. But give me the good woman who is willing to throw her shawl over her shoulder, slip around to the back door, so as not to interfere with your work, and talk Church matters over for an hour, encourage, plan and cheer ahead the good work of the kingdom.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, please humble our hearts always and fill our place in life. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE LITTLE FIDELITIES.

"He that is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much."—Luke 16:8-13.

It takes a large mind adequately to value small things. Only a supremely faithful soul will be master of the little fidelities. A captain of industry will note details that no private will deign to consider. The president of a great bank will watch the way the stenographers fold their letters. The head of a big store will provide places for wet umbrellas. These large-minded men will not be swamped by a flood of trifles, but they will realize that "trifles make perfection, and perfection is no trifle."

In the life of the soul also no one advances to the great commissions who is careless in the little fidelities. Begin with the courteous word, and you may go on to the eloquent address. Begin with the heartening letter, and you may go on to the inspiring book. Begin with the conquest of a so-called little sin, and you may reach a character of shining power.

Prayer.—May we become perfect, our Father in heaven, even as Thou art perfect. In the strength of Jesus Christ. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE BREMEN'S TRIUMPH.

"The first heaven and the first earth are passed away; and the sea is no more."—Rev. 21:1-8.

To John, imprisoned on the island of Patmos, this promise meant much. Lonely and homesick, parted from those whom he loved, he thought of the sea as the emblem of separation. Heaven to him was a place where families would be forever united, where friendships would no more be broken by death, where all sad sunderings would be at an end. How John would rejoice in our compact and neighborly modern world, in which we can talk across the seas—as our fathers could talk across the back fence—and we can fly over continents, returning before we are missed!

But the most deplorable isolation, to John or any one, is spiritual. Who is my neighbor? The man who needs me; and I am neighborly as I meet his need. If there is to be no more sea, the love of God and man must bind us all together. If there is to be no more sea, this nearness should begin in my heart.

Prayer.—Our Saviour, Thou art Lord of the sea. Thou didst quiet its tempest; Thou didst explore with mystic vision its invisible depths; Thou didst bring sailors to their desired haven. The sea is Thine, for Thou didst make it. Thou canst conquer it for us, and make it as the dry land. Amen.

SIDE-TRACKED.

Probably some of THE SUN readers are beginning to think I have dropped out of existence. However, this is not true, as I am only side-tracked for a while. Paul was side-tracked at times when he did not understand the motive or cause. The truth is that at the meeting of the last Conference there seemed to be no place for me to fill this year, so I have been out of the active ministry since that time.

There is something about it all that I fail to understand, and it is this: it took me five years to complete the course at Elon College, and then I spent four years of what people said was very successful ministry in rural sections; but all of a sudden there seems to be no place for me to preach. I am put out, so to speak. Still, men will stand in the pulpit and other places and plead with young men and women to prepare for religious work, to give their lives to religious work. May they not meet the fate which has been mine. I placed notices in THE SUN and Herald for several issues, and there seemed to be no openings in the religious world, or at least in the Christian denomination, so I have been driven to take up other work. However, I would consider work in the Christian denomination if there be such available. I am still living the Christian life and am determined to until the end, by the grace of God.

GEO. A. PEARCE.

Oxford, N. C.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Elon commencement will be on this week, and we are looking for and expecting many visitors. Friends attending the commencement, many of them, visit the Christian Orphanage while here and look it over. We are always glad to have visitors come. They can then see for themselves and see what we have here, the needs and the possibilities of doing much good by lending us a helping hand.

We also find that when people visit the Orphanage they become more interested in it and are willing to help us. The late J. B. Duke, in setting aside his large endowment, had this to say: "I have included orphans in an effort to help those who are most unable to help themselves, a worthy cause, productive of truly beneficial results in which all good citizens should have an abiding interest. While in my opinion nothing can take the place of a home and its influences, every effort should be made to safeguard and develop these wards of society."

It is the policy of the Orphanage not to take children where arrangements can be made for them to stay with their mother; but there are so many cases where mother, who was the jewel of the home, and her love and care had no bounds, has been taken away. Her hand that so lovingly caressed the feverish brow has been forever stilled, and her voice that was so sweet and sympathetic and brought so much comfort to the home, has been hushed forever. The home broken up, no friends to take the children and care for them. Homeless, helpless, but worthy of human kindness, the Orphanage is the only refuge. It stretches out its loving arms and bids them come in and share its blessings that have been made possible by loving friends who are delighted to give that the little helpless ones may have love, care and a chance in life.

We are glad that the Christian Church has an Orphanage.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR MAY 29, 1930.

Brought forward		$7,207.89
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Danville, Third Ave.	$ 3.11
United, Lynchburg	3.49
Pleasant Ridge	1.28
Shallow Ford	2.60
Bethlehem	2.84
Reidsville	7.44
		20.76
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Wake Chapel	$ 7.70
Mebane	2.00
Oak Level	1.52
Shallow Well	3.00
		14.22
Western N. C. Conference:
Randleman		3.25
Eastern Virginia Conference:
First, Portsmouth	$10.45
South Norfolk	12.41
Oakland	4.00
Windsor	7.55
Elm Avenue	5.00
		39.41
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Leaksville	$ 1.50
Winchester	7.41
Newport	1.56
		10.47
Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Ambrose	$ 1.00
Richland	5.00
		6.00
Special Offerings.
Mrs. Olivia Horner, for children	$10.00
Mrs. M. J. Hockaday, Oxford, N. C.	5.00
W. A. Lee, support of children	50.00
		65.00
Grand total		$7,367.00

RESPONSIBILITY OF AUTO DRIVERS.

Recent decisions of the courts tend to place more responsibility on the automobile drivers in case of accidents with the railroads, according to a report of the legal department of the American Motorists' Association. A case cited was the suit in Illinois which arose as the result of a motorist driving his truck onto the tracks of a railroad, causing the derailment of an engine and five freight cars. The railroad sued the motorist for $30,000. A verdict of $10,000 was given against the motorist and was sustained on appeal to the district court for the southern district of Illinois.

The decision is of great importance to motorists for two reasons, it is pointed out by J. Borton Weeks, president of the A. M. A. "The first reason is that it indicates the trend of judicial thought where a motorist and a railroad are involved; and the second is that where a motorist causes the wreck of a train usually a large amount of damage results. Until comparatively recently it was the railroad which almost invariably shouldered the financial responsibility for all automobile-railroad accidents," President Weeks declared. "Courts, however, more and more are requiring motorists to assume full responsibility where their negligence results in damage to life and property."

A recent court decision held that where an auto driver failed to observe the sign "Stop, Look and Listen" the railroad was absolved of guilt because of contributory negligence of the motorist.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better | a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. 2 or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x -- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2]Jĕ-hŏi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x--------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave: death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand- some Bible -- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

CAN THE CHURCH RECOVER PENTECOST?

By Rev. Charles L. Goodell,

Ex. Sec'y, Com. on Evan., Federal C. of C.

The movement for the observance of Pentecost, as sponsored by nearly all the great communions comprising the Federal Council of Churches, differs from most other movements in the Church in being carried forward without external organization or machinery, with no artificial promotion by committees, with no setting of financial or statistical goals. All the emphasis is being placed upon leading the members of the Churches into a deeper personal experience of religion and a more receptive attitude toward the spirit of God.

It would be a dismal nineteen hundredth anniversary of Pentecost if the Church should simply content itself with the rehearsing of a twice-told tale of speculating concerning the attending circumstances of a manifestation of the Holy Spirit long ago. It is not a celebration of the first Pentecost, but an actual experience of Pentecost itself that the Church is needing. At the beginning of the Church, the Master said it would be of no use for His disciples to start out to evangelize the world until they themselves had experienced something of which, up to that moment, they were ignorant. They had heard the Master's teaching, but the transforming power of it had not laid hold of them. It was futile then, it would be futile now for Christians to proclaim that teaching unless the vital power of it has been felt in their own inner lives.

We are not concerned about the spectacular phases of the first Pentecost—the lambent flame, the miracle of tongues—but we are concerned that the glowing spiritual experience which these accompanied—the experience of the present reality of God—should be an indisputable fact in our own lives. We hear much talk about applied religion. But how can we apply a thing which we do not really possess? One cannot lift himself by his bootstraps. Archimedes needed a standing-place and a lever to move the world, and we must have the same. Will the Churches wait for it in meditation and prayer and consecrated purposes during these days which are just ahead, until in answer to their sense of uttermost need the infilling of the Holy Spirit shall be an accomplished fact? Then every Church might receive a Pentecost of its own. Why not, during these fifty days of Pentecost, lay aside as a secondary thing the routine of administration—the hewing of wood and the drawing of water, and a thousand little things which, though good in themselves, are not of primary importance?

We have a great deal to say, and rightly, about the necessity of knowing and safeguarding the truth; but the truth of which the world is in desperate need is not academic or abstract truth, but the truth as it is in Jesus Christ, the transforming truth which makes man over in his motives and attitudes and ways of living. It was that truth from on high that could change the first company of frightened disciples, who were meeting behind closed doors even after the resurrection, to a company of militant men and women who went out to conquer the world through the transforming power of the Holy Spirit, which they themselves had experienced. It is the very thing of which, above all else, the Church is in dire need today.

Men stand shivering today around altars where the fires have gone out. What contrast with those first Christians, whose zeal was all aflame! You see an engine standing "dead" on the track, but when the water is heated to the boiling point it fairly quivers with power. Not otherwise will it be with Churches that become conscious of the divine power to which Pentecost bears witness.

"WE KNOW NOT WHAT WE SHOULD PRAY FOR AS WE OUGHT."

Much that perplexes us in our Christian experience is but the answer to our prayers. We pray for patience and our Father sends those who tax us to the uttermost, for "tribulation worketh patience."

We pray for submission, and God sends sufferings, for "we learn obedience by the things we suffer."

We pray, "Lord, increase our faith," and money takes wings, or the children are alarmingly ill, or a servant comes who is careless, extravagant, untidy or slow, or some hitherto unknown trial calls for an increase of faith along a line where we have not needed to exercise much faith before.

We pray for gentleness, and there comes a perfect storm of temptation to harshness and irritability.

We pray for quietness, and every nerve is strung to the utmost tension, so that looking to Him we may learn that when He giveth quietness, no one can make trouble.

The way to peace and victory is to accept every circumstance, every trial, as straight from the hand of a loving Father, and to live up in the heavenly places, above the clouds, in the very presence of the throne, and to look down from the glory upon our environment as lovingly and divinely appointed.—Selected.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

NOTICE.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Western North Carolina Conference is to be held at Hank's Chapel Church (Pittsboro, Route 1), Tuesday, June 10, 1930. All pastors, Sunday School superintendents and Christian Endeavor presidents are urged to attend and to have their organizations well represented.

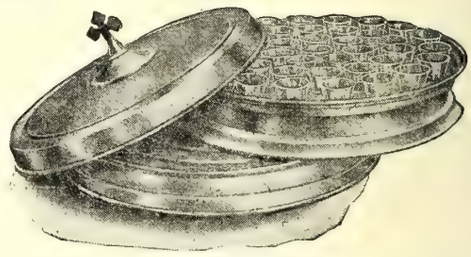
Geo. T. Gunter,
Secretary-Treasurer.

COMMUNION WARE.
Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

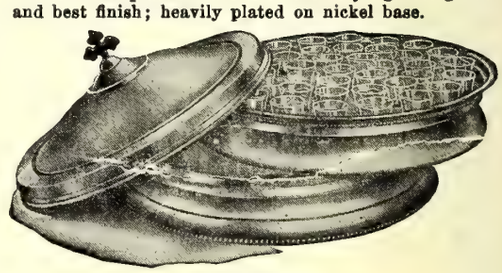


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

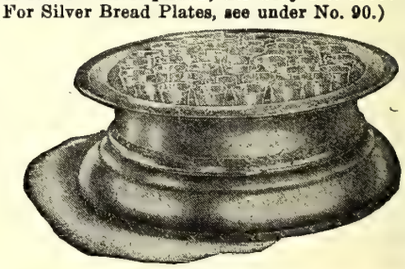
The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

OBITUARIES.

SMITH.

On April 16, 1930, God took from our midst Sister Levina Smith. Sister Smith had been a member of Hank's Chapel Christian Church for several years. She was fifty-five years of age.

Surviving her are seven sons and two daughters. She was a loving mother, and will be greatly missed. We extend to the family our sympathy and pray God's blessings upon them.

ELSIE RIDDLE,
RALPH RIDDLE,
CLAYTON FARRELL,
Committee.

LILLY.

May 3, 1930, the angel of death again visited our Church and took another member, Bro. Fred Lilly. Bro. Lilly was 61 years, 9 months and 21 days old. He had been in ill health for a long time, and while he will be greatly missed, no doubt, death was a relief to him.

Surviving him are a wife, four daughters and two sons. Bro. Lilly had been a member of Hank's Chapel Church for a long time. He was also a member of the J. O. U. A. M., and leaves a host of friends and loved ones to mourn his departure.

May the God of love and mercy be with his loved ones to comfort and bless them.

ELSIE RIDDLE,
RALPH RIDDLE,
CLAYTON FARRELL,
Committee.

ASBILL.

The Biscoe Christian Church was organized September 12, 1925, and the first work was begun about March, 1926, when the lumber was cut. The first work was begun on the Church lot February 26, 1928; the corner-stone was laid two days later, February 28, 1928. With the beginning of the work on the Church lot, Bro. W. E. Asbill was there to supervise the breaking of the ground for the foundation of the building, and served in this capacity until the brick walls and the roof were erected.

Bro. W. E. Asbill was born in Randolph County on December 4, 1862, being the son of William and Martha Moffitt Asbill, of the Shiloh community. Mr. Asbill was converted and united with Shiloh Church in 1884. In March of the following year, Mr. Asbill was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Brady, also of Randolph County. To this union there were born ten children, nine of whom survive—Mrs. Geo. Scott and Mrs. W. L. McCollum, and Mrs. Viola Holt, of Star, N. C.; Mrs. D. T. Pankey, of Biscoe; Mrs. J. D. Bugart, of Greensboro; Mr. Will, Ernest and James Asbill, of Biscoe, and Mr. Claude Asbill, of Morganton. Little Sarah Vona preceded her father to the great beyond at the age of three.

Bro. Asbill had a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Randolph and Montgomery Counties, and was at the time of his death a member of the town council of Biscoe and a member of the Biscoe Masonic order.

Bro. Asbill was a member of the Christian Church for more than forty years, and was one of the twelve who organized and became a charter member of the Biscoe Christian Church, where he continued faithful until the end. His remarks at the close of the first revival services at our Church were, "We have been more than repaid if our Church should cease to be." He being instrumental in the salvation of one of his nearest neighbors who is now one of the leading and active members in the Church, and in all probability one whom God has ordained to replace Bro. Asbill in the Church and cary on his unfinished work in His kingdom. As Job said in his trying hour, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord." Therefore, to those who have been faithful, it is a blessed thought that we can be relieved of all our pain and suffering and be admitted into that heavenly realm where we know no pain or suffering.

First: Therefore, to the family we extend our sincere sympathy. In these sad hours, while the vacant seat by the fireside seems lonely, our hearts are sad and lonely; also there is a vacant pew in the temple he labored so faithfully to cause to exist, which tells us, "he is not here," but has gone up higher.

Second: That while we realize the loss in the Church, we may take courage and look out into the harvest, and we may pray the Lord of the harvest that He may send forth more laborers into His vineyard; the Church has lost a valuable member and a deacon.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to The Christian Sun, a copy to the local Masonic lodge of Biscoe, and a copy reserved and recorded on the Church register.

W. C. MARTIN,
O. H. LAMBERT,
J. A. DUNLOP,
Committee.

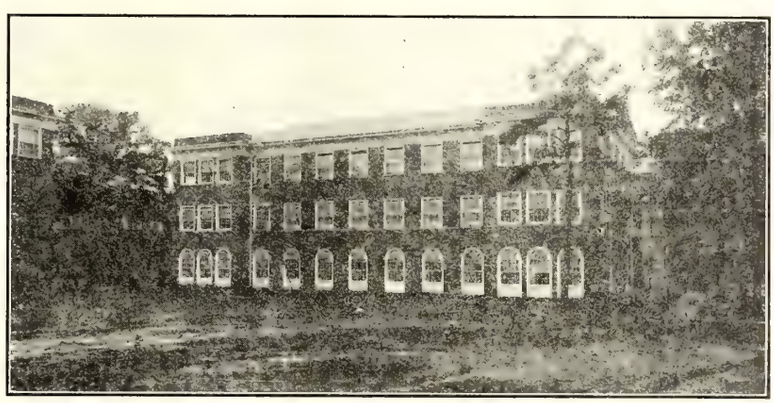
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL. D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

CHRISMON.

Mary J. Chrismon was born February 2, 1860, and passed to her reward April 21, 1930. She united with Apples Chapel Church during her early girlhood and continued a loyal member throughout her life. She leaves one son, a sister, and two brothers to mourn her going. Burial services were held in her Church April 22, and interment was made in the Church cemetery. R. A. WHITTEN.

WATSON.

Mary Virginia McCauley, daughter of Dr. John W. and Nancy McCauley, was born October 24, 1854, and departed this life May 9, 1930, aged 75 years, 6 months and 15 days. She was maried November 28, 1880, to Dr. George S. Watson, who so recently preceded her to the better world, and to whom, through all these years, she was a devoted companion and true helpmeet. Coming from a physician's home, she was prepared to share with her husband the professoon to which he gave his life. To this union four children were born—Mary L., now Mrs. T. W. Chandler; Ellen, who in June, 1911, preceded her parents in death; Martha Ann, of Elon College, and John McCauley, Greensboro, N. C. Besides these, there survive two grandchildren, George R. and Frances Chandler. Outside the immediate family is a group innumerable whose lives have been blessed through her ministry and who loved her for her friendliness and sweet Christian spirit.

With her husband, she was a devoted member of Union Church, Union Ridge, N. C., and likewise of the Elon College Church after their removal here in 1905. She not only shared with her husband the interests of the medical profession, but also that higher profession of all Christians in the establishment of God's kingdom of love upon the earth. May it not be said that they served well in the medical profession because they lived in close companionship with the great Physician?

Death came to Mrs. Watson gently, after a long illness, in the course of which she hovered many times in that strange shadow land which is neither life nor death. When the inevitable became apparent and she herself knew that no earthly power could stay the beckoning hand, she composed her mind and spirit with characteristic fortitude to bow before the transcendent will. With the tranquility of "one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams," she faced the crisis. So the earthly chapter in the history of one of the fine souls of our Church and community came to its close. And yet, it is not the close even here, for as Whittier says, "God calls our loved ones, but we lose not wholly what He has given. They live on earth in thought and deed as truly as in His heaven."

ALFRED W. HURST.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

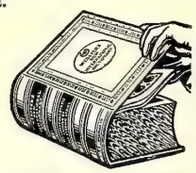
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heave

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1930. NUMBER 23.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Mrs N T Farmer 1-

By Dr. W. C. Wicker.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS MEET.—

The eighth annual convention of the National Federation of Men's Bible Class will be held in Washington, D. C., on June 7th and 8th. One of the features of the convention will be the parade on Saturday, June 7th, in which it is expected twenty-five thousand men will participate. Joseph B. Montgomery, of Philadelphia, is national president; R. Spencer Palmer, of Washington, D. C., chairman of the local convention commtitee, and Walter H. Newton, administrative secretary to President Hoover, is honorary chairman.

IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRY.—

Employment increased in connection with practically all outdoor activities during April, according to the monthly review of the Department of Labor. The review said: "There are indications that there will be an improvement in operations and industrial plants during May, and a further expansion in all outdoor work." Of the industrial situation during April, the review said: "While the major industries were in operation, curtailed schedules continued in many, necessarily affecting a large number of workers. There was considerable idleness in some localities." The metal working establishments, other than iron and steel, reported satisfactory operations in most localities with overtime in a number of plants.

ADULT EDUCATION.—

The adult education movement, sponsored by the Nanking government, reports that in the current year some forty thousand adult Chinese have been taught to read and write. The latest teaching by the best psychologists of this country is that adults can learn faster than children if they will apply themselves to study as assiduously as do children. This truth should inspire many of our Church members to return to the study of such lessons as will fit them better for life's duties in regard to religious service and civil responsibilities. By such study, many worthy people who lament their neglect of early education could redeem their time, qualify for good leaders in Church and State, and render such service as would make them happy through life. There is no end of learning for those who wish to improve themselves for service if they will devote their time diligently to the things they wish to learn. The Christian should remember what Paul taught, "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

MENTAL CURE FOR CRIMINALS.—

Many of those who are overtaken by crime are anti-social, and many others are mentally defective and irresponsible for their conduct. Many morons are convicted of crime because they are regarded as normal mentally when a mental examination would reveal the fact that they are far below normal. Proposals at the recent session of the International Congress on Mental Hygiene call for more careful study of insanity among law-breakers, for an examination by psychiatrists of all criminals, for the establishment of separate institutions for the care of offenders found to be mentally deficient. Special emphasis should be placed upon the study of juvenile criminals with respect to their mentality, and for special juvenile courts whose purpose should be corrective rather than punitive. State-supported hospitals should be provided for mentally defective criminals.

God sent His Son into the world not to condemn the world, but that the world, through Him, might be saved. It is a gross injustice to condemn people who are irresponsible because of defective mentality and punish those who do not discern the difference between right and wrong.

THE SPIRIT OF UNION.—

While the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church definitely declined to go on record as favoring organic union with other Churches, it ordered continuance of negotiations with other bodies which favor union. By resolution, the moderator was instructed to appoint a committee of one from each of the seventeen synods to confer with other Churches in regard to union. Negotiations are to be continued "with out in any sense committing the assembly to organic union," with a view to placing before the 1931 assembly any further information on the subject which the committee may secure. This action took place after the majority report of the committee on union had been discarded and the minority report favoring union was adopted to continue to study the question.

The spirit of Church union still grows, and the outlook is for other Churches to unite, creating a closer fellowship and bringing about a spirit of co-operation among different branches of the Churches of Protestantism. The Christian Church has taught union from its organization, and exemplified its teaching by uniting with the Congregationalists. The prayer of Christ that they all might be one will be answered in the ultimate union of all God's people. "Peace on earth among men of good will" shall fully be realized when all those who accept Christ unite in following His way of life.

CHINA CONTINUES IN WAR.—

It seems that the warring opponents of China's Nationalist government have buried the hatchets and united. As a result, the annual spring war in China is raging again along a 170-mile battle-front. The American correspondents report that Nanking is in grave danger. They also report that South China is in a state of disruption and chaos. They report that things generally look bad for Nanking and its present general, Chiang Kai Shek. Nanking, however, has gathered its most hopeful leaders in its government. It still remains true that General Chiang is unquestionably China's most capable military leader, and that the men under him—trained, many of them by German and Japanese tacticians—make up China's most effective military force. The outlook in regard to China's future is perilous, but the prophecy is that Nanking will conquer in the present conflict and by the outcome be enabled to continue its domination permanently. Every defeat of its two formidable opponents, General Feng Yu-Hsiang and General Yen-Shi-Shan, renders it more certain that the constructive policy to which Nanking is committed will sooner or later develop free of the pestilence of war.

Nevertheless, this spring's events in China, as hitherto in the spring events, indicate the difficulties involved in providing modern centralized democratic government for a nation with four hundred and forty million people inadequately equipped with communications and lacking education. By the gospel, "They shall know the truth and the truth shall make them free."

RACE RANCOR REIGNS.—

India is still in the throes of race rancor and the mob spirit is still reigning. Both Hindus and Mohammedans are uniting in the movement for freedom from foreign dominion. Vicious street fighting at Decca and Rangoon, Boybay, bringing the death list up to seventy and the wounded ran up to about one thousand, including many British police officers. The riots were the bloodiest since Mahatma Gandhi started the Indian independence campaign April 6th. The fact that the British police were forced to fire on Moslems in Decca and Bombay was hailed by civil disobedience leaders as likely to throw Mohammedan support to the freedom movement, hitherto confined almost solely to Hindus. Last reports show that the rioting was growing worse and the dead, dying and wounded were increasing and the military forces were compelled to fire on the natives twice to quell the riots.

The general unrest with present conditions is growing worse, and the prospect is that nothing but military force will keep the mob spirit under control. It seems inborn in all people to desire liberty, both for the individual and the nation, and the attempt to subdue, overpower, or suppress this spirit has through all the ages been answered by rebellion, bloodshed, and carnage. The teachings of Jesus Christ alone will meet the situation in India calls for missionary teachings and persuasion by Christian leaders, rather than force, despotism, and domination by military methods conducted by a nominal Christian nation. Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Dr. W. A. Harper reports a most successful Commencement at Elon College this year.

Rev. E. B. White of Windsor was a visitor at THE SUN office this week. Mr. White is much interested in the work of the Church and always calls when in the city.

Rev. H. George Robertson, Director of Religious Education of the Richmond Church, preached at both services last Sunday for the people of the Hopewell Christian Church.

This week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN is being mailed to every subscriber whose name was on the list of the Southern Congregationalist. It is hoped that many will send in their subscriptions for three, six, or twelve months.

Chaplain H. E. Rountree sails with his ship, the Utah, on their summer cruise, with three hundred midshipmen. Leaving Annapolis on June 6th, they will visit France, Germany, Norway and Scotland.. Chaplain Rountree will return to the United States about August 14th.

Rev. M. F. Allen of the Newport News Church, concluded a very successful meeting last week. Rev. Allen was assisted during the two weeks by Dr. C. C. Ryan of the First Church at Richmond. At the closing service on Sunday night, the Richmond Sunday School orchestra of about twenty-five pieces, gave a concert and played for the services.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, inaugurating the practical working of the merger of the Congregational-Christian Churches of the South, makes its first appearance with this issue, and it is hoped to have plans completed by the first of July. The wire edge of many projects will wear off if patience is not exhausted too soon. No doubt, the lay-out of the make-up man and the compositor will be inspected closely on the first few issues, and suggestions as to how it might have been done will be received. Those to whom the task has been committed will do their best and will try to please themselves by pleasing others. The mandates of the official bodies will guide, so far as they are understood. Where these are silent efforts to interpret, the demands of the constituency will direct us. The space in THE SUN will be needed, and we venture to suggest a more careful pruning of articles by their authors. The deletion of useless and redundant matter should claim the attention of the editors. It is enough for the managing editor to select what to use and what to omit to fill the space.—Managing Editor.

BISCOE CHURCH.

We held our revival meeting, beginning the second Sunday in May and continuing over the third Sunday. We feel that it was a real success. The other Churches took an active part with us, for which we are thankful. Rev. W. E. Garner preached for us. His messages were with power that reached hearts. There were twenty-one conversions and nine united with the Church. There will be more, I think, yet. We feel that the meeting was a great blessing to our Church and to all the town of Biscoe and vicinity. We are praying that the other Churches of Biscoe may have great revivals to follow this one. All praise to Christ.

JOHN M. ALLRED, Pastor.

RICHLAND, GA.

Our meeting at Richland, with Rev. H. M. Gray, was fine. Good attendance and much interest was manifested throughout the meeting. Two members were added to the roll and Christians were greatly strengthened. Rev. H. W. Elder was able to attend every service. In fact, he is quite strong, and his presence was an inspiration to every one, and everybody seeks to make him comfortable and happy. I don't think I have ever known any man who is held in such high esteem by all people in his home town as is Bro. Elder. Truly the best life to live is the life of a Christian. He is resigned and happy, and he is receiving comfort from the same gospel with which he comforted others. I trust God may spare him to us a long time, and I am praying that his mantle may fall on a worthy son for the glory of Jesus Christ. G. D. HUNT.

GOING ABROAD.

Two of our Florida pastors who had expected to attend the International Congregational Council in England, have changed their plans for more unusual experiences. Rev. Kerrison Juniper, D. D., pastor of the First Church, at St. Petersburg, is to be summer pastor at the beautiful Central Union Church, Honolulu. Dr. Juniper left May 19th, and will return in September.

Rev. Elisha A. King, D. D., pastor of the Community Church in Miami Beach, had been elected a delegate to the International Council, but later had received an invitation to join the Mexican Seminar, under the leadership of Dr. Hubert Herring, social relation secretary of the education society. This seminar visits Mexico and makes a study of Mexican conditions, the purpose being the promotion of more friendly relations with that country. After the Mexican visit, Dr. King will go to New England to be one of the speakers at the Congregational Conference at the Isles of Shoals.

CONGREGATIONALISTS AT RALEIGH.

The Raleigh meeting will be outstanding in Congregational history in the Southeast and will long live in the memories of those who were privileged to attend. The fine spirit of fellowship with the Southern Christian Convention and the facing of great issues with courage and confidence and with mutual trust made the meetings great and joyous.

The Congregationalists were grouped in several meetings. First there was the Conference of the Carolinas on Sunday and Monday. The preacher of the Conference sermon was Rev. Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D., editor of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty. Other notable addresses were by Dr. John Brittan Clark, of Tryon, and Rev. Albert Russell, Ph.D., dean of Duke University School of Religion. One of the features of the Conference was the farewell to Dr. Fred P. Ensminger, who has been Conference superintendent for a number of years, and the welcome to the Rev. Milo J. Sweet, who assumed the responsibilities for the work in that area.

Following the Conference of the Carolinas there was a meeting of the Regional Committee of the Commission on Missions, under the direction of Dr. W. Knighton Bloom. Dr. Bloom and Miss Mary Preston, secretary of the Commission on Missions, presented the commission's plan of advance for missionary promotion. Much study and discussion was given to the missionary plans and to the subjects of the missionary apportionments, projects and education. The third meeting held was that of the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast. Dr. C. Rexford Raymond was president of the board and was re-elected. The principle matter discussed in the meeting of this board was that of the merger with the Southern Convention, involving the merger of the Southern Congregationalist with THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The merger received the hearty approval of all, but many details of organization were threshed out. The board also considered the financial needs of our Southern educational institutions. The Congregational meetings adjourned to permit the Congregational representatives to share in much of the Southern Christian Convention.

NOTICE.

Letters have been sent to all superintendents of Sunday Schools in Eastern Virginia where there is no home department organized. I sincerely trust that they are planning to organize one, and will soon send me the name of the superintendents appointed, so I can send them some information if they desire it.

ANNIE STALEY CALHOUN, Sec'y,
Home Dep't, E. Va. S. S. & C. E. Con.

PEOPLE ARE CARELESS.

"Last year," writes a Southern landholder whose property is thick with timber, "campers twice set our place afire. Birds, flowers, and animals were decimated unbelievably."

What a tribute to the American camper! If it were an isolated instance, it would be bad enough, and to spare; but it is not. Last year saw hundreds of forest fires in the South, started by campers, destroying thousands of acres of valuable timber, charring tens of thousands of mating and brooding birds, wiping out hordes of small furred inhabitants of the woods, marring for decades great stretches of timber unsurpassed anywhere for sheer loveliness.

Why? Because people are careless. Simply that!

Because the average vacationist, through some mysterious inner change from the considerate citizen he is at home, utterly disregards the property rights of those people who live in the country through which he passes. Because he takes not only an economic and physical, but also a mental, vacation.

He simple-mindedly throws his cigarettes and cigars into the dry grass of roadside ditches and starts the worst kind of fires. He lights his camp fires on the tops of hills, and then leaves them burning there, where winds can, and too often do, spread the flames in every direction. Being on his "vacation," and therefore unable to exert any effort other than for brief walking and eating, he refuses to bare the ground on which he builds his fires, and so ignites thick carpets of leaves and pine needles, leaving them to smolder, to flame, and to start more forest fires.

It was estimated in 1928 that more than thirty million acres of Southern timber land had been laid waste by fires up to that time. The natural cause of such fires are few, and their toll comparatively inconsiderate. The chief—almost the sole—offender is the camper.

The approaching season will no doubt bring its annual trek of tourists to these mountains and forests, for there could be no pleasanter places in which to while away the hot days. It is most earnestly to be hoped that these visitors will bring with them enough common sense not to destroy that which they find and enjoy here.—Editorial from Holland's.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

Rev. E. C. Gillette, Editor; Rev. F. P. Ensminger, and Rev. M. J. Sweet, Associates.

WEST FLORIDA: Rev. Wm. H. Tillman, who has charge of the West Florida larger parish, is now preaching once a month at the Community Church, Valparaiso, which has a membership of 276. He recently had an audience of 221 at the morning service and 361 at the evening service.

SALISBURY, N. C.: This Church is now the United Church, Congregational-Christian, and is rejoicing in the pastoral leadership of Rev. Wm. T. Scott. Mr. Scott is a graduate of Elon College and Yale Divinity School. He comes to Salisbury from a successful work at Dayton, Ohio.

BISCOE, N. C.: This Church was organized eighteen years ago and became a fine Church, but the industry ceased and the people moved away. On May 4th, a meeting was held at which it was unanimously voted to disband and to unite with the Christian Church of Biscoe. The property was deeded to the Congregational Church Building Society.

ALBEMARLE, N. C.: The pastor-at-large has been assisting this Church and recently taught a Sunday School class of young men that would make any pastor glad. There were over forty members in the class, thirty-four being present. They have organized a baseball team, played six games and won five. The young men bought and paid for their suits, and they are very proud of their team.

TAMPA: The First Church, Tampa, has called Rev. Walter Metcalf, of Jupiter, to succeed Rev. Milo J. Sweet. Mr. Metcalf began his service with this Church immediately upon the close of Mr. Sweet's ministry and has been royally welcomed by the Church. Mr. Metcalf has been pastor for three years at Jupiter, having held several important pastorates in Iowa prior to coming to Florida.

MISS MARGUERITE DAVISON has been working in Georgia and Alabama and west Florida hitherto, and now gives up her work in Georgia for that in the Kentucky and Tennessee Conferences. At the midyear meeting of Tennessee workers in Chattanooga she met a number of the pastors with whom she will work, and shortly afterward conducted a school for volunteer summer workers at Pleasant Hill Academy. This western area of the Southeast is fortunate in having so devoted a worker.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.: The United Church of Birmingham is fortunate in having Mr. W. Pressley Ingram, formerly of Wadley, as clerk. He issues very attractive Church calendars, is host to the visiting preachers, and is effective as a Church clerk. President W. J. Campbell, of the Seminary Foundation, and President S. L. Beougher, of Wadley, Ala., have been the preachers during April and May. On Easter Sunday the Young People's Society made a missionary thankoffering of over $12.00, which was divided between Christian and Congregational causes.

MODERATOR ALMON O. STEVENS and Mrs. Stevens, of the Kentucky Conference, are active workers. Last summer they visited in Churches in the East which are interested in their field. In November they went to Charleston, S. C., for the ninth annual meeting of the Advisory Board of the Southeast. In April, 1930, they attended the tenth meeting of the board in Raleigh, N. C., and last October their Church entertained the State Conference. Dr. Minton, of Dayton, and brethren from the Kentucky State Christian Conference were fraternal delegates. The Community Congregational Church at Stearns has been improved and the grounds beautified under their leadership. Their recent effort has been the assembling of a free public library at the Church.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE CONFERENCE OF ALABAMA was held at Thorsby, under the direction of Miss Marguerite Davison. Miss Alta Each, daughter of Rev. Joseph E. Each, pastor of the United Protestant Church of Thorsby, was president of the conference. The meetings were held in the Church at Thorsby Institute and in the open. There was a banquet, with toasts. The young people were active in the well-ordered discussions and in the worship. Rev. Lucy T. Ayers, who greatly pleased the students of Thorsby Institute, Pleasant Hill Academy, Piedmont College, and a number of Churches, led the closing consecration service. Miss Ayers is a quiet evangelist of high spiritual type, who is devoted to the work in the Southeast and content to work for her expenses if groups of Churches arrange for meetings.

THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE, which was held at Crossville, had Secretary A. W. Sparks, from Dayton, as fraternal visitor. Rev. Abram Nightingale, who was pastor-host, has made his Church the center for community affairs and for a public health movement. At the Tennessee conference there was much interest in the project of a super-rural interdenominational work, covering a dozen or more counties of the Cumberland Plateau region. It seems probable that Presbyterians, Methodists, Disciples, Episcopalians, and others will unite with Congregationalists in educational, religious and welfare work, with the advice of the Home Mission Council and the Rural Y. M. C. A. Occasional meetings for two years have prepared the way for such an effort. Rev. Edwin E. White, pastor of the Community Congregational Church of Pleasant Hill, is secretary of the committee that is working toward this worthy project. His Church is occupying the first unit of its new structure this summer. It is a commodious edifice which will house the social activities of a large parish radiating out from Pleasant Hill.

REV. ERNEST C. PARTRIDGE, missionary from Turkey, who for four and a half years was director of education for the Near East Relief, spoke at a number of the Kentucky and Tennessee Churches, and his message was greatly enjoyed. His father was a Congregational minister in Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, and he was welcomed back home again. His sister, Miss Mary Partridge, a student with him in Rollins in the early days, was one of the Boxer uprising martyrs in Shansi, China. It is interesting that Miss Helen Dizney, born in Tennessee and educated in Kentucky, was influenced toward her present missionary work in Taiku, Shansi, China, where Miss Partridge lost her life, by the mother of Miss Mary Partridge and Rev. Ernest C. Partridge. Miss Dizney is now head nurse at the Esther Barton Hospital, at Taiku, and is a project of the Tennessee and Kentucky Churches. She taught school in the mountain area before going into training for a nurse for missionary work.

A NEW LEADER.

Rev. Milo J. Sweet has been appointed pastor-at-large for the Southeast by the Congregational Church Extension Boards. His special field for the present will be in the Carolinas and Georgia, working in close co-operation with Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, Secretary of Missions, Eastern Division. Mr. Sweet will make his home at 409 Calvin Road, Raleigh, N. C. He comes to this work after a successful pastorate at Tampa, Fla., previous to which he held important pastorates in Detroit and Pontiac, Mich. Mr. Sweet is admirably adapted to this work because of large experience with Church problems and because of wide sympathies and a spirit of brotherliness. Mr. Sweet was moderator of the Florida Conference, and Mrs. Sweet was president of the Florida Federation of Congregational Women.

DR. NEIL McQUARRIE.

Rev. Neil McQuarrie, D. D., who has been assistant for the Southeast under the Congregational Church Extension Boards, has retired from that office. Dr. McQuarrie has had special charge of the work in Georgia, Alabama and West Florida, and has endeared himself to all the Churches. Dr. McQuarrie has rendered a most interesting, unusual and valuable service as a missionary pioneer. He has recently made a visit to Florida, where his great work as a missionary pioneer was done. His account of his early work in this State, which was given at the State conference, indicated how many of the Florida Churches had come from his labors. He visited a number of these Churches and was given a royal welcome in each.

Dr. McQuarrie was one of seven Extension Board workers who were retired because of the age limit and who were the guests of the boards at a dinner given in their honor at the meeting of the boards in Brooklyn. For the next year, Dr. McQuarrie will have charge of the central group of Churches in Georgia.

THE FLORIDA CONFERENCE.

The forty-seventh annual meeting of the Florida Congregational Conference was held April 22-24 with the Churches at Coral Gables and Coconut Grove. The Conference was beautifully entertained and was largely attended and was an important and interesting meeting. The annual sermon was preached by Dr. Elisha A. King, of Miami Beach. Important addresses were given by Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Mary Preston, of New York; Dr. Neil McQuarrie, of Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. H. Samuel Fritsch, of Jacksonville, and Dr. Ernest C. Partridge, of Aleppo, Syria.

The Men's Conference, conducted by Rev. Arthur P. Vaughn, D. D., of Avon Park, discussed the important theme, "The Minister's Message." There were reports of the work in the State which indicated progress. Among those reporting were Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, assistant for Sunday School and young people's work for the State. Rev. O. T. Anderson, of Fort Myers, was elected moderator for the coming year, and Rev. A. P. Vaughn, D. D., of Avon Park, was elected preacher. The next meeting of the Conference will be held with the Church at Orange City.

Rev. Milo J. Sweet, the retiring moderator, and Mrs. Sweet, the retiring president of the Woman's Federation, were given a farewell as they left Florida for their new home in Raleigh. Another interesting feature was a pageant given in the patio of the Coconut Grove Church, presenting the work of the Young People's Conference at Camp Immokalee. This was presented under the direction of Rev. Don G. Henshaw, of Coral Gables, and Miss Pattie Lee Goghill.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
ASSOCIATING EDITOR
E. C. GILLETTE
117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL J. E. MCCAULEY
NEWS EDITOR
W. C. WICKER

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

WELCOME.

With this issue, THE CHRISTIAN SUN begins to carry duly authorized contributions from our Congregational constituency. The Southern Convention, in recent biennial session at Raleigh, authorized this procedure, and the editors concerned agreed to begin officially with the first issue of June.

Our Christian constituency will cordially welcome to our columns and to our homes the information, as well as the inspiration, brought to us in this issue and to be brought to us in future by our Congregational constituency. Through the printed page, we may quietly and carefully receive and discern the spirit of procedure and fellowship that obtains among our Congregational constituency and the news of the work they are doing with us and within our own borders.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN now, within fourteen years of its 100th anniversary, has developed traditions, ties and a history that are priceless and sacred in the annals of the Christian Church and in the building up of the kingdom of righteousness. It has, through its continued years of service, been dedicated to the cause of Christian liberty and the union of God's people under the leadership of the Christ alone as the Head of the Church, and it can but now rejoice in at least a partial achievement of that for which it has stood through the years and that which its columns have always revealed and taught. We have believed from the beginning that a sufficient name of the Church was "Christian," being derived from the name of Him who said, "I will build my Church." And because the Founder of that Church prayed that all His followers might be one in Him, even as He and the Father are one from its beginning till now, the Church has been Congregational in government, in policy and polity. We have put the name of our Church first and foremost, and in so doing have been confused often with others.

Our Congregational brethren have emphasized, as we have not done, the form of their Church government, a form which is exactly our own, and so in uniting for fellowship and service we are Christians yet, but are willing for the world to know, as Christians, we are Congregational in the manner and method of our government, as we have been through all the years. No Congregationalist that this writer has met has requested or expected that any established Christian Church would change its name or its faith, its program or its polity; and we have not heard any Christian request a Congregational Church that they change their name, their faith, their polity. We are seeking to work together and, with our united forces, present a solid Christian front to the world and to carry forward the banner of our Lord in the spirit of our Christ, which spirit has the highest regard for the lowliest as well as for the most exalted of individuals any and everywhere.

So we welcome to the columns of THE CHRISTIAN SUN our Congregational constituency, offering them through these columns the same rights and privileges that we as Christians have enjoyed through the long years of service, a service dedicated and consecrated to the spirit of individual and personal property, the spirit of Christian democracy to Him in whose name and strength the Church is being built on earth. And now for a word of greeting from our distinguished and esteemed associate editor, Dr. Edwin C. Gillette, 117 West Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

J. O. A.

REV. EDWIN C. GILLETTE.

Introducing the associate editor from our Congregational constituency, Rev. Edwin C. Gillette, Jacksonville, Fla. Dr. Gillette is a graduate from Williams College and from Hartford Theological Seminary. After serving Churches successfully as pastor in Massachusetts and Connecticut, he became pastor of the Union Congregational Church, Jacksonville, Fla., in which capacity he served with distinction for five years. In December, 1925, he became superintendent of Florida for the Congregational Church Extension Boards. In our Christian vernacular, we would call him General Secretary or Mission Secretary for the State of Florida. This position he still occupies and fills with credit to himself and distinction to the important office he fills. Dr. Gillette is a brother of pleasing personality and wields a facile pen, whose product, we are sure, will edify and delight Christian Sun readers.

GREETING.

On behalf of the Congregational constituency of the Southeast, we offer our greeting to our Christian brethren, especially to the editor, publishers and readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. We rejoice in the fine fellowship which has promoted the invitation to make THE CHRISTIAN SUN the voice of our constituency. We appreciate the fine spirit behind this invitation and shall rejoice to make this paper, with its fine tradition and high standards, our paper, and shall be glad to cooperate in every way with Dr. Atkinson and his fellow-editors.

We trust that many of our Congregational folks will take the paper and thus become acquainted more intimately with the ideals and purposes and the personnel of the Southern Christian Convention, and we hope also that our Christian friends, through the Congregational news, may become better acquainted with their fellow-members of the united family.

To those who were subscribers to the Southern Congregationalist, we express our regrets that because of financial reasons we had to suspend publication. Sample copies of THE CHRISTIAN SUN will be sent to all who were regular subscribers of the Southern Congregationalist, and we hope that our readers will become regular readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. We call attention to the fact that THE SUN offers a three months' trial subscription for 50 cents.

The Southern Congregationalist has filled a real place in our Church life, but because of financial difficulties has not had continued publication from the beginning. It was an older paper than some may realize. We recently found a letter written by the late Dr. A. T. Clark, of West Palm Beach, which gave a little information with regard to the paper. Following the merger of the Congregational-Methodist Churches in Georgia and Alabama with the Congregationalists in 1888, leaders agitated the plan to start the Southern Congregationalist. A wealthy parishioner of Rev. C. I. Scofield, of Dallas, Texas, later nationally-known evangelist, offered to finance the paper if it could be published in Dallas, with Dr. Scofield as editor. It seemed best, however, to publish the paper in Atlanta, which was the center of the field. The first Southern Congregationalist appeared in July, 1889. The editors were Dr. A. F. Sherrill, of Atlanta Seminary, Dr. Russell T. Hall, of Jacksonville; Rev. S. E. Bassett and Dr. A. T. Clark, who served as managing editor. After some years of publication, there was a period of suspension, and when the paper again appeared it came as the Congregational News, but later during the editorship of Dr. Lewis H. Keller, the older name, the Southern Congregationalist, was revived.

It was with sincere regret that, because of lack of financial support, it became necessary to suspend our little paper, but we believe that one paper should be enough for our united constituency in the Southeast.

The Board of Publication of the Southern Christian Convention offered to annex the name of the Southern Congregationalist to the name of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but the Congregational Board of the Southeast felt that the name THE CHRISTIAN SUN was broad enough for us, with the addition of the explanatory wording, "Official organ of the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast."

We are glad to have a place in THE SUN:

E. C. G.

PROHIBITION.

The eighteenth amendment to the Constitution was not the scheme of politicians, but the fruit of prayer and purpose in the heart of the Church to honor God and bless mankind. Providence seems to have inspired this purpose and to have chosen the time for its enactment. The saloon was the climax of the liquor business. It was the sanction by law of a curse that had grown into a commercial power. The moral value of temperance and the effort to reduce the evil of strong drink was up against a legal business. Sermons against intemperance seemed to be against the law of the land. The only way to save the nation was to change the law and make the manufacture, sale, transportation, possession and use of intoxicating liquor illegal. That was done in an orderly, fair way, and by the vote of the nation. The sound judgment of an honest citizenship moved step by step from local option, and State action, up to national prohibition. The nation had been deceived by the theory that the saloon was a source of revenue, that it put the business under legal control, and that the nation would suffer loss by the abolition of the saloon. Politicians were afraid of the question. Many ministers of the gospel were timid and reticent on this question, and those who favored the saloon laughed at the idea of eliminating the saloon from society. But prayer continued, temperance societies worked, the pulpit advocates increased, by degrees good politicians joined the temperance band, and the work moved on quietly, with steady gain until the nation, by the greatest majority in the history of the nation, passed the eighteenth amendment. The greatest power in the world is prayer, and the greatest contribution to national progress is Christian citizenship. The liquor business was always immoral; it is now a crime. Immorality is the violation of God's law; crime is the violation of human law. "If prohibition is a failure, why have 90 per cent of the Keely cure and similar institutions gone out of business in the last ten years?"

There are three things that come along together, and that seem to prove that prohibition was providential. These three things are automobiles, good roads, and prohibition. They all work in harmony. The automobile would be almost useless without good roads; good roads would be a burden on society without automobiles; and both would be hazardous without prohibition. Appetite and desire for gain often lead men into wrong attitudes, and these make the drinker and the bootlegger of the present time. What the nation needs is temperance education more than law enforcement. Enforcement has its place and its value, but a deep-rooted, wide-spread, permanent temperance sentiment would cure the evils of drinking and the violation of the eighteenth amendment. The Church, the school, the home, and Congress have yet a great work to do to make a sober nation. W. W. S.

GOD SPEAKS.

There is no limit to the voice of God. There is a limit to our capacity to hear that voice. That limitation is due to our own selfishness; or a failure to develop the God-given tendencies to understand Him. There is a universal law that prohibits the development of any organ of the body that is not used. If one should be closed up in a place where there was no sound, it would not be long before the eye would be of no use. If people shut out the voices of God it will not be long before His message, however put before the world, will not be heard.

How does God speak? Both through heaven and earth. "The heavens declare the glory of God." They speak His loving message. "The firmament showeth His handywork." It is inspiring to look at the artist work; but it is more inspiring to look into the firmament and see the glory of God. It thrills the souls of men to look into the olympic blue and see the diamonds which God has strewn by the handful to bedeck the sky for the sole purpose of having both His heavens and the firmament to declare His glory.

It is the tendency of man to glory in the accumulation of knowledge of humanity, but all knowledge is vain until we have learned to let God speak to us through the works of His hand. "Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge."

God is not limited to nature for speaking to His children. As one looks at the beauties of nature, all heaven may speak to Him through the still small voice. As a result, impressions come from within to love and serve both God and man because His voice is heard. Thus God speaks through this medium. Man may hear the voice of God as it speaks through the tiny babe. Some time ago a stalwart railroad engineer was blessed with a fine baby boy. He was well advanced in years when the first baby came. As he clasped the little one in his strong arms in the presence of his pastor, he remarked, "He has taught me more about God than ever I knew."

God speaks through grown-ups too. It does not necessarily take a preacher or a professional religious worker for God to speak through. Whoever, whatever, and wherever a source of God's creation becomes the inspirer of godly thought and impulse to do good and walk humbly with God, we may rest assured that it is the voice of God speaking to His children.

J. E. M.

ELON COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The fortieth annual commencement of Elon College, which was held May 24-27, was well attended and declared a very successful commencement program. The outstanding features were the beccalaureate sermon by Dr. Fred B. Smith, moderator of the National Council of the Congregational Churches in the United States, on Sunday morning, and the literary address, in connection with the graduation exercises, by Dr. W. D. Hooper, of the University of Georgia, on Tuesday morning.

The commencement program opened on Saturday evening with a special musical festival, under the direction of the college musical department, and on Sunday afternoon Prof. C. James Velie and Mrs. Grace Hall Riheldaffer gave a vesper organ recital, which were the musical events of the program.

Sunday was baccalaureate day, with Dr. William A. Harper, of Elon College, giving the baccalaureate address to the senior class at the evening service, which is his custom each year. He used as his final message to the seniors the subject, "Truth That Frees."

Dr. Fred B. Smith prefaced his great message with a very pleasing and heartening word with reference to the college. "I have visited hundreds of colleges and met the graduates, students, and friends of many others," he said, "but I have never known an institution that has entwined itself around the hearts of people as Elon has. So often the alumni of a college seem hostile to it; but not so Elon. I am glad, therefore, to know this college on the inside, and it is a joy for me to be here."

Dr. Smith, who has long been an outstanding figure in Church and civic work, chose as the subject for his message to the seniors and the friends of the college on this occasion the "Fruits of Religion." He began by discussing how the crises that come into every person's life at some time or other strike at the foundation of a belief in God. He declared that after calm consideration and with a full realization of the seriousness of these incidents, he was more certain than ever that the gospel of Jesus Christ abides in ever-increasing value and power, and along this line he addressed his audience.

Monday was alumni day, and included the annual banquet of the association at 5:30 in the afternoon and the alumni address by Rev. Wm. T. Scott, Salisbury, N. C., a member of the class of 1924. The business session of the Alumni Association was held following the banquet, at which Mr. F. F. Myrick, lawyer of Greensboro, was re-elected president of the association for the next year. The other officers were also re-elected for another term.

In the morning the class-day exercises were held, and in the afternoon the junior representatives of the four literary societies of the college spoke in competition for honors.

The graduation exercises came as the last item of the commencement program on Tuesday morning, at which Dr. W. D. Hooper gave the commencement address. Dr. Hooper is chairman of the committee that accredits colleges in the Southern Association of Colleges. He congratulated Elon on being a member, and expressed the hope that her friends would rally to her support so generously that her membership in the association would be assured permanently.

Dr. Hooper based his address to the graduating class on the phrase from the Declaration of Independence, "The Pursuit of Happiness," which is said by that document to be an inalienable right. He asked, "Is it a right at all? Sometimes it seems to me that the world is cluttered up with people who object to other people being happy, certainly to any happiness of which they do not approve. Especially are young people criticised because they seem to think that while it may be true that life is real, life is earnest, it is not necessarily a funereal thing."

At these exercises fifty-seven seniors received their college degrees, and eight students were awarded diplomas and certificates in the special departments of the college. Dr. W. M. Jay presented a Bible as a gift of the college to each member of the senior class. The giving of a Bible to the graduates has been an annual custom of the college.

Honors were announced at this exercise as follows: Mr. Guy Aytch York, Staley, N. C., valedictorian of the graduating class; Mr. Alton P. Lewis, Altamahaw, N. C., salutatorian; Miss Idell Jones, Sunbury, N. C., winner of the Moffitt essayist medal; Mr. J. Howard Smith, Portsmouth, Va., winner of the Clio orator medal, and Mr. Kenneth B. Hook, Winchester, Va., winner of the Philologian orator medal. C. M. C.

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Total cost of memorial		$1,275.00
Previously acknowledged	$1,080.25
Philathea Class, Suffolk, Va.	5.00
		1,085.25
Balance to be secured		$ 189.75

Let friends send in the balance as quickly as possible, please.

Elon College, N. C. J. O. Atkinson, Treas., Committee on O'Kelly Memorial.

Christ said to His hearers: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." But a good many people are trying to be free without knowing the truth, which is impossible.—Sel.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Two things are essential to human life and within the reach of all. Religion is first, and money is second. This life must have money or its equivalent. Future life is not secure without religion. There is an urge in man for both of these. Present necessity moves men to work for a living, and spiritual impulse moves the soul to seek God. Men can live in this world without religion, but they cannot live without bread. There is a tendency in the human race to put the emphasis on this life and to strive after money, though the emphasis should be placed on the life to come and the Christian experience that will make men strive to enter in at the strait gate." Both religion and money are within the reach of those who seek for them and strive for the mastery. Both must be sought earnestly and honestly. Both of these represent all that is available in this world and the world to come. Money represents all values in material possessions, and religion represents all values in spiritual possessions.

It is easier to get money than it is to invest it for safety and profit. The hardest time with money is after it is in human possession. Man cannot possess money alone with profit. It is in co-operation with other men that money has earning capacity. If a man had a billion in gold stored up in a chest, it would do him no good. Every dollar possessed by an individual puts him in new relations with others. It becomes a bond of confidence, a new source of contact, and makes its possessor more and more a member of society. "None of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself" (Rom. 14:7). The more men have, the truer this is. The less a man has, the more he can live to himself. The poorer man is, the more independent he is; the richer man is, the more dependent he is. He must have the confidence and co-operation of others in honest relations or he will lose his money and the respect of others. It is much easier to earn money than it is to keep it and use it in an honest way. The honesty of other men determines the safety of what men possess. The hardest thing in the financial world is the honest and safe management of money. What the business world needs is more honest men and less speculation. It is easier to earn a dollar than it is to make proper use of a dollar. What the world needs is honest men to make money safe.

What is true of money is true of religion. Every Christian knows that it is easy to get religion, for it is the gift of God through faith in Jesus Christ. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31). It requires no work to get religion; it simply requires repentance and faith. But it is more difficult to take care of religion than to get it. It is so easy to lose the real sense of regeneration, and so difficult to live the Christian life. Religion, like money, increases responsibility as it brings the life more into contact with others. The more religion one has, the more difficult it is to maintain the confidence of others and to satisfy one's own sense of Christian obligation to God and to man. It is the problem of life to keep religion active and safe.

W. W. STALEY.

"If each drop in a shower of rain has and performs its own mission with leaf and blade of grass, could any drop of the eternal spring, or divine life, be made in vain?"

OUR WASHINGTON WINDOW.

BY DR. W. KNIGHTON BLOOM.

For several years Dr. Bloom has been contributing a letter to The Southern Congregationalist, under the heading, "Our Washington Window," being a message from his office at 528 Victor Building, Washington, D. C.—Editor.

For nearly four years, Our Washington Window has been opened wide to all that represents extension service unlimited. During these years, many folks have looked in and some of them have tarried awhile in fine fellowship. For we have tried to make the spot stand for friendship and good cheer. Our Congregational center for the Eastern Division has never been content to be regarded merely as a storehouse for statistics or a clearing-house for information.

We have been singularly fortunate in the friendly relations which exist in the big territory on which we look out from the fifth floor of a modest building in the city on the Potomac. The countless letters we receive or write are largely talks through the mails; the reports we get tell the story of consecrated service; the printed pages circulated, record the needs of the hour and the progress of our common task.

Now we are privileged to unite in fellowship and service with our friends and fellow-workers of the Southern Christian Convention, and a new light shines into our Congregational windows, with cheering illumination from the rays of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. It has been paying its welcome weekly visits for quite awhile. Now it has opened widely to us and made a place for our window in its clear-visioned, far-seeing, heart-searching, character-building eminence of the cathedral of the soul.

We are glad to find Our Washington Window message visiting the Southeast in a larger way. It means much to us to enter into the wider Christian atmosphere of a united Church alliance. It emphasizes at once the call for religion to function at its best. For as folks united in the newly organized Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches, we can do more for others and work harder for Christian uplift, because of the wide-open door before us.

Great spaces of frontier need face us. Rural, industrial, city, tourist, lowland and mountain conditions await the touch of brain, hand and heart. These highways and byways of human need lure with soul-stirring attractiveness. Each place in this wonderland of service becomes a potential factor in world development. Thus the task of friendship endeavor is to keep the soul of the world alive. It calls for new ventures. It involves looking into the eternal, catching glimpses of the unseen, and then going ahead and doing something for others.

Everywhere such a spirit of endeavor opens windows, unlocks doors, sets lighted lamps down beside dark experiences, and builds souls into mighty, eternal helpfulness.

Some life stories are never told. They grow beyond us. But here and there glimpses are seen. Once in a while illuminating facts come from lips or pen. Glowing ideas and great heart touches enter into the passing days. Common experiences become rich when charged with a spiritual atmosphere, and lives are set traveling in all kinds of stimulating directions. For, call it what we please, religion is here ready to show a gleam of gladness to God-hungry folks; to shed a light to lighten their darkness, and give assurance to calm their restlessness.

Tennyson gives us a picture of a skeptical doctor moving through a children's hospital, muttering half under his breath: "All's very well—but the good Lord Jesus has had His day." But the nurse who watches lovingly over the little sufferers, ministering to their needs, answers out of the depths of her soul:

"Had? Has it come? It was only dawned;
It will come by and by.
Oh! how could I serve in the wards,
If the hope of the world was a lie.
How could I bear with the sights,
And the loathsome smell of disease,
But that He said, 'Ye do it to me
When ye do it to these.' "

SOUTH NORFOLK.

It was my privilege to be with Rev. O. D. Poythress and his good people, of the South Norfolk Christian Church, in an evangelistic campaign from May 12th to 23rd. Bro. Poythress did the preaching and I had charge of the music, except on Sundays, when I had to be in my own pulpit.

We had a great time with these great people, and the Lord gave us a wonderful meeting, forty-four having already united with the Church and others expected to join later. The success of the meeting was due to the hard work of the pastor, Bro. Poythress. His sermons were sincere, earnest, and enthusiastic, and the people heard him with delight.

It was a blessing to me to be present in the meeting, and I appreciate so much the kindness and the many courtesies shown me while there.

Before closing, I want to express my appreciation of the fine work being done by the South Norfolk Church, and especially the good work being done by their pastor, Rev. O. D. Poythress. He has done a work of which our whole Church should be proud, and a work that is an honor to our whole Church. May God bless him and the members of his Church, and may the work continue to go forward.

Norfolk, Va. J. F. MORGAN.

REV. G. D. HUNT'S LETTER.

Lanett, Ala., May 28, 1930.

Dear Bro. Editor:

I am at Lanett, Ala., with Rev. J. D. Dollar, in revival meetings. We are having a good meeting; fine crowds are attending, and they are very attentive to the work. The music, both of senior and junior choir, is an inspiring feature of the services, as is the special musical program that is being rendered by visiting quartets from the other Churches of the town. Bro. J. O. Bolt is in charge of the song service, and Mrs. Iva Sorrell is the pianist and director for the junior choir.

The meeting will continue for two weeks. We are praying for a gracious revival. I don't know of any Church or city that has greater opportunities to do real, constructive work for Christ than is found here. Rev. J. D. Dollar is doing all in his power to put the program over.

After this meeting closes, I go to help Rev. H. M. Gray, at East LaGrange, on the third Sunday in June, and then to Lowell, Roanoke, Ala., to be with Bro. Meacham on the fourth Sunday in June, and then to Providence Chapel to help Bro. Veazey in a meeting there. Please pray that I may be used of God for the glory of His Son Jesus Christ. G. D. HUNT.

No matter how menial the task we have, until we can accomplish it with accuracy and rapidity we are not ready for advancement to the higher plane for which we are aiming.—Selected.

STRONG AND TIMELY.

At their great meeting last fall, when two Church denominations were merged to work unitedly in helping to build up the kingdom of Christ, on October 25, 1929, the General Christian Convention (delegates from Congregational Church and some members of other Churches present) unanimously and very heartily adopted the following timely resolution, written by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN:

Resolved: 1. That our Church programs and preaching emphasize the importance and necessity of purity of life and purpose. 2. That we give our endorsement to the World-Wide Purity Legion as represented by our brother Albert Godley, of Tenafly, N. J., and bid him and that organization godspeed in their good work for purity and righteousness.

The unique method of teaching purity principles by the World-Wide Purity Legion has already gained the hearty approval of many persons who have noted the simplicity and wisdom of their work.

The teaching is principally by means of inexpensive, well-prepared booklets, founded upon hygienic and biblical truth, in choice wording.

The booklets are graded to fit the needs of different ages in homes. They are published by voluntary gifts from good people. Interested and efficient officers are chosen who give free service as a work of love for humanity, and they ask no salary.

The organization is not for money profit, but for human uplift in Jesus' name. Lovers of purity are members; sustaining members give as they may be impressed by the needs of their own ability. The needs are great and are world-wide. As good people may learn of this greatly needed Christian mission many gifts will come. The noted S. Parks Cadman, D .D., has written of this very worthy work: "It will go through the earth yet." Then he added: "But you will have a hard time of it." We well know that hindering prudery still exists, and that some Church members are not yet aware of their full duty as stewards of God's money. Yet we have faith—money will come. Last fall we needed to republish booklet No. 24, very valuable to homes. Good people gladly gave one to five dollars, two gave more. Then 3,000 copies were printed. The price is a dime. It is worth far more; one man after reading it gladly handed a dollar.

We need now to republish that very helpful booklet No. 12, for the older boys and young men. We will add Bible teaching, making, we think, the most valuable booklet of the kind yet in print. We wish to publish 5,000 copies. This will also lessen the price per copy, but it is a larger booklet than No. 24. Oh, that a million could read it! Much depends upon the gifts as to number printed. It is God's work, and we are hopeful. Good pastors and others will help. One layman has already sent a check for $15.00 toward this. Many will send a dollar; some, if they heed duty, will send several dollars after due thought. Many pastors, as well as parents, will think of opportunity of helping now before too late in directing the mind and the purpose of the young men to live pure and noble lives, useful and happy in this life, and, by the help of Christ, to gain heaven. They who wish may have such part of their gifts as they request returned to them in booklets to distribute.

To missionaries and to the truly needy, we send booklets free. Over 1,000 booklets were sent free last year. Help make it possible to send out many more this year.

The graded booklets show how to present purity to little children and to the different ages. Note well; pray, and then give. God will bless you. Act soon. Address World-Wide Purity Legion, Tenafly, N. J.

ALBERT GODLEY, Sec'y.

CANNON EXHONORATED.

The separate attacks leveled at Bishop Cannon at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, were all unsuccessful in their undertaking to convict him of the charges involved. The first charge was that he and four other bishops had acted contrary to the Church laws in their activities in party politics. This charge was based on the fact that they used their influence in persuading dry Democrats in the South to oppose the election of Al. Smith as President on account of his attitude on the prohibition question. The Southern Methodist Church is for prohibition, and could not condemn their bishops for their support of what the Church solidly supports. The Church has stood for prohibition so long that those laymen or leaders who support prohibition are in line with the teachings and practice of the Church and it took only a few minutes to decide that no action should be taken against their highest officials for teaching in pulpit and on platform the great moral issues of the Church.

The second charge which was brought against Bishop Cannon alone was that his speculations in the stock market were inconsistent with the character that the Church expects of its bishops. This charge was sponsored by a number of laymen of the conference, but it was withdrawn without coming to action against the bishop. The conference continued him as chairman of the commission on temperance, thus not only exhonorating him from any charge filed against him, but virtually endorsing him as their champion of the cause of prohibition in the future.

Christians should put moral principles above politics, prohibition above partisan issues, worship above war, and God above greed. They should follow the wise injunction of the wise apostle to the Gentiles when he said, "Whatsoever you do, do all to the glory of God."

"MAN WITH HOE."

Markham, thirty-one years ago, published the poem entitled "Man With Hoe." At the time of its publication, its author was moved by the inhuman treatment—the drudgery—that the working-man was undergoing, and this called forth the poem, which was published throughout the world and brought fame to Edwin Markham. He now, in his seventy-eighth year, sees a brighter future for the class which his poem describes as virtually slaves. In Russia he sees his poetic predictions coming true where "dumb terror shall rise to judge the world." Here he sees the Russian revolution and the progress of the peasantry, the slaves of that country.

This poem was first published in a paper in San Francisco in 1899, and immediately struck the heart-chords of the people and its popularity spread to other countries. Editors estimate that it has been republished in forty different languages. With popularity it became known as the "battle cry of the next thousand years." The author attributes his writing of the poem to the reading of three books, viz: "The Man Who Laughs," "The Social Problem," and the "Gospel of Jesus." These three books gave the author the inspiration for the poem.

Markham's theory is that poems find a fitting place in science and religion. "Science," he says, "gives us laws on how we live and how we have evolved, but it does not deal with the hopes and aspirations of the people. Poetry fills in this gap which science leaves."

"The relation of poetry and religion are identical. Poetry is the expression of beauty in a way as to elevate the soul. That is the main reason of religion." Poetry in the psalms and in the songs which we sing in our worship have rendered great service in giving inspiration to the souls of men. W. C. W.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

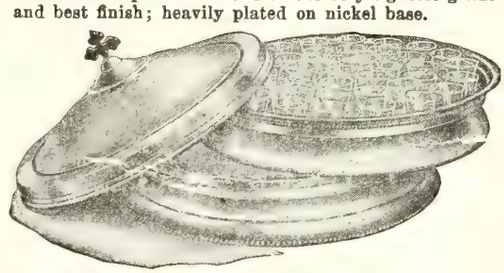
Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

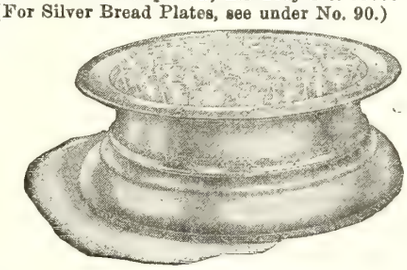
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



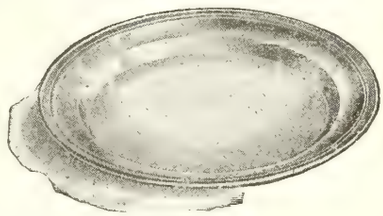
Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00



Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

(June.)

Dear Father, Thou workest and we work. Not as a matter of course, nor fitfully, may this day be occupied, but firmly may we, Thy helpers, choose every activity according as Thou dost call and lead. Silent, profound as unfolding dawn, and as real as daylight's deepening hue, may Thy voice of guidance come to us. Bring to Thine aid the service, even the bodies, of those who professedly carry the cross of Jesus, that high and sure it may be planted where shall fall the gaze of all men and whereupon to look as truly is to live! For Christ's dear sake. Amen.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING MAY 31, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,124.06
Randleman, N. C.	2.50
Wood's Chapel, New Market, Va.	1.00
Old Zion, Norfolk, Va.	59.83
Ebenezer, Cary, N. C.	3.00
Morrisville, N. C.	.63
Mt. Pleasant, Vass, N. C.	5.00
Wakefield, Va.	3.06
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Franklin, Va.	9.05
Ether, N. C.	1.00
Biscoe, N. C.	2.10
Wadley, Ala.	1.30
Howard's Chapel, Wentworth, N. C.	1.00
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C.	1.04
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	3.53
Holland, Va.	10.00
First Christian, Portsmouth, Va.	16.31
Total	$ 3,252.41

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,835.96
Mrs. R. H. Riedel, Holland, Va.	5.00
Morrisville, N. C.	.91
Mt. Carmel, Walters, Va.	64.56
Mrs. Alice Corboy, Elon College, N. C.	1.00
Howard's Chapel, Wentworth, N. C.	11.00
New Hope, Abanda, Ala.	6.02
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	25.00
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	25.00
Shady Grove, Martins Mill, N. C.	4.00
Total	$ 3,978.45

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,311.72
Mebane Sunday School, Mebane, N. C.	2.00
Burlington Sunday School, N. C.	52.39
Total	$ 1,366.11

Woman's Board, S. C. C.

Previously acknowledged	$ 4,312.05
Raleigh Church, Raleigh, N. C.	900.00
Total	$ 5,212.05

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$13,743.94
Sunday Schools, regular	128.38
Individual and Church collections	142.49
Specials	54.39
Woman's Board, S. C. C.	900.00
Total to date	$14,969.17

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

AN AGE OF DOUBT.

Admittedly, ours is an age of religious doubt. Decided convictions are no longer considered in good taste. It is a fact that many good, moral people are deliberately repudiating some of the cherished doctrines of evangelical Christianity. Isn't it a fact that everywhere you meet men who speak disparagingly of creeds? In my judgment, the fundamental thing is the thing we believe, and everything else depends upon that. Therefore, it is of vital importance that we should reach stronger and clearer convictions respecting certain fundamental truths of evangelical Christianity.

I read with interest the splendid article entitled "Credo," written by our beloved Dr. Atkinson. He says, "I believe; I believe very intensely." Then he tells us in his own fine way just what he does believe. Yes, it does make a difference what you believe. Because it is what we really believe that determines what we are, how we live, what we say, what we do.

In this age of rationalistic philosophy we should not forget that the great apostle Paul left no doubt where he stood upon every doctrine he preached. He did not give up the form of pure doctrine. Brethren of the ministry, it seems to me that it is our solemn duty to preach the gospel so as to undermine the doubts, strengthen the faith, and promote the Christian spirit of sincere inquirers after truth. We, of the Christian Church, should adhere strictly and firmly to the Principles and Government and Directory of Worship adopted by the Christian Church when Rev. W. B. Wellons was President of the Convention. Read "Life and Labors of Rev. W. B. Wellong" (pages 217-219; also 229-232). It will do you good.

I am very proud of the fact that I have a cherished "credo," but I allow others the same privilege I claim for myself. As for me, I believe very intensely. I believe that there is one, and only one, living and true God, who inhabiteth eternity, who is from everlasting to everlasting, the Creator of all things, the Preserver of life; God is an infinite, intelligent Spirit, inexpressibly glorious in holiness, and worthy of all possible honor, confidence and love (Ex. 20:2-3; Psa. 90:2; Ex. 15:11; Rev. 4:11; John 4:24).

In the unity of the Godhead there are three persons—the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost—equal in every divine perfection, and exercising distinct but harmonious offices in the great work of redemption (Matt. 28:19; John 15:26; 1 Cor. 12:4-6; 2 Cor. 13:14). I believe that the Lord Jesus Christ is the only begotten Son of God, full of grace and truth, the Saviour of the world, the word which was in the beginning with God, and by whom all things were made. God made a glorious manifestation of Himself in the person and work of Christ. For He is the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of His person. He is Mediator between God and man, Prophet, Priest and King; Head of the Church; the Heir of all things, and Judge of the world (1 Tim. 3:16; Eph. 5:23; Acts 17:31). I believe, therefore, in our Lord Jesus Christ as my Saviour and humanity's only hope of salvation. I believe that the Holy Spirit is a divine Person, equal with God the Father and God the Son, and of the same nature; that He was active in the creation; that He convicts of sin, of judgment and of righteousness; that He bears witness to the truth of the gospel; that He is the agent of the new birth; that He seals, baptizes, endures, guides, teaches, witnesses, sanctifies and helps the believer (John 14:16-17; Heb. 9:14; John 14:26; Luke 1:35; Gen. 1:13; John 16:8-11; John 1:33; John 16:13; John 14:26; Rom. 8:16, 26, 27).

I believe in the sacred Scriptures—the Old and New Testament—that the same Spirit that moved and brooded upon the face of chaotic darkness in the beginning is the same divine Spirit that moved upon holy men of old who wrote through sixteen centuries of time and gave the world a correct, infallible revelation of the will of God to man. The sacred Scriptures are sufficient for our correction in righteousness, and are designed to make us perfect and to thoroughly furnish us unto all good works. Any rule of faith and action offered to or imposed upon the Church other than the sacred Scriptures should be discarded (2 Tim. 3:16-17; Luke 24:25-27; 2 Peter 1:19-21; Psa. 19:7-11; Gal. 1:8, 9; Rom. 15:4; 2 Tim. 3:15).

Almighty God hath particularly enjoined upon all men everywhere to repent, and the Saviour hath expressly declared that, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish (Luke 13:3, 5; Acts 17:30, 3:9). The preaching of repentance was the chief business of the apostles when our Lord first sent them forth, and should be the chief business of every minister of the gospel now, and to declare the fact that we are saved by grace, through faith in the Lord Jesus (Mark 6:12; Luke 24:47; Eph. 2:8).

I believe in a general resurrection, both of the righteous and wicked. God hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness by Jesus Christ, whom He hath ordained to be the Judge of the quick and dead; both small and great must appear before the judgment seat of Christ, the Chief Justice of the "Supreme Court of the Universe," to give an account of the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or bad (Eccl. 12:14; Rom. 2:16). I believe in the punishment of the wicked and the reward of the righteous (Matt. 25:41, 46; Rev. 14:11; Matt. 22:12; John 6:40; Matt. 25:33, 34; Rev. 21:4; Isa. 35:10).

Baptism is a sacred sacrament of the New Testament, instituted by the Lord Jesus, and I see no reason why it should not be perpetuated and strictly observed (Matt. 28:19; Mark 16:16; Gal. 3:27; Rom. 6:5).

The Lord Jesus Christ, the Saviour of the world, is the only divine Head of the Church (Col. 1:18; Eph. 1:22, 23).

Christian, the name which fully expresses the relation of His people to Him, is a sufficient name for the Church. It is the only appellation needed.

The sacred Scriptures—the Holy Bible—is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

Christian character, or vital piety, is a just, and should be the only, test of fellowship and of Church membership.

In doctrines not essential to the salvation of the soul, the liberty of conscience and the right of private judgment should be extended to all.

It does seem to me that we should require, as essential to the very existence of Christian fellowship, correct views of God, of Christ, of the Holy Spirit, of the atonement, of the resurrection from the dead, and of future rewards and punishment. These are the essential doctrines of the gospel-doctrines which lie at the very foundation of our Christian hope and of the Church of Christ. (This has been stated by others.)

The writer would not, if he could, compel others to believe as he believes, but he does not see why any one should contradict some of the cherished doctrines of the Christian religion. We should not substitute human reason for the infallible authority of the Word of God.

In this age of "higher criticism," we must choose between an inspired Bible and a virgin-born miraculous Saviour on the one hand, and rationalism on the other. May the Lord help us to unite on complete loyalty to God's Word and our Lord Jesus Christ, God the Son.

E. B. WHITE.

Windsor, Va.

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE LETTER.

The board of trustees of Piedmont Junior College met in annual session at the Administration Building, Wadley, Ala., 10 A. M., May 26, 1930. In the absence of Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, chairman of the board, Dr. F. P. Ensminger was elected chairman pro tem. Minutes of the last annual meeting were read, as was also the minutes of the executive board meeting during the interval. A telegram of remembrance was sent to Rev. H. W. Elder, Richland, Ga. Dr. Frank E. Jenkins was re-elected chairman of the board, and Dr. S. L. Beougher was elected vice-president. The morning session was opened with Scripture reading by Rev. Ensminger and prayer by Rev. G. D. Hunt.

Bro. J. W. Payne was released from further responsibility as a board member, at his own request, and Bro. V. L. Carter was elected to fill the vacancy. T. J. Holland and G. D. Hunt, whose terms of office expired with the present session, were re-elected to their respective places on the board—G. D. Hunt re-elected secretary, and V. L. Carter re-elected treasurer. Dr. S. L. Beougher, ex-officio, and J. J. Carter, J. T. Gibson, V. L. Carter, Dr. G. H. Denney, and G. D. Hunt were elected an executive board for the ensuing year.

The afternoon session was opened with prayer by Rev. J. D. Dollar. The president's report was called for, read and adopted by items. The board agreed to give a scholarship to the member of the freshman class for 1930-'31 who makes the highest standard as a student along all lines. Prof. Jennings was elected to canvass for students during the summer. Dr. S. L. Beougher was re-elected president of the institution for the next term.

A resolution was adopted expressing our appreciation to Piedmont College, Demarest, Ga., for their fine spirit of co-operation shown during the 1929-'30 term of our school. We also desire to express to Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, chairman of our board, our profound gratitude for the deep concern he has manifested for our college, and we pray God to richly bless his life and labors for many years to come.

A resolution expressing our thanks to the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast for their favorable attitude to this institution and for their vote in favor of the amount needed to finance Piedmont Junior College as presented by Dr. Jenkins.

A committee was appointed, consisting of Dr. S. L. Beougher, V. L. Carter and Dr. T. H. Denney, whose duty it shall be to put the campus in order and beautify the grounds. We are happy to say that we have the lumber in hand with which to finish ceiling the auditorium. We hope to have this work done at an early date.

The treasurer's report was read and referred to the auditing committee. Election of the faculty was referred to the executive board. An expression of thanks was given our faculty for their faithful work.

The budget for next year was referred to the executive board. We thus close probably the best year in the history of our institution, and pray that we may have a great year in 1931.

G. D. HUNT,
Secretary of Board.

MISSIONARY PROGRAM FOR JUNE.

WOMAN'S SOCIETY.

As you all know, the month of June is set aside for our babies, and the program in the Woman's Societies usually is centered around the cradle roll. How fitting that we, as the mother society, should give of our interest both in attendance and help to these little ones! It is thrilling to watch their eager faces and to see how willingly they try to serve their Master in their little way. The following suggestions for a missionary cradle roll rally, by Mrs. L. T. Proctor, Dayton Ohio, superintendent of cradle roll of the General Convention, may be of help to those planning such a rally at the next meeting:

This year a theme has been selected for the rally program and suggestions will be given for the carrying out of the program, rather than a detailed program as in former years. The theme is "Jesus the Good Shepherd and Friend of Children."

Use any material you may find that is related to the theme. Show pictures of shepherds and sheep and of the good Shepherd. Point out the crook and tell how the shepherd uses it to guide the sheep and reach after them when they fall into places he cannot reach to get them. Talk about how the wool in the children's clothes once grew on the sheep.

1 Sam. 17:34, 35 tells the story of David and the sheep. Let some one tell how a boy named David took care of his father's sheep; was good to them; had names for them; found places where the grass was green, and water cold and pure; killed the bear, the lion, and said the words, "The Lord is my Shepherd." Have the 23rd psalm given in unison or by one child.

Using Luke 2:8-16, tell the story of the shepherds and the angels.

Have some one tell the story of how Jesus saw the shepherds out on the hillsides taking care of the sheep when he was a little boy, and when he grew up he told a story about a shepherd who had many sheep, etc. Matthew 18:11-14.

For one of the songs on the program, use "Saviour, Like a Shepherd, Lead Us." It is found in the books, "Joy to the World," "Hymns of Praise," "Awakening Songs," and others. Use any other children's hymns you prefer.

The poem, "Little Lamb," by William Blake, may be used as a recitation or read well by some one.

Little Lamb.

Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee,
Gave thee life and made thee feed
By the stream and o'er the meadow,
Gave thee clothing of delight,
Softest clothing, woolly bright;
Gave thee such a tender voice,
Making all the vale rejoice?
Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?

Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
Little lamb, I'll tell thee:
He is called by thy name—
For He called Himself a Lamb;
He is meek and He is mild,
He became a little child.
I a child and thou a lamb,
We are called by His name.
Little lamb, God bless thee;
Little lamb, God bless thee!

Wm. Blake.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY.

Every-Day Contacts and Our World Friendship Ideals.

Purpose: To emphasize in our minds that our ideals and our deeds must be consistent if we are sincere.

Program.

1. Hymn, "O, Master Workman of the Race."
Story.
Prayer by leader.
Hymn, "Follow the Gleam."
2. Project committee report.
3. Leader's introduction of theme.
4. A diary.
5. The question.
6. Sentence prayers for courage to live out our ideals.
7. Hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour."
8. Benediction, while music of last hymn is still played softly.

Suggestions.

Poster: Draw a calendar of one month. Write underneath it "Every Day a Test Day." Date, hour, place of meeting.

1. Leader should present the theme in the abstract, basing remarks on chapter 10 of Y. & W. O., the section called "The Test."

2. Prepare assignments enough for every person present. Some may be clippings from this chapter or other reading that pertains to the subject. Some should ask for personal observations of contacts with other races or nationalities, are they Christian contacts or not? Give two or three people question 3 under this chapter to answer. Express idea that if our daily contacts were kept in a diary and a stranger read that diary, it would be from our deeds that he would form his opinion of our ideals. It is what we do that the world sees.

3. Give the two paragraphs entitled "Popular Members," from chapter 10, and put to the group the question as to which was sincere in his or her ideals, George or Anne. Why? Would you act the way Anne did?

4. Let one person read the words of each verse before it is sung.

Note: Very interesting supplementary material may be secured from "Blind Spots," by Henry Smith Leiper, with special reference to race relationships.

JUNIORS OR WILLING WORKERS.

Theme: "Our Church."

Song: "When Morning Gilds the Skies."

Call to worship. Let the people praise Thee, O God; let all the people praise Thee.

Response: O let the nations be glad and sing for joy; for Thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

Song: "Jesus Loves the Children Dear."

Offertory song: Same as April.

Continue use of stories in leaflet. Carry on work begun last month. Let the children suggest topics for prayer, or make the prayer themselves for the group about whom you talk.

Close with Bible salute.

Bible over eyes. Open Thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law.

Bible held over hearts. Thy word have I laid up in my heart, that I might not sin against Thee.

Bible pointing down. Thy word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path.

Sing chorus of "Take It Wherever You Go." (Write Mrs. F. E. Bullock, C. P. A. Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, for free copy.)

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson XI—June 15, 1930.

Jesus on the Cross.

Golden Text: "Looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and hath sat down at the right hand of the throne of God."—Heb. 12:2.

Lesson: Matt. 27:1-66.

The twenty-seventh chapter of Matthew is a grim chapter. It begins with the story of the pathetic but futile remorse of Judas when he came to a realization that he had betrayed innocent blood, and of his self-destruction by hanging. What a tragic end to a man who had had such an opportunity! To have spent three years, or the greater part thereof, with Jesus, and then to have come to such a tragic end—how terrible it all was! Whatever else it teaches, it teaches the truth that mere association with religious influences or with religious people is not enough. There must be a response to these things. Christ Himself could not save Judas, because Judas would not respond to Christ. Let every man take heed how he responds to the finer things of life.

And then there is the story of Pilate, another story full of tragedy. Here was a man who has gone down in history as one who symbolizes a tragic failure. There is ample evidence that Pilate knew better. His sense of Roman justice, his recognition of the innocence of Jesus, his wish to set Jesus free, his actions throughout the trial show that he knew what he ought to do. But Pilate loved his position; he wanted to please the people; he was more greedy than good; he lacked moral stamina and the courage of his convictions, and he delivered Jesus over to be crucified. And alas for Pilate! he tried to make himself believe that he could wash his hands of the whole matter. Judas, Pilate—they are names that have unwholesome associations. Both of them serve as warnings to us.

The central fact of this chapter is a still more grim thing—the crucifixion. Here, from one standpoint, is the world's grimmest and starkest tragedy. The holy and just and loving one dying on a cross—an offense to both the Jews and the Romans, and a symbol of shame and disgrace, to say nothing of being an instrument of indescribable suffering; Jesus crucified between two thieves, with soldiers mocking Him and throwing dice for His clothes even as He hung there; priests and religious leaders mocking and reviling Him, chiding and accusing Him; idle and curious passers-by railing upon Him and making sport of Him; an inscription above Him designed to add to His humiliation; and even those who were crucified with him casting slurs and blasphemy in His face. The cross of Christ was a grim, rugged, ghastly thing. The darkening of the sky as Jesus hung on it was symbolic of the whole thing. It was a dark hour in human history. The quaking of the earth was also symbolic—the foundations of life were being shaken to their depths.

Even to the end of the chapter there is a grim note. After Jesus had been taken down from the cross, the chief priests and Pharisees vented their spleen on Him by setting a watch at His tomb, so that nothing could be done to discredit them, and, as they thought, to put an end once and for all to any claims that might be made in His behalf later.

The chapter is not all dark, however. There were the women there, entering sympathetically into his suffering; there was Joseph of Arimathea taking the body and preparing it for burial; there was the testimony of the centurion.

But, after all, is not this chapter so dark because it appears against the Light that shone from the cross. Here was an expression of the length to which divine love would go to save others, even the worst. Here was an expression of divine forgiveness that was willing to forgive unto the uttermost. Here was an example of the power of vicarious suffering and sacrifice. Here was the assurance that right would eventually triumph. Here is the certainty that the hard things of life are to be seen against the fuller light of Easter and Pentecost. One of the most amazing things that has ever happened in human history is the fact that Jesus took the cross, which was the emblem of shame and disgrace, and made it the symbol of all that is finest and highest and best in life, both the human and the divine. Small wonder that Paul said, "God, forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." He was putting in prose what Isaac Watts was putting in poetry when he wrote as follows:

When I survey the wondrous cross,
On which the Prince of glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.

Forbid it, Lord, that I should boast,
Save in the death of Christ, my God;
All the vain things that charm me most,
I sacrifice them to His blood.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, June 15, 1930.

Topic: "How Great Leaders Served Their Generations."

Scripture: Acts 20:17-35.

Where cross the crowded ways of life,
Where sound the cries of race and clan,
Above the noise of selfish strife
We hear Thy voice, O Son of man.

In haunts of wretchedness and need,
On shadowed thresholds dark with fears,
From paths where hide the lure of greed,
We catch the vision of Thy tears.

From tender childhood's helplessness,
From woman's grief, man's burdened toil,
From famished souls, from sorrow's stress,
Thy heart has never known recoil.

The cup of water given for Thee
Still holds the freshness of Thy grace;
Yet long these multitudes to see
The sweet compassion of Thy face.

O Master, from the mountain-side,
Make haste to heal these hearts of pain;
Among these restless throngs abide,
O tread the city's streets again.

Till sons of men shall learn Thy love
And follow where Thy feet have trod;
Till glorious from Thy heaven above
Shall come the city of our God.

—Frank Mason North.

Topics for Talks.

1. A leader who served alone.
2. An unselfish leader.
3. A leader who was humble.
4. Leaders who failed.

Questions for Discussion.

1. What do we owe to the leaders of the past?
2. Why are leaders unknown in their generation?
3. Are there any leaders in our group?
4. What are we doing to prepare ourselves for leadership?
5. What has challenged you to prepare for leadership?

Further Helps.

One of the early leaders in Bible history is Joseph, a dreamer. Yet the dreams of Joseph made him a leader. He was a practical dreamer. God worked through him.

Moses, the leader and maker of a mighty nation, stands out in Bible history. He was humble and felt unworthy to be a leader. Yet God was able to use him because he let God's way come first.

There are scores and scores of other great leaders mentioned in the Bible. Think of the work of Abraham, the man of faith; of Joshua, the man of courage; of the prophets; of the great preachers of the New Testament, John and Paul. Of what does leadership consist? What does one have to be to be a leader? "A young man stood at the mere beginning of what the world calls a career, and saw it all collapse about him. He had lived thirty-three short years, during which time he had dreamed the most wonderful dreams of a kingdom of which he was to be king and which was to cover the whole earth. Now at the threshold of mature manhood, his dream faded away. He was about to be executed as a criminal by the very ones whom he came to make citizens of his kingdom. As he looked out upon what he had attempted to accomplish, he could not see two stones that he had built, standing one upon another. Even the little handful of people to whom he had told his dream and who said that they believed in him, had left him, and he was alone. The bloody sweat of a broken heart poured from his brow." Would you consider that man a leader? Why?

"Booker T. Washington used to say that a man's success in life should be measured by the distance he climbs from the point at which he started. Measured by this standard, few men were ever more successful than Booker T. Washington himself. He started life as a slave boy on a Virginia plantation, and ended it as the head of a great educational institution and the leader of his race in America.

Theodore Roosevelt said of him: "For twenty years before his death he had been the most useful, as well as the most distinguished, member of his race in the world, and one of the most useful, as well as one of the most distinguished, of American citizens of any race."

He was born just before the opening of the Civil War. He was one of the slaves who were liberated by President Lincoln's emancipation proclamation. He worked in a coal mine in West Virginia at the age of ten. A few years later he made his way on foot to Hampton Institute, where he worked his way through the entire course, and on graduation was placed on the teaching staff. Shortly thereafter he founded Tuskegee Institute, in the black belt of Alabama, and built it up from literally nothing to be the largest industrial school for negroes in the world and one of the largest and most successful institution of its kind in the world for any race. Fourteen years later (1895) he represented his race at the Cotton States and International Exposition in Atlanta, Ga., and there made a speech which raised him at once to the position of race leadership, which he held in an ever-increasing degree until his death in 1915.

NEWS NOTES.

The Christian Church, through its Christian Education Department, will sponsor ten summer schools this summer. Two of them will be in the South, one at Elon and the other at Piedmont Junior College. One of the schools will be in reach of every Christian Church.

During the past few years it has been the custom to have counselors or captains, who have charge of a group of students assigned to them for the week at summer school. The quotation given here from a personal letter concerning one of last year's summer schools reveals something of the spirit of summer school and what it does.

"One girl in my group had a rather arrogant attitude toward the institution and its ideals when she first arrived, and made the remark to me that 'indeed she was not going to pray . . .' I said nothing to her at the time, but realizing that she was homesick, I looked after her welfare as best I could without making it noticeable (throughout the week). She mentioned later on that she and the girl she came with were very lonesome and homesick at first, but she regretted losing time those first two days.

"She took an interest in things and classes after I started 'chumming' with her somewhat; and oh, I'm glad I did do as my conscience bade me, because I feel that I may have done a little good in this world after all, because when she told in the group meeting Friday evening, as the others did, what had done her the most good and what she had enjoyed most during her week at . . ., she said: 'When I came here I expected to have a dull and gloomy week to put through, and had no inclination to interest myself in the devotional and worship programs; but I have enjoyed and really benefited more by the "morning watch" and "evening watch," vespers and devotional services as a whole than anything else in the whole week.' I asked her Saturday morning if she were coming back next year, and she said, 'Absolutely; if there is any possible way to get here!' "

J. V. T.

FROM NEWS BULLETIN.

"The New Puritan Exodus" will be the theme of the keynote address by the Rev. Dr. William Horace Day, of Bridgeport, Conn., president of the Congregational Home Boards, at the opening session of their annual meeting Thursday morning, May 27, 1930, in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn. The address will be commemorative of the tercentenary of the founding of Boston by the Puritan migration of 1630, and introductory to three days' consideration of important problems in the religious life of America today.

The meeting will be attended by men and women as ministerial or lay delegates, missionary workers, or visitors from all States and territories of the United States. The oldest mission boards of any denomination are included in the Congregational Home Boards which were unified in 1925. They comprise seven corporations, among which are continued the American Education Society, founded 1816; the American Home Missionary Society, founded 1826, and the American Missionary Association, founded 1846. The invested funds and property devoted to their work amounts to more than $30,000. Additions of $768,753 were made to endowment and reserve funds last year, according to the report which the treasurer, William T. Boult, will make at the meeting next week. The work of the boards last year cost approximately $3,000,000; under their auspices are more than 2,500 missionary workers, while pensions and annuities were paid to 1,275 aged and disabled ministers and ministers' widows and orphans.

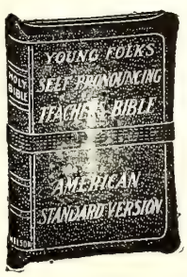
"The meeting next week," according to the Rev. Ernest M. Halliday, of New York, N. Y., general secretary for Church extension, in announcing the program, "will be the most important gathering this year in the interest of American Congregationalism. We are committed to the slogan, 'Believe in America.' The Congregational Churches, with more than three centuries of history in this country, find that the years have only strengthened their early Pilgrim faith in our great land. The fullness of this faith will be apparent as reports are made next week from Porto Rico to Alaska and from California to Maine."

"The New Paganism and the Coming Revival" will be discussed Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Luther A. Weigle, chairman of the Home Boards' administrative committee for education and dean of Yale Divinity School. Other subjects on the program Tuesday afternoon are negro education, college students and religion, Italian mission work, and mission work among the ranchers and miners of the Rocky Mountains. Wednesday morning there will be five simultaneous open-forum discussions on interdenominational co-operation, rural and city Church work, interracial relations and religious education.

A fellowship banquet for delegates and visitors will be held Tuesday evening on the roof garden of St. George Hotel, Brooklyn. Following the banquet, addresses will be given in Plymouth Church by the Rev. Dr. Frank G. Coffin, of Columbus, Ohio, president of the General Convention of the Christian Church, and the Rev. Dr. George A. Buttrick, of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, N. Y. The Congregational and Christian denominations are now in the process of merging, and the Rev. Dr. Coffin will speak on "The Challenge of the New Order."—News Bulletin.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.



These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

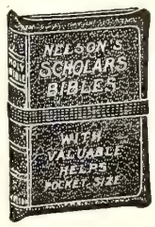
Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1¼ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

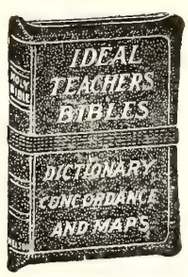
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad St., - - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

MONDAY.

CLOUDS WITHOUT WATER.

"Clouds without water, carried along by winds." —Jude 5:13.

I am writing in the midst of a long drought. Day after day and week after week, the earth beneath has been iron, the sky overhead brass. The gardens are all withered, the crops are drying up in the field, the city reservoirs and the country cisterns are at the danger point.

This has not been for lack of clouds. Often the sky has hopefully darkened. But, alas! they have been empty clouds, clouds without water, promise without fulfillment, like the fig-tree which Christ transformed into an object lesson.

So let me take warning for my life. What have men a right to expect of me? What is God, who made me, requiring of me? It is a time of drought, a time of dearth, a time of exceeding spiritual need. Clouds with water—men are longing for them, looking prayerfully upward for them. Shall I, who might do something at least to meet this need and fulfill this expectation, shall I disappoint my fellows and my God? Let me consider all this with bended heart.

Prayer.—Holy Spirit, Thou whose emblem is a rushing, mighty wind, carry my soul over the ocean of Thy love and power, fill it with the water of Thy grace, lifted by the sun of righteousness, and waft me to the uplands of power on which the fructifying rain may fall. Without Thee I am nothing; but with Thee, O Spirit, what can I not accomplish? Amen.

TUESDAY.

ENDURANCE FLIGHTS.

"Behold, we call them blessed that endured."—James 5:7-11.

Just now the development of the airplane seems to be in the direction of endurance flights. First it was a question of how long a plane could remain in the air on its original charge of gasoline, but now the art of refueling in the air has indefinitely lengthened the flights. Endurance is a necessary airship quality. It vastly increases the range of flights.

So is it also with the far-more wonderful airplane of the human body and soul. Not how fast I can go, but how long I can hold out, determines finally my success or failure. He is blessed that endures, as James says, because he has an ever-growing opportunity to please God and help his fellows.

Prayer.—Therefore, our Saviour, we pray Thee for perseverance. May our faith be steady. May our purpose be firm. May we not yield to the winds and the waves. May we press right onward, buoyant and brave, and win at last from Thee the crown of victory. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

PERMANENT WEEDING.

"Thoroughly amend your ways and your doings."—Jere. 7:1-7.

There are two ways to weed a gravel walk. One is by the use of a hoe, scraping the walk up and down, cutting off the weeds near the ground, and raking them up as well as one can. The result is that a lot of the weeds that were cut off take root again, and a lot of roots that were left in the ground send forth new shoots and flourish, so that the last state of that walk is worse than the first, and all the work must be done over again. The scraping was quickly done, and it made a fine showing, but the fine showing lasted only a few days.

The kind of weeding which is far preferable is weeding by hand. You must get a small box or get down on your knees, and you must pull those weeds out of the gravel one by one, getting every root.

Exactly so it pays to do a thorough job when one is pulling the weeds out of one's character. Scrape off the tops, and you will easily satisfy yourself, but you will really accomplish nothing. Go to the root of the evil, do thorough work, or your work will be in vain.

Prayer.—A clean life, O Christ! A life in which no root of wickedness remains. Though it is hard work, though the sun is hot, though the back aches, though the hands grow weary, a clean life, O Christ, and a thorough job. For Thy sake. Amen.

THURSDAY.

DYNAMITE GOLF.

"If ye live after the flesh, ye must die."—Rom. 8:1-13.

Three boys in Massachusetts found a dynamite cap and began to knock it about with golf clubs, organizing a game. Suddenly it exploded with a big report which terrified the neighborhood. All the boys were cut about their faces and heads, so that they had to be treated in a hospital, and it is a wonder that they came out of their folly with their eyes or their lives.

The ages of those boys ranged from five to nine, so they might have been supposed not to know better; but what is to be said of us adults who so often play golf with dynamite caps? That is what we are doing when we make a sport of any secret or open sin, of any vice or foolishness. There is dynamite in it. We may play with it for a while, but it is sure to explode before long, doing us irreparable injury. No one, after a game with dynamite, has the beauty and power and peace he had before. We should know better.

Prayer.—Our Father, we, Thy children, come to Thee for wisdom. Help us to put away childish things. Grant us Thy joy, which leaves no scars on the soul. For Christ's sake. Amen.

FRIDAY.

PUNISHMENT PRISONS.

"It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."—Heb. 10:26-31.

One of the recent terrible outbreaks among prisoners took place in the Dannemora prison, New York. Criminals call this institution "Siberia," because it is isolated, and the country around it is of such a nature that an escaped convict—and many try to escape—is almost certain to be caught. More than twenty years ago it was designated as a "punishment prison," a place of stern treatment, where the recreations which other prisons allow would not be granted.

The tender-hearted grieve over the existence of such a harsh institution, but it has many parallels in the government of our merciful Father in heaven. In His perfect wisdom, he has ordained many punishment prisons, and keeps men in them with a strictness and irrevocableness unknown, even in Dannemora. Often a man's sins bring on terrible physical ailments, which last for life.

But God knows best. He knows how many thousands are debarred from sin by the existence of His Dannemoras. He knows how many, still held in His Dannemoras, find even in those dark abodes the light of life.

Prayer.—Yes, dear Lord, Thou knowest best. And if we, or any one dear to us, is sent to a punishment prison, we know that Thou art the Warden, stern only to be kind. Yes, it is a fearful thing, but also it is a safe and blessed thing to fall into the hands of the living God. Amen.

SATURDAY.

HELPING GOD.

"I am with thee to save thee and to deliver thee, saith Jehovah."—Jere. 15:15-21.

One of the many martyrs in the cause of the widest beneficence was a British officer, Inspector Kendall, who lost an arm the other day in Uganda, the famous British province of Central Africa. He was attempting to enforce inoculation against a terrible disease, that it might no longer take its fearful toll of human life, and in the course of this merciful task, he approached a village belonging to a native sect of fanatics known as Amalekites. These fanatics, believing that God decides whether man shall live or die, bitterly oppose any attempt to save life; and, pretending a friendly reception, treacherously set upon Kendall, so wounding him that his left arm had to be amputated, and he almost lost his life.

The fatalism of those "Amalekites" is more widely spread than many of us realize. Many men have no practical belief in heavenly co-operation. Their God is an arbitrary tyrant, solitary, cruel, who issues irrevocable decrees, and requires men to be helplessly submissive. They worship Fate, and not God.

Prayer.—Our Father, we rejoice that Thou dost permit us to be workers together with Thee. We glory in our trust. We are proud that we are permitted to help Thee conquer disease and purify and build up the world. May we be more worthy of that trust, our Father. We ask it in the name of Thy Son, our Saviour. Amen.

SUNDAY.

INSPECTION.

"Be ye also ready; for in an hour that ye think not, the Son of man cometh."—Matt. 24:32-44.

The other morning the newspapers announced that the police will inspect every motor car on the highways of my State. They will look at the driver's license and the car's registration, and will see that the brakes are in good order, and that the horn, the lights, and other equipment are working properly. If the police pass the car, a sticker will be placed on the right lower corner of the windshield; if the car fails in the inspection, it must wear a sticker on the left-hand lower corner of the windshield, proclaiming its deficiency to all observers.

It would be well if our characters and lives might be examined in some such way. And we dare not forget the great day of inspection of souls. The Son of man is certainly coming to judge us all, and to assign us either to the golden streets or to the junk-heap of the universe. We are apt in these modern days to decry introspection. Is any painstaking examination of ourselves too troublesome, in view of these solemn and sure prospects?

Prayer.—O Thou who wilt be our Judge, aid us by Thy Holy Spirit in our own review of our lives. Clear our eyes to our faults. Make our consciences sensitive to our sins. Set us at last before the presence of Thy glory without blemish and in exceeding joy. Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

A WELL BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD.

"Jacob's well was there."—John 4:6.

There are many interesting thoughts centering around the ancient well mentioned in an incidental way by St. John in the 6th verse of the 4th chapter of the fourth gospel. It was at this well that the Master brought enlightened hope to the Samaritan woman. It was there that she learned to know Him as a Giver of living water. These blessings were afforded this woman of Samaria because an ancient Hebrew digged a well—not for himself, but for his son, Joseph. A well which to this day serves the weary traveler with refreshing water, and this well was an investment made four thousand years ago and which today continues in the accomplishment of its purpose.

So may a man project his works beyond his three-score and ten years. When Goodell completed his translation of the Bible into the Turkish language, he wrote: "Thus have I been permitted by the goodness of God to dig a well in this distant land at which millions may drink." Cecil Rhodes consecrated his vast fortune to educating young men at Oxford University, and thereby the great Englishman perpetuated a service to the youth of the world. He dug a well from which waters of knowledge would flow outward to men of every land and of every age. When Robert Raikes called his little children into his shoeshop and talked with them about the stories of the Bible, he never dreamed that he was digging a well which is today the world Sunday School movement.

In September, 1888, the Southern Christian Convention met in Graham, N. C., at old Providence Church, for the special purpose of establishing a college for the Christian Church in the South. A college which would be a well by the side of the road at which young men and women of the Church might receive a Christian education and thereby guarantee the homes and the Church efficient leadership. This faithful group of men realized that Christian education was necessary, and that a people could never rise without or above leadership. As long as the Christian Church has a memory, the names of these men will be hallowed for having digged a well at which place ministers could be trained, children taught in the principles of Christian character, and the Church we love strengthened. Like Jacob's well, Elon College was, first of all—

A Necessary Well.

In this section where Jacob's well was located there are long, dry and hot seasons. Water is a most precious possession in that desert land. It is essential toward the maintenance of life. With this thought in mind, Jacob digged a well. He knew it would be a necessity, not only then but in times to come. He would get little or less personal benefit from it. Just as Jacob's well was a necessity in those days, wells are essential today. Not only wells of water, but wells of knowledge, for knowledge is power, and a person without power is handicapped. As a well is essential to the supplying of good water, so the Christian college is necessary for the supplying of knowledge.

Elon was necessary for the best interest of a denomination then in its infancy. It has ever been one of the chief agencies of the Church for the promotion of the kingdom of God through educational processes.

"Education," said Dr. Frank Crane, "is the best efficiency in the world for efficiency; for no matter what a man's work is to be, he can do it better if he is trained." Mr. George Reynolds, one of the outstanding bankers of the West, said: "I did not go to college, but I recognize that the man who does has a tremendous advantage over the one who has to plod step by step along in the school of experience." Education, therefore, is fundamental to all social progress and reform.

The most advantageous institution for securing a good education is the denominational college. It is most often smaller than the State universities and offers exceptional opportunities in Christian training and service. Its student body and faculty come into close fellowship, and instruction is always more personal. The denominational college has been very effective in supplying Churches with ministers, missionaries and social workers. The Church, therefore, looks upon it as a necessity. When Elon opened her doors in 1890 there were but two ministers in the Southern Christian Convention who were college graduates—today there are 57 college graduates in its ministry, 51 of whom graduated from Elon. Elon has proved herself to be a necessary well within the Convention.

Jacob's well was located at the half-way point between Judea and Gililee. It was a most convenient place for the traveler to rest, to drink, and to make preparation for the remainder of his journey. It was accessible to all people.

In like manner, Elon, our educational well, is beside the road located near the center of the Southern Christian Convention. It is easily reached by automobile from any section of the several bordering States. It is conveniently located within a day's drive of the largest Church in the Convention. It is conveniently located near the Christian Orphanage, and but a few hours from Richmond, Va., the city wherein The Christian Sun is printed.

Dr. Russell H. Conrad use to say in his "Acres of Diamonds" of a man who felt that he did not have a chance near home. He longed to get away, he felt that he could make good in some other place; he, therefore, moved to a far country, and the man who moved on his home place found it covered with acres of diamonds. We may move to any part of the United States in search of a college embodying up-to-date equipment, instructors, and a high moral, but we will eventually find that Elon stands foremost in these things, and is conveniently located within reach of every youth of the Southern Christian Convention.

A Deep Well.

Medical science has shown that water from shallow wells is impure. Jacob's well was deep and its water pure. The Samaritan woman who went there to get water knew nothing of the findings of modern scientific discovery of the germ theory, but something must have told her to drink from the well that was deep.

I like to think of Elon as being a deep well, from which flows pure water. Modern tendencies are toward superficial things, shallow thought and surface water. Young people need as never before to drink from the well that is deep and to say with Cowper:

"Defend me, therefore, common sense, say I,
From the reveries so airy, from the toil
Of dropping buckets into empty wells,
And growing old in drawing nothing up."

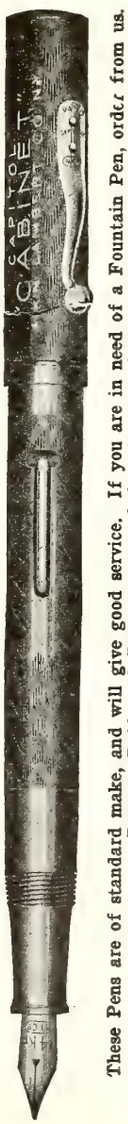
Elon's depths contain sound thought, cultural training, and "Christian Character First and Always."

The woman of Samaria went to Jacob's well to draw plain water, but she found living water, such as would keep her from thirsting. Young men and women who go to Elon in search of an academic education come away with more. They come to realize that whosoever drinketh of her waters shall find within himself a well of deep water springing up, urging him to be of service to all mankind.

It costs something to have colleges, but it costs infinitely more not to have them. Elon is our college. Men and women of the past have paid great prices for her. From her depths have gone more than 500 graduates and between four and five thousand trained men and women.

Not all of us can translate the Bible into the Turkish language as did Goodell, or establish Rhodes scholarships as did Cecil Rhodes. Not all can dig such a well as Jacob dug, or become pioneers in establishing such an institution as Elon, but all may have a share in her maintenance. Let us, as members of the Church we love, be found faithful to this institution, our educational well, so necessary to the welfare of Church and State, conveniently located and accessible to all, and so deeply established upon Christian truths.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN



These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The extreme dry weather has been broken by a most excellent rain, and we all feel much better. Our garden has taken on new life, and our Irish potatoes that were needing rain so badly are looking refreshed and full of life. It won't be long now till we will have new Irish potatoes, garden snaps, cabbage, lettuce and other good vegetables to eat from our own garden. Owing to the extreme dry weather, our strawberries were almost a failure this season. Last year, the seasons were good, and we had all the strawberries all the buildings could use, and we canned lots of them. We have missed them this year. The Lord is kind and merciful, and some provision is always made, that we may not suffer.

I well remember twelve years ago when a hailstorm passed across our farm the last of July and literally wiped our crop off the face of the earth and left us blank, so far as a crop was concerned, with fifty children to feed. After the storm had ceased, we walked over the farm and saw the destruction wrought by the hail, and when we returned to the Orphanage we will never forget how the little children gathered around me, blue and disheartened. I remember we said to the children that our crop had been destroyed and we had nothing left, but God would provide, and we would not suffer. It was a dark, blue day for us; but in a few days that dear good brother, J. M. Darden, of Suffolk, Va., heard of our misfortune and came to see us. He saw the loss we had sustained, and his big, sympathetic heart swelled in pity. He called us in the living-room and made us a beautiful talk, and I remember he said, with tears trickling down his cheeks, that we need not be discouraged; the Lord would provide. The Lord did provide. He used Bro. Darden to visit Churches in Eastern Virginia and made up a carload of food and shipped to us freight prepaid, and supplied every need.

Last fall, when our large feed barn was destroyed by fire and our pretty Holstein cattle were left out in the snow and ice all day long and all night long and the writer was confined in the hospital helpless, the loyalty and the devotion of the trustees in our distress was as beautiful as the story of Damon and Pythias. They came together. They laid plans to raise funds to rebuild. They visited Churches, and the Churches responded beautifully and the contract was given. The contractor was faithful, and worked when the weather was bitter cold, that our cattle might have a warm, comfortable shelter in which to stay. Friends sent us truck loads of hay and straw to help us feed our cattle, that the little children might have milk. Our good brother, H. A. Carlton, of Raleigh, N. C., leased at his own expense more than 150 acres of fine oat and hay land in South Carolina and planted oats to thresh and oats and vetch to make hay, and the Orphanage will in a few weeks get probably more than three thousand bushels of oats and several carloads of hay, that he, out of the love of his heart, has provided for us. Today we have a splendid new barn, modern in every way and one of which the Church may well feel proud.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JUNE 6, 1930.

Brought forward	$7,367.00
Sunday School Monthly Offerings.
N. C. & Va. Conference:
Salem Chapel	1.45
Eastern N. C. Conference:
Morrisville	$ 2.00
Henderson	3.40
	5.40
Western N. C. Conference:
Mt. Pleasant	$ 2.00
Ether	.76
Burlington	59.19
	61.95
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Holy Neck	10.00
Valley Va. Cent. Conference:
Mayland	$ 1.48
Linville	7.67
	9.15
Alabama Conference:
New Hope	1.03
Special Offerings.
Junior Y. P., Holland Church	$ 1.30
Mrs. Lambeth, for milk	5.00
W. A. Lee, support of children	7.50
	13.80
Grand total	$7,469.78

CHURCH DEDICATED.

The Flint Hill Congregational Church, located four miles from the very center of North Carolina, was dedicated on Sunday, May 4th. The auditorium was full of a splendid group of people, all rejoicing in their new Church home. Rev. Milo J. Sweet, new pastor-at-large for the Southeast, preached the sermon. Dr. Edward F. Green, president of Country Life Academy, offered the prayer. The former superintendent, Dr. F. P. Ensminger, read the Scripture, and the pastor of the Church, Rev. S. M. Penn, conducted the dedicatory service. Following the morning service, a fine picnic lunch was served in the beautiful grove.

At the afternoon service, under the leadership of Dr. Green, the last dollar of debt on the new building was raised in a few minutes. Dr. Green then delivered an address on "Education as the Church Sees It," following which there was an address by the long-time friend of this Church, Dr. Ensminger. Rev. S. M. Lanier, a local minister of the Friends, was present and participated in the service.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is-ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | to Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ---------- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

[a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [z] or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x-- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [2]Jĕ-hŏi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. No. 03255x-------- $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x -------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible -------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

WHY WONDER!

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). Jesus is talking to people. He is talking to a mixed congregation. He seems to understand that a person without the truth is yet in bondage. In John 14:6, Jesus tells us He is the truth. He is the source of truth. Being Christian is simply living a Christ-like life; but when one would do good, evil seems to be ever present. When the time had come for Jesus to begin His public ministry on earth, immediately the devil came on the scene and began to do all within his power to capture Jesus in the very beginning, that His mighty power might be used at the pleasure of the devil himself. But Satan suffered defeat. Jesus fought him with the weapon which he tried to use, and Satan was soon outwitted. This was the beginning of the long siege. When Jesus told Satan to get behind him, we have every reason to believe Satan got behind Him, and he has been behind Him and His followers since that day.

What wealth can give so much pleasure and happiness to a child of God as to know that he has been set free by an application of the blood which was shed on the cruel cross? If the Son has set one free, he is free indeed. But the forces of Satan are still on his track. Satan is going to and fro, up and down the land, seeking whom he may devour. Many times he is present and actually takes part in the Sabbath-morning worship. He is not always in the form of the hideous picture that we see which is supposed to portray the character of Satan with horns on his head, a pitchfork in his hand, moccasins on his feet, and a spike on his tail. However, one often feels his presence. He usually appears well dressed, many times as one having authority.

Are the people who profess the name of Christ and place their names on the register of some Church free? Can one be free who is bound? Form and ritual have entered, together with self-pride, or I might say spiritual pride, and are serving as stocks and bonds, spiritually. Higher education has entered with hands full of adhesive plaster, and have succeeded in placing it firmly over the mouth of the modern Church member. They are to be taken into the Church without making an open profession. The minister almost makes it for him. The modern minister becomes almost indignant if a person gets happy and begins to shout. Some say the shouting age has had its day and is gone. We can't believe that Jesus meant it that way. Neither did the psalmist when he tells us to make a joyful noise unto the Lord. It is not stylish any more for people to testify. That time, too, has past and gone. If one should attend the mid-week services, he will agree that it is true; but this is not what the Christ meant should be done. Education comes along and teaches "that only the most ignorant class of people give vent to their spiritual emotions in the form of testimony, shouting, etc. Their day, too, has past. The time has been when they were all right, but not in this new day."

So rigid has the plaster been stuck in place that there are no more amens from the amen corner in the modern Church, because there is no amen corner there, and very seldom does one hear an amen from any other part of the Church, unless it is to end a carefully worded prayer. The old-fashioned "amen" in the pews are such rare utterances that the young people actually snicker when a brother or sister overflows and comes out with a good old "amen." The modern way to find out if a person is a Christian is to ask him, for so closely does the modern Church member walk with the world that one might work along by his side a long time without learning about it otherwise. In this modern day, the Church member seems to be permitted to take part in almost anything that a person of the world would engage in, without hesitating. We find them together at the movies, bathing resorts, dance halls, gambling dens, bridge parties, taking their social drink of whiskey together. Many times they are the leaders in the Sunday School and Church. Those who are supposed to be teaching the truth to the young people. Many times the pastor is found along with the rest of the leaders. In speaking about these things once with a brother-minister, the writer took a stand against Church people participating in them, and especially did he emphasize the fact that he never intended, the Lord helping him, to accompany another religious organization on a picnic to a bathing resort. The answer came back, "I go along to look after the rest and see that they get into no mischief."

If God's people of today are to be God's people in truth, the same command is to them that was of old: "Come ye out from among them." "Be ye a separate people." And we wonder what is the trouble with the Church—why people are not more interested in missions, why people do not attend Church services, why the young people do not come into the Church, why other enterprises of the Church are not better supported. Much time is spent in wondering about these things, when the family altar has almost entirely disappeared from the home. The "amen corner" has been taken out of the modern Church, and there is no more need for a mourners' bench in a revival meeting. And we wonder!

GEO. A. PEARCE.

Oxford, N. C.

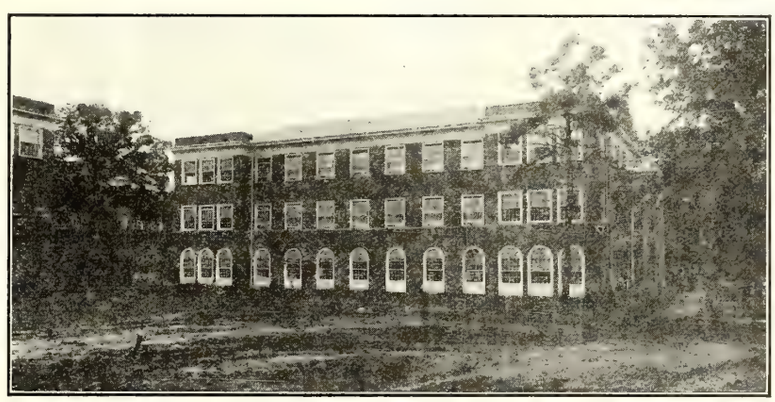
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $2.0
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

ELLINGTON.

Mrs. Eliza Rebecca Tunstall Ellington was born August 13, 1857, and died April 25, 1930, age 72 years, 8 months and 12 days. She was married to George W. Ellington in 1878, and to this union were born five children—James Thomas, Joseph, and three who died in infancy.

Spending most of her life in Vance and Warren County, N. C., she had a large circle of loved ones and friends. She joined Mt. Auburn Christian Church in her early young womanhood and lived a consistent, faithful life till her death.

She loved her home, her people, her community and Church. Those who are left to mourn are two sons, eleven grandchildren, two sisters, with many kindred and friends.

Burial services were conducted from Mt. Auburn Church, in the presence of a large congregation. The music was appropriate, and the beauty and fragrance of many flowers but spoke the silent message of her life.

In the absence of her pastor, Dr. W. C. Wicker, the writer conducted the service, assisted by Dr. Ellis, of the First Baptist Church, Henderson, N. C.; Rev. R. A. Hunter, of the M. P. Church, and Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, of the Liberty and Henderson Christian Churches. These brethren knew of her Christian life and came in sympathy to the family. She was placed by the side of her husband to await the resurection morn.

JAMES L. FOSTER.

GRISSOM.

Mrs. Margaret Fletcher Grissom was born in Durham County, N. C., May 10, 1857, and died May 2, 1930, age 72 years, 11 months, and 22 days. In 1873 she was married to Mr. A. T. Grissom, who preceded her to the grave a few years. To this union were born seven children, who survive.

In youth, Mrs. Grissom professed faith in Christ and placed her membership with Walnut Grove Christian Church. About thirty years ago she moved her membership to the Liberty (Vance) Christian Church, where she remained faithful until the end.

Mrs. Grissom leaves to mourn her departure seven children, thirty grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and other relatives and a host of friends.

Services were conducted at the home by the writer. Interment was made in Liberty Cemetery. May the Holy Comforter ever abide with the bereaved.

H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

DURABLE FLEXIBLE BINDINGS — THE BEST EDITIONS OF THE WORLD'S BEST BOOK — WILL NOT BREAK IN THE BACK

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heave

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond, - - - Virginia

Southern Convention of Congrega

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1930. NUMBER 24.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

Mrs N T Farmer

By Dr. W. C. Wicker.

CANADA'S CALL.—

Canada has a population of only nine million, and is capable of supporting a fifty-million population. She is sending out a call for settlers through the head of the British Settlement Society. That many people, he says, are already being fed in the United States and elsewhere throughout the world by Canadian farm products. The head of this society says that the first step towards this development should be to seek for 250,000 new British residents every year, in order that, as he puts it, Britishers may be kept numerically superior to non-Britishers. This policy adopted in the United States toward the admission of immigrants from the higher civilizations would cure many of our radical problems which arise from allowing too great numbers to enter our country from the lower strata of European countries.

WORLD'S POPULATION.—

New figures estimate the world's population at over two billion, divided among the continents as follows: Asia, 950 million; Europe, 550 million; North and South America, 230 million; Africa, 150 million; Australia, 7 million. Previous world figures published in 1927 estimated that the world held one billion nine hundred million people.

It would be interesting to have the figures showing what number of the world's population are nominal Christians, what number are real Christians, what number are yet unsaved, though they have heard the gospel, what number have never heard the gospel, what number each of the denominations are responsible for if they are ever brought to Christ, what number each saved person is responsible for in order that the whole population may be saved, and what is being done by Churches and individuals for the universal extension of the kingdom of God. It would make us reflect on the little done, the vast undone, and the meager support of our missionary offerings compared with the great task.

CHINA'S CRY FOR CHRISTIANITY.—

War, pestilence and famine have not decreased China's need for Christianity, and she is crying for more missionaries. Dr. C. Y. Chung, who is moderator of the Church of Christ in China (the recently organized united Church which has about one-third of all Chinese Protestants in its membership), declared at a recent conference in Canton that the Chinese Church today is in need of more missionaries, and the conference itself adopted the following resolution:

"That we, as a missionary conference, appeal to our home constituencies and to the youth of our home lands for the continued and increased co-operative support of the Christian movement in China. The call from China is for men and women of large vision and spiritual power. The problems that will confront them may be great, but the challenge is to the big, brave souls who wish to make a contribution to the greatest potential Christian adventure of today, and themselves to grow, by various experiences, into spiritual greatness."

If we can carry forward the missionary movement in China until enough of the native leaders in Church and State shall see the value of the Christian religion to civilization and society, we shall have less warfare, pestilence and famine and more friendship, fellowship and brotherly love between this sleeping giant and the other nations of the earth.

FEDERATION OF EUROPE.—

Aristide Briand, who has served many times as foreign minister and premier of France, proposes that the countries of Europe shall form a closer federation. In a note sent simultaneously to Europe's twenty-six independent nations, he advocates the establishment of a loose political federation under the sheltering wing of the League of Nations. This political federation, according to Briand's dream, will provide the long-sought-for European political security.

Briand's plan proposes that from this political federation there shall develop an economic union which will break down tariff barriers, join European industry across national boundaries, and enable continental business to join hands against the world. To facilitate these ends, Briand proposes a general conference board, representative of all the nations of Europe. This board will divide the continent into geographical regions and serve in a consultative capacity for the meeting of their common problems. It will operate, so far as possible, through the league, and be somewhat similar to the Pan-American Union. Its power will be moral and persuasive, and supplemental to the work of the league.

Briand's plan comes from the mind of a statesman who is both an idealist and a practical politician. He understands that economic barriers will not be broken down until political security is guaranteed, but he must realize also that the final success of such a program involves a long process of education which will make the citizens of twenty-six nations Europeans as well as nationalists.

That this plan is not directed against the United States is carefully explained in a memorandum sent by France to the American State Department. Despite this note, however, there is small doubt but that America's tariff laws and increasing American industrial supremacy comprise one reason for the advisability of closer European economic unity.

In union there is power which may prove a bane or blessing, according to how it is used. If the union formed operates and co-operates through love and good-fellowship and promotes amity within as well as with relation to other nations, it will prove to be a great boon to the happiness of people and nations by preventing warfare and pillage, plunder and rapine among the weaker and less-developed countries.

PENTECOSTAL ANNIVERSARY.—

The Christian world is celebrating the Pentecostal anniversary at this time. Nineteen hundred years ago, at the time of the Feast of Pentecost, the second of the great annual festivals on which all the males were required to appear before the Lord in the national sanctuary; the other two being the Feast of Passover and the Feast of Tabernacles—the disciples (one hundred and twenty) were waiting in prayer in the upper room at Jerusalem for the promise of the Father, that they might be endued with power from on high. When Pentecost was fully come, they were all of one accord in one place, and there was heard a mighty sound as of a rushing wind, and it filled all the house. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance.

Something happened to the disciples on that day which changed the attitude, spirit, and disposition of the disciples to bold, active, courageous advocates of the teachings of Christianity. The young Church took on new life, people were aroused to enthusiasm, they preached the new doctrine of Christ with great boldness and success.

This anniversary of that great event will pass without meaning, motive, or movement in the Church for better things unless Christian people do like the disciples did in the first century. They expected something to happen, they prayed for it to occur, and they tarried in this expectancy until it came. Unless the Church repeats the same spiritual preparation by prayer, preparation, and expectancy, nothing unusual will happen to the Church in this anniversary of Pentecost.

The Church needs a great awakening, a great revival, a real Pentecost in evangelistic soul-saving resulting from special preparation of the Church by the infilling of the Holy Spirit and enduement, with power from on high. While the exact date for the Pentecost is seven full weeks after Easter, or the Passover, being June 8th this year, the Church should tarry with prayer and meditation, expectancy and dedication until Pentecost comes and all are filled with the Holy Spirit and power and preparation for a great evangelistic campaign.

NOTES-PERSONALS

At the inauguration of Dr. Lingle as president of Davidson College, N. C., Tuesday, June 10th, President W. A. Harper bore the greeting of Elon College. Dr. Harper reports a great assembly present for the inaugural and an exceedingly inspiring and dignified program worthy of the institution and the occasion.

The value of the proper influence over boys is appraised by Horace Mann, noted as scholar and humanitarian, as well as statesman, who said in a speech in opening a reformatory, that if it saved one boy it would be worth all it cost. Being asked later if his estimate was not too high, he replied, "Not if it was my boy."

Dr. W. W. Staley was with the pastor, Dr. W. C. Wicker, at Pleasant Grove, Halifax County, Va., Sunday, June 1st. It was home-coming and memorial day, and Dr. Staley preached to an audience that filled the large auditorium. He and the pastor spent some days visiting friends and members in the community, and the occasion was made joyous and happy to pastor and people and also to the heart of their beloved and life-long friend, Dr. Staley.

President W. A. Harper has generously consented to conduct in THE CHRISTIAN SUN from time to time a department of religious books, promising to review for CHRISTIAN SUN readers, as opportunity affords, some of the many worthwhile religious books coming from the press. Dr. Harper is a voluminous and a discriminating reader, and his review of religious books for our readers promises to be a valuable and worthwhile contribution to our columns.

The following is acknowledged with appreciation: "Mrs. Minnie Farmer Cook announces the marriage of her daughter, Mary Melissa, to Mr. Ralph Barksdale Cureton, Tuesday, June 3, 1930, Greensboro, N. C." The marriage ceremony was solemnized in First Christian Church, Greensboro, Dr. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Va., an uncle of the bride, and Dr. C. H. Rowland, pastor, officiating. The young couple have our very best wishes. They will reside at 209 Butler Avenue, Greenville, S. C.

A "bill" was introduced before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in quadrennial session at Dallas, Texas, to grant women the right to preach. After a spirited but good-natured debate, the papers say, the women won by a margin of nearly thirty votes. However, the bishops promptly "vetoed" the measure. This meant that the general conference would have to send the matter to all the annual conferences, and when the question came of passing it to the annual conferences, the general conference failed to approve. So the women won and lost.

Bro. C. J. Crabtree, secretary Palm Street Sunday School, Greensboro, N. C., under date of June 2nd, writes: "The close of our series of meetings came last night, with over two hundred conversions during the three weeks' meeting. It was the greatest meeting I was ever in. We just had a real, old-time protracted meeting—a wonderful meeting, indeed." We rejoice with Pastor Neese and our Palm Street friends in the great spiritual awakening in their Church and community. Nothing rejoices the heart of a pastor and a Church like a genuine revival of religion. Over sixty members, we are advised, joined this Church, and many others joining other Churches.

Rev. W. S. Beard, of New York, at Rollins College commencement, said: "The only person who can be of any service to another is the man who has himself established his intellectual and religious citizenship. The parents of America have the right to expect that the colleges to which the finest fruitage of the home is entrusted during formative years should 'live, move and have its being' in an hypothesis that there is a God. The great unmet need of the modern world is not so much additional information, not more accessories for comfortable living, as it is conviction regarding the moral quality at the heart of the universe and determination to live in accordance with it."

Many of us believe in tithing our income. We are told that our Moravian friends and fellow-members take this literally and tithe not only their income but their numbers. From a recent exchange is the following interesting item: "Among the Moravians, it is the custom to send out as missionaries one in ten of its members, the other nine presumably being responsible for the support of the one sent. Unless this custom has been changed, the Moravian Church stands as a witness to the Christian world that it is possessed of the Spirit of the Master: for if this custom were to prevail generally, the evangelization of the heathen world would soon be attained and the kingdom of this world would soon become the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ."

The following correspondence of the Greensboro Daily News will be of personal and sympathetic interest to many CHRISTIAN SUN readers: "Mrs. Sue Garrison Walker, 79, wife of the late Joseph H. Walker and one of the best-known women of Burlington, died at the home of her son, Harrison H. Walker, Burlington, at 7 o'clock June 5th, after an illness of three weeks' duration. Mrs. Walker was a descendant of the Garrison family, among the early settlers of Orange County, a section of which is now Alamance County. She was a member of the Stoney Creek Presbyterian Church, which she had actively served for fifty years. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. A. Harper, wife of Dr. Harper, president of Elon College, and Mrs. M. L. Holton, of High Point; and three sons, Harrison H., of Burlington; Rev. J. M. Walker, of Charlotte, and Ross L. Walker, of the northern section of Alamance County. Funeral service will be conducted at Stoney Creek Presbyterian Church Saturday afternoon by her pastor, Rev. J. S. Jones, assisted by Rev. W. R. Potter, D. D., of Burlington, and Rev. A. W. Hurst, of Elon College. Interment will be made in the Church cemetery." Our sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Harper and the other members of the family in the departure of their devoted Christian mother. Mrs. Walker often visited Elon, in the home of her daughter here, and was known as a woman of rare and devout Christian virtues and activities.

FORWARD FOR CHRIST.

The true Christian is eager to help advance the kingdom of Christ. To be most successful, three very important things are necessary:

1. To be really born again, after deep repentance and true faith, leading to full consecration of soul and body, to Christ the great and only Saviour.

Such Christians love each other, of whatever Church or denomination, and they readily join heart and hand to help advance the work of the kingdom. They are drawn together in the spirit of Christian love in answer to Christ's wonderful prayer, that they all may be one—one in spirit and effort; not to build a large denominational Church, but their primary object is to gather many souls to salvation and the kingdom, in the name of the Christ.

This blessed spirit is now wonderfully shown in the merging of Congregational-Christians and the devoted members of the Church that for 130 years have been known as the Christian Church—all true Christians granted Christian fellowship. This lovable spirit was again shown in the recent 100th anniversary of the New Jersey Christian Conference, some members of the Congregational Church meeting with them in the spirit of Christ.

2. To advance rapidly the building up of the kingdom, members should realize that large gifts of their means must be gladly given to send forth many consecrated ministers to many parts of the earth and also to sustain well the different branches of the work at home.

Too few Christians have yet learned that "the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," and that God says, "The silver is mine and the gold is mine." The Lord entrusts Christians with material wealth. He wishes them as faithful stewards to rightly make gains, but it is plainly taught in His word that the tithe, the tenth part of gain, is the Lord's to be used to advance His kingdom. (See Mel. 3:8.) Yet in the majority of cases not quite one-third of the tithe of all is paid. The masses of the people are robbing God.

We could mention two or more Church denominations that are very faithful in paying the tithe, and they gladly give more when occasions demand it. God is wonderfully blessing them.

3. Purity of heart and life, by Christ's help, is absolutely essential for a sure home in His kingdom. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (Matt. 5:8). "There is a future, and we live for it in purity." "Be filled with the Spirit, and you will not desire to satisfy the cravings of the flesh."

It is found that, to be truly successful in teaching purity principles in the home, very early the little children should be impressed with the exceeding sacredness of this greatly important subject which surely will get the attention of all soon, or a little later in life.

A leaflet has been prepared that beautifully sets forth to the child the first principles of purity teaching. After much experience, very helpful purity booklets, based upon Bible teaching and hygienic facts (the booklets graded to fit different ages in the homes), have been carefully prepared to assist in continued, necessary teaching. The World-Wide Purity Legion, under the International Purity Association, incorporated 1911, publishes these much-needed purity helps for human uplift and salvation in Jesus' name. These helps are not published for money profit, but for the great good of many. The officers get no salaries. At the one hundredth anniversary of the New Jersey Christian Conference, held at Dover, Del., May 15-18, 1930, their purity evangelist, who is also superintendent of the World-Wide Purity Legion, made his report of work done during the last year. He also recommended that good people everywhere make gifts as God may direct them to publish widely the greatly needed purity teaching. This report was adopted by the conference.

Note well, then, three essentials: (1) New birth and full consecration (support missions); (2) faithful stewardship (plan to give freely; the call is loud); (3) genuine purity of life (guard even your thoughts by prayer). Heed now the cry, Forward for Christ and His kingdom! Be a true seeker for souls. God will not forget you.

Tenafly, N. J. ALBERT GODLEY.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

MIAMI (FIRST), FLA.: Rev. O. H. Denney is serving as summer pastor until the return of Dr. Robert McDonald in the fall. Mr. Denney was formerly pastor at New Port Richey.

KEY WEST, FLA.: The pastorate of Rev. E. Richard Evans has opened auspiciously and one of the indications is the program for extensive repair and redecoration of the Church. The money is being raised by the Church for this purpose.

JUPITER, FLA.: This Church has called to the pastorate Rev. Frederick Held, of Monroe Center, Ill., succeeding Rev. Walter Metcalf, who in turn succeeded Rev. Milo J. Sweet at Tampa. Mr. Held began his pastorate on June 8th, coming to this Church after a successful pastorate of five years in Illinois.

SANFORD, FLA.: On the cover page of the recent American missionary number of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty there was a large and interesting picture of the Christian Endeavor Society of this Church, gathered around the giant cypress near Longwood, Fla., a tree whose age is estimated at about 2800 years.

DR. NEIL McQUARRIE has been commissioned for specialized service in the Middle Georgia Association with residence in Columbus. He will visit pastorless Churches, making plans for the Middle Georgia Association meeting; and the next three months give special attention to the unification of the Congregational and Christian Churches in Columbus.

ALBEMARLE, N. C.: Mr. George Penn, just graduating from Piedmont College, went direct to Albemarle as pastor of our First Church there. This Church is noted for its young people. An exceedingly strong and large group of these greets the minister every Sunday. For four Sundays Mr. Sweet has carried on services, morning and evening, at this Church. There is wonderful spirit of loyalty. E. C. G.

SALISBURY, N. C.: The pastor-at-large has assisted Rev. W. T. Scott, pastor of the United Church at Salisbury, in making a thorough survey of the city, looking forward to a change of location of the Church building. The present site is surrounded by gas and oil stations on every side but one. The property is owned by the Church, and it is valuable as a business center, but quite undesirable for a Church. Two tentative locations have been chosen, and efforts are being made looking toward a purchase. Of course, the change will require time and cannot be made immediately, much as that is desired.

MISSIONARY TEAM: Dr. George N. Edwards, chairman of missionary promotion for the Conference of the Carolinas, is conducting an inspirational tour June 9th to 12th, and will visit the following Churches: Raleigh United, Monday, June 9th; Flint Hill and Sophia, June 10th; Salisbury, June 11th; closing with Albemarle First, June 12th. Dr. Edwards will have with him Rev. and Mrs. M. J. Sweet. Mrs. Sweet will speak on "Organization," and Mr. Sweet on "The Advance." Dr. Edwards will present "The Needs," and will probably use pictures of our missionary fields. There will be afternoon and evening sessions where both are practical.

SODDY, TENN.: Rev. and Mrs. A. L. DeJarnette have been rendering a unique and valuable service to their community, which had suffered severe economic reverses. The bank had burst, the great mine which had been operated for nearly one-half century was closed, the State highway, contrary to expectations, missed the town by a quarter of a mile. Efforts were made to meet the unemployment problem. The pastor tabulated the income of each family in the town and assigned employment on road building, which the county had authorized, according to the needs of the family. He became the active chairman of an industrial promotional committee, seeking new industries, the people responding sacrificially to such leadership.

COUNTRY LIFE ACADEMY: Dr. Edward F. Green, president, is visiting northern cities in the interest of the school for the next year. The academy owes its life to the efforts of Dr. Green and his wife, recently leader and teacher of music there, and their two daughters, one as teacher and general manager in the absence of Dr. Green, and the other as teacher and assistant treasurer. For the reason that the health of Mrs. Green prevents her doing further work and that one of the daughters is married and lives in Chicago and the other one is a student nurse in New York City, the work of preparing to care for the school next year is a very difficult one. It is taking considerable time of Mr. Sweet in helping in this emergency, and progress is very slow. It is hoped, however, that adjustments can be made in time for the opening day.

THE OLD MIDWAY CHURCH.

The Old Midway Church, near Dorchester, Ga., joined with the people of Massachusetts in the celebration of the landing of the Puritan colony at Dorchester, Mass., three hundred years ago this year. The old ship "Mary and John" brought a colony from Dorchester, England, to Dorchester, Mass., and sixty-five years later a colony left Dorchester, Mass., and settled at Dorchester, S. C., near Charleston. In 1752 this colony migrated to Midway and established a Church and colony there, one of the centers of which was also called Dorchester. This old independent Congregational Church at Midway has had an historic record. Here centered the struggle for liberty in the Georgia colony during the Revolution, and the Church and the community were nearly destroyed. Two out of the three Georgia signers of the Declaration of Independence came from this old Church, and in many other ways the old Church was a great force for righteousness and education.

The community had run down, and after the War Between the States ceased to function, and is now kept as an historic relic. Services are held occasionally.

The three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the first Dorchester colony was fittingly celebrated, the principle address being given by Justice James K. Hines, of the Supreme Court of Georgia. Rev. E. C. Gillette represented the Congregationalists at this celebration.

THE WEST TAMPA MISSION.

Rev. and Mrs. Carl H. Corwin report a very satisfactory year with the Latin-American Institute and Pilgrim-Latin Congregational Church. The institute is now in its twenty-fifth year, having been started by Dr. and Mrs. Fred P. Ensminger. For a number of years they conducted the work against great obstacles and bitter opposition. In more recent years the serious opposition has died out and the work is going forward well.

During the past year, twenty-two members were added to the Church, and on Easter Sunday seven more united. For ten days prior to Pentecost Sunday, daily prayer-meetings were held. Mr. Corwin holds street meetings, preaching to many in that way, and during last year made over sixteen hundred parish visits, always leaving some gospel leaflet or Bible portion at each home visited. There are seventy-nine members in the Church, and over one hundred in Sunday School.

The institution conducts a day school, with over one hundred pupils and with four consecrated Christian teachers, laboring for the love of the work and with small compensation. The institution is conducting at present a summer day school. Mrs. Corwin, who is the head of the school, is to attend summer school at Piedmont College this season.

The institution is in need of $2,000 for a building for a kindergarten and day nursery, and the Church is in great need of a new Church building. Dr. Ensminger continues his interest in the institution, and is a member of the board of trustees.

The need of this work is indicated by the fact that there are eight thousand Latin people in West Tampa and forty thousand in greater Tampa. The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, in the issue of June 5th, carried an illustrated article about this mission under the title, "Making Christians and Cigars."

BLUE RIDGE.

The annual Missionary Education Conference at Blue Ridge will open on the evening of June 28th and close on July 5th. The conference this year will be shorter in time than in previous years, but there will be just as high standards of work done as in previous years. With the reduction of time comes a reduction in expenses for board and room, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance at this interdenominational missionary conference. The director of the conference will be Prof. C. C. Haun, of the Vanderbilt School of Religion, Nashville, Tenn., with Rev. Walter Getty as chairman of the program committee and Mrs. M. E. Tilly, of Atlanta, as vice-chairman. The list of faculty and leaders includes twenty-two names. Among those familiar to our Congregational-Christian constituency are Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Miss M. Priscilla Chase, and Miss Marguerite Davison, extension workers in the Southeast; Prof. W. A. Harper, of Elon College; Prof. C. C. Haun, of the Vanderbilt School of Religion; Dr. Malcolm Dana, director of town and country department, Congregational Church Extension Boards; Dr. Geo. W. Hinman, of the American Missionary Association; Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, Chattanooga, and Rev. Ernest W. Higgs, secretary of the American Board of Commissions for Foreign Missions, Boston, Mass.

The Congregational group will miss the leadership of Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, who will be in England. Dr. E. C. Gillette will act as leader of the group, assisted by Dr. Rexford Raymond, Dr. Fred P. Ensminger, and Rev. Milo J. Sweet. Group meetings will be held each day following lunch for the discussion of Congregational programs and the promotion of fellowship.

The Blue Ridge Conference is held in the beautiful Robert E. Lee Hall, Blue Ridge, near Black Mountain, N. C. These desiring to register should write to Rev. W. K. Bloom, D. D., 528 Victor Building, Washington, D. C., or to Mr. J. J. King, Blue Ridge, N. C.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR
E. C. GILLETTE
117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL J. E. MCCAULEY
NEWS EDITOR
W. C. WICKER

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

PURCHASED FOR GOD.

Verses 9 and 10 of the fifth chapter of Revelation are exceedingly strong and significant in any translation of the Bible we have seen. They go straight to the heart of the matter of "redemption through the blood of the Lamb." However, Weymouth's translation is exceedingly striking and explicit in speaking of the Christ in this way:

"Thou hast been offered in sacrifice,
And hast purchased for God with Thine own blood,
Some out of every tribe and language and people and nation,
And hast formed them into a kingdom to be priests to our God,
And they reign over the earth."

Truly, some are bought with a price. It was a very great price. Yet God, in His infinite love and wisdom, saw fit to pay the price, to make the purchase and to redeem some unto Himself—even those who believe in His name, and accept Him as Lord and Saviour. When we consider the price He paid for our redemption, the most we can do is but little in comparison, to show our gratitude for His infinite sacrifice for us. All through the Bible we have record of the sinful and the unworthy being lifted out of their erring estate and put high upon a pinnacle of permanence and of power. Every element of environment is defied, and strong, mighty characters are constructed and developed even amid the most unwholesome and hurtful surroundings. God has the power to make the lily lift and open its spotless blossom from a stalk that rests in the muck and mire. As a writer pointed out recently, there is profound significance in Paul's reference to "the saints—that are of Caesar's household." The Caesar here referred to was one of the worst monarchs that ever disgraced a throne, and his court was notorious for its profligacy and debauchery; but even in such a place there were those who consistently served God. The only explanation of these serene saints in such surroundings is that Jesus had purchased them with His blood for God. "Ordinary men," says Carlyle, "is forever seeking in external circumstances, the help which can be found only in himself." This is another way of saying that which our Lord said to the woman of Samaria at the well. "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst; but there shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." Jesus made the purchase for God, and with His own blood. Having paid such a price for us, we should be willing, out of sheer gratitude, to deny ourselves for His sake, and, by this self-denial and taking up His cross, show to Him that, as He is our dearest and best Friend, so will we be at least His friend. He wants and needs friends just as we ourselves do, and that He might have those friends, He paid an infinite price. What are we willing to pay, not to purchase His friendship, but, through gratitude, prove to Him that we accept His friendship and are and will be His friends.

We often sing, and we do well to sing, "What a Friend I Have in Jesus." That which our Lord who purchased us with such an infinite price wants to know is, "What sort of a friend are we to Jesus?" J. O. A.

PREACHING TO PERSONS.

One striking feature of Christ's preaching was that it was personal. Some of His longest recorded sermons were preached in the presence of one person, and was directed to that person and the needs of that person. He did not preach "about" folks; He preached "to" folks. He did not preach "about the gospel"; He preached "the gospel." He did not preach about repentance; He preached repentance. The third and fourth chapters of John are striking illustrations of this outstanding truth. In these chapters occur some of the most striking utterances of our Lord, and they were made as He faced one person. Jesus was talking to Nicodemus when He said: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." He was there telling this man what must be done before he could see the kingdom of God. The Spirit power, and necessarily of the new birth, was preached and carried home to Nicodemus by our Lord. And then the text which is used more than any other in the Bible (John 3:16), was employed in preaching to the same man. In chapter 4 we have again one of the great sermons of our Lord. It was delivered to just one person—a woman. How often do we speak of worshiping God "in spirit and in truth." This is quoting from our Lord's words to the woman of Samaria: "The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth."

And it was to this woman, this audience of one, that our Lord announced His Messiahship.

These facts are called to mind from a declaration in Dr. Chas. E. Jefferson's book, "The Building of the Church," in which this eminent divine says, and, we think, truly: "Preaching in many pulpits has grown increasingly impersonal. Sermons have become more and more discussions of social questions. To urge upon the individual in the congregation an immediate surrender to Christ as Lord seems to certain preachers somewhat irrelevant, to others quite ill-mannered." It is pointed out that much of the preaching of our day is "about the gospel" rather than "the gospel itself"; "about sinners" instead of "to sinners"; and, as one declares, much of our present-day pulpit utterance studiously avoids being personal "in the sense of making the impression on any one present that he is the man."

Just as the most earnest and eloquent pleading of a lawyer at the bar is for "a verdict," so was the character of the preaching of our Lord, and so has been the character of the most fertile and fruitful preaching of the ages. It may be delightful to dwell on "social themes" and easy to discuss "social problems," very easy to discuss psychology, physics, biology, botany. Such discussions may be well in its place, but its place is not in the pulpit, save as it gives point and power to personal approach and personal appeal. Our Saviour's method of winning men and women to Him, one by one, through personal approach, contact and application has never been improved upon and likely never will be. This is the method employed by all great evangelists—Chas. G. Finney, Moody, and the rest. "For the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." The power of the preacher is that of the attorney only as he gets a "verdict," and brings "conviction" to the individual mind and heart. J. O. A.

THE REALIZATION OF LIFE.

The Church of today seems to be lacking in an adequate evangelistic motive. The motive which was so impelling a generation or two ago has lost much of its power. The motive that was so impelling in former days was the salvation of the soul. Preachers talked much of the torments of hell. They pictured with fiery vividness the tortues of the soul writhing throughout eternity in the pit where the fire never dies. It becomes a sort of maddening motive to escape this awful fate, and to save all one's friends and acquaintances from perdition.

This was a very worthy motive. It deserved a far better fate than that which has befallen it. It ought still to be a driving motive in the Christian life of today. It has suffered from over-emphasis; or rather it has suffered because salvation came to be thought of as a sort of mystical process which was entirely separated from life. Christian thinkers fell into error by trying to draw the lines between the saved and the unsaved too hard and fast. It led the preacher into usurping the prerogative of the Almighty.

Christ never separated, in His thinking, the saving of the soul from the saving of the life. The process of salvation as taught by Jesus is mysterious, but it is not magical. It changes the entire current of life, lifting life to a higher plane. It sets eternity in the heart of man, and man becomes immortal because the Spirit transforms his life and makes him a new creature in Christ Jesus.

Not only do the New Testament writers teach that salvation has to do with the saving of both life and soul; but they make the changed life a test whereby men may know that they have experienced the work of grace. They expected, in the Christian life, the fulfillment of Christ's promise: "I came that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Not only does the transformed life carry the evidence of the work of salvation wrought in the heart; it is the source of the strength of the evangelistic appeal. Men have no faith in a salvation which does not work a marvelous change in the life of him who professes it. Nor is it a question of the man in the street being interested merely in the question of temporal well-being. The inherent common sense of the average man tells him, and the Scriptures bear evidence to the truth of the conviction, that if salvation is great enough to prepare men for heaven it ought to be great enough to work a change in their lives here and now.

The tragedy of modern Christianity is that so many who profess it are not living the abundant and the abounding life. That which so many Christians are missing is the very thing for which the man who knows not Christ is so earnestly seeking. The tragedy of modern life, especially as it is lived in America, lies in the fact that modern man has about everything that is necessary for happiness, save the one absolutely indispensable element, which is offered in Jesus Christ.

We need to realize the truth which Stanley Jones so trenchantly expressed. Somebody asked Mr. Jones if the people of India were not getting along pretty well without Christ. Mr. Jones replied that he did not know any one in India or any other place that was getting along pretty well without Jesus. That is the one truth that ought to be the impelling motive back of all our evangelistic programs. Christians must needs show the world that they are enjoying a fullness of life about which the non-Christians know nothing. And then in the spirit of love invite others to share in the blessings which Jesus brings into the heart and life. S. C. H.

THE CHURCH AND THE COLLEGE.

The first colleges were Christian, and as a noted educator recently said, designed to "train young men to live in the next life or to preach in this one."

Denominational colleges are important also because of the young people to whom they give the advantage of higher education. Despite the fact that so many State institutions are powerful in resources, it is yet true that more than 60 per cent of those who receive the advantage of higher education are cared for in denominational colleges.

The denominational colleges are in no danger of being submerged or discarded. They give a type of education that is different, not in the informational courses which they offer, but in the attitudes which they inculcate. And so long as religion is the most vital interest of the human heart, so long will denominational colleges that have set themselves to the task of motivating young life religiously have place in the educational program of the world.

The Church supplies financial resources, student personnel, and the prestige of her endowment for her college, and has the right to expect a commensurate return.

In two particulars, denominational colleges are under obligation to serve the people:

(1) In the first place, denominational colleges are under obligation to lead young people to be religious, to live religious lives, to interpret life in terms of Christian ideals, aspirations and programs of living.

(2) In the second place, these colleges are under obligation to equip young people to become teachers of religion to others. That is why there is so great emphasis in this day upon courses in Bible and religious education. W. A. H.

"Young people are apt to overrate both men and things from not being enough acquainted with them."

Endeavor as much as you can to keep company with people above you. Most people are about as happy as they make up their minds to be.

CHURCH SUPPORT.

Two families—that of my own and another, formerly of Ohio, but now of Baltimore—have long been close friends. Through occasional visits, their friends have become our friends, and vice versa. One personal friend of this Baltimore family is a Danish sea captain who plies the charted seas with precious cargoes of freight of all sorts from America to divers foreign ports. None of our family had ever met the Danish sea captain, yet, through our Baltimore friends, an interesting friendship had arisen. Various personal exchanges of courtesies had become frequent, and recently it was our privilege to entertain this stranger in our Elon home.

To hear this sea-faring man tell of his ocean experiences, of the storm-tossed sea, of wrecks and sinking ships, of being submarined during the World War, of the strange people and their customs in the various ports visited, was most fascinating indeed.

The point of most particular interest to me in hi sracy sea stories was that of his own country and how the Church was supported there. He recounted how that in Denmark the Lutheran Church was the State Church, and that the State provided the means of support for the Church just as it supported other State institutions. An income tax is levied upon each person of about one-tenth of his income, which is paid to the government and constitutes the individual's entire support for Church, State and all other purposes.

He said, "Why should not everybody support the Church? There are several times in one's life when he needs and does use the Church or its offices: for confirmation, marriage, funerals, etc." But coming to the exact point which was of particular interest to me, he told how the government faced the problem of rural Church support, where from the amount of income paid into the government by a rural Church constituency, the amount refunded for Church purposes was not sufficient to make the Church self-supporting. This deficit was met by providing a suitable and sizable farm for each such Church, or group of Churches, to be supervised by the pastor, who gives his whole time to the care of the Church and farm supervision. The farm income supplements the government allowance and provides an adequate income for the pastor, and the rural Church is not regarded as an object of charity or a mission point.

The dream that has since come into my mind is concerning the feasibility o fthis plan among our own rural Churches. The rural Church problem is not yet solved, and despite all that has been said and written upon the subject, the solution for this problem has not been reached for the rural Church beyond the written or printed page. It is true that some of the rural Churches have improved their buildings and equipment and have the services of a pastor for half or possibly full time. These are usually strategic points where there is adequate wealth and leadership, potential, if not already developed. But what about the vastly larger number of rural Churches which do not possess the financial and leadership ability to come up to a self-supporting basis?

The ancient and archaic system of Churches being served by preachers coming from afar, passing a half-dozen other Churches of the same faith on the way, thus necessitating a ridiculously unwarranted amount of travel expense, is a system that should speedily yield to a better plan. What is the service rendered? A sermon, a meal and perhaps a night spent in one of the select homes and an adieu until the next first or fourth Sunday.

There are clergymen yet, and not a few, who still think in these archaic terms, that such service is good enough, and desire no better for themselves or the Churches. Were it not that the Master Himself said, "Upon this rock I will build my Church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," one would be at a loss to explain how the rural Church has been able to exist down to the present day.

A number of Conferences have attempted to group their Churches into pastorates; but the indifference or the actual opposition to this procedure has prevented any marked progress. It is a step in the right direction, but the plan must not stop with mere grouping of the Churches. That is not sufficient to furnish a strong appeal to either the preachers or the Churches.

If a careful and scientific survey were made and the Churches properly grouped, the first important step has been taken. The North Carolina and Virginia Conference, at its last session, adopted a plan of grouping its rural Churches as a future working basis. How far in the future it will be, there is no way of knowing. It is also true that scarcely one of these groups is at present able to support a pastor who is qualified to go upon the field and devote his full time to the work. Here is a wonderful opportunity for some home mission work that will tell for the future. Foreign missions cannot hope to succeed, or even hold its own, under a procedure that is constantly impairing the home base. The home fires must not only be kept burning, but burning brighter and brighter, so that their light may reach out into the world of darkness and despair.

If these groups of Churches that are not able to support a pastor by their own gifts had a suitable and productive farm to be supervised by the pastor and Churches and supplementing the income, the financial problem would practically be solved. This farm should be purchased by the Churches, if possible, or with the aid of the Home Mission Boards, and the deed properly made, so as to secure the future ownership of the farm.

This, of course, could not be done for all such Churches or groups of Churches at one time, but only as rapidly as such Churches are ready to respond and the mission funds are available. If a single rural Church with such a farm can be made self-supporting, so much the better. By all means, keep the group as small as possible so that effective pastoral work can be done. In cases where the consolidation of Churches in a community can be effected, this should be carefully considered.

It is not my thought to make a farmer out of the preacher. The supervision of the farm and the marketing of crops could be managed by the pastor and a committee from the Churches or some similar plan, leaving the pastor to devote his time generally to pastoral and pulpit work. The vital factor about the plan is that the pastor is no the field and in the midst of his people to minister to their needs.

This dream appears to have a practical side to it. It is in successful operation under a State-supported Church in Denmark, and since holding converse with a number of brethren on the subject I have heard of several local instances when the plan is being successfully carried out.

The great concern is, when will all this theorizing about the future of the rural Church begin to become practical? When will some plan that is feasible and possible be presented to the rural Church and then a helping-hand and a guiding spirit be extended to aid in putting this plan into operation before the rural Church situation gets beyond hope?

True, this may be only a dream, but if the thought will provoke some Church or group of Churches to try it out or devise a better plan by way of coming to a self-supporting basis, the effort is worth while.

Elon College, N. C. W. M. Jay.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Sunday, June 1, 1930, was Memorial Day at Pleasant Grove, Halifax County, Va. Rev. W. C. Wicker, D. D., is the pastor. This Church is about one hundred and twenty-five years old. It is historic in membership, pastors, and loyalty to the Christian Church. It is located in a good agricultural section and has maintained a good reputation for successful farming. The Church is located between News Ferry, on the Dan River, and the mountain hard-surface highway between Halifax and Danville. The products are chiefly grain and tobacco. The population is notably religious, and Pleasant Grove Christian Church is not a misnomer.

There was preaching on Saturday afternoon, and Sunday School and preaching on Sunday. The day was ideal and four hundred people filled the Church and entered religiously into the memorial service. It was a pleasure to be with the congregation in that historic Church and to enter with them in the celebration of their memorial service. After the service closed in the Church, where the flowers had been banked around the pulpit and on the platform, Mr. George C. Talbert, superintendent of the Sunday School, and ladies delivered the flowers to a large group of boys and girls who, with the flowers, led the procession from the Church to the cemetery. While the flowers were being distributed, the congregation stood in quiet meditation. The songs were all appropriate. The cemetery had been put in good shape, the silent tombstones spoke of other days and lives held in precious memory. A prayer was offered in the cemetery and then the flowers were laid upon the graves of the departed. The green grass, the white marble, the beautiful flowers and the thoughtful faces made a scene lovely in its Christian beauty. The grave is the dearest spot on earth because it is the window through which we see by faith reunion in heaven.

Pleasant Grove has had twenty-three pastors in its history of more than a hundred years—twelve of them have passed over the river and eleven of them remain. They are as follows: Wm. Moore, Lewis Craven, Jarrell Cook, Thomas Jeter, R. G. Tinnen, Solomon Apple, Alfred Apple, John N. Manning, J. W. Wellons, William T. Walker, W. S. Long, Sanders Klapp. The surviving pastors are W. C. Wicker, J. W. Patton, J. O. Atkinson, J. G. Truitt, W. C. Hook, Rev. Terrell, F. T. Wright, and Victor Lightbourne. Not only were the dead remembered, but the living pastors are held in loving memory by the congregation.

The following gives some of the family names of historic, financial and spiritual value in the Church and the community: Farmers, Boyds, Russells, Mills, Jones, Thompsons, Crews, Covingtons, Carltons, Raglands, Elliotts, Pierces, Moores, Franklins, Mebanes, Hedgepeths, Dunns, Vaughns, Croxtons.

The above lists may not give all the pastors and in order, nor all the families that should be included, but they represent both the best I could get without real records.

I had dedicated that Church and conducted revival meetings there years ago, and it was a real pleasure to be with Dr. Wicker and the people.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Since the state of the college is reported to you by the business manager, the dean, the dean of women, the registrar, the librarian, the graduate manager, and the several departments, it is not necessary that my report should be lengthy or cover many items.

The Million-Dollar Campaign.

The whole future of the college is conditioned on the outcome of the proposed million-dollar campaign. Last year you elected the following committee to have general oversight of the campaign: L. E. Smith, ex officio; P. J. Carlton, J. O. Atkinson, Chas. D. Johnston, E. E. Holland, and J. E. West. You empowered this committee to add to its membership as it might deem advisable, and so far J. H. Harden and F. F. Myrick have been added. Dr. L. E. Smith has been chosen as chairman of the committee. A meeting has been called for July 15th, and from this meeting, no doubt, additional information as to plans and procedures will be later reported to you.

The General Education Board has been very patient with us in allowing us to postpone the decision as to details of the campaign to them. Shortly your special committee will put matters in shape to submit to the General Education Board for approval.

The Congregational-Christian Merger.

The merger of the Congregational and Christian Churches bids fair to be perfected in orderly fashion. The leaders in the Congregational Church have personally and officially expressed the deep interest in Elon and in the million-dollar campaign. Whatever is done to aid the college, however, will be on an individual basis, though with official sanction.

At the recent meeting of the two Churches in Raleigh, the Congregationalists nominated five persons to serve on the campaign committee if it should be desired, and twelve persons as candidates for the trusteeship. The twelve nominees as trustees were approved by the Southern Christian Convention. It seems that the Congregationalists are willing and anxious to co-operate with Elon.

Insurance of the President's Life.

There is carried on the president's life insurance in the total amount of $200,000. One of these policies for $50,000 is a term policy. Mr. P. J. Carlton is anxious that we carry the full line and convert the term policy to ordinary life, which can now be done without examination.

He proposes as follows:

That the college pay	$ 662.00
That friends pay	312.00
That he pay	2,600.00

That the remainder necessary to carry the policies be borrowed on the policies. The Virginia Trust Company, which holds the policies as collateral, has agreed to this arrangement, and I recommend its approval.

This recommendation comes as the result of a conference held with Mr. Carlton and Mr. J. F. West, Jr., in Richmond, the latter part of April, just before Mr. Carlton sailed for Europe.

Carnegie Corporation.

Following the visit of Dr. Robert L. Kelly, the Carnegie Corporation of New York City voted us $10,000 for library books, to be paid over a period of five years.

I am still pressing our appeal to this organization for a grant of $100,000 for the library as a part of the million-dollar campaign.

Our secretary should express our official appreciation for their grant and respectfully urge the larger appropriation.

Financial Campaign.

You will see from the business manager's report that our financial campaign has been a success, despite the hard times. I should like to add the following human facts to the statistics given in the business manager's report:

Southern Christian Convention Fund.

	No. of Contributors.	Amount.
Through Convention Treasurer...	.....	$ 4,317.42
Through Sunday Schools.....	.....	1,739.81
Through individuals	1,067	30,692.77
Alumni 1930 fund	434	4,483.75
Alamance interest fund.....	161	2,421.22
General donations	112	26,976.95
Grand total	1,774	$70,631.92

So many of the alumni this year gave through other funds that the total given by them appears much less than the actual facts warrant. They have surpassed the $10,000 goal set for them.

It is gratifying to note that every Church in the five Conferences in North Carolina and Virginia is represented in the list of contributors through gifts from its members except twenty-seven.

It is also gratifying that your suggestion that pastors and local leaders take the leadership in raising the funds for the college has met with hearty response.

The fine way in which the citizens of Alamance County have rallied to the support of the college is a major cause for satisfaction. When the pledges in hand are paid, the $3,000 they undertook to raise for the interest obligation this year will be slightly overpaid.

Death of Trustee Watson and Mrs. Watson.

On March 4th, Dr. G. S. Watson, member of the committee on location and of the board of trustees from the chartering of the college, died. On May 9th, Mrs. Mary Virginia Watson, his wife, died. You will wish to appoint a committee on memoirs to express your appreciation of their services to the college.

W. A. Harper, Pres.

FROM REV. G. D. HUNT.

Permit me to ask the pastors of the Alabama and Georgia and Alabama Christian Conferences to give special attention in your various Churches to our Summer School of Christian Education, to be held at Wadley, Ala., beginning June 11th. We want every Church and Sunday School to have representatives in the school, and we solicit every Church to contribute such items of food and vegetables as will be convenient for them to give; and if the pastors will look after this matter, the Churches will be glad to contribute. Our people are liberal and loyal, and will take care of the situation if you will insist upon and encourage the work. We want to have a good school, and we can and we will if every one will do their part.

G. D. Hunt.

ELON NOTES.

The fortieth annual session of Elon College, which closed recently, was made noteworthy by the election of a woman to the trusteeship of the corporation. Mrs. R. J. Kernodle, class of 1906, was elected as the first woman member of the board of trustees. She was also made a member of the administrative committee of the board of trustees, which recommends faculty members and meets several times during each academic year.

Dr. George B. Swann, M. A., Ph.D., was elected head of the English department, to succeed Dr. W. M. Jay, resigned. Dr. Swann received his master's degree from the University of Virginia, and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania. For several years he has been professor of English language and literature at Baker University.

Dr. L. G. Bryngelsson, M. B. A., of Northwestern University, becomes head of the department of business administration. After graduating. from Hamilton College, he entered upon a business career, and then decided to prepare himself for teaching in business administration. His practical experience and his previous preparation give him a unique equipment for the headship of such a department. For the past three years he has been an instructor in Northwestern University.

Miss Liccie M. Fayne, M. A., of Peabody Teachers' College, becomes head of the department of domestic science and household arts. For the past several years she has been engaged in teaching in this department and comes to Elon College from a similar position in Chowan College.

Miss Hilton Jones, B. O., M. A., becomes head of the department of physical education for women and expression. She received the B. O. degree from King's School of Oratory, at Pittsburgh, and her M. A. from the University of Virginia.

Mr. Alton T. West, who has served as assistant business manager since November, 1929, upon the resignation of Dr. T. C. Amick, who is to give himself entirely to teaching and research, becomes business manager.

Miss Louise Savage, who for seven years has served as head librarian and dean of women, has accepted a position as chief of accessions of the library of the University of Virginia. Miss Savage came to Elon just after the fire in 1923, when there was no library. During seven years she has built it up until the library now has more than 17,000 volumes, in addition to magazines and government documents.

Several members of the faculty will be engaged this summer in graduate study in various universities. Prof. T. E. White will study at the University of North Carolina; Prof. VanCleave at the University of Indiana; Rev. A. W. Hurst and Prof. S. A. Bennett at the University of Chicago; Prof. J. W. Barney and Miss Hilton Jones at the University of Virginia.

Beginning this summer, the department of biology, under the direction of Dr. T. E. Powell, Jr., will offer a field course for young men. This course will carry six semester hours' credit toward graduation at Elon or any other college. It will be an intensive course over five weeks. This is the first time that Elon has offered this extension work during the summer, but there has been a general demand for it, and Dr. Powell has arranged for the course.

The trustees were greatly pleased that the college closed its session without a financial deficit. In order to do this, however, President Harper had to raise for the current expenses more than $70,000, the largest sum of money Elon has ever secured in any other year from her friends for this purpose. Friends in Alamance County particularly rallied in a whole-hearted way to the support of the campaign. C. M. CANNON.

A MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

(Delivered at Apple's Chapel by Col. F. Eugene Hester, Reidsville, N. C., on Memorial Day, May 25, 1930.)

I never had the privilege of addressing people on a Memorial Day in a cemetery before, and as I was standing here waiting for the children to place the flowers upon the graves I was thinking of two other occasions when an address was delivered in the city of the dead. One was by John Wessley, the founder of the Church to which I belong, when he stood upon the grave of his father when the Church to which he belonged refused him the privilege of preaching in the building.

The other was by one who most people call an infidel; but we have to admit that he was one of the greatest orators of all times—Bob Ingersol. When he delivered the memorable address at the grave of his brother, he said, "Love was the first to dream of immortality," and that "life is a narrow valley between the peaks of two eternities."

We would rather follow the life of the first of these two noted men. We know that those who sleep here are not dead. We shall see our loved ones again. A few years ago a man went to Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. This man had recently lost his only daughter. He said, "Doctor, I need consolation. I do not care for the usual quotations that are given people in my condition about the Lord gave and the Lord taketh away, but if you can give me real consolation I want it." Dr. Fosdick reasoned with him about God and the soul and immortality, and the man went away feeling better for the consolation that Dr. Fosdick had given him.

I come to you today not so much to help you honor your dead, for we are not ancestor worshipers; but rather to reason with you and to console you and to make fresh in our minds the great lives and good deeds of those who sleep here. They shall rise again. Christ arose from the dead and ascended into heaven in the presence of many witnesses, and St. Paul said, "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."

We long for immortality, and we seek it in nature. We ask Isaac Newton, who was possibly the greatest physicist: "Do you find immortality in nature?" The only answer we get is that all those pass away. We ask William Herschel, the great astronomer: "Do you find the home of the soul in all of the stars you have surveyed?" The only answer we get is that change is written there, and that sufficient time will make the heavens blank. We shout to old Socrates across the centuries, the greatest of all the philosophers of the ages: "If a man die, shall he live again?" And we strain our ears to get his reply, and all we hear is the echo of our own words, "If a man die, shall he live again?"

There is only one place to which we may look to find immortality. It is recorded in the blessed Book. We must look to Him who conquered death and ever liveth.

Another Memorial Day, with its priceless recollections and inspiring lessons, finds us wreathing afresh the blessed mounds where lie the dead.

We proclaim by our presence here today that, though dead, they are not forgotten. This is no place for hasty speech—to flatter would be well-nigh sacrilegious; to boast would be unseemly. Here, meditation walks with troubled brow; here, recollection weeps bitter tears; here, resolution, with flashing eye and manly front, presses to the heart the sacred mementoes of the undying past, and with firmer tread steps forth to build more stately mansions wherein shall be healed Jehovah's children, to the everlasting glory of our beloved Saviour.

No harsh sound from the busy world here breaks the solemn requiem of sighing winds; no glowing eulogy from mortal lips can add to the glory of their immortal spirits. I would that I

(Continued on Page 15.)

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Total cost of memorial		$1,275.00
Previously acknowledged	$1,085.25
J. A. Kimball, Manson, N. C.	5.00
		1,090.25
Balance to be secured		$ 184.75

Elon College, N. C. J. O. ATKINSON, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Mem'l.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

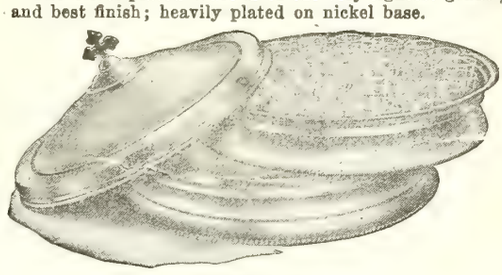
Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

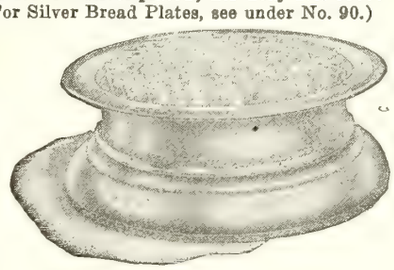
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver lined 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

(June.)

Dear Father, Thou workest and we work. Not as a matter of course, nor fitfully, may this day be occupied, but firmly may we, Thy helpers, choose every activity according as Thou dost call and lead. Silent, profound as unfolding dawn, and as real as daylight's deepening hue, may Thy voice of guidance come to us. Bring to Thine aid the service, even the bodies, of those who professedly carry the cross of Jesus, that high and sure it may be planted where shall fall the gaze of all men and whereupon to look as truly is to live! For Christ's dear sake. Amen.

NEARLY A HUNDRED CHURCHES.

There are yet nearly one hundred Churches in the Southern Christian Convention who, if they have taken the Easter offering for missions, have not sent in the offering. Many of these Churches, we are sure, took the offering, but are holding the same, trying to increase the amount. We have no way of knowing yet how many failed to take the offering, but we fear there are quite a few. The month of June is rapidly passing, and at the end of the month our mission period for taking the Church offering ends. We cannot see how any Church can afford to make no offering at all during the year for missions. Our Lord planted His Church for this purpose, and for this purpose only, that His gospel might be preached and that the message of His redeeming love and life might be given to the world. It is through our missionary offering that this message is carried beyond our own doors, to regions that are not blessed with the gospel and to communities that have not Churches at home or abroad.

The goal set for every Church, through its annual offering at or near Easter, and through its Sunday School, is one-third the amount paid the pastor. This is a most reasonable goal, and it does seem in all reason that every Church would be willing to give at least as much as one-third to carry the gospel to others as it pays to have the gospel preached to itself. It is devoutly to be hoped that every Church will at least give its membership a chance. This will not hurt, but will help the Church; it will not hurt, but will help the pastor; it will not hurt, but will help the finances of the Church; it will not hurt, but will help the spiritual life of the Church. We should make it unanimous at least in giving every Church and every member of the Church an opportunity of contributing something to missions. J. O. A.

THE HOLY SPIRIT IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The missionary enterprise is pre-eminently a spiritual one, and therefore if it is to be successful it must be conducted by spiritual men and women. God has ever chosen workers of this type. We read that the Holy Ghost said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." So clear was the call of the Holy Spirit in the case of William Carey that Dr. Ryland declared that "God Himself infused into the mind of Carey that solicitude for the salvation of the heathen which cannot be fairly traced to any other source." Alexander Duff wrote: "When, by the grace of God, I was led to care for my own soul, then it was that I began to care for the heathen abroad. In my closet on my bended knees, I then said to God: 'O Lord, Thou knowest that silver and gold to give to this cause I have none; what I have I give unto Thee. I offer myself; wilt Thou accept the gift?" The inner history of almost every missionary who has been largely used of God reveals similar experiences.

The Christian should not be content with a general knowledge of the Holy Spirit. Charles Finney used to say that "conversion to Christ is not to be confounded with consecration to the great work of the world's conversion." The man who receives the grace of God for his own salvation and not for the salvation of others, not only learns little of the real joy of the Christian life, but defeats one of its main ends. The disciples were Christians before Pentecost, but they could hardly be considered effective ones. They were staggered by the commission of Christ. A few obscure men commanded to disciple all nations! They would have ignominiously failed if they had attempted such a task in their own strength. And so, though the urgency of field conditions was as great as it is now, Christ said to them: "Tarry ye in the city until ye be clothed with power from on high." When they were thus clothed, they at once became aggressive. They preached with such irresistible fervor that men "were pricked in their heart," and cried: "What shall we do?" Peter, who had cowered before a servant girl, sternly arraigned the Sanhedrin, and when he was "charged not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus," he replied: "Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you rather than unto God, judge ye; for we cannot but speak the things which we saw and heard."—Missionary Review.

TRY THIS ON YOUR VIEWPOINT.

If I refuse to give anything to missions this year, I practically cast a ballot in favor of the recall of every missionary, both in the home and foreign fields.

If I give less than heretofore, I favor a reduction of the missionary forces proportionate to my reduced contribution.

If I give the same as formerly, I favor holding the ground already won, but I disregard any forward movement. My song is, "Hold the Fort!" forgetting that the Lord never intended that His army should take refuge in a fort. All of His soldiers are under marching orders always. They are commanded to "Go!"

If I advance my offering beyond former years, then I favor an advance movement in the conquest of new territory for Christ.

Resolved: I do believe in greatly increasing the present number of missionaries; therefore, I will increase my former offerings to missionary work. —Missionary Review of the World.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JUNE 7, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,252.41
Winchester, Va.	7.04
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	4.41
Zion, Sanford, N. C.	1.61
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	6.00
Ramseur, N. C.	4.33
Piney Plains, Cary, N. C.	1.00
Sanford, N. C.	4.45
First Christian, Norfolk, Va.	6.77
Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Va.	14.12
Liberty, N. C.	8.23
Shiloh, Kemps Mill, N. C.	1.00
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	2.58
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.	1.95
Palmyra, Edinburg, Va.	3.44
Berea (Norfolk), Hickory, Va.	4.64
Youngsville, N. C.	1.00
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.29
Graham, N. C.	4.45
Newport, Stanley, Va.	1.50
Amelia, Clayton, N. C.	3.00
Providence-Memorial, Graham, N. C.	20.26
Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	1.43
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.	22.80
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	3.23
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
Elon College, N. C.	12.50
Berea, Elon College, N. C.	4.00
Total	$ 3,424.44

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,978.45
Berea, Altamahaw, N. C.	8.35
Salem Chapel, Walnut Cove, N. C.	8.75
Webster, Havre de Grace, Md.	10.00
Miss Aylmer Goodwin, Columbus, Ga.	5.00
Grace's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	3.00
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	20.00
United Christian, Raleigh, N. C.	20.00
Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.	1,000.00
Total	$ 5,053.55

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$14,969.17
Sunday Schools, regular	172.03
Individual and Church collections	1,075.10
Total to date	$16,216.30

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

NEW PUEBLO DICTIONARY.

In the past fifty years several Protestant denominations have made earnest attempts to evangelize the Pueblos, but efforts were baffled by the language. Several years ago the Rev. H. C. Whitener, formerly missionary to Japan, when visiting New Mexico was impressed with the remarkable similarity between certain words in the Pueblo tongue and the Japanese language. He became interested in them, and last July saw him on the field as a missionary.

The first tasks to which he set himself were to acquire a knowledge of the language, to visit the Pueblos; and now the preparation of a grammar and a Keres dictionary, which will contain upwards of 10,000 words when completed. The dictionary will make possible a translation of the Bible.

Of the language, Mr. Whitener writes: "The Keres, with which I am now working, is an Oriental language, cognate with Japanese, Korean, and the language of the Loochoo Islands. Of course, during the centuries great differences have arisen, but it is clear that originally these languages had a common base. About one-third of the Keres words are the same as are used in Japan today, though on account of the influx of Chinese into the Japanese language it is far richer now than the Keres."

So far as known, this is the first attempt ever made to write the language. The dictionary will shortly be ready for the first revision. C.

The first Christians "continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers" (Acts 2:42). Are you following their example? Why not? Do you think you have a way the Lord likes better? Better be careful.—Selected.

MISSIONARY PROGRAM FOR JUNE.

Woman's Society.

As you all know, the month of June is set aside for our babies, and the program in the Woman's Societies usually is centered around the cradle roll. How fitting that we, as the mother society, should give of our interest both in attendance and help to these little ones! It is thrilling to watch their eager faces and to see how willingly they try to serve their Master in their little way. The following suggestions for a missionary cradle roll rally, by Mrs. L. T. Proctor, Dayton Ohio, superintendent of cradle roll of the General Convention, may be of help to those planning such a rally at the next meeting:

This year a theme has been selected for the rally program and suggestions will be given for the carrying out of the program, rather than a detailed program as in former years. The theme is "Jesus the Good Shepherd and Friend of Children."

Use any material you may find that is related to the theme. Show pictures of shepherds and sheep and of the good Shepherd. Point out the crook and tell how the shepherd uses it to guide the sheep and reach after them when they fall into places he cannot reach to get them. Talk about how the wool in the children's clothes once grew on the sheep.

1 Sam. 17:34, 35 tells the story of David and the sheep. Let some one tell how a boy named David took care of his father's sheep; was good to them; had names for them; found places where the grass was green, and water cold and pure; killed the bear, the lion, and said the words, "The Lord is my Shepherd." Have the 23rd psalm given in unison or by one child.

Using Luke 2:8-16, tell the story of the shepherds and the angels.

Have some one tell the story of how Jesus saw the shepherds out on the hillsides taking care of the sheep when he was a little boy, and when he grew up he told a story about a shepherd who had many sheep, etc. Matthew 18:11-14.

For one of the songs on the program, use "Saviour, Like a Shepherd, Lead Us." It is found in the books, "Joy to the World," "Hymns of Praise," "Awakening Songs," and others. Use any other children's hymns you prefer.

The poem, "Little Lamb," by William Blake, may be used as a recitation or read well by some one.

Little Lamb.

Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee,
Gave thee life and made thee feed
By the stream and o'er the meadow,
Gave thee clothing of delight,
Softest clothing, woolly bright;
Gave thee such a tender voice,
Making all the vale rejoice?
Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?

Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
Little lamb, I'll tell thee:
He is called by thy name—
For He called Himself a Lamb;
He is meek and He is mild,
He became a little child.
I a child and thou a lamb,
We are called by His name.
Little lamb, God bless thee;
Little lamb, God bless thee!

Wm. Blake.

Young People's Society.

Every-Day Contacts and Our World Friendship Ideals.

Purpose: To emphasize in our minds that our ideals and our deeds must be consistent if we are sincere.

Program.

1. Hymn, "O, Master Workman of the Race."
Story.
Prayer by leader.
Hymn, "Follow the Gleam."
2. Project committee report.
3. Leader's introduction of theme.
4. A diary.
5. The question.
6. Sentence prayers for courage to live out our ideals.
7. Hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour."
8. Benediction, while music of last hymn is still played softly.

Suggestions.

Poster: Draw a calendar of one month. Write underneath it "Every Day a Test Day." Date, hour, place of meeting.

1. Leader should present the theme in the abstract, basing remarks on chapter 10 of Y. & W. O., the section called "The Test."

2. Prepare assignments enough for every person present. Some may be clippings from this chapter or other reading that pertains to the subject. Some should ask for personal observations of contacts with other races or nationalities, are they Christian contacts or not? Give two or three people question 3 under this chapter to answer. Express idea that if our daily contacts were kept in a diary and a stranger read that diary, it would be from our deeds that he would form his opinion of our ideals. It is what we do that the world sees.

3. Give the two paragraphs entitled "Popular Members," from chapter 10, and put to the group the question as to which was sincere in his or her ideals, George or Anne. Why? Would you act the way Anne did?

4. Let one person read the words of each verse before it is sung.

Note: Very interesting supplementary material may be secured from "Blind Spots," by Henry Smith Leiper, with special reference to race relationships.

Juniors or Willing Workers.

Theme: "Our Church."

Song: "When Morning Gilds the Skies."

Call to worship. Let the people praise Thee, O God; let all the people praise Thee.

Response: O let the nations be glad and sing for joy; for Thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

Song: "Jesus Loves the Children Dear."

Offertory song: Same as April.

Continue use of stories in leaflet. Carry on work begun last month. Let the children suggest topics for prayer, or make the prayer themselves for the group about whom you talk.

Close with Bible salute.

Bible over eyes. Open Thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law.

Bible held over hearts. Thy word have I laid up in my heart, that I might not sin against Thee.

Bible pointing down. Thy word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path.

Sing chorus of "Take It Wherever You Go." (Write Mrs. F. E. Bullock, C. P. A. Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, for free copy.)

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104.	Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles	$ .50
2103K.	Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles	.60
2114.	French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges	.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP.	Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges	.70
2114P.	French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges	.90
2115P.	French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges	1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL.	French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges	.90
15RLP.	French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Bab'-y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bab'y-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jo'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X.	Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges	$1.00
5015PX.	French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included	1.50
5036PX.	Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms	2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P.	Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms	$ .90
4113.	French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges	1.35
4115P.	French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included	1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL.	French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges	1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP.	Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms	3.00
4136XPRL.	Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red	3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book of Je'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P.	Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included	$1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above

2913P.	French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included	2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL.	French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included	3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson XII—June 22, 1930.

The Risen Lord and the Great Commission.

Golden Text: "Go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all the nations."—Matt. 28:19.

Lesson: Matt. 28:1-20.

The Risen Lord.

The women were last at the cross and first at the tomb. Women have always shown a deep devotion to Christ. And well they might, for Jesus has done a great deal for women. It is the teaching and spirit of Jesus that have exalted womanhood, given dignity to women, and made possible their larger freedom.

When these women came to the tomb they found it empty. According to one record, they were filled with sorrow because of this fact. As a matter of fact, it would have been earth's saddest tragedy if these women had found the closed tomb and the body of the Lord Jesus. There is indeed a great deal involved in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. For if Christ be not risen from the dead—well, the Christian gospel is all untrustworthy, for it asserts that Christ rose from the dead; Christ himself is not to be depended upon, for He confidently predicted and unhesitatingly asserted that He would rise from the dead; there is no resurrection of the dead, for if such an one as Christ has been blotted out, then there is no grounds for believing that any of us will rise from the dead; one of the most dynamic moral incentives will be taken away, for if we do not rise from the dead, we can eat, drink and be merry; if Christ be not risen from the dead—one shudders to think of what is involved!

But now is Christ risen from the dead. His resurrection is as well attested as any historic event could possibly be. Those women found an empty tomb, and later they saw a living Christ. Moreover, Christ showed Himself alive for forty days, in several places, to a number of people and in several ways. The only way to account for the change in the disciples and for the early history of Christianity is to accept the fact of the resurrection. The disciples were not fooled—they knew they had seen their Lord alive after His death. This was the central theme of their preaching, and it was the central conviction of their lives. They knew. Paul knew. And multitudes since them have known.

And because Christ is alive, we, too, shall live. His resurrection is a pledge of our resurrection. It is good to know that this same Jesus has by God been made Lord and Christ. He can be counted upon to exercise the same ministry in the spirit that He exercised in the flesh. And just as God brought Him back again from the dead, just so will He bring us back again from the dead. Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let us be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord.

The Great Commission.

"Go ye therefore and make disciples of all the nations." That is one of the most amazing utterances of all history. Here was a man commanding a small group of men, eleven in number, without social standing, political position or power, technical training or material wealth, members of a subject race in a vast and powerful empire—commending them to go into all the world and to make disciples, to evangelize all the nations. On the surface of things, it looks like the remark of an unbalanced and utterly impractical idealist. And yet the man who gave this commission was never more sane or more serious than when he spoke on this occasion. He was fully conscious of all that was involved. But He knew that at last all authority or all power had been given unto Him. And in that power He gave His command. Because of that power He could give that command. For as they went, He promised them that He would go with them—they would have a power not of themselves, power adequate for anything and everything. All the resources of God are at the disposal of those who do the work of God. There had been a time when Jesus had told His disciples to come. Then He had told them to tarry. Now He tells them to go.

And why? Because He believed first of all in His gospel. He knew the needs of men, but He knew the adequacy of the gospel. He commanded them to take His gospel because He knew that His gospel had the supreme and final ethical conception of God, a God who was and is Christ-like. He knew that men would never get beyond that; they did not need to get beyond that. Then, too, He knew that His gospel had adequate power to effect a positive and perfect salvation by the development of a full and free personality. The gospel of Jesus in its revelation of the character of God and its ability to reproduce that character in men stands alone. It is supreme and adequate.

Jesus also believed in men. He believed that they were worth saving and could be saved. And He believed that these men to whom He was speaking would take Him at His word and go out to make disciples of all the nations. His faith was justified and is being justified. The kingdom of God has not always moved as fast or as far as it should, but in every age there have always been those who have kept the faith. The missionary passion still burns in human hearts.

There is, of course, much yet to be done. And the great commission still comes to every follower of Christ to go in person and purse and prayer according as one has opportunity. In the final analysis, a man cannot be a Christian if he does not believe in missions. Unless a man gives away his religion, he will soon have no religion to keep for himself.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, June 22, 1930.

Topic: "How Jesus Made Leaders of His Disciples."

Scripture: Mark 1:17, 5:18-26, 6:7; Acts 1:4-8.

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."—Bible.

"Regard not much who is for thee or who is against thee: but give all thy thought and care to this, that God be with thee in everything thou doest. For whom God will help, no malice of man shall be able to hurt."—Thomas a' Kempis.

Jesus' idea of leadership. "Let him who would be great among you be the slave of all," He told them. Again He told them that except they become as a little child they could not even get into the kingdom; and again He told them that if they would be leaders in His kingdom they must take up a cross and follow Him. He was their leader, and leadership in His kingdom did not mean an earthly glory and earthly power, but it did mean misunderstanding. It meant persecution and dying for the cause He loved. It meant anxiety for the weakness of His followers; it meant leaving His work in the very bud of its fulfillment and leaving it in the faith of others. It meant relying on God in the utmost of faith that His great life-purpose should be accomplished. The leadership which Jesus offered to His disciples was not a leadership of pomp and of power; not a leadership of authority, where they lorded it over one another; but a leadership in brotherliness, in sacrifice, in love and devotion to one another and to others, even their enemies; a leadership in godliness and in death for a great purpose. Jesus called His beloved twelve to a leadership which demanded that they give everything that was dear to them, and in return receive misunderstanding and a cross, but in the end, through faith, the approval of the Heavenly Father.

Jesus trained His disciples for leadership by giving them work to do. He was preaching constantly and traveling over the country far and wide. He was followed by crowds who wanted to hear and to be healed. The disciples must learn from Him as they journeyed with Him because they were to preach the "good news" later. They shared in the work of healing and casting out demons. Theirs was a difficult and exhausting task. It required great faith, and it took energy of body and mind.

Jesus taught. He was a teacher. That is what the words rabbi, master, lord, used so frequently in reference to Him, mean. He spent a great deal of His time teaching the twelve, especially toward the end of His life.

Jesus taught His disciples to pray. When they asked for a prayer, He gave them the words of the Lord's Prayer. The Lord's Prayer is hard for us to pray in truth. When we pray, "Give us this day our daily bread," we should have faith and leave off our anxieties about our receiving the bread. "Thy will be done" is probably the hardest for most of us to pray. What do you think of this prayer as a prayer for leaders? Give its strong points; its weak points. Does it include everything?

Jesus tried to teach His disciples how to live. Read Matthew 5:21-26. Jesus warned against our holding grudges and quarreling with others. He said, "Agree with thine adversary quickly."

Jesus tested His disciples. He gave them a chance to work without His direct guidance. Matthew 10:1-15 gives the story.

Jesus gave them the Holy Spirit (John 20:19-23). He sent them out to work in the same spirit that the Father had sent Him.

A Parable of Thee Preachers.

There were three preachers. Each of them had different ideas of how to run their respective Churches. One day they compared their ideas. This is what they learned.

Preacher No. 1 believed that he should be the head of his Church, so he was superintendent of the Sunday School and chairman of the official board. He met with his young people each Sunday evening (which was very good) and made a long address each time(!) He made things hum at his Church.

Preacher No. 2 declared that he had a different plan. He had nothing to do with any of the organizations of his Church. He let each organization do as it pleased. He took care of the preaching. Preaching was the big thing in his Church, so far as he was concerned.

Preacher No. 3 thought that it was his task to develop the Christian life of his people. He held no offices in his Church, but he knew what was going on in every organization. Whenever any one was elected to an office he made it his job to see that that one was instructed in how to do the work required of him. Of course, everything did not run as smoothly as it might if he were doing it, but he felt that it paid to let his folks share in the work. It was their Church as well as his.

Which is the Jesus way to run a Church?

YOUNG PEOPLE'S BANQUET.

On Thursday evening, May 1, 1930, one hundred and fifty young people of the Southern Christian Convention gathered in the banquet hall of the Raleigh United Christian Church for the young people's banquet. It was a happy, spirited group and enthusiasm was abundant throughout the evening.

Rev. F. C. Lester, who acted as toastmaster, welcomed the young people and mentioned the fact that this gathering of young people during the Convention was the realization of a plan several years old.

The theme for the occasion was "Young People Serving." The subject was introduced by Miss Lucille Mulholland, who spoke on "Things Young People Want to Do." Miss Marguerite Davison followed with "Serving in the Sunday School," and gave some practical suggestions as to how young people could efficiently serve in the Sunday School. Then the Elon College Glee Club, under the direction of Prof. C. James Velie, rendered several selections.

Herman Truitt, speaking on "Serving in Christian Endeavor," mentioned the joy, thrill, and real good that service in Christian Endeavor gave to one. James Stewart told of "Summer Schools and Service," and of how the summer schools were training for service and how they grow through service. Following this, the Elon Glee Club gave another selection.

Miss Pattie Coghill spoke on "Youth Congresses and Service," and suggested a well-rounded program for youth congress work. Miss Priscilla Chase told of "Student Summer Service." This is the sending out of students and young people during the summer months to do definite Christian work.

The Convention President, Dr. L. E. Smith, spoke of "Young People and the Convention," and expressed the desire of having a young people's afternoon service, followed by a banquet, during each Convention session.

After Miss Viola Worsley spoke on "Young People and Missions," Mrs. Garman, a missionary from Japan, greeted the young people and expressed appreciation for their interest and desire to serve.

This concluded the program. A brief business session followed, in which three young people were elected to confer with the boards of both Christian and Congregational Churches for the purpose of forming a permanent young people's organization, subsidiary to the Convention. The three elected were Herman Truitt, of Burlington, N. C.; Miss Elizabeth Sharpe, of Waverly, Va., and Miss Lucille Mulholland, of Durham, N. C.

A vote of thanks was extended to the women of the Raleigh United Christian Church for the splendid banquet which they arranged and served, and to Mr. Lester and Miss Jewel Truitt, and all others who were instrumental in arranging this banquet.

This very inspiring and enjoyable banquet and meeting was closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Committee Meeting.

Immediately following the Young People's banquet of the Southern Christian Convention, the committee of young people elected during the banquet—Mr. Truitt, Miss Sharpe and Miss Mulholland—met with the Boards of Christian Education of the Christian and Congregational Churches. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss plans whereby the young people, of what is now the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches, might form a central organization.

It was decided that the young people needed a central organization, functioning as a part of the Southeast Convention, and having the support of the Board of Christian Education and Education Society. This organization would have a part on the Convention program. It was decided that this same committee of young people would meet during the Elon Chautauqua and work out plans for the organization of the young people and formulate a constitution and designate work.

Temporary officers elected were: president, Herman Truitt, Burlington; vice-president, Lucille Mulholland, Durham; secretary, Dorothy Cook, Raleigh; and as advisers, Miss Pattie Coghill, Miss Priscilla Chase, Miss Marguerite Davison, and Miss Jewel Truitt.

The young people want to make this organization worth while, and suggestions as to how this may be done will be welcomed.

REPORTER.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference, to be held at Pleasant Ridge Christian Church, Guilford County, N. C., June 19-20, 1930:

THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1930.

Morning Session.

Theme—"Building With Christ."

10:00. Called to Order—Mr. W. B. Truitt, President. Song Service in Charge of Higgins Sisters.
10:10. Devotional Services—Rev. R. A. Whitten.
10:20. Address of Welcome—Mr. A. B. McFarland, Superintendent Local Sunday School. Response—Mr. W. T. Dunn.
10:30. Roll Call of Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies.
10:50. President's Annual Message.
11:15. Hymn; Business Session; Appointment of Committees, Etc.
11:35. Address—"Missions a Spiritual Task," Mrs. W. M. Jay.
12:00. Announcements.
12:10. Adjournment for Lunch on Church Lawn.

Afternoon Session.

1:30. Called to Order—Mr. W. B. Truitt, Presiding. Music by Higgins Sisters.
1:45. Devotional Services—Rev. G. C. Crutchfield.
1:55. Program by Representatives of Orphanage.
2:40. Special Music—Higgins Sisters' Quartet.
2:50. Address—"Our Educational Task in the Sunday School and C. E.," Rev. W. T. Scott.
3:15. Group Discussions—Departmental Secretaries in Charge. (Groups will be composed of those interested in the Departmental work. Recommendations may be made from these groups as a part of Departmental Secretary's Report.)
4:15. Adjournment.

Evening Session.
(School Auditorium.)

8:00. Program Under Auspices of First Christian Church, Greensboro.

FRIDAY, JUNE 20, 1930.

Morning Session.

9:30. Called to Order—Mr. W. B. Truitt, Presiding. Music Directed by Higgins Sisters.
9:40. Devotional Service—Rev. J. F. Apple.
9:50. Report of Departmental Secretaries. Discussion. (Speakers, except Secretaries or those speaking for them, limited to three minutes.)
11:15. Special Music—Higgins Sisters.
11:30. Address—"Building in Christian Endeavor," Mr. H. N. Truitt.
11:50. Address—"Building With Our Young People," Miss Jewel Truitt.
12:10. Adjournment for Lunch on Church Lawn.

Afternoon Session.

1:30. Called to Order—Mr. W. B. Truitt, Presiding. Music Under Direction of Higgins Sisters.
1:45. Devotional Service—Rev. J. L. Neese.
1:55. Address—"Building Stewardship Lives," Rev. F. C. Lester.
2:20. Discussion—"What Shall We Do When We Get Home," Mrs. O. H. Paris.
2:40. Address—"Why I Want to Go to Elon Summer School," James Stewart.
2:50. Special Music—Higgins Sisters' Quartet.
3:00. Reports of Committees.
3:30. Closing Service—Dr. C. H. Rowland. Final Adjournment.

THE GOOD-WILL TOUR.

A large band of Congregational and Christian pilgrims will be sailing on the White Star Line S. S. "Adriatic" on Saturday, June 14th, headed for the fifth International Congregational Council, which is to be held at Bournemouth, England, July 1-9. The Southeast will be represented by Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, of Washington; Dr. J. O. Atkinson, of Elon College, and Dr. L. E. Smith, of Norfolk, Va. What a fine fellowship these men will have. Dr. Bloom writes that he will stay in England until August 23rd, and while there his address will be: care of Memorial Hall, Farrington Street, London E. C. 4, England. He says he "will tarry for a while in Mansfield College, Oxford; wander by the seacoast or through rural byways, roaming, writing, reading, resting, after nineteen years in State and national Congregational service; and getting ready to face my part of our united job again next fall."

Among prominent American Congregationalists who will be upon the program of the International Council will be Dr. Fred B. Smith, moderator of the National Council; Dr. Wm. E. Barton, of Atlanta Seminary Foundation and the Vanderbilt School of Religion; Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, editor of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty; Dr. Albert W. Palmer, new president of Chicago Theological Seminary; Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, of Washington, and Dr. Russell H. Stafford, of the Old South Church in Boston. Dr. J. D. Jones, of Bournemouth, England, is moderator of the International Council.

From the Western Christian Advocate: "The astronomers of the world are doing some pretty big things these days. Recently they announced that this universe in which we live is only 586,569,600,000,000,000,000 miles across. Can you read this? If not, take down your old arithmetic. How this was figured we do not know. The universe is pretty large. However, the biggest mystery we see in the whole business is the dimensions of the mind that is able to comprehend its immensity." Only the infinite mind can comprehend the immensity of this universe.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

MONDAY.

GOD'S WORKMANSHIP.

"For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them."—Eph. 2:10.

Paul, in his letter to the Ephesians, comparing what we are by nature with what we are by grace, declares that we are made for good works. May we ever bear in mind that all of our labors are under divine inspiration. The world may never know the many prayers that have ascended to the throne of God in behalf of precious souls, the kind words that have been spoken, the smiles that have cheered sad hearts, and the little deeds of kindness that have been shown. But the Lord knows it all, and in the end He will know just how to distribute the rewards.

Prayer.—Dear Lord God, we desire to see more of the glory for which we have been created. We seek of Thee that glory, and do Thou reward us according to Thy love and mercy. Amen.

TUESDAY.

HOPE OF THE CHILD OF GOD.

"Happy is he whose hope is in the Lord his God."—Psa. 146:5.

The psalmist David said, "And now, Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in Thee."

There is a hope that reaches far beyond that which is found in the world, or in friends, or in self. It is that blessed hope which maketh not ashamed—the hope of eternal life—and happy is that soul who has that glorious hope, and can say, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus' blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus' name."

Prayer.—We look to Thee, our Father, today for more of the life that brings the joys of real values, and we pray for the everlasting consciousness of the hope that leads on and inspires us to rise from what we are to what we ought to be. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

"WE HAVE SEEN THE LORD."

"The other disciples, therefore, said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except that I shall see in His hand the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into His side, I will not believe."

The hearts of the disciples must have been sad as they thought of the absence of their Lord, the one who had walked and talked with them and had comforted them day by day. Now, Jesus had been led to the cross, crucified, dead and buried. Seemingly, their hopes were gone. But what a glorious day dawned when in their lives Jesus stood in the midst of them and said, "Peace be unto you."

In comforting His disciples before ascending to the Father, Jesus said, "Because I live, ye shall live also." This is the message of calvary. What a wonderful change when the Christ of Calvary arises in the hearts and perfect life for us!

Due to his absence at the first appearing of Jesus to His disciples, Thomas could not believe that Christ had risen from the dead. But when he saw himself he said, "My Lord, and my God." Jesus said to him, "Because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." Our heritage is the greater blessing. Can we see Him?

Prayer.—We praise Thy name, our Father, that all doubts may be settled through faith in Jesus and through following Him. Give us more faith and make us to follow Him all the way. Amen.

THURSDAY.

TOO CHEAP.

"Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."—Isa. 55:1.

A collier came to me at the close of one of my services and said, "I would give anything to believe that God would forgive my sins, but I cannot believe that He will forgive them if I just turn to Him. It is too cheap." I looked at him and said, "My dear friend, have you been working today?" "Yes; I was down in the pit." "How did you get out of the pit?" "The way I usually do—I got into the cage and was pulled to the top." "How much did you pay to come out of the pit?" "Pay! Of course, I didn't pay anything!" "Were you not afraid to trust yourself in that cage? Was it not too cheap?" "Oh, no," he said; "it was cheap for me, but it cost the company a lot of money to sink that shaft."

And without another word, the truth of that admission broke upon him, and he saw that if he could have salvation "without money and without price," it had cost the infinite God a great price to sink that shaft and rescue lost men.—G. Campbell Morgan.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, today we bring to Thee all our sins, search our hearts and bring us to repentance. Forgive us and make us clean. Amen.

FRIDAY.

EXAMPLE OR SUBSTITUTE.

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all."—Isa. 53:6.

At the close of a service in Germantown, Philadelphia, some time ago, a stranger accosted the late Dr. D. M. Stearns as follows: "I don't like your preaching. I do not care for the cross. I think instead of preaching the death of Christ on the cross, it would be far better to preach Jesus, the Teacher and Example." "Would you then be willing to follow Him if I preach Christ the Example?" replied Dr. Stearns. "I would," said the stranger; "I would follow in His steps." "Then," said Dr. Stearns, "let us take the first step—'Who did no sin.' Can you take this step?" The stranger looked confused. "No," he said; "I do sin, and I acknowledge it." "Well, then," said Dr. Stearns, "your first need of Christ is not as an example, but as a Saviour." And this is every man's need. (See Rom. 3:23-26.)

Prayer.—Dear Father, who art able to lead us into the fullness of Christ's salvation, lead us in our daily thoughts, that Christ may be more than example, but a power unto everlasting life. Amen.

SATURDAY.

WON BY LOVE.

"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me."—Matt. 25:45.

In one of the large convict prisons was a well-educated man who was a thorough agnostic, and no amount of argument or pleading could move him from his belief. He remained, in spite of all attempts to get in touch with him, hard and sour as ever. But one day, while the chaplain was talking to him, his attention was drawn to the convict's wounded foot. It was evidently a source of pain, and the chaplain left off speaking, bent down and examined it, then bound it up more comfortably. As he did so, he felt a great teardrop upon his head. That little act had done what no amount of pleading could accomplish.—The Sunday Circle.

Prayer.—Our Father, who art in heaven, teach us day by day the way of the Lord. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE TONGUE.

"The tongue can no more tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison."—Jas. 3:8.

Among the deadly instruments of destruction are guns, cannon, submarines, aircraft and poisonous gases. But greater than any of these is the destructive agency of the human tongue. Contemplate the millions who have been slain by instruments of war, yet this number is very small compared to those who have suffered distress, sorrow, pain and death through the crimes of the tongue. Friends have been separated, families broken up, reputations killed, character ruined, hearts crushed, and the laughter and hope of life blighted.

These crimes of the tongue are principally words of criticism, unkindness, envy, jealousy, gossip and lying. Many people who are guilty of these things do not mean to be criminal or untrue. Nevertheless, they are, and the worst of it is that words once uttered can never be recalled.

How much better it would be could we suppress our unholy emotions, hold our tongues, and go directly to the offender and counsel with him. In that way, both would catch from the other the true spirit each bears. It may be that the one who is criticised is the one who is doing the most for others, and he may be found very pure in his motives.

To bring peace and contentment to any one is accomplished by controlling the tongue.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, our God, we feel lost when we contemplate our faults. We come to Thee, the fountain of love, through Jesus Christ our Lord, and pray that we may be given the power to conquer ourselves, our tongue, our greatest enemy. Amen.

SUPPOSE.

Suppose some one were to offer me a thousand dollars for every soul that I might earnestly try to lead to Christ, would I endeavor to lead any more souls to Him than I am endeavoring to do now? Is it possible that I would attempt to do for money, even at the risk of blunders or ridicule, what I hesitate or shrink from doing now in obedience to God's command? Is my love of money stronger than my love of God or of souls? How feeble, then, my love of God! Perhaps this explains why I am not a soul-winner. "Lovest thou me more than these?" (John 21:15.)

Suppose I were to see a blind man unknowingly approaching the brink of a high precipice, and that I were to sit by without concern or any effort to warn or save him from certain death, would I not be as guilty of his death in God's sight as though I had murdered him outright? The death of a body, which might have been (but was not) prevented, is a terrible thing, but what about the preventable death of a human soul—perchance of many souls—for which God may hold me responsible?—Exchange.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

THE SUPREME SACRIFICE.

"Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation—but with the precious blood of Christ as a lamb without blemish and without spot."—1 Peter 1:18-19.

One day a man lay in a hospital. Just outside his window, on a hill, he noticed two beautiful little lambs as they nibbled the green grass and played merrily upon the lawn. One day the patient asked the nurse in charge to whom the lambs belonged. Her reply was that the lambs belonged to the hospital, and that the laboratory received blood from them for making blood tests for transfusions into the veins of human beings. She said when a blood test is to be made, a bit of blood is drawn from the juglar vein of the lamb. Only a little is required and the lamb is never injured by giving of its blood in this way and for so great a purpose. She also said, "We used to send to the slaughter-house for blood, but discovered that it was not always safe, for often the blood was impure; but when we keep our own lambs we know that their blood is pure and without spot or blemish.

The pure blood of one of these little lambs, when mingled with the impure blood of a diseased man, reveals facts that are necessary to ascertain whether or not the individual can stand an operation or infusion. In like manner, the pure blood of the Lamb of God, without spot or blemish, has been injected into the blood-stream of the human race as evidence that His blood will save and that there is no other plan of salvation, save by the blood of Him.

When the apostle Peter was writing his first epistle to the Jews he gave much thought and great concern about the matter of salvation and redemption. Simon Peter was among the first to be called of our Lord as one of his fellow-workmen, and being a man of quick apprehension and excellent endowments he took particular notice of the stress the Master put upon the great questions. When Peter wrote the newly converted Jews, he sought to explain more fully the doctrines of Christianity. Peter put special emphasis, right in the first part of the first epistle, on the major experiences of the Master. He sets forth the fact that holiness is to be attained by all who would be His disciples. To be holy, he says, one must bear in mind the sacrificial gift of God through Jesus Christ.

In the words of our text we find at the outset a statement which clearly tells the Jews how they were not saved. In this negative statement he reminds them of that which we need often to bear in mind, i. e., "Ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation. So it is well for us on this communion day to remember that we were not saved from our sins by anything material. For the corruptible things of the world cannot save even so much as one soul. Rather, corruptible things such as silver and gold are often snares in our way, and instead of saving us, these things hinder us. Silver and gold can do much for us. It can afford travel, transportation, build our Churches and schools; it can send missionaries to the fields, but it cannot of itself save any man from his sins. The things that are corruptible can never save the incorruptible soul.

Silver and gold has been the means of saving many a person from disgrace in the eyes of the public. Money and finery can cover up many a transgression before man, but it cannot save a person in the eyes of God. Money can sometimes save a person from social degredation and elevate him to the highest levels of society, but it cannot save his soul from sin. Money has been the means of saving many a man from going to the battle-front, for in other wars than the late world conflict men used to employ some one to go in their places—money was the medium. Therefore, money saved many a man from death and the dangers incurred by war, but it has never been the direct means of saving a man from hell; for, "Ye were not saved from your vain conversation, your sins of omission and commission by such corruptible things as silver and gold." No man can buy salvation with the contents of his purse nor the checks of his bank-book. Salvation came to the Jews and Gentiles of long ago by a different plan. To us it comes the same way. Having listened to the words of Peter telling us what salvation was not, let us read a bit further and behold how we were saved and from whence salvation came.

"But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." When a child is told what he shall not do, he next expects to be told what he may do. When Peter tells us what salvation is not and from whence it did not come, he follows by telling us the positive source. Listen to Him: "With the precious blood of Christ as a lamb without spot and without blemish." Just as the little lambs used in the hospital laboratory gave their life-blood to save man from physical disease, so the precious blood of Jesus was given to save man from his spiritual disease, sin, and degradation.

"What can wash away my sin?
Nothing but the blood of Jesus.
What can make me whole again?
Nothing but the blood of Jesus.
For my pardon this I see—
Nothing but the blood of Jesus.
For my cleansing this I plea:
Nothing but the blood of Jesus."

Lately we have gotten away from the dynamic truths about the blood of Jesus, and we refrain from singing such wonderful hymns in which we gladly and joyfully exclaim that "Nothing but the blood of Jesus can save" and "Precious is the flow that makes me white as snow." The blood of the Saviour, shed from Calvary, is the only saving power in all the world. It is the atoning medium for all wrong, and for the whole world it is given. It is called by the apostle "the Precious Blood." And rightly should we think of His blood as being very precious.

"So precious is Jesus, my Saviour, my King,
His praise all the day long with rapture I sing;
To Him in my weakness for strength I can cling,
For He is so precious to me.

I praise Him because He appointed a place,
Where some day, through faith in His wonderful grace,
I know I shall see Him and look on His face,
For He is so precious to me.

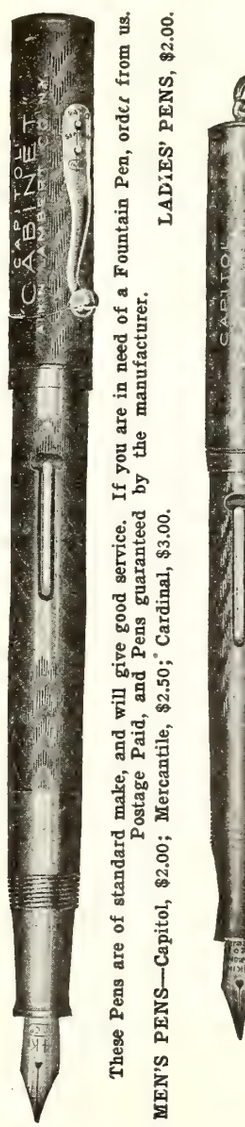
Our salvation came to us by the precious blood of Him who, like an innocent lamb, went to the slaughter and willingly died in our stead. There He atoned for the world, for you and for me. Some years ago, a party of which I was a member was conducted through the stockyards and the slaughter-house of Swift & Co., in Chicago. On this sight-seeing expedition there were many who would not go into the room in which the lambs were slaughtered. Prior to this point on the trip, the guide said that the slaying of the lambs was the most touching sight he had ever beheld. He described the manner in which the lamb, pure and spotless, innocent and humble, approached the chopping-block and, without struggle and resentment, placed its head there for the slaughterer's knife. As I think of the Christ in terms of the Lamb of God, I am sure He must have gone to the cross in just such a way as the little lambs there in Chicago approached their doom. Jesus shed His blood for the world in order that the world, through His love and sacrifice, might be saved. So let us say with the hymn-writer:

"Nor silver nor gold hath obtained my redemption,
Nor riches of earth have saved my poor soul:
The blood of the cross is my only foundation;
The death of my Saviour maketh me whole."

(Continued on page 15.)

WHEN IN RICHMOND EAT AT
Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria
805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia
Opposite Richmond Hotel.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN



These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

I read a story some time ago where a little boy was taught at home to always wait at the table until he was waited on, and keep quiet. His mother carried him visiting one day, and when they went to the table, it seemed somehow the little boy was overlooked at the table and his plate was not helped. He sat quietly for a few minutes and whispered rather loudly to his mother, "Mother, do little boys go to heaven who perish to death?"

We just want to call the attention of our Sunday School and friends to the fact that our income since the first of the year has been about half enough to take care of our expense account. We have cut every expense we can cut, but the children eat and wear clothes, whether the income is large or small. The helpers must be paid, insurance on the buildings must be kept up, and a hundred other items to be met. We appeal to all the Sunday Schools to be liberal, so we may not have to borrow money for running expenses. Let every Sunday School take a part in helping us in this work of love and charity.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JUNE 12, 1930.

Brought forward		$7,469.78

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Mt. Bethel	$ 1.44
Berea	3.75
Happy Home	2.30
High Point	5.73
Greensboro, First	14.28
Lebanon	1.55
Berea	3.62
Elon College	18.75
		51.42

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Hill (J)	$ 1.58
Catawba Springs	10.82
Liberty Vance	4.39
Plymouth	2.75
		19.54

Western N. C. Conference:

Liberty	$ 4.77
Pleasant Hill	4.96
Biscoe	2.04
Hanks Chapel	2.32
		14.09

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Holland	$10.00
Elm Avenue	5.00
First, Norfolk	6.20
Suffolk	30.00
Franklin	6.75
Mt. Carmel	5.34
		63.29

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Timber Ridge	$ 3.31
Concord	3.10
Wood's Chapel	1.00
Mt. Olivet (G)	7.22
Mt. Olivet (R)	1.47
Dry Run	1.25
		17.35

Alabama Conference:

Forest Home	$ 1.00
Noon Day	.60
Pisgah	1.25
Mt. Zion	4.92
		7.85

Special Offerings.

First Sunday School, Reidsville	$12.77
R. B. Wicker, support of Edna	30.00
W. V. Huffines, to correct error	10.00
Sale of calf	7.00
C. W. Isley, Altamahaw, N. C.	1.00
James Sloan, Redlands, Calif.	200.00
R. J. Miller, support children	50.00
C. A. Penn, N. Y. City, for children	50.00
W. A. Lee, support of children	7.50
A Friend, Durham, N. C.	5.00
Porterville Church, Robinson, Ill.	2.97
Mr. Lambeth, for milk	1.20
		377.44
Grand total		$8,020.76

FINE ON-TIME RECORD.

The "Crescent Limited," leader of the Southern Railway System's fleet of fine trains between New York, Washington and the South, has just completed a remarkable five-year record for punctuality.

During the five years since April 26, 1925, when the "Crescent Limited" was placed on its present schedule, it reached Atlanta on time southbound on 1,793 days, being late only 33 times, and reached Washington on time, north-bound, on 1,751 days, being late only 75 times.

The "Crescent Limited" is operated between New York and New Orleans, via Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Mobile, and is the successor of the pioneer through train between New York and New Orleans, the "Washington and Southwestern Vestibuled Limited," which was inaugurated in January, 1891, the first all-year train with vestibuled equipment and dining-car service operated in the South. For years it was popularly known as "The Vestibule."

During the five-year period just closed, the "Crescent Limited" maintained schedule on the Southern between Washington and Atlanta 1,820 times out of 1,826 trips southbound, an average of 99.6 per cent, and 1,808 times north-bound, an average of 99 per cent.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅛ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. 2 or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ 25 Jĕ-hŏi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed or Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible.
No. 03255x ---------- $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x ---------- $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition
No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

A MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

(Continued from Page 7.)

had some stately phrase that might wind itself about your hearts in tender memory with the associations of this hour, some seraphic, flaming sonnet that might ring over the fields of your memory like the angel's song and bring "peace and good will" to you.

But today we wrestle with the great, incomprehensible and unsolvable problem of death. At its threshold, king and commoner, president and citizen, prince and pauper, all stand on an equal footing, and what lies beyond has never been unveiled by any fine-spun theories of logic or principles of profound philosophy. Those portals through which the future will be disclosed can only be opened by the key of faith. Whether the traveler passing through those portals enter into Nirvana, or lives on with his own identity, has been a fruitful field of speculation since the dawn of time. In the city of the dead we are brought face to face with the greatest truth of individual redemption, "without the shedding of blood there is no remission," and that out of death God brings a fairer life.

It is well to pause and listen at times to the stern monitor that warns us that we are but shadows in a world of shades. We love to seek converse with sorrow and the dead, where the outer world seems in sympathy with the mourner, where the trees gather in gothic gloom about the grave, and where nature, with the touching similitude of her own brief bloom and transient beauty and sure renewal of life, may image the brief flower of our mortal being and its immortal hope.

We feel that it is fitting to enshrine our departed friend in the bosom of sympathizing nature. Let the violet and the blue bell kiss the turf above them; let the rose and ivy embower and the oak and evergreen wave above their silent rest; let the zephyrs freely visiting sigh through the whispering leaves with the voice of the past; let the night winds, through the solemn woods, wail the requiem for the departed, let the moonlight stream over them through the shadowy branches, like the light of other days, and let the stars of evening, in tranquil and holy watch, look down upon their graves like celestial love watching their resurrection.

We look above, and there burns Orion in the sky as he burned over the birthyear of time and will burn ever; yea, as he burned over our own far-fled years of dream-like childhood and glorious youth. But, beyond his fires we see them—the shining faces—there, there, they live and love; they beckon us with their white hands, but no whisper comes, save rifts of angel melodies from that far-off world.

Let pyramid, column and statue with graven cherubim which speak with heavenward hand, and slab, of immortality and God; let them be to us ever the index finger which time in the shadows of vanity still extend towards the world of everlasting light, point ever to Him who sitteth above the stars wearing the vesture dipped in blood—the Conqueror of death, the Achiever of immortality for man.

He who died at Azan sends
This to comfort all his friends:
Faithful friends! It lies I know
Pale and white and cold as snow;
And ye say, "Abdallah's dead!"
Weeping at the feet and head.
I can see your falling tears,
I can hear your sighs and prayers;
Yet I smile and whisper this:
I am not the thing you kiss.
Cease your tears and let it lie;
It was mine—it is not I.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

From these dynamic words of Peter, written not only to the Jews of the dispersion, but to you and to me, we learn something of the great sacrifice of the Master for a sinful world. We come to realize very truly that "Jesus paid it all—all to Him I owe; sin had left its crimson stain, but He washed it white as snow."

To you and to me, of this generation in which we live and enjoy happiness and pleasure, He is saying:

"I gave my life for thee,
My precious blood I shed,
That thou might'st ransomed be,
And quickened from the dead.
I gave, I gave my life for thee—
What hast thou given for me?"

Today the kingdom needs a larger and more generous support from the citizens of that kingdom than it has ever needed before. Greater and heavier have been the demands on the Church and all benevolent societies than at any previous time. Church members need to come to a time of sacrificial giving and self-denial as at no other time. Are we willing to deny ourselves some luxury for the sake of the kingdom of God on earth and its fulfillment? Are you? For the sake of Him, will you not deny yourself some of the non-essential luxuries that you have been indulging in each week? Will you do without ice cream, Coca-Cola, candy, cigars, cigarettes, theaters, Sunday auto rides and Sunday deserts? Will you? Jesus says, "I gave my life for thee. What wilt thou give for me?"

Franklin, Va.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.

CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL.D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

MARRIAGES

TOWE—MARSH.

At 11 A. M., April 23, 1930, Mr. Henry Harley Towe and Miss Nannie Aline Marsh motored to Rocky Ford Church, where I was teaching school, and there were united in the bonds of holy matrimony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Ken Marsh, a farmer of this section, and the groom is the son of Mr. Houston Towe, a merchant of the same neighborhood. The bride and groom will make their home with the groom's father.

We wish for them a long and happy married life.

S. E. MADREN...

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED.

On May 25th a dinner was given in honor of Mrs. M. S. Brown, being sixty-nine years of age. A beautiful table was spread, and a large crowd of nearly two hundred relatives and friends were present. It was highly appreciated by Mrs. Brown and family, and greatly enjoyed by every one present.

She is held in high esteem and loved by all who know her.

B. H. LOWDERMILK.

HAMPTON SINGERS AT LIVINGSTONE'S TOMB.

A few days ago, a group of forty American negro singers assembled in Westminster Abbey and sang the songs of their people at the tomb of David Livingstone, famous African explorer and missionary.

The Hampton singers, directed by Dr. R. Nathaniel Dett, composer and director of music at Hampton Institute, Virginia, were heard by great crowds which had stood for an hour outside the Abbey waiting for the opening of the doors.

The singers stood for a brief silent prayer, and then raised their voices in the spiritual, "Rest Ye Weary Traveler." The spirituals cast a spell upon the many hundreds assembled there.

We have not a high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.—Heb. 4:15.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

666

Relieves a Headache or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, checks a Cold the first day, and checks Malaria in three days.

666 ALSO IN TABLETS.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

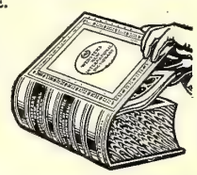
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ "From that time Jē to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ "From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1950
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1930. NUMBER 25.

Mrs N T Farmer

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Dr. W. C. Wicker.

CHURCH MERGER IN NEW YORK.—

The approach to the union of the Christian and Congregationalists and other bodies in New York State takes a somewhat different form from that in Ohio, where the State Conference was first formed and the local associations merged afterward. According to the New York plan, the local units will form first and blend into the State organization. The Congregationalists and the Disciples of Christ have already progsessed far in a plan of union in the State of New Yosk and will hold a joint meeting in 1931 to consider the question further. The spirit of Church union is not only being taught in other Churches, but is actually being caught and is moving towards the consolidation of all God's people into closer fellowship, if not into organic union.

RURAL PASTORS' SCHOOL.—

The two weeks' session of the annual school for rural pastors at the Vanderbilt School of Religion has just closed. This is said to have been the best of all sessions, both because experience has perfected methods and program and because the student body of 365 came by selection from a list of applicants numbering more than one thousand. This school is a serious effort to grapple with one of the South's serious problems, namely: the proper cultural and religious provision for the countryside. The undertaking is confessedly complex. Incidentally, the census returns now coming in show a continuance of the drift from country to town. Several counties in the Southern States show a loss in population; all the cities and towns a gain. The pastors of the rural Churches in our denomination would do well to take advantage of this school for the study of rural conditions and how best to meet them.

WASHINGTON AND THE DIGEST POLL.—

According to the tabulation published by the Literary Digest, the ministers of Washington, D. C., voted as follows in the recent poll: For enforcement, 42; modification, 38; repeal, 234—total votes cast, 314. The publication of this tabulation gave rise to indignant protest. Nor was it long in receiving denunciation from the Protestant Ministers' Union. Dr. Melton, president of the union, says: "Counting all Catholic priests, Jewish rabbis, Protestant pastors, both white and colored, there are less than 314 pastors in Washington," and he continues the information that of 198 Protestant ministers, only 109 received the ballot. Of this number, only 80 per cent voted, there being 87 for enforcement and none for repeal. Of the 198, eight were in favor of modification. With these figures before us, the origin of the Digest's 314 votes from Washington's ministers becomes subject for doubt and speculation.

HIGH TRIBUTE.—

On the occasion of the conferring of the degree of doctor of divinity on Dr. J. H. Holmes by the Jewish Institute of Religion, New York City, May 25th, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, president of the institute, characterized him as follows: "John Hayes Holmes, religionist-humanist, battler for divine value in human life, clear-eyed seer of truth, sub-specie aeternatatis et humanitatis, hospitable to truth whether uttered by Isaiah or Marx, Jesus or Lincoln, Tolstoi or Gandhi; mighty apostle of justice and resistant militant prophet of peace, foremost in his generation in the American pulpit measured by the standard of Theodore Parker and David Einhorn, Phillips Brooks and Isaac Wise, Washington Gladden and Emil Hirsch, defender of Israel because friend of man, servant of justice and helper of the wronged."

Such an encomium when worthily worn is an inspiring ideal that should fire the ambition and kindle the smoldering fires of aspiring youth in entering upon the work of the Christian ministry. No other profession or calling offers greater opportunities for the investment of human genius, the attainment of human greatness, or the service of the human race than the Christian ministry.

THE INDIAN CRISIS.—

Dr. Norwood, the chairman of the Congregational union, a man who, as we know, speaks with gravity and courage, said that the best means of reducing the trouble in India would be the immediate proclamation of generous British proposals for Indian self-determination and self-government, with special emphasis upon their early consummation. Confidence should be reposed in the good will of the great multitudes in India who are believed to be sympathetic toward Britain, and the spirit of repression should give place to a more liberal attitude. Order should be maintained, for India's sake as well as for that of Britain.

Repression, domination and despotism over nations, peoples, States, Churches, or schools are repulsive to the fundamental nature of mankind. The race has always rebelled against bondage and struggled upward towards light, liberty and self-realization. Christ knew what was in man and recognized not only his actual but also his potential capacities. Confidence, insight and belief in people will less rarely be betrayed than otherwise, and such an attitude will bring out the best that is in man. Lack of such an attitude has caused more war, carnage and bloodshed than all other causes. This is paganism in the Christian nation against Christianity in the pagan.

CHURCH UNION.—

Through the merger of the Congregational and Christian Churches, the Christian Churches become the foster-children of the Pilgrim fathers and at the same time enter into the heritage of stronger organization and, to some extent, the financial endowments of the larger body.

The Christian Century says: "The only competition between the two groups has been in the matter of extending courtesies to the other. The disposition at all times has been to go far more than half-way. The matter of a name has been more a cause for merriment than a problem. 'Congregational' is not a very meaningful title, while the name 'Christian' was originally inspired by the desire to avoid a denominational label. Latterly it has led to confusion with the Disciples group, while outsiders have regarded it as a bit presumptuous. In Ohio the two names are to be combined without conjunction or hyphen, as 'Congregational Christian.' The Christians were already congregational in their polity, while the qualifying adjective removes any possible assumption that they are the only Christians in the world. As for the Congregationalists, they have always tried to be Christian, and can hardly object to the name."

It seems that the name 'Congregational Christian' for the merger could not be improved upon, and might well be adopted as the official title for the newly wedded pair of loving companions.

MISSIONARY SOCIETIES TO UNITE.—

January 1, 1931, is the date set by a joint resolution of the Congregationalists and Christian Boards to unite their Church extension, missionary, religious education and ministerial pension work. This resolution was a part of the work of the recent General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches at Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, held in May. The national offices of the Christian home mission work will be moved from Dayton, Ohio, and consolidated with the Congregational offices in New York City. The next annual meeting of the Congregational Home Boards will be held in Seattle, July, 1931, in connection with the meeting of the new General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches.

"Representatives of the departments of the General Convention of the Christian Church met with Dr. C. C. Merrill, secretary of the Commission on Missions of the National Council of the Congregational Churches in the New York offices, to face the matter of a joint promotion of the mission and benevolent funds of the two bodies. It is hoped that plans may be laid, to the end that in 1931 such joint promotion may be in working order. The Plan of Union agrees that until such plans are completed that each Church carry on its own mission and benevolent obligations in its accepted way, and that funds be sent through the usual channels for the support of the work."

NOTES-PERSONALS

A revival began Sunday, the 15th, at Monticello Christian Church. Rev. Luther A. Nall, of Elon College, who assisted the pastor, Rev. J. L. Neese, at Palm Street so successfully, will assist him in these services.

During the editor's absence on his trip to Bournemouth, England, his editorial work will be attended to by the news editor. THE SUN wishes him a pleasant trip and a much-needed rest from the strenuous duties of the office.

Rev. J. M. Allred, pastor, assisted by Rev. J. B. Trogdon, will begin an evangelistic meeting with our High Point Church Sunday, June 15th. A Good revival is greatly desired, and prayers of SUN readers in this behalf are requested.

Memorial services were held at Hines Chapel Sunday, June 1st. The pastor, Rev. J. L. Neese, preached at the morning service; Rev. Raymond Lanier, of Bessemer, preached in the afternoon. A large congregation was present. After the morning service, the little folks marched through the cemetery and placed flowers on each grave.

Rev. J. F. Apple, Elon College, reports a most interesting service at Mt. Zion, Orange County, Sunday, June 8th. After a very largely attended and enthusiastic Sunday School, the best for many months, the Woman's Missionary Society, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Lynch, as president, had its first regular meeting with a large attendance of members present. Bro. Apple is very hopeful of the Missionary Society and the Sunday School.

Rev. R. Lee House, Duke University, Durham, gives this information of interest under date of June 7th: "Miss Lucille Mulholland and I drove over to Henderson last evening. Thirteen young people met at the Christian Church, and Miss Mulholland organized a Young People's Missionary Society. These young people are quite enthusiastic, and I am expecting them to do much work for the kingdom. Miss Elizabeth Newman, 211 William Street, was elected president; Miss Lucy Gill Ayscue, vice-president; Miss Josephine Smith, secretary, and Miss Katherine Newman, treasurer."

Berea Christian Church, Alamance County, N. C., observed the annual memorial occasion on Sunday, June 1st, with one of the most successful services it has ever enjoyed. Several visiting ministers participated in the program, including Revs. P. T. Clapp and J. W. Patton. The memorial address was delivered by Prof. S. A. Bennett, head of religious education at Elon College, and may be classed as one of the best to which we ever listened. The speaker spoke of the relationship of men to the universe in which he lives, his recognition of a Supreme Creator, and his belief in a life beyond the grave. An additional feature, as well as a spiritual inspiration, was furnished by an abundance of good music, supplementing the work of the choir. The Riddle male quartet and the girls' junior quartet, both of Burlington, each rendered several appropriate selections which were thoroughly enjoyed. Dinner was served on the grounds, after which the pastor, Dr. W. W. Jay, of Elon College, brought to us a very forceful sermon on "The Ministry of Small Things." These services were well attended, and we feel sure were greatly beneficial.

The announcement last week in THE SUN that "the trustees were greatly pleased that the college (Elon) closed its session (this year) without a financial deficit," will be a source of deep gratitude to all SUN readers as well as to the trustees and all friends of Elon. The statement, of further interest to all and of great significance, is "in order to do this, however, President Harper had to raise for the current expenses more than $70,000, the largest sum of money Elon has ever secured in any other year from her friends for this purpose." That Dr. Harper was able to go out among the friends of the college in a time of financial depression and unemployment, such as we are passing through the last few months, is wonderful, and reveals in a marvelous manner how near and dear to the hearts of our people Elon College is and how our people are willing to deny themselves and sacrifice for their college. Nothing of greater significance, as showing the hold that the college has on our people, has occurred in many years than the fact that without any other than the annual effort and appeal, the largest sum of money was contributed by the friends of the college at this time that has ever been contributed in any other year for this purpose. Dr. Harper was able to report to the trustees that practically every alumni approached responded with an offering and with a ready hand to help the college in her time of need. Our felicitations are made both to President Harper and to the college, and we join most heartily in rejoicing with him in his great achievement and with all friends of the college for this remarkable evidence of loyalty and devotion to our beloved Elon.

The Christian Temple "Bulletin," Norfolk, Va., for the service June 1st, carried the following item, which is of interest to CHRISTIAN SUN readers as well as to the congregation worshiping in Christian Temple on June 1st: "The International Council of the Congregational-Christian Church will meet in Bournemouth, England, July 1st-8th. A ship has been chartered and will sail from New York June 14th. Many hundreds of Congregationalists, a number of Christians, and others will make the trip. Our pastor, Dr. Smith, has been elected a delegate representing the Southern Convention. This is a distinct honor to Dr. Smith, and is as it should be for various reasons, of which I mention two. First, he was a member of the commission that studied the question and evolved the plan of union of the two Churches that has been adopted, and is being put into effect as rapidly as the details can be worked out, making the union complete. Second, as President of the Southern Christian Convention, he is logically the one to represent us. It will be a wonderful opportunity for him to meet the leaders of the Congregational brotherhood and have them to know him better, and there will be lectures and addresses, as well as group and council meetings on various subjects, such as young people's work, missions and other subjects conducted by men of outstanding reputation on board the ship each day. It is an honor to the Church to have our pastor selected for this trip. It should be our wish and pleasure to give him time from the pulpit to make this trip, and I am sure that every member of our Church who has given the matter serious consideration will feel that way about it. We can show our loyalty to our Church and that the cause it represents, and also to Dr. Smith, and our appreciation of this honor that has been shown him by being in our place at the services of the Church and being present when we have visiting ministers in the pulpit during his absence. Our earnest prayers for a pleasant and profitable trip and a safe return will follow him."

UNION COMMUNION SERVICE.

I submit the following experience which proved most helpful to the Churches of Lewisburg, Pa., in the hope that it may inspire other Churches to "go and do likewise."

Near the beginning of the new year, I proposed to our ministerium that we arrange for a union Communion service some time during the year. The proposal met with the hearty approval of all the ministers, and arrangements were made to have the service in connection with the celebration of Pentecost. There are seven denominations, all Protestant, represented in Lewisburg, which is the seat of Bucknell University. The proposed service could not be held on Pentecost Sunday on account of the University commencement program, so arrangements were made to hold the service the first Sunday in June. The respective Churches participating, each conducted its own Sunday School at the usual hour, and then at the hour of worship all assembled as one congregation in the Lutheran Church, as it has the most commodious auditorium.

The Churches participating in this union Communion service were as follows: Baptist, Christian, Evangelical, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Reformed. The method of observing the Lord's Supper was somewhat different than that which any of the participating Churches were accustomed to, incorporating as we did features used by each and at the same time omitting some features peculiar to each.

From the first note of the organ prelude until the large audience was dismissed, a spirit of reverence and joyful expectancy was increasingly manifest. The entire service, consisting of the call to worship, special music features, responsive reading, Scripture lesson, congregational singing, prayers, a ten-minute Communion meditation, and the passing of the Communion emblems consumed but one hour. Something near a thousand communicants were served by thirty elders and deacons from the different Churches.

The large audience, made up of boys and girls, young men and young women, and men and women from every walk in life, was caused to realize in a forceful manner the truth of the paraphrased text, "How good, how pleasant, and how profitable an experience it is for believers to worship together in unity." In my fifty-five years of ministerial experience in cities, small and large, I have never witnessed a more impressive service. The following day at the monthly ministerial meeting it was decided to hold a union Pentecost Communion service each year in harmony with the expressed wish of representatives from the different congregations.

D. M. HELFENSTEIN.

Lewisburg, Pa.

A BARGAIN.

It was once proposed to the Duke of Wellington to purchase a farm in the neighborhood near to his estate, and therefore valuable. The duke assented. When the purchase was completed, the steward congratulated him upon having made such a bargain, as the seller was in difficulties and forced to part with it.

"What do you mean by a bargain?" said the duke.

The other replied: "It was valued at 1,100 pounds, and we have got it for 800 pounds."

"In that case," said the duke, "you will please to carry the extra 300 pounds to the late owner, and never talk to me of cheap land again."—Selected.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

Rev. E. C. Gillette, Editor; Rev. F. P. Ensminger, and Rev. M. J. Sweet, Associates.

REV. L. M. PENN, Sophia and Flint Hill, is holding a series of revival meetings, which are attracting much attention in these neighborhoods. Mr. Penn is a hard worker and very popular among his people.

REV. GEORGE B. WALDRON, former superintendent for Florida, but more recently pastor of the Congregational Church at Melstone, Mon., is visiting his daughter at Tampa. Mr. Waldron is well known to all Congregational Churches of the State.

SOUTHERN PINES: Rev. Elmer Willis Serl, D. D., of Southern Pines, has closed his work for the season at the Church of Wide Fellowship, and Rev. Ruth Sargeant, the assistant pastor, will have charge of the work until the pastor's return in the fall.

DR. J. EDWARD KIRBYE, Raleigh United, leaves for Frankfort, Mich., the last of June. He has charge of the summer assembly there. Services in the Church will be carried on through the summer months with guest-ministers in charge. The young people of this Church, instead of a letdown, have organized to carry out a strong program of religious education during the summer.

ISLE OF SHOALS CONFERENCE.

Some of our Church people in the Southeast may be looking for an interesting place where the rest and recreation of a vacation may be combined with the inspirations and benefits of a Conference. One of the most interesting and delightful places for such is the Isles of Shoals, off Portsmouth, N. H., where the fifteenth annual conference for Congregationalists will be held August 9-23. We print the following concerning it:

The following well-known speakers take part in the program: Rev. C. H. Merrill, secretary of promotion for the Commission on Missions; Mrs. A. J. Lyman, assistant moderator of the National Council; Dean J. S. Stevens, of the University of Maine; Rev. G. W. Hinman, secretary of the Spanish-speaking work for the A. M. A.; Miss R. I. Seabury, an associate secretary of the American Board; Prof. Daniel Evans, of Andover Seminary; Rev. R. W. Roundy, superintendent of the Maine Conference; Prof. C. G. Cumming, of Bangor Seminary; Mr. J. J. Ankoolam, a native of South India and a graduate of Madura College; Rev. F. W. Tomkins, of Philadelphia; Rev. E. A. King, of Community Church, Miami Beach, Fla.; Rev. T. A. Greene, of First Church, New Britain, Conn. All these speakers are able to give most interesting and inspirational messages from their several departments of work and experience. The beautiful candlelight service in the little stone chapel by the sea will again be a feature of the Conference fellowship.

The young people will meet for one hour each morning, and in the afternoons will enjoy devotional services on the rocks. Rev. A. A. Rouner, minister of North Church, Portsmouth, will be the chairman, and special emphasis will be placed upon the second week's exercises under the leadership of Prof. S. R. Harlow, of Smith College. The women's interests will also be represented, Mrs. R. M. Holyoke being the guild's president. Recreation will be amply provided for, with fishing, boating, games, and parties.

The expenses of the Conference are met by the annual dues. Active membership is $5.00; associate membership, $2.50. The cost of board and room will be $22 to $26 a week. Reservations should be made early. Dues should be sent to Rev. Charles E. Dunn, secretary, 23 Sunderland Avenue, Rutherford, N. J., from whom programs and all further information may be obtained.

ROLLINS COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The commencement at Rollins College this year was a notable event, in that the largest class ever graduated in the forty-five years of the college history received degrees, and this was the first class graduating whose whole course had been conducted along President Holt's conference plan of study, now so well known. Sixty-six graduates received diplomas, fifty-six of them with the degree of bachelor of arts, six with the degree of bachelor of science, and one a degree in music. Three more received the degree of master of arts. Dr. William S. Beard, secretary of the Layman's Advisory Committee of the National Council of Congregational Churches, delivered the commencement address, speaking on the subject, "The Pilgrim Spirit at Work."

Miss Aurora McKay, daughter of the mayor of Tampa, and Robert G. Sprague, Winter Park, son of a former member of the faculty, were presented with Sullivan medallions in recognition of "attainment of the finer elements of character, integrity, helpfulness, purity of motive, exalted ideals of service, faithfulness to the demands of duty, and the steadfast pursuit of the nobler purposes of life." The medallions are considered the highest awards of the college.

C. REXFORD RAYMOND, D. D.
Pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, Chattanooga, Tenn.; President of the Congregational Advisory Board of the Southeast.

NEW ORGAN AT CHATTANOOGA.

Pilgrim Church at Chattanooga, on May 18th, dedicated, with a beautiful ceremony, a new pipe organ. This organ had been in the Mizpah Temple and had the reputation of being the sweetest toned organ in the city, and was rebuilt, with new electro-pneumatic console and complete electrical equipment. The organ is proving thoroughly adequate for the auditorium in volume and tone. Many friends inside and outside of the Church contributed toward making this organ possible. At the dedication service, Dr. Marston S. Freeman and Rev. George W. Blount participated in the service, and the pastor, Rev. C. Rexford Raymond, D. D., preached on the theme, "The Ministry of Music." Mr. Howard Emerson Taylor, of Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, was the guest-organist. Beautiful music was rendered upon the organ and by the choir.

Dr. Raymond assumed the pastorate of this Church in February, 1927, and during his pastorate the Church has made rapid progress, the membership having increased from 116 to 286, with the expectation that the membership would pass 300 by vacation time. This growth is substantial, and the pastor and the Church are steadily growing in influence in the life of the city. Chattanooga has increased 100 per cent in population in ten years, but Pilgrim Church has more than kept pace with that growth.

Dr. Raymond has assumed a position of leadership in the Southeast, and as President of the Cnogregational Advisory Board of the Southeast, took an active part at the recent Raleigh meetings in bringing the Congregational-Christian merger to an effective issue. Prior to coming to Chattanooga, Dr. Raymond had held important pastorates in Bellevue, Ohio; Flushing, N. Y.; South Church, Brooklyn; First Church, Greeley, Colo.; and had been vice-president of Berea College.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR
E. C. GILLETTE
117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL J. E. MCCAULEY
NEWS EDITOR
W. C. WICKER

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE EDITOR BEGINS A JOURNEY.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

New York, June 13, 1930.

By the grace of God and the generosity of a good friend, the writer is off for Europe. Last December, at Dayton, and last January in Chicago, when ministers, Congregational and Christian, were talking and planning a good-will tour to England this summer, it never entered this scribe's head that he was to be of the party. But we never can tell what time and chance will bring, and so to my utter amazement and surprise here I am ready to "sail" tomorrow on the S. S. Adriatic, and should, with good luck, land in Liverpool seven days later.

I will write later what it is all about, but now the trip itself is engaging. Being told recently that I might and I must go, some preparations were necessary, and I have learned a few things. Here is the first, and so far the most obvious: Whatever we get, or wherever we go in this life, we have to pay twice. Look at this. I wanted to go out of the United States; wrote to Washington, D. C., and sent the Secretary of State $10.00 for a passport (permission to pass out of Uncle Sam's ports). So far, simple enough, except I failed to see why Uncle Sam, never having paid much attention to me save to take my census, now loves me so and will miss me so much while I am away that I must pay him $10.00 "heart balm"—a sort of soothing syrup for his sobs over me. And then comes a letter: "Well, since you are leaving, where do you think you are going?" I thought that was my own business, but to be polite I replied: "Going to England, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland. If that isn't sufficient, write me again and I will advise as to other countries and particulars." Then this comes: "Your English cousins love you very much, so you must send $10.00 to be allowed to enter their country. France will receive you for $2.00; Germany cares so little about you that they will let you visit them without charge; so will Italy; ditto Switzerland."

Well, here I was paying to get out of my country and then having to pay to get into another country. Gentle reader, that principle holds in this life. Leaving Elon for Norfolk by night, I paid the Pullman my fare for a bed to sleep on. Then next A. M. I had to pay a porter to wake me up and put me off. Coming on the boat from Norfolk to Baltimore, I had to pay $1.25 for dinner, and then had to pay a waiter 25 cents to let me go after I had finished. Had to pay the boatman full fare to bring me, and then had to pay a porter to help and let me get off.

We certainly pay twice in this life—once to get in; again to get out. Some other scribe discovered that when he wrote that we had to pay a doctor to bring us into the world and the undertaker to take us out. That boat supper from Norfolk was all that could be desired, however. Dr. L. E. Smith and the treasurer of his Church, Mr. C. E. Reynolds, both of Norfolk, were at the table. Smith ordered chicken. He remarked, "Preachers do not get chicken now like they used to. I went out once and held protracted meetings in the country for six weeks, and had chicken every day. We don't find it that way now." The trouble with Smith is that he lives in the city, and city folks do not have as much good food (certainly not as much good chicken) as country folks have. Smith also ate "Ocean View spots," with cornbread covered with molasses. Now, what is one to think of a body eating fish with bread soaked (or sopped) in molasses! That is also city taste, we presume. This writer took clams on the half-shell and two luscious and juicy soft crabs. A highlander will show his rearing when he gets a chance.

But we had good talk at the table. Bro. Reynolds was on his way to New York to meet his Gold Star mother returning from France, where the government had carried her as its guest to see the last resting-place of her soldier boy, who sleeps beneath the poppies now.

But we are in New York, and the hour is late. Early tomorrow we leave on the big boat to sail in big waters. And of the journey and what I may see and run into, more anon. Till then, good wishes to SUN readers. J. O. A.

WOMEN, WEALTH AND WORTH.

Women have not only won their way to positions in industry, trade, politics and religion, but also into possession of wealth. Ours is called an industrial age, and we are told that "money talks." This being so, the women are in a position, and have now the right, to talk. It was recently pointed out in an international broadcast over the radio that women now outnumber men as stockholders of the leading American corporations, and exceed the number of men reporting annual incomes of over $500,000. Take the largest corporation—that of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. At the end of 1929, this company had 251,000 women stockholders, as compared with 153,000 men. Or the American Tobacco, preferred, women stockholders in this corporation outnumber the men by 5,000. It is declared that similar proportions in the number of women over men existed in transportation and oil companies. Last year 129 women paid income taxes on individual incomes of more than $500,000, but only 123 men did so. Of those reporting individual income of $1,000,000 or more, there were forty-four women against forty-two men; and of those reporting individual incomes of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, there were three women and only one man. In this broadcast it was declared that the women of the United States own approximately one-half of the wealth of the country.

Without analyzing the causes or the processes resulting in this situation, one must acknowledge that the women of America have not only acquired rights, but have asserted their right, as economic, moral and social factors in our modern-day American life. All of this is significant, and should mean much for the morality and the religion of the future. The fact is obvious that the Church life of America is more in the hands of the women than of the men, in that more women attend Church services regularly and take more seriously to heart the work and welfare of the Church. It has often been pointed out that if one wishes to find an assembly in which the men were largely in the majority, go to our prisons; if one in which the women are largely in majority, go to our prayer-meetings. And so with her rise to the authority, power and prestige that wealth confers, it may be expected that the Churches will be the benefactors of elevation to her rightful place in society and the world.

Who was it long ago that turned that suggestive phrase about women? "When God made woman He did not take a part from man's head to make her, that she might be his superior; nor from his feet, that he might trample upon or ignore her: He wisely and lovingly took a piece from man's side, that she might walk with him and be his equal; from beneath his arm, that he might protect and defend her; and from near his heart, that he might love her and yield to her his elevation." J. O. A.

THE CHURCH IN THE MIDST OF CHANGE.

The United States census report shows that there has been a considerable change in population in this country during the past ten years. In many rural communities where there was a good-size village ten years ago, practically all the people have moved away. In many instances, the old, substantial families are moving out. They are answering the call of the large town or city. The automobile and good roads are making it possible for those who remain in the rural communities to find amusements elsewhere. What does all this mean? What effect does it have on the Church?

In former days, the Church was the social center of such communities. But now the week-end is a time for many to get away from home for various reasons. In the midst of these changes the Church is the first of the public institutions to suffer. Just now there is a great falling away of attendance in many Churches. The rural Churches are the hardest hit by this change. The regular attendance at Sunday School and Church services in many places is decreasing. This condition should claim our attention. What are we going to do about it? What is the best thing we can do? The answer to these questions and solving of the problem must be faced and worked out by the Church. The old way of doing things in a Church community will not meet the need of the present day. The one service a month with occasional visits from the preacher will no longer attract and hold those who prefer to live in the rural community. Just how the problem is to be solved, I cannot say. It cannot be answered by the editor's pen, nor from the secretary's office. Each community, under the leadership of a competent pastor, must work out the problem according to the needs of the local community.

What might work in one community might be an utter failure in another. But there are a few fundamental facts that stand. First, the Church is a vital factor in every community, whether it be properly or poorly equipped. Second, it supplies a vital need in some way. Third, it should be the most alert of all organizations of the community to supply the needs and fulfill its missions. Fourth, the Church should take all suggestions that come from other sources of help, but not depend on any to solve the local problem. The Church must change with the changing age. This does not mean in its fundamental principles, but in the method of adapting itself to a given situation. When the Church does do this, then society will seek her counsel. It is to be hoped that the Church will not be left as far behind in the changes that are taking place as it has been in former years. Personally, I do not believe it will.

The rural Church is not alone in this. The city Church must be constantly changing to meet its demands. The automobile and good roads are making changes in the city Churches, too. People that lived in the down-town communities a few years ago, are moving out to the suburbs. In many instances, the members move across a large city of several miles' distance. The old down-town Church community is being crowded by foreigners, negroes, and others who are not interested in its problems. The Church must sell out and build near its members or become a mission Church. This, too, involves a change; a change which is just as acute as the rural problems, and one that challenges just as much care and wrok. To solve the problem is for the congregation to face it just as the rural community does, and work it out according to the needs of the local Church. This will keep the Church in the midst of a change. J. E. McC.

"JEHOVAH-JIREH."

We were poor, but my mother loved and wanted beautiful things. She did so much hard, manual work on the farm where she lived, I have often wondered when she got time to do the lovely crocheting which she so delighted to do. It was just a very plain rocker, but she decorated it with a dark cashmere, beautifully crocheted, and the strange, big word adorning its middle was "Jehovah-jireh." I suspect mother knew her children were going to ask her what it meant. And the little boys that gathered around her that night after supper to hear the meaning of that strange word and the story about it did not realize that some of them would learn to read the Hebrew language from which the word came.

How that word shone when I met it in a Hebrew class-room in Princeton years later! She told us the word meant "God will provide," and with her the Princeton professor agreed; but that is not the real way in which we learned its meaning. We learned its meaning from mother's own life. It was more than a strange foreign word to her, for to her it was a prayer, a bit of personal biography, and a mighty prophecy. How often that word glowed in the warm firelight of that North Carolina hearthside.

Mother passed on to God last summer when the first hint of autumn appeared, but somehow I think she wrote that divine word and promise even far more enduringly upon her children's hearts than upon the drapery of her dear old armchair.

JOHN G. TRUITT.

Dayton, Ohio.

WHAT THE WORLD NEEDS TODAY.

Friendly reader, it does seem to me that we are living, we are dwelling in a swift and reckless age. More speed, more haste, seem to be the great objectives which all classes of people are seeking with feverish excitement to attain. Today many people (not all of them immoral) live high and fast, without the fear of Almighty God or consideration of ought but the indulgence of a worldly life. That's why so many vain and empty lives abound. Why are so many people intellectually, morally and spiritually out of breath? Because they live too fast. They live as though they have concentrated all their physical, mental and spiritual energies to one awful determination to be lost forever.

Isn't it a fact that there is a great deal of activity in all our Churches, but a surprising lack of power? Yes, there are a great host of Church members, but a surprising lack of spirituality. Indeed, there is a wealth of organization and large sums of money are raised, but a surprising lack of the sense of the need of the blessed Holy Spirit. We need the presence and the leadership of the Holy Spirit in the Churches today.

Sin has filled the heart with a longing after what is vain and unsatisfying. But man's destiny is not the satisfaction of appetite. His destiny is eternal life. Man is made for spiritual beauty. The eternal God has so made the soul that its hunger and thirst can only be satisfied by Himself. The life most worth living must be dedicated to God and righteousness. Surely we cannot be wrong in "doing justly, loving mercy and walking humbly with our Heavenly Father.

We should not squander our God-given powers away in the quest of false ideals, but dedicate every talent to the service of God. This alone will make our lives beautiful and blessed in themselves, a gracious benediction to all mankind, and a glory to God. It is our duty to invest what we possess where it will be secure and satisfying—in deeds of kindness, generosity and helpfulness. Then will life be worth living.

What the world needs today is a rediscovery of Christ as the Way, the Truth, and the Life. The immaculate Christ is the great incentive to the highest and best. He is the world's supreme Pattern in character and work. All th peroblems of life become simplified when we apply to them the simple and universal rule of love which our Lord laid down.

Those who trust in the God of the universe are never brought to shame. His love is as unexhausted as His power is unlimited; His grace is as abundant as His wisdom is profound, and His might omnipotent. Happy, thrice happy, are they who lean upon His great heart and who trust His everlasting arm.

Beloved, train yourself to be on the alert to see the good things in others rather than the evil things. Whatsoever ye do, in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Yes, we need the rediscovery of Jesus because He is the Way to the highest possible standards of life. Let us labor to be like Him, who, in His matchless life, was the true likeness of our kind, loving Heavenly Father.

Windsor, Va. E. B. WHITE.

WHAT YOUNG PEOPLE WANT TO DO.

We have heard John McCrae's challenge: "To you from failing hands we throw the torch: be yours to hold it high." If we are to accept and fulfill this challenge in a Christian sense, let us as young people set sail on the sea of heroic adventure in ship service. As we start out, let us resolve to forget imperfections and unpleasant events which we may encounter, and remember only the happy, thrilling ones. So tonight, as we turn our attention to "What Young People Want to Do," let us think of youth ideally. Not boastfully do we do this, but because the higher the ideals we have, the harder we strive to attain them.

From the multitude of things young people want to do, let us consider three which are applicable to all Christian young people:

1. To grow and to advance.
2. To give.
3. To influence.

Jesus grew, Jesus advanced. He is our example. We, too, must grow; we, too, must advance. We can grow through friendship with Christians; through daily devotions; through open-mindedness and systematic study, and through giving and saving.

Friendships, daily devotions, study, service, giving—these are the essential nourishments for growth, and incidentally for real happiness. Perhaps our greatest joy comes from giving. Young people want to give. Many of them can say, "God so loved the world that He gave." What? "His best, His all, His only Son." I so love that I give. What? My best, my all. And we want to give sacrificially, just as the "artist who painted a picture which was touched by a lovely and fascinating crimson that no other artist could imitate. They studied the picture and sought for its secret in vain. But when the artist was dead and they were preparing him for burial, they noticed above his heart a half-healed wound. Then it was that they understood. As the artist had painted, he had dipped his brush into his own heart's blood. That was the secret of the fascinating picture that had cast a spell on them."

That is how young people want to give—and continuously—just as the stream of water that gives all and asks nothing in return; whose heart is ever open to an unseen fountain and every moment is receiving new supplies of pure, living water. And because its heart is ever open to this unseen fountain, it is flowing forth in a little stream of service to the world. May we think of our time, our abilities, and whatever we have as belonging to God, and loaned to us for wise investment?

And as we grow and as we give, we want to influence. "The sun sets behind the western hills, but the trail of light it leaves behind guides the pilgrim to his distant home." Young people want the world to see Jesus in them, for they realize that—

"We are the only Bible
The careless world will read;
We are the sinner's gospel,
We are the scoffer's creed;
We are the Lord's last message,
Given in deed and word—
What if the type is crooked
What if the print is blurred?

"What if our hands are busy
With other work than His?
What if our feet are walking
Where sin's allurement is?
What if our tongues are speaking
Of things His lips would spurn!
How can we hope to help Him
And hasten His return?

"Christ has no hands but our hands
To do His work today;
He has no feet but our feet
To lead men in His way;
He has no tongue but our tongues
To tell men how He died;
He has no help but our help
To bring them to His side."

Durham, N. C. LUCILLE MULHOLLAND.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

There are more failures than successes among men. The main reason may be found in failure to find the true place in life. The first essential is for the individual to find out through a plain gift, or careful discovery of less important gift, just what talent has been bestowed by nature, and then set to work to cultivate that gift for useful service in the field where it belongs. In so many cases, individuals are unwilling to take the place for which nature has qualified them. Pride often keeps individuals from taking the place for which they are fitted. In such cases, failure is voluntary, though often unconsciously so. In such cases the individual may be pitied, but there is no remedy, and no satisfactory excuse. Such persons, in some cases, know where they belong in the world's activities, but their pride keeps them from accepting the station and the work for which they were born. In such cases they are to be blamed rather than pitied.

The first consideration for an individual is to discover what he was born to be and to do, and then to accept that place, whether behind the plow, the handle of a spade, the guiding of a machine, the use of a pen, or some profession as medicine, architect, teacher, lawyer, or that special call from God to preach the gospel. No matter what place it is, the individual should accept it gratefully, prepare for it, and then enter it for life. It is better to be a good hod-carrier than a poor architect; it is better to be a good farmer than a poor doctor; a good wage-operator than a poor mill manager. The distinctions made between the workers in various fields of enterprise are useless. The potato that grows underground is as important as the cotton that is spotless-white along the row. Eating is as important as wearing, and the kitchen is as important as the cotton mill. The shoemaker is just as important as the shoe salesman, though he may not feel as important as the man dressed up behind the counter or on the road. Society must learn, and is coming to learn that society is a product of individuals in co-operation, whether they realize it or not. "No man lives to himself." The importance of the President is representative, not personal. Outside of the chair, he is only an individual.

If every individual occupied his true place, and discharged the obligations of that position, unemployment, unpaid bills, oppression, animosities and envies would be healed and the world would move on in harmony. If all the parts of an engine are in good condition and co-operate, the train follows in safety and success. If all men had their place religiously and willingly, the world would move on in success and harmony. Society is not an organization for distinctions, but for unity and co-operation.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

Because Elon College is the property of the Church, I think readers of the Elon Letter will be interested in the by-laws by which the board of trustees conduct the institution, and so I am printing them in full herewith:

By-Laws of Board of Trustees.

1. The president of Elon College shall be president of the board of trustees and perform all the duties prescribed by law and this board in his capacity as the chief executive officer of the corporation.

2. The chairman of the board of trustees, elected annually by the board from its membership, shall preside at all regular and called sessions and counsel with the president at any time he may deem desirable.

3. The president and chairman of the board of trustees shall jointly appoint the committees ordered by the board, unless their appointment is otherwise provided.

4. The secretary of the board of trustees shall perform the duties usually devolving upon his office, together with such others as the board of trustees may order.

5. The business manager of the college is empowered to perform all the duties required in the financial conduct of the college. He shall collect the interest on the endowment and expend it as ordered by the board of trustees. He shall serve as custodian of all the funds and securities of the college. He shall not make investments of endowment funds except as ordered by the investment committee of the board of trustees. He shall sign all bonds to be given to the U. S. Federal government for the purchase of alcohol for laboratories and all similar bonds. He shall preserve the bonds of all persons employed by the college or any of its departments as ordered by the board of trustees. In co-operation with the president of the college, he shall submit a budget for the ensuing academic year to the board of trustees at their annual May session, and he shall execute this budget when and if adopted. With the approval of the administrative committee, evidenced by the signature on notes of the chairman and secretary of said committee, he may from time to time negotiate bank or private loans in anticipation of funds provided in the budget. He shall sign all checks, drafts, trade acceptances, notes, contracts, and similar documents necessary in the orderly financing of the college. Except for proceeds of loans, he shall make deposits in only such banks as may be approved by the board of trustees or executive committee, the executive committee in this specific case having power to change the action of the board of trustees. He shall have the power to employ and remove from office all servants and other employees of the college not regularly elected by the board of trustees. He shall perform such other duties as the board of trustees may order.

6. The board of trustees shall meet in regular session twice annually: on Tuesday after the third Sunday in February at 9 A. M., and Tuesday after the fourth Sunday in May at 9 A. M. Called meetings may be held at any time, as provided in the charter.

7. The president and business manager shall report in writing to the board of trustees at each and every regular meeting, and at such other times as the board may require.

8. The books of the business manager shall be audited annually as of May 31st, by a certified public accountant. One copy of the audit shall be preserved in the vault of the college. The others shall be sent to the committee on audit of the board of trustees. The certified public accountant shall supply a certificate of his audit to each individual trustee.

9. The dean, dean of women, registrar, librarian, secretary to the faculty, and faculty auditor of student activities and the affiliated boarding departments shall report to the board of trustees in writing annually at the May session, and at such other times as the board may require.

10. The board of trustees, upon written notice of the president, given ten days in advance, may require a written report on any matter it desires from any committee of the faculty or individual faculty member or officer of administration. Such persons may be summoned before the board or any of its committees for oral testimony at any time, notice in advance not being required.

W. A. Harper.

(To be Concluded Next Week.)

VALLEY LETTER.

I have just finished reading one of the most interesting issues of The Sun for many a day—the issue of June 6th. It was good and interesting to me to read about the work of the Congregational-Christian Church of the Southeast. I am sure that this fellowship is going to mean more and more to all.

The following clipping from today's Harrisonburg Daily News tells of a conference we had on June 5th. We were glad to meet the men and enjoyed the association. We reprint the following:

"An informal meeting of ministers and representatives of the Congregational Church from Washington, and a number of the ministers of the Christian Churches in the Valley was held yesterday morning at the Kavanaugh Hotel, with the view of fostering and developing a better understanding and a more thorough co-operation between the leaders of the two Churches in this part of the State. The group of Congregational leaders included Dr. M. A. Lovell, Dr. Kayle Booth, moderator of the Congregational Association of New Jersey; Dr. B. B. James, president of the Congregational Ministerial Asscoiation of Washington, and N. M. Little. The pastors of the Christian charges in the county who attended were Rev. A. W. Andes, Rev. W. B. Fuller, Rev. B. J. Earp, Rev. Joe French, and H. M. Hossler.

"At the combined meeting of the National Convention of the Christian Church and the Congregational Church last October, at Piqua, Ohio, the two Churches merged. At that time a National Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches was formed, consisting of seventy members, to direct the executive matters and govern the work of the Churches. The meeting yesterday was the result of a growing sentiment among the leaders of the denominations to become more closely organized and to consider at this time matters of relative importance to the two Churches. Preliminary arrangements were made for the Congregational Church to send two speakers to the Christian Conference, which will be held at Newport in August. In turn, the Christian Churches of the Valley agreed to send representatives to Washington in November to attend the Congregational Conference.

"It was stated that, at the April meeting of the Southern Christian Convention and the Southeastern Congregational Association, which took place in Raleigh, N. C., a merger of the publishing interests of the two congregations in the Southeast was effected, which will have an important bearing on the growth and spiritual work of the Churches in the South."

The committee elected by our Conference last August has been studying the matter of grouping the Churches into pastorates, and has recommended that the Churches be grouped according to geographical location, so that the Churches in a given location can be served by a single pastor.

Our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention meets at Linville, Va., June 12th and 13th. Our Conference year closes July 31st and Conference meets at Newport, August 6th to 8th.

The Mayland and Bethlehem people of my pastorate had the privilege of hearing Prof. C. H.

Hamilton, rural sociologist at V. P. I., Blacksburg, in the observance of "Rural Life Sunday." My Churches also observed Mothers' Day during May.

Yours in His service,
JOE FRENCH.

FIRST CHURCH, NORFOLK.

The First Christian Church, 505 South Main Street, Norfolk, Va., sends greeting to the rest of the brotherhood of the faith. We are progressing very nicely with our work in general. There seems to be the finest spirit existing that has prevailed for some time; but none other could be expected just now.

The initial services of the new year were an inspiration to both pastor and people when the members promised to join with the pastor in prayer for a period of three months or more for the officers of the Church and Church school, for each organization, the Church's influence upon the disinterested members, the unconverted and the spiritual growth of the Church as a whole. I feel sure that many kept the pledge and that God heard and answered our prayers. The following visible results have taken place.

Soon after we entered into the above-mentioned covenant, a friend of the Church made a proposition that if we would raise three hundred dollars he would give two hundred and fifty dollars to pay off a $550 note which we owed on our organ. The Church accepted the challenge. It was about two weeks before the money was raised and the note met in due time.

In the meantime, there was an opportunity opening up for blessings in another way. During a short illness of the pastor, Dr. Lee W. Ames, of the Moody Bible Institute, supplied at both services the first Sunday in February. His messages were of such power and force that many members of the Church expressed a desire to have him for our post-Easter services. His services were secured, but he could not come to us just after Easter. We started our special services on Sunday, May 11th, and closed Sunday, May 18th. Dr. Ames preached twice on both Sundays and once each night of the week. His messages were scholarly, forceful and inspirational. I do not see how any individual could hear such messages and not feel the power of the Spirit.

As a result of the week's work, there were twenty-five decisions. The Church seems to be greatly built up spiritually. But we can never judge the real value of such services. We do not know what God has wrought in the hearts of His people which will bear fruits in its season.

We are thankful for the blessings we have received at God's hand.

JOSEPH E. MCCAULEY.

PALM STREET CHURCH.

We have just closed one of the most successful revivals the Church has ever had. Two hundred and five were saved and reclaimed. It was indeed beautiful and inspiring to witness this constant gathering of souls for the Master. Surely these were great days for Palm Street Church.

The meeting began Monday, May 11th, and closed Sunday, June 1st, with Rev. L. A. Nall, of Elon College, doing the preaching. Bro. Nall is an earnest preacher, and he believes in preaching the old-time gospel in the old-time way. He believes in the old-fashioned altar, and there were several nights between fifteen and twenty-five people came seeking Christ as their Saviour. With the aid of personal workers, we were able to lead most all of them to Christ. On the closing night of the revival, seventeen were happily saved. We are, indeed, grateful for these blessings. Hundreds came to hear this preacher pour out his soul in heart-searching messages. We feel we were greatly blessed by the ministry of this man these special days.

Our Church, including main floor, balcony and Sunday School rooms, will seat about five hundred people when crowded, and while the Church was full every service, there were several nights a good many were turned away because we were not able to take care of them. So far, about one hundred of these converts have united themselves with the Churches of the community, and up to the present time sixty-three have joined our Church. There are others we are expecting later.

Last Sunday we ordained the following brethren for the office of deacons in our Church: T. C. Apple, S. C. Brady, Z. V. Myrick and O. D. Taylor.

The work at Palm Street has grown to the extent that we feel it is best to add four more to our present board of deacons. These brethren are all faithful and loyal and will be quite an aid to the Church as they serve in their new office. We are happy in our work at Palm Street, and we just feel that this year is going to be the best in the history of the Church.

IN THE SOUTHLAND.

Under this heading, Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, editor of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, published two interesting and appreciative editorials following his visit to the Raleigh meeting and to Elon College. We quote this paragraph:

"In this connection I gathered some interesting facts and gained some new insight into the backgrounds of early Puritanism and independency in the South, and in discovering the significance of the coming together of Congregationalists and Christians in a region where the union is likely to prove immediately more real and vital than anywhere else in the country, I think I saw in a new light the meaning of the effort to build up a unified movement and a unified consciousness in accordance with the ideals suggested by Congregational and Christian in a national life, which, as I have pointed out, is inevitably becoming one."

PLEASANT RIDGE.

Our Pleasant Ridge people have been moving forward. They finished the five Sunday School rooms in a short time after they had begun them; also a place for the choir back of the pulpit. They have the rooms seated with chairs and had Sunday School the fourth Sunday in May in the rooms. The good part of it is that it is all paid for.

We held the memorial service in the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, the fourth Sunday in May. Rev. M. A. Pollard preached a powerful sermon on "Setting Up Memorials" to a large and attentive congregation. After the sermon, several others made good talks, and then we marched out to the cemetery and had a song and prayer that closed the service.

JOHN M. ALLRED, Pastor.

RAMSEUR, N. C.

On June 8th we held our memorial service at Pleasant Union, beginnnig at 10:30 A. M. with devotional services, and followed by recitation by the children at 11:15, and preaching by the pastor. We were favored with quartet singing rendered by Denton and Greensboro quartets, which was well rendered and greatly enjoyed.

In the afternoon, another service was given by the children and Greensboro quartet, after which a number of testimonies were given that were spiritual and inspiring. The day was enjoyed by all present. As pastor, we want to thank the children and good people of Union and all who had part in the service.

On July 27th we will begin our revival, with Rev. T. J. Green to preach for us. We ask that all SUN readers pray for the results of the revival.

B. H. LOWDERMILK.

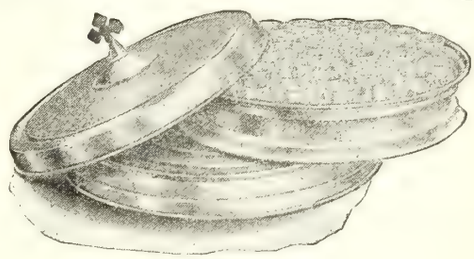
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

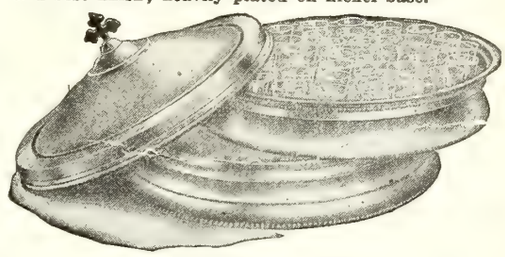


Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

(June.)

Dear Father, Thou workest and we work. Not as a matter of course, nor fitfully, may this day be occupied, but firmly may we, Thy helpers, choose every activity according as Thou dost call and lead. Silent, profound as unfolding dawn, and as real as daylight's deepening hue, may Thy voice of guidance come to us. Bring to Thine aid the service, even the bodies, of those who professedly carry the cross of Jesus, that high and sure it may be planted where shall fall the gaze of all men and whereupon to look as truly is to live! For Christ's dear sake. Amen.

SUBSIDENCE OF OUR FOUNDATIONS.

This was the disconcerting phrase in President Hoover's address in New York. "What we are facing today," he said, "is the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people. We are not suffering from an ephemeral crime-wave, but from a subsidence of our foundations." Such words from the chief magistrate of the nation constitute a solemn challenge to the Churches. The laws of Congress and State legislatures deal only with the external acts and relations of man. They do not create new "foundations" or keep present ones from subsiding. This is distinctably the work of Churches which represent and apply the principles of the gospel of Christ.

Never has the need been more pressing. Humanism, behaviorism, a mechanistic interpretation of the universe, and other cults and isms that seek to improve conditions without Christ, to secure the fruits of Christianity without its roots, are deceiving many. This is the time of all times for the followers of Christ to hold fast to their faith and to proclaim it with redoubled vigor. "To be sure," said that great Chinese Christian Chang Po-ling, "it is a discouraging outlook just now. But why should we let go of our faith because things look bad? If everything looked promising we might do without faith. In discouraging times when all that we see is depressing is the very time when faith helps most. Right now is exactly the time to have faith."

St. Paul wrote to the Corinthians: "For a great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries"; "and," not "but," as if adversaries were to be accepted not as a deterrent but as a part of the opportunity—an emphasis of the challenge to press forward into that "great and effectual door.

Are the Churches Losing Ground?

This is the title of an impressive article by the Rev. Dr. Henry K. Carroll in the Chrsitian Herald of April 26th. The statistics that are cited by this eminent authority shows that "despite the decrease in some instances, the result on the whole is encouraging." They can hardly be termed satisfactory, however. As compared with the figures for preceding years, "there is less proportionate gain and several losses in unexpected places." For the first time in its history, the largest denomination in America, which has long been notable for evangelistic results, shows "a net decrease of 2,440." The survey of the whole situation leads many anxious Christians to fear that the spiritual tide in America is ebbing. But we repeat our former statement that there is no ground for pessimism. The tide will turn. Tides always do. No one who understands what Christ is and what He came to do can doubt for a moment that the recession is anything more than temporary. When the then known world appeared to be crumbling, Augustin cealmly said, "It is a little cloud; it will pass." And he sat down and wrote his inspiring book on "The City of God." Jesus Christ is still the solution of all of earth's problems, the goal of all human progress, the Saviour and King of men. To His inspiring service let every Christian consecrate himself anew.—Missionary Review of the World.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JUNE 14, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,424.44
Triangle Bible Class, Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	5.00
Damascus, Chapel Hill, N. C.	2.40
Windsor, Va.	2.50
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	6.27
Lawrence Mem'l Bible Class, Elon	1.00
Elon College, N. C.	12.50
Linville, Va.	8.30
Shallow Ford, Elon College, N. C.	2.00
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	1.00
Waverly, Va.	12.13
Leaksville, Luray, Va.	2.40
People's, Dover, Del.	44.06
Total	$ 3,529.00

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 5,053.55
Mrs. J. H. Pierce, Sunbury, N. C.	1.00
Lanett, Ala.	3.50
Providence-Memorial, Graham, N. C.	5.00
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	17.00
Ivor, Va.	10.00
Friends	2.00
Suffolk, Va.	590.54
Graham, N. C.	3.00
Biscoe, N. C.	1.00
Antioch, Cumnock, N. C.	1.50
Antioch, Harrisonburg, Va.	45.00
New Hope, Stokesdale, N. C.	1.60
Total	$ 5,734.69

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,366.11
L. E. Carlton, Raleigh, for bldg. fund.	500.00
Total	$ 1,866.11

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$16,216.30
Sunday Schools, regular	104.56
Individual and Church collections	681.14
Specials	500.00
Total to date	$17,502.00

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Total cost of material	$1,275.00
Previously acknowledged	1,090.25
Balance to be secured	$ 184.75

J. O. Atkinson, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Mem'l.
Elon College, N. C.

FROM WORKER AMONG INDIANS.

Today has been a happy one. Oh, no; nothing big has happened, but you know it's the little things in life that count most, anyway. It was the last meeting of my Monday group of Sunbeams. The weather was so lovely we decided to go out on a hill behind the school-house and have our meeting. We took our song-books which we had made ourselves, and, sitting in a circle under a shady tree, we sang, "Jesus wants me for a Sunbeam," "Skin-a-ma-Rink," "Under a Spreading Chestnut Tree," etc. Then we talked about the Eskimos and sang the Eskimo song; also the Japanese. They told me what they liked best in Sunbeams and what they wanted to do next year. With hands clasped with one another, we bowed our heads and each little girl said a sentence-prayer. Afterwards, Minne Haha, whose smile really does make you think of "Laughing Water," gave me a little Navajo cradle which she had made. Giving is novel to these children, who receive so much; so I was rightfully pleased. On walking home I met Guy, a little second-grade boy. He is one of the Yssilth twins, and I confess a pet of mine. I said, "Hello Guy." He said, "Hello! Want some candy?" That was too much—a cradle from Minnie and candy from Guy. He finally fished six or seven pieces out of his pocket, and, with a satisfied grin, left me.

Then tonight I had the last meeting of my Romona Club Girl Reserves. I have scratched my brain for a week to think of something impressive for our last meeting. Remembering the effectiveness of the candle-lighting services I have attended, I decided on that. And it was impressive! Each of us lighted our candle on the large candle representing Christ, and then as we stood with lighted candles we sang, "Jesus, Tender Shepherd" and "Follow the Gleam." I feel that it is something each girl will cherish in her pleasant memories of Fort Apache.

One morning last week Miss Ketchum and I went out with the six girls in the graduating class and cooked breakfast. It was lovely out so early, and there was food galore. Really, I never did see those girls enjoy themselves so much. Then, on Saturday, there was the big picnic for the whole school. It rained in the morning, and we thought that our plans were spoiled. About noon, though, Old Sol came smiling through and we rushed down, started the big fire, and had a glorious dinner. Ball games, ice cream cones, races and jumping rope filled the afternoon. After supper we returned to the fort, tired but happy.

During the last month we Sunbeams have spent our time in finding as many different kinds of flowers as we could, drawing the birds which we see around here, and learning the names of the different kind of cacti. The walks we took to find the flowers also provided an opportunity for eating "salt berries." They are small, soul berries which the children dearly love. They told me that at home they crush them between two rocks, sugar them and make pies.

The first Sunday night assembly of the month was in charge of my Blue and White Girl Reserves. We built a "make-believe" fire in the center of the stage, and all of us sat around it like we do when we go out for supper. With all the other lights out, it was very effective. Quite informally the girls would suggest songs to sing. Mr. Royos passed by, so they asked him to play a saxaphone solo. Later, Ella Secody came in, and they asked her to play on her mouth harp. They themselves played on their toy orchestra instruments. From the first song to "Taps," sung standing with their arms around each other's shoulders, it was good.

Last Sunday night twelve of the largest girls in my Sunday School gave the program. They sang, "Help Somebody Today," "I'll Be a Sunbeam," "Jesus Bids Us Shine," "Follow the Gleam," and other old Sunday School songs. Two girls sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and four others sang "Somebody Did a Golden Deed." With a solo by Mr. Schwirtz, and cornet and saxaphone solos by two of the boys, it was also a very good program.

From now on, things will be one grand rush. Exams, party for the eighth grade, party for a newly married couple, baccalaureate sermon, commencement, Memorial Day. But the thing I am looking forward to most eagerly now is the Girl Reserve Conference at Granite Dells. Only four Indian girls will be allowed to go, and Fort Apache is sending two of these. Dade Dawes and Julia Multin are the girls to go. I am hoping that you will hear about the conference later from the girls themselves.

GRAHAM ROWLAND,
Ft. Apache, Ariz. Religious Work Director.

OUR IDEAL AND OUR DEEDS.

The Christian's ideal is Christ, for Christian means Christ-like. When the ideal is Christ, who is all-purity and loveliness, the embodiment of truth and righteousness, the very thoughts and intents of the mind and heart are centered upon the accomplishment of His will in the hearts of men. The Christian realizes that he is his brother's keeper. So many of the weaker brothers are watching the Christian in his daily walk and talk and patterning their lives accordingly.

In the summer-time the human contact is so much more pronounced than at any other season of the year. The open doors of the home, the recreational centers, the seaside resorts, the excursion trains, the wayside stops of the tourist, all bring together people of different religious and of no religious beliefs.

As the Christian mingles more or less with the motley throng, the words of the apostle Paul to the Corinthians need to be taken seriously: "Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth." The wealth of the soul which must not be diminished even in the recreational moments when many are tempted to let go of their ideal. At just such times the Christian is being closely watched, and lives are made stronger or weaker as the Christian keeps close to his ideal or lets down in a moment of weakness.

Paul sums up the whole attitude of the Christian in the words: "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God. Give none offense, neither to the Jews nor to the Gentiles, nor to the Church of God: even as I please all men in all things, not seeking my own profit, but the profit of many, that all may be saved."

Does our conversation, our songs, our good times glorify our ideal, Christ Jesus? Do those around us feel their need of our Saviour to help them in the journey of life and bring them to the better world? May we, as Christians, as we work or play, ever press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ, knowing that as we attain, those who are watching and following us will also attain unto the same high calling of our ideal, Christ Jesus.

The words of an old hymn come to mind in this connection, with a slight change in the last line:

"A charge to keep I have,
A God to glorify,
A never-dying soul to save,
And fit it for the skies.

"Help me to watch and pray,
And on Thyself rely,
Assured, if I my trust betray,
Some other soul shall die." W.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Antioch Church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. N. Bland. Our pastor, Rev. E. B. White, and his wife were present. He made a most inspiring and helpful talk on the Book of Genesis. We have taken up the study of "Bible Study by Periods," by H. T. Sell, D. D. It is a most interesting book. We are making splendid progress at Antioch.

MRS. J. H. GODWIN, Sec'y.

REV. G. D. HUNT'S LETTER.

Dear Dr. Atkinson:

I am delighted to know that you are to take the trip across with the brethren. I hope you may have the pleasure of your life on this voyage, and a safe return. I am here with Rev. Gray, at East LaGrange Church; had our first service last night. I may be premature in my judgment, but I was impressed that we had a fine service to begin with and I am expecting a good meeting. I am of the candid opinion that this Church is a necessity in that part of the city in which it is located, but it surely needs leadership. I am praying that there may be some way provided by which that Church can be saved to the cause of the Christian denomination. I believe, with the proper leadership, it could be done, but just how and who I do not know. I am trusting God to lead.

I go from here to Lowell, at Roanoke, Ala., with Bro. Meacham, for the fourth Sunday, and then to Providence Chapel, with Rev. Veazey; then to summer school a week; then to Roanoke Church, and so on.

Yours very truly,

LaGrange, Ga. G. D. HUNT.

A PRAYING CHURCH.

A prosperous Church is a Church which prays. It is written, "My house shall be called a house of prayer." We must never lose faith in prayer. We must never abandon prayer. We must never lose the spirit of prayer. A Church can get on for a considerable time without singing, and can go on indefinitely with indifferent singing. A Church may do well with poor preaching, and even without preaching of any kind. But a Church without prayer is no Church at all. We might as well expect a man to live without breathing as to expect a Church to live without praying. Pray for the minister. Pray for the sick and afflicted. Pray for the children. Pray for the lost. Pray for the community. Pray for one another. Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He may send forth laborers into His harvest. Pray without ceasing. Pray everywhere. Let the Church be characterized by prayer, filled with the atmosphere of prayer, and crowned with the trophies of prayer.—Southern Churchman.

OVERHEARD IN AN ORCHARD.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow:
"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:
"Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no Heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."

—Elizabeth Cheney.

"Nothing is eternal but that which is done for God and others. That which is done for self dies."

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Bab'-y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bab'y-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson XIII—June 29, 1930.

Jesus Teaching in the Open.

Golden Text: "For I say unto you, that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 5:20.

Lesson: Matt. 7:21-29.

The golden text deserves some attention. What does this young Teacher mean when He says that if one is to enter into the kingdom of heaven, he must have more righteousness than the scribes and the Pharisees? The scribes and the Pharisees were the religious leaders of the day. They were specialists in religion. They were supposed to have religion, and then to spare. And yet Jesus says unless one has more, or unless one's righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, he cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven. What can he mean?

Well, if we examine the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, we will see that it was legalistic—it was concerned primarily with observing minute and petty details of the law and tradition; it was outward—it was concerned with how a man performed ceremonies, and not with the spirit within the man; it was self-sufficient—there was no sense of deep need as is reflected in the self-sufficient Pharisee who stood and prayed thus with himself, "I thank Thee, Lord, that I am not like other men. I do so and so. I am not like this poor publican"; it was exclusive—there was no sense of brotherhood, no outreaching for others; it was lifeless and dead—it had no power to renew and regenerate. On the other hand, the righteousness which Jesus set us as an ideal was based on glad obedience, the yielding of the heart to the spirit of Jesus; it was the righteousness of grace, it was inner, inclusive, vital, dynamic, re-creative. It was this type of righteousness that made it possible for a man to enter into the kingdom; that is, to enter into that relationship with God in which the will of God was done.

Possession Not Profession.

Jesus says that it is not those who cry out the loudest or the longest, Lord, Lord, who shall enter into the kingdom, but those who do the will of His Father. In other words, it is not so much a case of profession as of possession. Many who have not the spirit of Christ may do work for Christ and may even make some contribution to the progress of the kingdom in limited ways. But the secret of the kingdom is with those who try to do the will of God; those who have His spirit in their hearts; those who are trying to make the will of God effective in life by making it effective in their own lives and in the lives of others.

Wise and Foolish Builders.

"He that heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them" shall be likened unto a wise man. It is interesting to note in all the teachings of Jesus the emphasis that He put upon doing. In one place He says, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." Now this does not mean that Jesus taught that a man is saved by works. It did mean that the primary appeal which Jesus made was to the will. Intellect and emotion have their place in religion, but the will must become active if religion is to be at all vital. Furthermore, the fact that schools have laboratories, and educators insist that there must be opportunity for expression if there is to be any lasting impression are only illustrations of the principle that Jesus was announcing here. It is by doing that a man becomes, that he makes real the thing he is trying to learn, or to become.

"He that doeth them not shall be likened unto a foolish man." Hearing, giving intellectual assent, or feeling emotional impressions and then failnig to give expression to them, exacts a deadly toll. He is foolish indeed who, in the presence of larger truths or of higher ideals or finer impulses, does not try to do the things he sees and hears and feels.

There is many a Church member who is not enjoying his religion because he is not doing anything about it. Impression without expression leads to depression. "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only," said one who had the mind of Christ.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Sunday, June 29, 1930.

By Jewel Truitt.

Topic: "Great Missionary Leaders."

Scripture: Eph. 3:7, 8; 4:11-13.

For this meeting, assign talks on the life of present-day missionaries. Read current magazines that are available for materials for these talks. Our own Church missionary magazines—the Missionary Herald and the American Missionary Magazine—can be used with any other magazines that you can get. These two magazines are always filled with many interesting articles about our mission work and on missions in general.

Talks may be assigned on the following talks: "An Outstanding Missionary of Africa," "Our Missionary Work in China," "The Missionaries and India's New Day," "My Favorite Missionary," "Our Home Mission Work."

Prayer is one of the essential things in the life of all missionaries, and especially leaders in this profession. Below are given some quotations from missionaries, and many of them are on the relation of prayer to the missionaries' life.

"Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God."—William Carey, China.

"I used to pray often, 'Lord, have compassion on a lost world.' At last He said to me: 'I have had compassion on it; it is now for you to have compassion—I gave my heart; give yours.' "—Dr. A. J. Godon.

After one of his trips around the world had been completed, when he had been studying the different missions, John R. Mott said: "What is the greatest need of our missions today? It is not more men, not more money; it is more prayer."

The Labrador doctor, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, says: "In the quiet of home, in the heat of life and strife, in the face of death, the privilege of speech with God is inestimable. I value it more because it calls for nothing that the wayfaring man, though a fool, cannot give; that is, the simplest expression to his simplest desire. When I can neither see, nor hear, nor speak, still I can pray, so that God can hear."

"Prayer and pains, through faith in Jesus Christ, will accomplish everything," said John Eliot, the great apostle to the North American Indians.

The missionaries want you to pray for them. Do you? Here is their message:

Your Prayers.

"When the battle is long, and I'm weary with strife;
When legions of sin and evil are rife,
I feel—and new courage flows into my life—
That you are praying for me.

"When victory comes out of seeming defeat,
And the dark, lowering clouds shine with rainbows replete,
'Tis then that I know—and the assurance is sweet,
That you are praying for me.

"I'll gird tighter my armor and advance in the fight,
With a stanch heart and brave I'll battle for right,
If you will keep praying for me!"

SUMMER SCHOOLS.

Summer schools for leadership training call many of us of the Christian Church to leave our homes, our offices, our stores, and our studies to mingle with others and to study together. Some of us will have the privilege of attending a summer school; others of us will be denied the opportunity to go. Be sure you see the opportunity and seize it if it is within your power.

Study and fellowship together means a deeper interest in our Church work back home; it means greater ease in the task because the work is more familiar; it means more responsive groups to work with because we have prepared ourselves just a little better.

Now is the time for the Sunday School or society or Church to choose the representatives whom it will send to the summer school this year. Money used in sending a boy or girl or adult to one of the summer schools will bring rich returns in character and service. Invest now to your greatest possible limit.

Piedmont Junior Summer School, Wadley, Alabama, July 6th to 11th.

Elon Summer School, Elon College, N. C., July 26th to August 2nd.

Jewel Truitt.

PROGRAM.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR AND SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION AT ROCK SPRINGS CHRISTIAN CHURCH (ALA.), JUNE 28-29.

First Day—Morning Session.

Theme—"Sharing."

10:00. Song Service—Conducted by Milford Austin, Rock Springs.
Welcome Address—Monroe Dollar.

10:15. Worship Service—By Young People of Roanoke Church.

10:30. Address—"Youth's Share in the Work of the Church," by Mr. Klein Hood, Antioch.

11:00. Two Discussion Groups:
Adults—"The Responsibility of Older People for Leading the Youth of the Church," Conducted by Rev. G. D. Hunt.
Young People—"Youth's Opportunities in the Church," Conducted by Miss Jewel Truitt.

11:45. (Reassemble.) Report of Adult Discussion Group by the Secretary.
Report of Youth Discussion Group by the Secretary.
Announcements; Song; Adjournment.

12:15. Dinner.

First Day—Afternoon Session.

1:45. Song Service—By Convention.

2:00. Hymn—"True Hearted, Whole Hearted."
Prayer—By Rev. G. R. Walker.

2:20. Talks and Essays by Young People:
"Sharing in the Sunday School," John Tom Birdsong, of Antioch.
"Sharing Through the Christian Endeavor," by Mary Faye Hill, of Pleasant Grove.
"Youth's Share in the Church Service," by Alean Liles, of New Hope.
"Youth Sharing with Jesus," by May Belle Cockerell, of Spring Hill.
"Stories of sharing from the Bible," by Rev. C. Carl Dollar, of Rock Stand.
Solo—"Living With Jesus," by Miss Gladys Denney, of Beulah.

3:00. Business Meeting—Presentation of Plans for Next Year, by President.
Election of Officers.

4:00. "Our Summer School"—General Discussion, Conducted by President W. E. Edge.

4:30. Recreation—Games, Songs, Fun, Conducted by Miss Jewel Truitt.

First Day—Evening Session.

7:30. Song Service. Special Music.
Essay—"Youth's Share in Building a Christian World," by Miss Eva Mae Smith, of Wadley.
Pageant—"The Modern Quest," by the Society of Beulah—or Address—"Seeking the Holy Grail" (speaker to be selected).
Solo—"Follow the Gleam," by Miss Gladys Denney, of Beulah. Prayer.

Second Day—Morning Session.

Sunday School—Young People of New Hope Church in Charge of Worship Service.
Church Service. Special Music.
Sermon—"The Star of the East," by Rev. G. D. Hunt.
Solo—"Star of the East," by Ralph Denney, Beulah.

G. S. HUNT,
Chairman Program Committee.

NEW CONGREGATIONAL OFFICIALS.

Several of the officials of the Congregational Church Extension Boards have recently retired because of the age limit. Two of those who were connected with the New York headquarters were Dr. James Robert Smith, secretary of the Church Building Society, and Dr. W. W. Leete, editorial and field secretary of the Congregational Church Extension Boards. In the issue of June 5th, the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty printed an article by Dr. Halliday with regard to these servants of the board and the denomination who are retiring, and especially introducing two of those who have been appointed to these vacancies. Mr. Elbert C. Wood succeeds Dr. James Robert Smith, and Rev. Frank E. Henry succeeds Dr. Leete. Because of the close relations that will exist between these men and our Southeastern area we are pleasd to reprint from the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty Dr. Halliday's words of introduction:

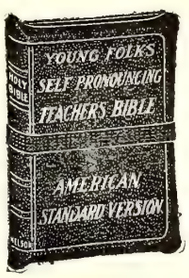
"Mr. Elbert C. Wood, who becomes Church-building secretary, brings to his duties the threefold equipment of sterling Christian character, long experience as an active Congregational layman, and nearly thirty years of legal practice in New York City. A native of the Empire State, he was graduated from the New York Law School and was admitted to the bar in 1901. For some years he was in charge of the title department of Butcher, Tanner & Foster, attorneys for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and in that capacity had vast experience in the handling of real estate loans and mortgages. He resigned from this position to come to his new work. Mr. Wood's experience as Sunday School superintendent, deacon and trustee of First Congregational Church at Spring Valley, a suburb of New York City, will doubtless stand him in good stead, as he is called upon to understand the problems of the many Churches which the Church Building Society serves.

"Rev. Frank E. Henry was an Iowa boy, born on a farm in that State. His education was in the public schools and in Grinnell College, from which he graduated in 1896 after having made a name for himself in college athletics and in the field of college literature and oratory. His theological training was received at Union and Chicago Theological Seminaries. During part of his residence in Chicago he was associated with Dr. Graham Taylor at the famous "Commons." Following his ordination, Mr. Henry held pastorates at Omaha, Neb., Garner, Belle Plaine and Sibley, Iowa. Pioneer service in the home missions' field began in Plentywood, Mont., where his original field of three Churches and Sunday Schools grew to seven Churches, ten Sunday Schools and twenty preaching points. Following work at Glasgow, Mont., he was called to State work.

"Mr. Henry has made a number of tours of New York and New England in the interest of home missions, and has been in demand as a speaker at summer conferences at Northfield, Silver Bay and elsewhere. His sermons, articles, stories and poems have appeared not only in our denominational publications, but in such papers as the Christian Herald, Homiletic Review, and the Outlook. He comes well prepared for his duties as editorial and field secretary."

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.



These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

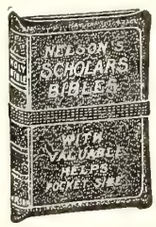
India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only 7/8-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

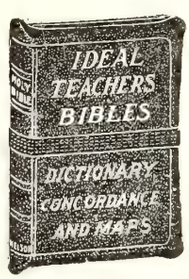
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8⅛ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.

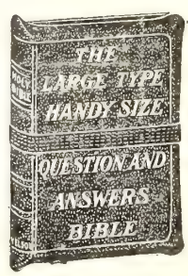


Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.



1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

BY DR. AMOS R. WELLS.

MONDAY.

THE BUILDING OF THE TEMPLE.

"His disciples came to Him to show Him the buildings of the temple."—Matt. 24:1-9.

The temple was one of the wonders of the world. It was not the temple of Solomon, which had been destroyed; nor the temple of Zerubbabel, which was so inferior to Solomon's temple, that the men who remembered former glories wept when the new foundations were laid; but it was the third temple, built by Herod the Great in a style of vast magnificence. Our Lord rejoiced in the splendor of His Father's house when He was a boy, and His disciples also rejoiced in it, and pointed out some of its glories as they were leaving it for their Bethany retreat on Passover week.

That temple also was destroyed, and now the temple mount is occupied by a Moslem mosque; but every Christian Church in the world is a successor to it, wherein the same God is worshiped, the same psalms are sung, and the same Passover is celebrated with infinitely enlarged scope and significance.

What would our Lord think and say if twelve men from our Church were to take Him to see our Church building, our temple to the living God, to His Holy Spirit, and to His dear Son? What beauties, what abiding strength, what splendors of loving adornment would we, the modern disciples, be able to show our Saviour if we went with Him through our local temple?

Prayer.—Our Blessed Redeemer, Thy Church buildings are memorials to Thee, to Thy life and Thy death, and to Thy continuing life. Help us to make them more worthy memorials, that they may honor Thee and not dishonor us. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE NOBLE ORDER OF REPAIRERS.

"Thou shalt be called the repairer of the breach, the restorer of paths to dwell in."—Isa. 58:9-14.

If the Church property is not kept up, the Church religion is not kept up. If the pew cushions become moth-eaten, the religion of their occupants is likely to go the same way. If the Church carpet is allowed to grow ragged, respect for religious truth falls to a low ebb.

And so every Church should form what might be called, after Isaiah, the Noble Army of Repairers. Every Church should have an active committee interested in preserving and beautifying the Church property, and making it as neat, substantial, and attractive as any property in town, to say the least. It is as noble to maintain a Church as to build one. Few of us are called on to build a Church, but each one of us has the proud privilege and happy duty of helping to maintain a Church.

Prayer.—Our Father in heaven, we worship Thee on earth. In honoring these earthly temples we honor Thee, and in neglecting them we neglect Thee. May we become repairers and restorers, cleansers and beautifiers, till Thy house shines in its loveliness, and commends religion to all who see it. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE SOLEMN, JOYOUS ORGAN.

"Praise Him with stringed instruments and pipe."—Psa. 150:1-6.

Of course, David was not thinking of our pipe organs, for they were not invented, but how he would have rejoiced in one if he had had one! In lieu of the organ, he called on almost all the musical instruments known to him, and bade them join in the worship of his God. For he knew that the God who planted the love of music in the heart of man, Himself loved sweet and inspiring sounds, and was to be acceptably worshiped with them.

But not if the organ is out of tune. Not if its tone is flat. Not if the wind goes whistling through its pipes like the despairing breath of lost souls. The organ that worships God must, like His gospel, give forth no uncertain sound. Have we such an organ in our Church, or is ours only a parody of an organ?

Prayer.—We want to sing Thy praises, O Jehovah. We want to form part of a worthy congregation, joining in hymns to Thee, led by a beautiful diapason. May we not rest till our songs arise to Thee in their full beauty and power. Amen.

THURSDAY.

SILVER TRUMPETS.

"Thou shalt use them for the calling of the congregation."—Num. 10:1-10.

The ancient Hebrews knew nothing about Church bells, but they had their beautiful and melodious silver trumpets, which answered the same purpose for a smaller area. With them the priests called the congregation together, announced the feasts, sounded sudden alarms. Their sweet and penetrating tones stood to the Hebrews for the voice of their religion, reaching to the inner recesses of their homes, and binding all hearts together with divine harmony.

What do our Church bells mean to us? Some peevish and irascible people are constantly quarreling with them, and would like to silence altogether their voices from the sky, because they break in on their Sunday sleep, following a Saturday night of merry-making and probably of debauch. But long may the bells continue to sound over city roofs and country vales, reminding us of the realities of life, and summoning us to consider with God in His house our present duty and our eternal destiny.

Prayer.—Lord, we would ring out our faith. Lord, we would proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof. Lord, we would blow up the trumpet at the new moon, on our solemn feast day. Amen.

FRIDAY.

STAINED GLASS.

"Two doors . . . and he carved thereon cherubim and palm trees and open flowers, and he overlaid them with gold fitted upon the graven work."—1 Kings 6:29-36.

Solomon's temple knew nothing of the glories of stained-glass windows; its windows were only "fixed lattice-work," well suited to that semi-tropical climate. In place of the splendors of stained glass, however, the great temple luxuriated in beautiful carvings, in gorgeously embroidered curtains, and in lavish coatings of gold.

It seems a great pity that every Church may not have at least one small specimen of the loveliness of stained glass. Color is so large a part of the beauty of nature that God must exult in it, and stained glass adds the inspiration of form and feature and spiritual meaning. Through stained glass the sun shines joyously, the Creator seeming to join with man in the anthem of wonderful hues. A stained-glass window, however small, brings to the humblest Church something of the atmosphere of a cathedral, and there is no more fruitful and fitting memorial of the dead than this abiding inspiration of the living.

Prayer.—For beauty worships Thee, our Creator, as beauty always reminds us of Thee. Beauty uplifts the soul. Beauty sets the heart to singing. And all the angels sing with the lovers of true beauty on earth. Oh, may we worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE LIGHT OF THE SANCTUARY.

"He made the ten candle-sticks of gold according to the ordinance concerning them, and he set them in the temple, five on the right hand, and five on the left."—2 Chron. 4:7-11, 19-22.

The interior of the sanctuary of the ancient Hebrews must have been indeed a dark place, except that the glory of Jehovah enlightened it; but that was in the Most High place, entered once a year by the high priest. In the Holy Place, which only the tribe of Levi might enter, and only in the care of the temple, the light was supplied by only these few candle-sticks, with their oil lamps and their floating wicks. How Solomon would stand amazed at the light and cheer of our modern Churches, and how astonished he would be at the hearty, free-moving throngs pressing in!

While the heathen world still darkens its temples and preserves its dull and grewsome mysteries inviolate, the light of Christianity has poured into our temples a veritable sun, to fill the worshiping soul with gladness and point him to the Light of the world. Let us praise God for chandeliers. Let us exult in electricity. Let us rejoice that the cross can now be illuminated. Let us sing with a new voice now that there are no dark corners in our Churches.

Prayer.—For Thy Church, O Christ, means to us the clear shining of the sun of righteousness. It means the dawning of a bright new day over all the earth. May our lives be a part of its appearing, for Thy name's sake. Amen.

SUNDAY.

OUR HOUSE OF PRAYER.

"Lift up your hands to the sanctuary, and bless ye Jehovah."—Psa. 134:1-3.

Our Church buildings are the home of prayer. We think of them as we pray, wherever we may be, as we offer our petitions and praise to God. If they are not devotional in their aspect, within and without, they are not rightly built, or we are not in the right relation to them.

Our Church buildings should wear the air of God's great peace. All glare should fade away from them, all tumult should die down within their walls. If they are not worshipful, they should be made so, and often a very slight change would transform them into abodes which we can hardly enter without bending the knees of our souls.

It behooves every Christian, if his Church is not already such a place of worship, to do what he can to transform it into one. Great blessing will thus come, not only to himself but to coming generations.

Prayer.—Yes, Lord, it is Thy house; but it is also ours, our house of prayer. The consciousness of it is ever with us, and enables us to pray without ceasing. The delight of it is ever ours, and gives us continually the joy of the Lord. Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

THE HEN.

THE FIVE CALLS OF CHRIST.

By Rev. M. T. Sorrell.

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! Thou that killeth the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee! How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"—Matt. 23:37.

(This sermon is sent to The Christian Sun for publication by request of a number of those who heard it and by the editor. I am glad to have the opportunity to have this message given to The Sun and appreciate the editor's request and space for the message. —M. T. S.)

This is one of the few places in which Christ compares Himself to a hen. It must have been that even two thousand years ago the hen was a common bird of that day. Christ always used the simple things, the things that people could see and understand, to teach and drive home the great truths which He would have us understand. We want now to take up this study from the common old hen which most of us are acquainted with.

There are five calls which the hen has, and no one of them is like unto the other. Yet each call is a call leading up to the next call. Christ used the illustrations to bring before the people His great plan and work and His mission to this world.

I. The Call from Death to Life.

You will note that the hen begins to sit. She will begin to call. We know not what this call is, but she knows and she calls for a few days. Then we see the owner placing eggs under her for hatching. She continues this call for several weeks. Note this is the most trying part of her life. Day by day she calls. Now she is seeking to call forth from death to life those which she would have to care for. Time goes on, and finally one day she begins to see the fruit of her labor. Not all the eggs will hatch; not all the people we preach to and all whom Christ calls come. But, nevertheless, the hen keeps calling until she has called all to life that will come. Christ was seeking to get the world to see that we were all dead in trespasses and sin. We are dead as far as having the life of Christ. Christ said, "O Jerusalem, how oft would I have called thee to life, but you would not!" How oft today God would call us from death unto life; call us to be heirs of heaven by His blood, but the people will not hear His call. The most trying time is to get people to see that they cannot do anything to save themselves. Not one of those eggs could hatch out within themselves; it had to be done by the caller. Not one of us can do anything to save ourselves; if we are ever saved, we must be saved by the blood of Christ. I know this is quite hard for some to realize, as we like to have a part in our salvation, but Christ said, "Father, it is finished." What more can we add to the great plan of salvation? What more can we do than that which Christ has done? Nothing! We are simply dead creatures to God, and if we would become live to Him, we must be born again by the Spirit. May we not hear Christ calling us from death unto life.

II. The Call to Feed.

Now the hour has come when the chicks must be fed. The hen changes her call, and we find her leaving the nest and going out to feed. We know not what the hen's call is, but her chicks hear her. The world today cannot know God's call to read and feast on His word, because they have not heard His voice.

The hen knows if she does not feed the chicks they will soon starve, they cannot grow. So she begins to teach them to feed, and soon we find those that will feed growing, and soon they come to the place they can scratch for themselves. Those that will not hear her call to feed soon droop and perish. There is your Church today; we get people to hear Christ's call, and people become born into the kingdom of heaven. But here we ministers stop; we are too busy with our Church problems and the problems of life to teach our folks to read the Word of God. As a result, we soon have a Church full of backsliders and hypocrites; people who will not attend Church; people who will not pay to the Church, and people who do not believe in missions and the great enterprises of God. Why has all this come about? They have not studied the Word of God. Paul tells us to "grow." We cannot grow unless we feed upon the Word of God. The reason so many people in life today who pretend to follow God never enjoy their religion, is because they never study the Word of God. Just as it is impossible for any one to grow without eating, just so it is impossible for any minister or Church member to grow without studying the Word of God. "O Jerusalem, how oft I would hvae called thee to feed on the Word of God, but ye would not!"

III. The Call to Activity.

Note the hen realizes now that the chicks are beginning to grow, and now they need to get out and scratch some for themselves. They need to begin working for themselves. Now she begins with another call, and you will see the chicks following after her. She teaches them how to scratch and how to find food for themselves. We know not what this call is, but we know they hear her. Christ tells us, "My sheep hear my voice." If the chicks did not ever do anything they would die or would starve when the time came for them to make a living for themselves.

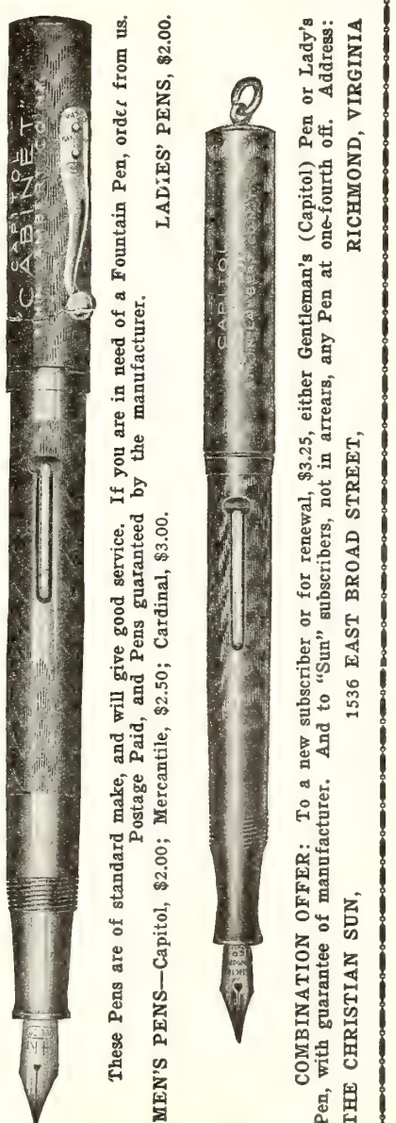
How true it is today when we see so many folks who belong to the Church, but have never won a soul to Christ! so many who have never had a family altar; so many who have never talked to their children about their soul's welfare; so many who have never given anything; so many who have never led in public prayer; so many who have never led a prayer-meeting; so many who have never done anything in the kingdom of Christ as represented through His Church. And yet we do often hear people say, "I do not get anything out of my religion and do not know why it is." Well, it is plain to be seen that they have never put anything into it. I would not be a Christian if I did not intend doing anything for Christ. The old story of two drunken men is told—one an American and the other an Englishman. The American would make his friend feel good by saying, "Mack, if I was not an American, you know what I had rather be?" "No," said the Englishman." "I had rather be an Englishman." The Englishman made no reply, and the American said, "If you were not an Englishman, what had you rather be?" He replied, "I would be ashamed of myself."

I can say if I were a Christian and was doing nothing for my Christ, I would be ashamed of myself. Talk to people about supporting our mission work, or any enterprise of the Church. They have just had a bad crop year, or wages are going to be cut. But let them go to buy an automobile or any luxury in life, and times are getting better. I was talking to a person some time ago, trying to get him to do something for Christ. He had a lot of excuses. I said, "Go out and talk to some one about their soul's salvation." He said, "I do not know anything to say." I said, "Do like I did when I first began to go with the girls. I was bashful as could be. I was trying to go with a girl that was very talkative—she talked and talked until she became disgusted with me. She said, 'Why don't you say something?' I just grinned and said, 'I do not know anything to say.' She said, 'Say something.' I said, 'You are one of the best-looking girls I have ever gone with.' She said, 'You have said more than any one else has ever said.' Now, if you will go uot and just tell some person you want to see them saved, you, no doubt, will tell them something no one else has ever told them." May we not put our Christian life into practice? "O Jerusalem, how oft I would

(Continued on Page 15.)

WHEN IN RICHMOND EAT AT
Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria
805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia
Opposite Richmond Hotel.

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN



These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The writer had a most enjoyable visit to the Valley Virginia Conference last week to attend the Valley Virginia Central Conference Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, which met at the Linville Christian Church. Bro. R. A. Whitten invited us to go with him in his car, as he was going through the country. It is one of the most beautiful country trips I have ever taken. The road winds so beautifully through the gaps of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and the scenery all along the way on both sides of the highway is grand and glorious to behold. It carries one near the door of nature in all its grandeur and beauty. The clouds flitting across the sun would cast its shadow across the mountain-sides and show us a picture so grand that no pen could portray or hand paint a scene so beautiful and inspiring.

Traveling through the valleys along the sides of the mountains and through the gaps draws one closer to Him who by a word spoke them into existence. In making the mountains and piling them up high and clothing them in trees, shrubs, and vines, God made a thing of beauty for the inspiration of man. Then, too, we are reminded that He was kind because He made gaps through which man could build beautiful highways; so man could pass to the other side and see things new and inspiring. Then, as we motor down the mountain-side into the valley beyond, and behold the beautiful wheat fields with its golden grain near unto harvest, it fills our hearts with gratitude that God is so good and kind to mankind and has made us such a beautiful world in which to live.

In the beautiful Valley of Virginia, looking at the mountains on both sides in all their beauty and grandeur and the golden wheatfields over which the winds cause beautiful waves to roll, are beautiful and grand and inspiring; but the best of all is its people, who are so kind and hospitable; who make you feel at home and show you every courtesy and kindness that can be shown, and make you feel like shedding a tear when the time comes to leave for home, and when you leave you hope the time will soon come when you can make another visit to the Valley. A great section of our country. A great people who live there. A happy place to go.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JUNE 19, 1930.

Brought forward	$8,020.76

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Hines Chapel	$ 2.21
Shallow Ford	2.09
Apple's Chapel	6.13
New Lebanon Sunday School	2.00
New Lebanon Baracca Class	2.00
Howard's Chapel	2.00
Durham	34.49
		50.92

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Oak Level	$ 3.05
Pleasant Union	7.50
Christian Chapel	2.80
Mebane	2.00
Cary	3.59
Youngsville	2.00
Shallow Well	2.00
Wake Chapel	5.00
Piney Plains	5.11
		33.05

Western N. C. Conference:

Union Grove	$ 3.00
Randleman	2.50
Pleasant Ridge	2.65
		8.15

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Wakefield	$ 1.95
First Church, Richmond	15.45
Waverly	10.00
		27.40

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Palmyra		3.12

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

North Highland		2.70

Alabama Conference:

Roanoke		2.40

Special Offerings.

L. W. Wagoner	$ 3.25
T. B. Roberts, support children	32.00
M. Y. Wilson, support children	20.00
J. M. Bullock, support Hazel	20.00
J. A. Kagey	5.00
		80.25
Grand total		$8,228.75

EXTENSION WORKERS.

Miss Annie Campbell and Miss Dora Brackin are appointed to special work with the group of Churches around Fort Valley, Ga., conducting vacation Bible Schools and working with the Sunday Schools and Young People's groups. Miss Campbell graduated recently from the Hartford School of Religious Education, having previously graduated from Rollins College. Miss Brackin, after graduating from Piedmont College a year ago, has spent the past year working in connection with the West Tampa Mission and with the First Congregational Church at Tampa. These young ladies are well qualified for their work.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.
10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges ---------- $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

[a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [2] or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x-- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [25]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x--------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -------$6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

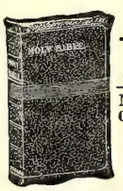
Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th



Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible -------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition
No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

have called thee to a life of activity, but you would not."

IV. A Call to Protection.

Now, the hen feels deeply the great task before her and is very anxious to keep all that has been committed unto her. So now she begins another call. We do not know what she says, but the chicks know. Now she is away from the house, and a hawk sores above them. She calls them to her protection, and they will always come. Let them be out and a storm may be coming up, and long before the chicks realize the danger of the storm, the hen has begun calling them to shelter. She always watches for them.

We find that God told Adam He would put a flaming sword at the gate, and that it would protect the tree of life. God was trying to show man hundreds of years ago that He would protect His children, that no harm would befall them. Do we not see this again when Christ said, "I have kept all Thou hast given me but one"; and he was not a child of God. Do we not see Paul again when he said, "I am persuaded He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day"—the day when we should be revealed before God. Then people will say, "I am afraid I cannot hold out if I become a Christian." You are right if you are the dependence to hold out you will soon fail. But Christ is the one that is holding to us, and He cannot fail. If we could but get people to see today that Christ is going to protect us, and that it is by His grace that we are upheld. Again, do we not read, "There is not temptation come upon you but that such is common to God and He will make a way of escape." Then we hear Christ again, "O Jerusalem, how oft I would have called thee to a life of protection, but ye would not!"

V. A Call to Rest.

Last of all, but not least, we find the hen calling her chickens to rest. The day is drawing fast to a close, and night is now falling fast, and now the hen begins to call. It is still another call that we do not understand, but the chicks do. They are now following her, and know her call. She hastens on with them to a place of rest.

This is quite true of the Christian. We may have toiled many years here with adverse conditions. Our life may be worn and tired from the heat of the day. We may have passed through with many hardships, and at times it may seem that the burten has been almost too heavy for us. But now, after the years of hardship, life seems to hold no more for us and all is done, as far as we can see. He who loves us calls us to rest.

You will note the hen does not call her chicks up at once. For the first few weeks of their life she prepares them for the last of her weeks with them. The first few weeks are spent in the chicken-house on the ground. They do not know what she has in store for them. It is quite true with the believer of Christ. God does not always call them at once. He begins preparing them for the future. The hen can be later seen calling from the first step. She will get all the chicks up the first round, and on until she has finally reached the last round.

So it is true with Christ. He does not always call us to the top, but day by day and week by week He calls us to come on, round by round, until the race is finished, and then we can hear Him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful over a few things; enter into the joy of thy Lord. I will make thee ruler over many things."

"O Jerusalem, how oft I would have called thee to come up and rest, but ye would not!"

Danville, Va.

LANETT, ALA.

We have just closed our revival meeting, which lasted for two weeks. We had a very profitable meeting. We had only ten additions to the Church, but we were not trying so much to get members as we were trying to get the spiritual life of our Church built up. We feel sure that there will be several to join yet as a result of the meeting.

Rev. G. D. Hunt did the preaching, and everybody that knows Bro. Hunt knows that it was well done and of the highest type of gospel preaching. His sermons were deeply spiritual, plain and powerful and appreciated by all. We had good crowds from start to finish, and Bro. Hunt's work among us was highly appreciated by our people. Bro. Hunt has a warm place in our hearts and will always find a welcome at Lanett.

Bro. J. O. Bolt, the chorister of our Church, led the music. Bro. Bolt is a good Christian man and one of the very best singers in the valley, and the singers of Lanett and the valley gave him splendid co-operation; and, with Mrs. Ina Sorrell at the piano, with her splendid choir of junior boys and girls, the music was a wonderful success.

We have some as good people here in our Church at Lanett as we have anywhere in the world, but we are not doing what we should do to reach a lost world for Jesus Christ; so, Christian friends, pray for us, that God may have the pleasure of using our lives to the accomplishing of His will and to the glory of His own name.

J. D. Dollar, Pastor.

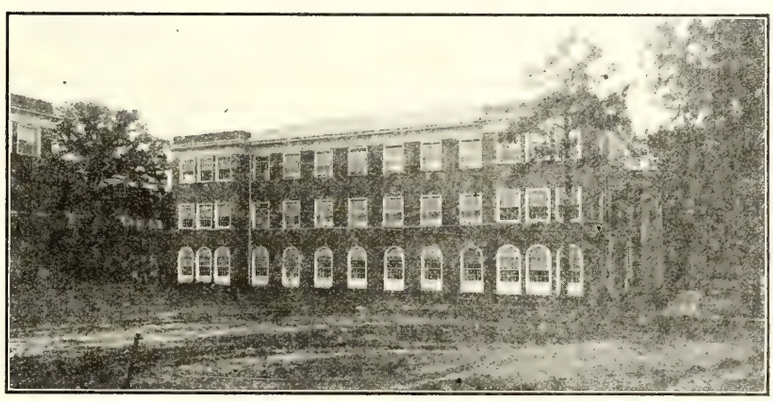
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

Elon College is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, Elon is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. Elon offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, :: :: North Carolina

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL. D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

COLE.

On April 24, 1930, Mrs. Margaret Bethel Cole fell on sleep. Sister Cole had enjoyed fair health until just a few days before her unexpected departure. Embodied in the unimpeachable character of this godly woman were all the graces of a Christian follower. Mrs. Cole was one and the same sweet-spirited mother, wife and friend every time one saw her. She was born August 22, 1871, united with the Church in early life, and in 1889 she married Bro. J. B. Cole.

Besides her husband, the following children survive: E. H. Cole, D. E. Cole, Mrs. D. A. Freeman, Mrs. B. A. King, C. R. Cole, Mrs. C. D. Williams, E. C. Cole, Mrs. A. R. Bundy, Mrs. T. O. Riley, Sam Cole, Burl Cole, Ollie Cole.

Interment in cemetery at Big Oak by writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Matheson, of Jackson Springs.

E. CARL BRADY.

FLOYD.

Early Wednesday morning, May 14, 1930, Dea. Jno. H. Floyd, of Oak Grove Church, Chigley, Ga., passed from earth's labors to the rewards appointed for the faithful. He was a charter member of his Church, its senior deacon, and for a goodly portion of its existence had served as superintendent of the Sunday School. Moreover, Bro. Floyd served efficiently as treasurer of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference, and when forced to relinquish this responsible post because of ill health, his Conference evidenced its genuine esteem and affection by pressing into service as his successor none other than Bro. Floyd's eldest son, Henry B. Floyd.

Few men in all our brotherhood have shown such devotion to our Church and its interests as did Bro. Floyd; and no man in all the community will be so badly missed. Truly it was said of his funeral, "There is no one who can take his place."

He seemed to get the greatest joy when he found some way of service to his neighbor. "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?" Funeral services were conducted from the Church by Pastor C. W. Hanson, assisted by his former pastor, H. M. Gray. Burial in the family cemetery.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

666

Relieves a Headache or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, checks a Cold the first day, and checks Malaria in three days.

666 ALSO IN TABLETS.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

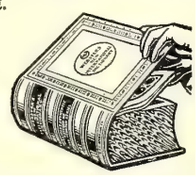
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ 7 From that time Jē' to preach, and to say, "I the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ 7 From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1930. NUMBER 26.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Dr. W. C. Wicker.

FORD'S FIFTY-FIVE.—

Henry Ford of flivver fame says: "Business and industry more than ever depends upon the leadership of men of mature years. Today's youngsters are a fine lot, but if the men over fifty-five were removed from business it could not carry on." He ought to know something of the value of experienced men as leaders in business and industry, since he has been engaged in this field of effort with phenominal success for a number of years. With the lengthening age of the human race, with the disposition developing to continue to learn in adulthood, and with the advantages of education supplemented by experience in the laboratory of business and industry, those who have advanced to the riper age are more capable of dependability and efficiency than they were when youngsters just entering upon their life career. Henry Ford believes they are better informed (Dr. Osler thinks they should be chloroformed).

CHURCH BUILDING.—

The progress in Church building during the first four months of 1930 shows that interest in religion is not on the decline. Far from it! The flattering news comes from the United States Department of Commerce revealing that construction contracts awarded during this period for the erection of Churches and memorial structures increased 21 per cent. During this same period, be it noted, contracts for residential construction decreased 49 per cent, and contracts for industrial buildings decreased 24 per cent, and for commercial buildings 14 per cent. In 1930, for new Church buildings, the American people will probably spend $230,000,000, which shows a rather accurate estimate of the opinion of our people for the value of the Christian religion, for the welfare of our nation. Like the materialist present when Christ was anointed for His burial, the materialists of our time may say, "Why all this waste?" Nothing is wasted when wisely spent for Christ and the Church.

UNION OF COMMUNIONS.—

The Presbyterian Church of the United States of America has just closed what they declare to have been one of the most harmonious sessions ever held. There was an almost unanimous opinion among the commissioners that they had participated in one of the most constructive, co-operative and forward-looking gatherings in the history of that Church. The public press, with more or less impartial observers, was loud in its praise of the spirit of fairness by the moderator, whose genial spirit and felicitous words were responsible in no small degree for the truly Christian atmosphere that pervaded the assembly. "The self-appointed custodians of the ark of God, whose zeal is not according to knowledge and whose 'lame hands' shake rather than steady the structure, were conspicuous only by their absence."

Union with the United Presbyterian Church is almost an accomplished fact, and organic union with the Reformed Churches may not be so far away, but the internal fellowship, devoutly wished, is, after all, the greatest accomplishment and the true precurser of all efforts to promote structural changes.

AGAINST PEACE AND DEMOCRACY.—

Italy and Russia stand together today in opposition to world peace and the promotion of world democracy. In both countries the popular opinion is aflame for war. The policies in these two nations of the western world only are being shaped upon the inevitability, and one could say without missing the mark far, of further international conflict. Benito Mussolini's address, however, must not be taken too seriously, for the "braggadocio" spirit generally over-reaches the mark. His nation is too small to be as strong as his language; but even in a small nation inflamed language is dangerous, and his leadership is making his country a menace to the new world order. We have outlawed Russia already for her inflamed and incendiary practices. If Italy continues in her present policies, we may have to take the same action in time to come toward her to promote the cause of national and international civilization. Domination, intolerance, and despotism are the arch-enemies of civilization, education, and the Christian religion. When the world and the Church becomes Christianized, the home, the school, the Church and the nation will respect the individual, protect the personal, and reflect the spiritual rights of humanity.

EXCLUSION TO END.—

Chairman Johnson, of the House Immigration Committee, who, in 1924, supported the now United States exclusion law which allowed only immigrants to enter the United States who are eligible to citizenship, has changed his mind on this subject, and he is now zealous to correct what he terms a legislative mistake. This law automatically excluded Japanese, Chinese and other yellow races. It was aimed primarily to prevent Japanese immigrants from California, and has been termed the Japanese exclusion law. This measure supplanted the previous gentleman's agreement by which Japan had undertaken voluntarily to prevent immigration into the United States. Hatred of this measure in Japan has not abated with the passage of time, and Mr. Johnson, it is reported from Washington, will initiate a movement to lift the ban. His proposal is said to have the backing of the State Department.

It has been generally admitted that the 1924 measure reflected not the considered opinion of Congress, but rather was a congressional rebuke to the then Japanese ambassador, Massanao Hanihara, who published a letter to Secretary of State Hughes predicting "grave consequences" if exclusion legislation were passed. It seems to be a Christian attitude toward the yellow races which American missionaries have sought to Christianize. Christian charity here is far better than racial rancor.

COMMUNISM AND CHINA.—

China seems to be the only country that is seriously threatened with the curse of communism, and it is thus threatened because it seems at present to be sinking into chaos. Sherwood Eddy writes, as a friend of this great people out of a confirmed optimism that he has always felt for China in the past and that he still feels for her ultimate future, that the next decade looks omnious.

It is a familiar fact that as the West passed through a transition, including an intellectual renaissance, a religious reformation, and a series of political, industrial, educational and religious revolutions spread over several centuries, China has been forced to undergo these changes all at once. Twenty years ago, China was in a static, changeless, Confucian civilization, bound in her old customs, traditions, religions; but today she has bodies of modern students, organized labor, and even country peasants in some districts literally seething with communism. How can we account for such a radical and rapid change?

There are two simultaneous processes going on in China in the present revolution, viz: decomposition and recomposition. There is a rapid disintegration of the old order and a slow, conservative integration of the new. It is the destructive that is the more obvious and omnious. Militarism, civil war, lawlessness and disorder, the blight of opium, poverty and destruction resulting from these evils, followed by the consequent menace of communism, show some of the dangers that threaten the very life of the nation. Russia alone following the World War could compare with the present condition of China, which is now plunged in civil war. With between one and two million soldiers in the largest armies in the world today eating up the produce of the country, living off the people, seizing and ruining the principal railways, consuming for military purposes 85 per cent of even the published portion of the national budget, China is bled white by incessant militarism. This naturally leads to lawlessness, disorder, banditism, and unpaid soldiers, and the unemployed in civil life loot the cities in time of war and the villages in time of peace.

NOTES-PERSONALS

We regret to learn in a recent letter from Rev. G. H. Veazey, Roanoke, Ala., that his baby is seriously ill from mastoiditis, for which she has undergone a successful operation and is in the city hospital, Columbus, Ga. Our sympathy and prayers go out for the parents and for the speedy recovery of the child.

We are very glad to know that Dr. W. W. Staley is improving from his recent illness. In the shortest letter we have ever received from him, he says: "I've been sick in bed ten days with malaria, but I will try to keep up my work for THE SUN, as I am better. Love to all." While this note was intended for the managing editor, we are sure that the last sentence in it is all-inclusive enough and big enough to take care of every SUN reader. Our earnest prayers are offered for his early restoration to perfect health.

Miss Graham Rowland arrived home yesterday at Greensboro from her mission work among the Indians to visit her father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Rowland, of that city. Her fond parents rejoice that she has consecrated her life to the mission field and is doing such a fine work among the neglected people for Jesus Christ. Thousands of friends join them in this commendable pride and rejoice with them in her return home for a vacation. Miss Rowland is expected to attend the Summer School of Methods at Elon College and contribute to its missionary program. Her many friends among the young people of the Church will be glad to meet and greet her there.

One of the largest attended and most enthusiastic sessions of the North Carolina and Virginia S. S. & C. E. Convention has just closed at Pleasant Ridge Christian Church, in Guilford County. There were over 200 people attending the convention. The program was booked full of practical discussions and addresses, and much important business was transacted. The community entertained the convention royally, and everybody seemed to be happy in the fine fellowship and Christian association. A fuller account of the convention will be published later, giving in detail some of the valuable things for the Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies to think and act upon during the coming year. There were fifteen ministers present in the convention, showing their interest in the growth of the work among the young people of the Church. The outlook for the new year in this field seems to be bright, and our Sunday Schools, officers and teachers are urged to take a forward step as result of the plans that have been adopted for the future.

NOTICE.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will hold its regular annual session at Waverly, Va., July 22nd and 23rd. The Sunday School superintendents will please take note and see that delegates from their schools are present. The program for this convention will appear in a later issue of THE SUN.

Preachers, officers and delegates will also note the following: Owing to the fact that we received no invitation under the old plan, it was necessary for the executive committee to offer the convention on the Harvard plan. Waverly was the only Church to extend us an invitation. It is expected, therefore, that the delegates and visitors will pay for dinner and supper the first day and dinner the second day.

JOSEPH E. MCCAULEY,
Executive Secretary.

AN APPRECIATION.

Whereas, Rev. W. C. Hook, of Holland, Va., has for four years, been a member of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, and has held a prominent charge in the same, and is also a member of the Ministers' Association of said Conference; and, whereas, he is now resigning his present pastorate and contemplates taking work in another Conference; be it resolved:

1. That we place on record our appreciation of the good work he has done in this Conference as a pastor and as executive secretary of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention and pastor-counselor of the Youth's Congress, and also his fellowship and helpfulness as a member of this association.

2. That we express our sincere regret at losing him from our midst and cordially commend him to any Church that may need his services and to the fellowship of his brethren of the ministry wherever he may go.

Done by order of the Ministerial Association of the Eastern Virginia Conference, in session at Franklin, Va., June 16, 1930.

N. G. NEWMAN,
J. W. FIX,
W. W. STALEY,
Committee.

THORSBY.

Thorsby, Ala., midway between Birmingham and Montgomery, is an interesting place on the commencement day of Thorsby Institute, a high-grade Christian academy, which has yearly graduated a number of the most promising high school students of the State. The buildings are attractive and absolutely clean. The community gathers in the commodious auditorium. The girls of the girls' chorus are dressed in white. The two ranking students of the graduating class read essays. This year they deal with "The Development of Moving Pictures" and "The Flight of Birds." The commencement address bids the graduate choose between the life creeds of self or service. There are solos and announcements. Then come prizes. A number of them are for one dollar each, but they signify much prompt attendance at classes for a year. One is a nice Bible, won by the young man who was most cheerful in undertaking to perform all work assigned him. He is the son of an Alabama Congregational minister. Other prizes are college tuition scholarships and for excellence in classes. The ranking senior receives free tuition next year. After the exercises, the community has a basket dinner on the campus, which is followed by a baseball game between students and alumni. Influential people of the community and section are petitioning Miss Helen Jenkins, the efficient principal of the institute, to make it a junior college.

MISS ADAMS ON FURLOUGH.

Miss Victoria Adams wrote the Mission Secretary that she is entering upon her furlough after having served so faithfully and acceptable in Porto Rico as our missionary, and her many friends among the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN who have been interested in her work and have contributed to its success may communicate with her at her new address, which is 207 Winthrop Street, New Britain, Conn.

Miss Adams wishes me to express for her, through THE SUN, her thanks for the great help the readers of the Church paper have rendered in meeting the necessities of the work in Porto Rico while she was there. She says, "If God is with us, no one can be against us, and with faith we can do all things." She believes that her success during the three years as missionary has resulted from the abiding presence of God and the loyal support of Christian friends at home. She has asked God to be with her daily in the work, and she believes that He has led her daily and has shown her the best plan to follow.

She wishes, through this medium, to express her grateful thanks and appreciation for many courtesies that have been shown her and the support given the work in Porto Rico by the readers of the Church paper during her three years' service in the mission field.

In leaving for the United States, she says: "Work is getting along nicely, and I am leaving all my daily vacation Bible school programs ready so the work will go on as usual. The plans for the union are very promising, and you would find a great interest in all the leaders and workers. It seems that every one is anxious for a larger and better union." W. C. W.

A WORLD FRIENDSHIP TOUR.

The Carolina Conference Committee on World Service carried out a plan of visitation of the Churches in the interest of missions during the week of June 9th to 13th, by reaching five of the Churches in central North Carolina. The program included a brief survey of the world-wide field and work of our various boards, touching both their achievements and their present needs, accompanied by the use of a set of slides illustrating many phases of our work at home and abroad. This was given by Rev. G. N. Edwards, pastor of the Circular Church of Charleston and chairman of the committee. This was followed by an account of the student summer service by one of the workers, Mr. R. I. Blakesley, of Union Seminary, who is serving his fourth summer in this work. Rev. and Mrs. Milo J. Sweet completed the team. Mr. Sweet has lately been appointed pastor-at-large for the Carolinas and Georgia. He presented the projects which are the immediate responsibility of the Conference, the advance movement and the Church apportionments. Mrs. Sweet described how the local Church could get in touch with its projects, leading up to the appointment of a missionary committee in each Church, and plans for the participation of all parts of the Church in the missionary program. One person was designated project secretary in each Church to get in touch with the field and disseminate information. The program was intended to put the whole situation in the hands of the local Church. It aroused a cordial interest and was intended to make possible for every Church to co-operate unitedly and intelligently with our whole program. It was emphasized that the "advancement movement" for most of our Churches means contact with definite persons and fields and an increase in the number of givers, however small the gifts. If two-thirds instead of one-third of our members were giving, there would be no need to sound a retreat or even to mark time while the notice of a 10 per cent reduction goes out to the field. The Churches of North Carolina, both "united" and single, will evidently stand by a forward movement that begins at home.

The Churches visited were Raleigh, Flint Hill, Sophia, Salisbury, and Albemarle. It is possible that a similar tour for other Churches desiring it may be arranged in the fall. The trip was made possible financially by the Woman's League of the Carolinas and the co-operation of Mr. Sweet.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

Rev. E. C. Gillette, Editor; Rev. F. P. Ensminger, and Rev. M. J. Sweet, Associates.

DAYTONA BEACH: Rev. C. A. Lincoln attended the reunion of his class at Amherst College and the graduation of his daughter, Elizabeth, at Mount Holyoke College.

FLINT HILL: In the afternoon of "Children's Day," Pastor S. M. Penn reported "a bumper crowd." Flint Hill is a coming Church, under the leadership of a capable pastor.

CONGREGATIONAL MINISTERS and young people of Alabama are being invited to the summer school at Piedmont Junior College on July 6th to 11th, and Georgia ministers and young people are as welcome.

ALBEMARLE, N. C.: Mr. George Penn, just graduated from Piedmont College, began his work as pastor of First Church, Albemarle, Sunday, June 8th. He was welcomed by a large congregation, both morning and night. The splendid group of young people at the close of the morning service marched to the platform and offered hearty greetings and loyalty to their new minister.

AFRO-CHRISTIAN CONVENTION: Rev. and Mrs. Milo J. Sweet, Dr. J. Edward Kirbye, Dr. George N. Edwards and Rev. Robert Blakesley brought the greetings from the white Congregational and Christian Churches to the Afro-Christian Convention of the United States, which met in the colored Manly Street Christian Church, Raleigh, N. C., June 8th to 14th, inclusive.

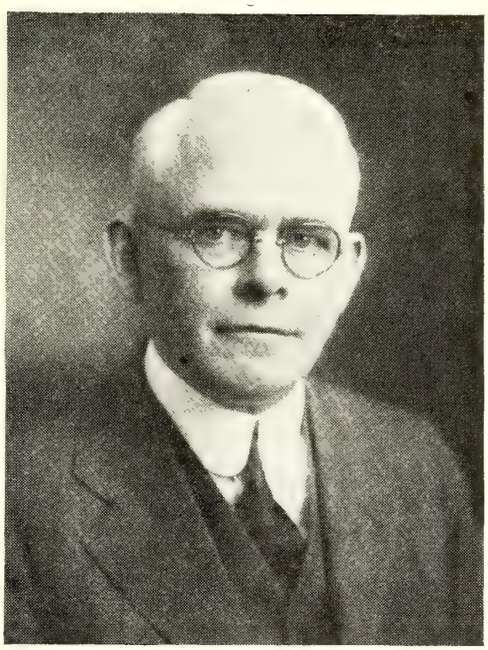
MISS PRISCILLA CHASE began a summer vacation school in United Church, Raleigh, on Wednesday, June 12th. She is in charge of S. S. S. work for the Carolinas and expects to hold these schools in various cities, towns and country parishes during the summer. The King's Mountain Young People's Conference (colored) will open June 17th. Rev. M. J. Sweet, pastor-at-large, will conduct a course in "methods." The conference closes June 24th.

BISCOE: "Children's Day" evening, the pastor-at-large for the first time spoke in a Christian Church—that at Biscoe. This is a fine Church. The building is of brick and the people are of the spirit of Antioch. The fellowship was good, and ten or twelve were received into membership. In one case, a whole Congregational family, formerly members of the Biscoe Congregational Church, now disbanded, united, thus demonstrating the efficacy of the union of these two denominations.

AT BAILEY'S GROVE, where Mr. H. C. Cagle is superintendent of the Sunday School, a fine program was put on by a group of boys and girls who were almost perfectly prepared. It was an inspiration to see the latent talent and marked ability of these children here in this small farming community neighborhood Church, and the Church was well filled. The pastor-at-large preached the sermon on "Pentecost." The subject of the "Children's Day" program was "The Love of God." A collection was taken for missions.

SALISBURY, N. C.: Under the leadership of Rev. Wm. T. Scott, Salisbury is taking on new life, and its program is developing very favorably. The effort of meeting the demands for a removal from its present location is growing in interest. Sites have been located and conferences are being held in reference to removal. Meanwhile, the busy pastor is putting on a careful survey, looking for prospects and opportunities. Sunday night, June 15th, he preached for the Coburn Memorial Methodist Church, thus enlarging his contact and influence. Encouraging words are coming to him from many people outside his own Church.

WINTER PARK, FLA.: The entire year in the Church's life and work has centered around the gift of the Holy Spirit. It has been in many ways the best year in the history of this Church. The present pastorate has grown in influence throughout two counties during its thirteen years. Twenty-two were welcomed into the Church recently and eight children were consecrated. On June 8th, others were received into membership, eight young people were commissioned for training at Camp Immokalee. Dr. Vincent and family started North on June 9th, and he preached June 15th for the Christian-Congregational Church at Dover, Del., on the way, and will fill different pulpits, as usual, in New England. His address will be Henniker, N. H., until September 1st.



REV. HENRY C. NEWELL, D. D.
President-elect of Piedmont College.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The thirty-fourth annual commencement of Piedmont College was held May 30th to June 3rd at Demorest, Ga., and was a notable event in the history of the college. The large number of returning alumni, the beautiful setting of the college and the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and the fact that this was to be Dr. Frank E. Jenkins' last commencement as president, made this an event to be remembered.

There are always certain outstanding events at the Piedmont College commencement. One is the reception and exhibition in the home economics rooms, when Miss Waite's department throws open its doors to show visitors something of what it has been doing.

Another outstanding feature is the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday morning. Among the hundreds who heard it this year, there were many comments that President Jenkins had achieved the impossible by delivering an even better sermon than in years past. The subject was "The Piedmont Spirit in the Greater Piedmont to Come," and surely no one can speak with greater authority about the Piedmont spirit than Dr. Jenkins, for no one has had so much to do with implanting and cultivating this spirit as he has in the thirty years that he has helped to shape the material and spiritual destinies of Piedmont.

On Sunday night, the college glee club gave a sacred concert, and the address was given by Dr. Elisha A. King, of the Community Church, of Miami Beach, Fla. Dr. King is vice-president of the college board of trustees, and always a welcome visitor at Piedmont. This is not the first time that he has spoken in the college auditorium, and, if the wishes of Piedmont and Demorest people are respected, it will surely not be the last one.

On Tuesday morning came the formal commencement exercise and conferring of degrees. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. William T. McElveen, of the Union Congregational Church, of Atlanta. Dr. McElveen is almost a life-long friend of Dr. Jenkins, and both referred feelingly to their first association many years ago in Williamsburg, Ky. Dr. McElveen's address was one of the finest that has been heard at any Piedmont commencement, and that is a high compliment, for the college has been fortunate in securing speakers of the highest rank for this annual address.

The bachelor's degree was conferred upon thirty-five graduates. Upon nine it was conferred cum laude. One certificate in music was conferred, and eight certificates given to graduates of the commercial department. An unusual feature of the commencement program and one which was not upon the printed program was the tribute paid by speakers representing students, faculty and the board of trustees to Dr. Jenkins, who will retire as president of the college on July 1st. Dr. Jenkins has been president of the college for almost twenty years and was before that president of the board of trustees for a number of years, making his entire service for the college cover a period of almost thirty years. During this time, he has seen it grow from year to year and has put upon it the stamp of his unusual personality. His devotion through his long term marks an epoch in this time when so many of us are interested only in our own private affairs.

Dr. Henry C. Newell, who will succeed Dr. Jenkins as president, returns to Demorest after an absence of almost twenty years. Dr. Newell, who is a native of Springfield, Mass., and was educated at Amherst College and the Hartford Theological Seminary, served Piedmont in its earlier years in various capacities. He was here for a period of about nine years, first as professor, then as dean, and finally as president. He was instrumental in raising the first $100,000 of the college endowment, but was forced to resign on account of poor health brought on by the strain of this undertaking. Since 1916 he has been pastor of the Congregational Church at Middlebury, Vt. At the Piedmont commencement in 1928, the honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him.

NASHVILLE, TENN.: Collegeside Church closed a very successful year. New members were added, and a growing interest manifested. Collegeside Church is so situated that it commands a dominating position in the life of the university and adjacent colleges. The coming of Atlanta Theological Seminary as a Congregational foundation at Vanderbilt University has meant much to the Church. On the other hand, the Church means much to the foundation, making possible a Church home for the faculty and the students. Dr. W. E. Barton, the pastor, sailed with the returning pilgrims to have part in the fifth International Congregational Conference, Bournemouth, England.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR
E. C. GILLETTE
117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL J. E. MCCAULEY
NEWS EDITOR
W. C. WICKER

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE MOVIE MENACE.

The social and moral menace of movies in America is doing more harm to our children and our international relation than any other influence that exists. The public will not soon forget the results of the investigation that has been recently made to expose this source of public evil. The report exhibited the crystilization of the public thought and fear on this subject. It demanded reprints of the articles published and exhausted edition after edition of those reprints until nearly 100,000 copies have been distributed to the leaders of public opinion throughout the country. Civic clubs, parent-teacher associations, women's clubs, Churches, religious conferences, associations, and conventions from one end of the country to the other have been considering these articles and passing resolutions urging Congress to bring this giant evil under some kind of social control.

The public is in a position to verify these reports and prove that they are true by visiting the movies and censoring them as they appear on the screen. This giant evil appearing in almost every town, village and hamlet, may be seen by the parents, teachers, preachers, and Christian workers by simply having each Church, school, religious organization, parent-teacher association, civic club, women's club, and other organizations to send a representative to study the nature of the movies and report and discuss the nature, ethical value, evil suggestion, moral danger, and un-Christian tendency of this modern cesspool of crime. The advertisements presented on the bulletin-boards announcing the pictures, the sex-suggestions in our daily papers, and the reports of people who attend the shows are sufficient to prove that the pictures presented in many instances are threatening the purity, the religious training, and the wholesome teachings of our Churches, schools and homes for the children of the nation.

The ministerial associations in our cities, towns and villages would do well to arrange to have one of their members attend each show to study the kind of pictures that are presented to their children and young people from time to time and discuss the value or menace of these pictures to the moral and ethical life of those whom they are endeavoring, through Sunday School and Church, to train in the spiritual and religious values.

It is lamentable that so many of our young men are found in the penitentiary, on the chain-gang, and in reformatories for crime, and so many of the young women are departing from the teachings of the gospel and sinking into shame while they are yet in their teens; but these conditions will go on from bad to worse unless something is done to save them from being exposed to the visual presentation of such crime and shame, week by week, on the screen. It is a known principle in the psychology of childhood and adolescence that what is constantly kept before the eyes and minds of young people will be enacted in their life and conduct. If parents and Church people and teachers want young people to enact in life the things presented on the screen, they may be sure that it will come true as surely as the night follows the day. The impressionable nature of the child, the suggestability of the minds of youth, the instinct of imitation, and the psychology of idea-motor activity, and all the other principles on which the whole system of education and religious training is based, prove that there can be only one outcome from the constant and frequent attendance of our young people at the movies as they are now conducted.

Shall the seething cesspool of Hollywood direct and determine the moral standards, ideals, character, destiny, doom and damnation of our nation, or shall we receive our ideals, standards, character, destiny and salvation from the teachings of Christianity? Shall we have empty Churches, Sunday Schools, shattered morals, wrecked homes, suicides, divorces, murders, rum-runners, and multitudes of such crimes? It depends upon the attitude and service of the Church, the parents, the teachers, the ministers, and the moral leaders of our nation toward cleaning up the movies, which are the schools in which most of our young people get their moral standards.

W. C. W.

THE BIBLE AND THEOLOGY.

The Bible is the word of God. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good words" (2 Cor. 3:16, 17). One peculiarity of the word of God is that it appeals to the conscience, and spiritual consciousness, as no other writing does. No one can read the Bible with an open mind without feeling the personal appeal of the truth it contains. It imparts a sense of right and wrong that no other book ever imparts. It condemns that which is wrong and approves that which is right in a way that makes the reader feel that his life is right or wrong. Inner obedience to the teaching of the Bible improves the moral condition of men as no other book does or can.

The Bible not only appeals to the individual, but to nations as the word of God; and the nations that have made it, even in a limited way, the basis of law, have increased in character, knowledge, prosperity, and standing among other nations. Take Germany, England, United States as examples. The one statement engraved on the gold coins of the United States, "In God we trust," is a witness that stands for God in all the great business of which this nation boasts. The laws are based on the Bible—the Ten Commandments being the source of suggestions—and the moral code of the nation as well as the laws rest on the word of God. Civilization rests upon the Bible as expressed in the citizenship whose character and opinions are derived from the word of God. The Bible is printed in more languages, distributed more widely among nations, and read by more people than any other book. It influences more nations toward peace than any other writing. If the Bible is read without question by open minds, it produces better character, better feelings, and more generous purposes than any other book ever written. It is the oldest book, the wisest book, the word of God.

Theology is man's word about God. It undertakes to explain God, the Bible and man's relation to God and His word. It enters the field of origins, history, philosophy, and endeavors to explan God in His relation to man instead of explain man in his relation to God. The questions that are raised in the field of theology are endless and aimless. Much of the preaching of the present day is in the theological field rather than the biblical field. Seminaries extend their courses into theological questions as to the nature of God, the genuineness of the Scripture, the certainty of historic facts, and historic questions that involve the translations of the Bible, and the history of the Church. The text itself is the smallest part of the course. In fact, so prominent is this idea that the schools are usually called theological, rather than biblical. Students are taught theology rather than the Bible. Young men coming out from such training preach theology more than they preach the Bible. What the Church needs is the Bible in the Sunday School, the pulpit, the home, and in the heart and life of the people.

W. W. S.

CASTING THE NET.

There is a most fascinating story told in the New Testament about the appearance of the risen Christ to a group of the disciples on the Sea of Tiberias. The group, at the suggestion of Simon Peter, had gone a-fishing. They had fished all night and had taken nothing. In the dim light of the morning they saw a figure on the shore. A voice came across the water, asking as to the success of their efforts. When they replied that they had taken nothing, they were directed to cast the net on the right side of the boat, and they took an unusual draft of fishes.

The fact is not without point that Jesus so frequently used the experiences and equipment of the fisherman to illustrate His teachings. Of course, He always used illustrations with which His hearers were familiar; but He also used those that had a direct application to the truth with which He was dealing. It is a fact that there is a direct analogy between the task of the fisherman and those who would win men for Christ and train them in the way of Christian living. The work of the Christian is that of a seeker. And we should remember that all of the fishing as pictured in the New Testament is fishing with a net. That means that the fisher of men is out to take all sorts and conditions of men for Christ.

One cannot but wonder what the Master would say if He were to walk among us today and observe the way in which the Church is taking scattering individuals here and there. In all probability, He would say as He did to the disciples there upon the Sea of Tiberias, "Cast the net upon the right side of the ship." For it is an obvious fact that the way the work of the Churches is being carried on today that the larger part of those whom we should be seeking is escaping our efforts.

It does not require any lengthy investigation to see how many of those whom the Master has commanded us to seek for Him are escaping us. Take any community or city, compare the number of children enrolled in the Sunday Schools with the enrollment in the public schools, and it will be found that children are being passed by in scores and in hundreds. It is not unusual as the hour approaches for Sunday Schools to assemble to find groups of children playing almost in the shadows of Churches. Just now, towns and counties are eagerly watching the census reports as to population. Take the total membership of the Churches within that area and see how many the Churches are failing to reach. Such comparisons will furnish much occasion for thought.

There is one form of Church union that might be had at once, and that is a united effort to reach all of the people within their environs. At the present, we are taking only those who are attracted by such bait as is attached to our individual lines, when we ought to be casting the net, that we might take large numbers for our Christ. There was a time when every community clamored for its individual public school. It may have been only a one-teacher school, but it was considered a necessity. Such schools have long since given place to the consolidated school, whose efficiency is far above that of the former little school which served the community. It was not without a fight that the more effective system of public education was introduced. But the results speak for themselves. It is high time that the Protestant Church, in all its various branches, realizes the necessity for a concerted effort to reach all the people with the teachings of the Christ. S. C. H.

THE CARNEGIE LIBRARY FUND.

On June 17, 1930, the Carnegie Corporation, of New York, announced, through President Frederick P. Keppel, that $425,000 has been voted during the present year to enable certain widely distributed liberal arts colleges in the United States to improve the effectiveness of their libraries in undergraduate teaching.

The corporation is thus carrying on what has become almost a tradition in American life. Andrew Carnegie personally, and later through the corporation which he set up in 1911, distributed some $50,000,000 in erecting free public library buildings in the United States. In addition, $4,000,000 was spent in erecting college library buildings. In recent years, the corporation has devoted large sums to improvement of professional training for librarianship and to the extension and improvement of library service throughout the country, aiming largely to raise standards of library work and professional morale rather than to bestow grants on individual libraries either for building or books. Two years ago the trustees of the corporation, in a review of their activities, decided that aid should be offered to a selected number of colleges, where, under modern methods of instruction which seek to acquaint the student with books rather than with a textbook, the libraries were being subjected to demands from students and professors beyond the limits of the annual college budget.

To determine library needs and opportunities, the corporation called upon certain persons interested in college library problems and asked them to make a survey of the college library situation. This group is composed of Chairman W. W. Bishop, University of Michigan; President Frank Aydelotte, Swarthmore College; Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve, Barnard College; President Meta Glass, Sweet Briar College; Dr. Robert L. Kelly, Association of American Colleges; Professor Andrew Keogh, librarian Yale University; President William Mather Lewis, Lafayette College; Mr. Carl H. Milam, American Library Association; Prof. Douglas Waples, University of Chicago; President Ernest H. Wilkins, Oberlin College, and Prof. Louis R. Wilson, University of North Carolina, with Prof. William E. Randall, of the Graduate Library School of University of Chicago, as field representative, and Mr. Charles B. Shaw, of Swarthmore, as compiler of information as to book lists. Its activities have resulted in a careful study of the problems of college libraries as distinguished from those of professional and technical schools, and upon this investigation the corporation has based its grants.

Previous grants in the same field have been made by the corporation during the past five years. The program as a whole, it is believed, will enable colleges more adequately to meet the great demands for books for general undergraduate reading purposes.

The list of colleges to which library aid in the form of annual grants over a period of two to five years have been extended is as follows:

Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga.
Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa.
Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.
Birmingham Southern College, Birmingham, Ala.
Beloit College, Beloit, Wis.
Bennington College, Old Bennington, Vt.
Brown University, Providence, R. I.
Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
Davidson College, Davidson, N. C.
Drury College, Springfield, Mo.
ELON COLLEGE, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn.
Hawaii, University of, Honolulu, Hawaii.
Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y.
Hollins College, Hollins, Va.
Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill.
Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill.
Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis.
Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass.
Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio.
Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa.
Rosary College, River Forest, Ill.
St. Catherine, College of, St. Paul, Minn.
St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y.
St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y.
Southwestern University, Memphis, Tenn.
Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va.
Wagner Memorial Lutheran College, Staten Island, N. Y.
Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio.
Wheaton College, Norton, Mass. W. A. H.

FROM REV. G. D. HUNT.

We closed a two weeks' revival at Lanett Christian Church last night, the 8th. This, in many respects, was a great meeting. Large congregations assembled at each service, and they were very attentive throughout the meeting. The music was in charge of Bro. J. O. Bolt, choir leader of the local Church. It was an inspiration to hear the people sing, and a special quartet, or duet, or solo was furnished at each service, which was a most pleasing feature of the meeting and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregations present.

Mrs. Ina Lorrell was the faithful pianist, and rendered valuable service, which was highly appreciated by pastor and people. She also led in the music for the junior choir.

The afternoon services were devoted principally to the benefit of the children. This feature of the service was very much enjoyed by the mothers and also the children who attended. It was my pleasure to preach to the little folks in the afternoon of each day for more than one week. It was remarkable how these children learned and conducted themselves during the hour of worship. They learned how to reverently enter the Church of God, and how to keep quiet during every phase of the service, and sing when the music was in progress. They all professed and confessed that they loved Jesus. I think that much good was accomplished in the children's services. I feel that the lives of many of the Christians at Lanett were greatly benefitted and their spirituality was deepened. Many souls were blessed of God.

The pastor, Rev. J. D. Dollar, was rejoiced in heart and greatly encouraged to press forward with his great task. The people are loyal and kind to their pastor, and I do not know a Church in all our beautiful Southland that has a brighter future or a greater possibility before it than the Church at Lanett, Ala. I think that eleven substantial names were added to the roll. My home during the meeting was with Bros. W. L. Osborn and J. T. Elder. These brethren, with their good wives, did all they could, and more than was expected, to make us comfortable and happy.

This loving hospitality brought to my mind the fact that when just a very young man, preparing as best I could for the gospel ministry, I entered school at Old New Hope Church, and the first home to open its doors to me was the home of Rev. Thomas H. Elder and his good wife, both now of sainted memory. They were the parents of Bro. Elder and Mrs. Osborn, his sister. I shall never forget their kindness to me; neither will I forget the hospitality of their children. I hereby request the prayers of all of our brotherhood for Sister Osborn, who is in a very feeble state of health.

There was much sickness among the people, which was a great hindrance to the meeting, but the Lord gave us a good meeting, for which we praise His name. I am now at LaGrange, Ga., for a meeting with Bro. Gray at the East LaGrange Christian Church. We are hoping and praying for a good meeting.

I go from here to Roanoke, Ala., to help Bro. Meacham at Lowell, beginning the fourth Sunday. I hope to be able to rest a few days following the third Sunday. I am praising God for health and strength. Pray for me.

G. D. Hunt.

The prospect that France and Italy might soon be brought into the limitation treaty, a hope expressed at the conclusion of the London negotiations, has almost reached the vanishing point. The cumulative effect of Premier Mussolini's speeches on his tour of Northern Italy last week has produced the greatest pessimism at Paris, where it is argued that it would be futile to attempt to bring the two powers together for many months to come. Without naming France directly, Mussolini several times made references of the danger confronting Italy across her borders and stirred a great crowd in Milan to frenzied shouts of "Down with France!"—Methodist Protestant-Recorder.

"The mainspring of progress is doing old things in a little better way. The commonest duty may open a door leading to a life everlasting, pointing a way to the greatest vision that hovers over the world. Only by our visions can we release the best that is in us."—James H. Snowden.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

There are lights and lights. The sun is the light of the earth by day; the moon and the stars by night. Jesus Christ is the Light of the moral and spiritual world. He says plainly in John 8:12, "I am the Light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." Then He says to His disciples (Matt. 5:14), "Ye are the light of the world. . . . let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." There is one great light and many little lights. The big light on the street is not sufficient for the home. There must be little lights in the house by which inmates read, do their work, entertain company, and share the joys of family association. Jesus has chosen no way of lighting the world except through His followers.

Small lights shine brightest in dark places. A small light is dim when the sun is shining; it shines brightest and farthest when it is dark. That is why so many Church leaders at the present day think that members of the Church are not as good as they used to be. When schools were few, when papers and books were scarce, roads were poor, and travel limited, and saloons were many, and society was rough, good people seemed better than they do today. The light of a Christian in those days seemed brighter than the same light does in this age. The same grade of music seemed better than it would in this age of musical culture. The more improved society is, the less the same dress or manner attract attention. The same possessions in this time do not make a man seem as rich as it did fifty years ago. That is as true of Church membership as it is of property, culture, position, or anything else. Progress obscures as well as enlightens. It takes more wealth to put a family on easy street that it ever did. It takes more religion to make a member of the Church seem pious than ever before.

A good road fifty years ago is a bad road today. A good Christian fifty years ago might seem a poor Christian today. The better scholar one is, the more illiterate poor scholars seem to be. More is required of a Christian today than in years gone by. There are improvements in mechanical helps for work, but work increases faster than the helps. The finer the house and the more devices for cleaning and keeping, the more work there is in housekeeping. Increase in china, silver, chairs, linen, and trays increases the dining-room and kitchen work. The same is true of dress. The typewriter and mimeograph have not decreased office work. Work increases all the time. Leisure is a thing of the past. Recreation is necessary for better work, but lesiure is the hardest job of the age. When there was not much to do, the habit of doing nothing made leisure common and enjoyable; but the hardest job of this busy age is doing nothing. Religion that is not busy is on the decline. This is the busiest age known to man, and there never was a time when people were so busy in the Church. No good Christian ever feels that his or her work is done. "Never so busy in my life," is the common expression.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

(Concluded from Last Week.)

11. The board of trustees shall annually elect or cause to be appointed certain standing committees to report to it as required from time to time and to carry out such orders as may be assigned. The following committees have so far been created by the board of trustees under this by-law:

(a) Executive (elective), of seven members, of which the president shall be chairman ex-officio, to exercise the powers of the board of trustees during the ad interim period between the sessions. The committee shall meet upon the call of its chairman. It shall not have the power to undo any act of the board of trustees nor to change its policies already defined.

(b) Administrative (elective), of six members, of which the president shall be chairman ex-officio, to administer the decisions of the board of trustees and of the executive committee, and particularly to recommend faculty members. At the February session, the administrative committee shall recommend such faculty members as it may desire. Their recommendations shall be reviewed by the full board and lie on the table until the May session. This committee shall fill emergency vacancies in the faculty.

(c) Investment (elective), of three members, to invest the endowment funds of the college, and have general oversight of the same. Whenever any securities held by the college are disposed of for cash, the proceeds shall be sent to the chairman of this committee, who shall hold the same pending investment.

(d) Visiting (appointive), of three members, one each in order of the three groups of trustees, who shall visit the college at their pleasure and report on its state to the board of trustees. The president may request this committee to visit the college when ever in his judgment their presence may be necessary.

(e) Auditing (appointive), of three members, who shall examine the full auditor's report, and counsel with the president and business manager with respect to desired changes in the financial policies and conduct of the college.

(f) Honorary degrees (appointive), of three members, to nominate at the February session persons as candidates before the board for honorary degrees.

(g) Alumni (appointive), of three members, to receive reports from the officers of the General Alumni Association and its committees, to transmit the same to the board of trustees, and to counsel with the General Alumni Association in respect to all matters of mutual interest.

(h) Insurance (appointive), of three members, to recommend with reference to the life and fire insurance policies carried or to be carried by the college.

12. The board of trustees shall elect the faculty members and administrative officers not contracted with the business manager annually at its May session. The following shall be the procedure in such elections:

(a) All faculty members and administrative officers not otherwise provided for shall be reviewed and formally elected annually.

(b) No administrative officer shall have expected tenure of office beyond one year.

(c) Faculty members of the rank of full professor after re-election for three successive years, upon the fourth annual re-election (unless specific notice to the contrary is given) become members of the permanent staff, subject to annual review and to removal for cause, three months' notice to be given before termination of contract.

(d) Faculty members below the rank of full professor and administrative officers shall be notified of the college's intention to re-elect or to make a change on or before May 1st of each year.

(e) Faculty members and administrative officers desiring to terminate their contracts shall give the same notice as the board of trustees is expected to give them.

(f) Faculty members of the rank of full professor who have served the college twenty-five years or more, may, upon reaching the age of seventy (while yet in the service of the college), be retired on one-half the average salary of their last five years of active service. The board of trustees may assign mutually agreeable duties to such a retired professor from time to time. (Operative only when the million-dollar campaign is successfully completed.)

(g) On the same conditions as stated in (f), proportional retiring allowance may be granted to those whose period of service has been less than twenty-five years by special act of the board of trustees. If a professor resigns or is removed, all claim to retiring allowance is forfeited.

(h) The board will give special attention in each case to full professors whose health has become permanently impaired, but no obligation is created by this willingness on its part.

13. The board of trustees may create special committees for any purpose at any time. All such committees shall report in writing.

14. The board of trustees at its annual May session shall adopt a "budget" for the ensuing academic year. Changes within the said budget may be authorized by the administrative committee. Additions to its total shall be authorized by the executive committee.

15. The board of trustees shall elect to its membership, whenever vacancies occur, only such persons as have been nominated by the Southern Christian Convention or by its executive committee or by their legal successors in office. All elections to membership shall be by ballot.

16. Any trustee who shall have missed without sufficient excuse three successive regular sessions of the board of trustees shall be deemed to have forfeited his office, and his successor shall thereupon be elected.

17. Bonds shall be executed in favor of the board of trustees by the business manager in the sum of $25,000 and by each manager of a college activity involving financial transactions and by the managers of the affiliated boarding departments in such sums as the business manager may direct. The business manager or the board of trustees may require bonds of other officers of the college or of its organizations as may in their judgment appear wise, and in such amounts as they may decide necessary.

18. These by-laws may be amended or suspended at any regular or called session of the board by a two-thirds vote of the trustees present and voting.

W. A. Harper.

DARKNESS BRINGS OUT THE STARS.

By Aquilla Sharpton.

(Graduation class essay, Piedmont Junior College.)

In the march of the centuries, there have been eras when clouds of darkness covered the sky of human progress; eras of backwardness that were dark and hopeless. The earth, like a motherless child, stood waiting for the stars of progress which would clear her sky and chart her ways. So there have been men whose genius became a product of time and eternity; leaders whose appearance was to a trembling planet hands to guide and voices to beckon onward.

Only the darkness brings out the stars. Every dark era of history has finally brought forth its stars of enlightenment. I invite you, therefore, to think with me about some whose names stand pre-eminent on the record of fame. Plato was a brilliant star in the intellectual sky. With an unusually original mind, he put wings to ideas that will receive invitation into realms of higher thinking for ages to come. He was a great educator, a believer in the power of ideas, a student of the universe, and a believer in the divine origin of things. Aristotle, a political scientist, no mean historian, a student of individual life, a biologist of his time, a scientist who advocated the investigation and classification of species, has established a record that students of modern science will continue to cherish.

I say we of today regard such leaders as beacon-lights of history, because of their influence, and because of answers that were made to time's most urgent calls. Past eras called for "light, and there was light." Only the darkness brings out the stars. There was Copernicus, who dared to refute the old ideas concerning the motion of the planets and the position of the earth. Galileo, who accepted the Copernicon theory, used the telescope, and said with emphatic expression: "The earth does move!" Columbus was so ambitious that he visited the monarchs of Europe in quest of financial aid; so daring that he directed ships and led men across the bosom of the wild Atlantic; so influential that his voyages led to the discovery of America, the establishment of Spanish influence in the new world, and a universal change in the conception of the earth's shape. Isaac Newton, a creative mathematical genius, discovered the law of gravitation, establishing for himself a name "unparalleled in the domain of science."

The modern centuries have characterized themselves with the spirit of adventure in all realms of human activity. Some stars of adventure were luminaries that, while others dared not to shine, began to light their own ways.

Martin Luther, "the morning star of the Reformation," became a consuming light against the fearful darkness of Romanism. His famous "Ninety-five Theses," opposing indulgences, were published and posted in protest of the Roman hierarchy, whose ecclesiastical hand had swayed the scepter of authority, bringing endless oppression down on the heads of the masses. He was not only a religious reformer; he was a reformer in other realms. Prof. Melanchton, a Greek scholar and teacher, influenced by Luther, reformed the educational system of Germany. Luther's preaching against the economic waste of the Church led to an economic revolt that swept with cyclonic force over northern Europe.

That mighty epochal movement in history was not finished in a few short years. The earth was later to see another star brightening the path of human souls. John Wesley, great itinerant revivalist, traveling 250,000 miles by land, mainly on horse, preaching 40,000 sermons, created a spiritual impact unparalleled in the eighteenth century. It has been inferred that he saved England and enlarged within her borders that spiritual rebirth of life for which moralists and reformers had been pleading.

In the century following, we find a group of stars shining in the realms of literature. William Wordsworth rebelled against the ideas and conventional customs of the classists. "Subsequent ages owe him a greater debt for opening their minds to truer and deeper relations with nature and their hearts to sympathy with simple things and simple people."

"Thanks to the human heart by which we live,
Thanks to its tenderness, its joys and fears.
To me, the meanest flower that grows can give Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears."

Keats gave us the gospel of beauty, revealing to the inward ear the sweetness of unheard melodies. Ruskin was an idealist that stood for the higher morals expressed in art and education. Carrlyle was the man who stated that all work was noble enough to be religious. Tennyson was a poet with keen insight to the majesty of things. He was a statesman, a prophetic seer, picturing to us the golden age. Hear him in "Locksley Hall" speaking of the ceased-throbbing of war drums, the furling of battleflags, the parliament of man, and the federation of the world.

Do the foregoing facts not set us face to face with the majesty and the immensity of our task? Do you see that the Victorian sage was pointing his finger at us? So an age of darkness! Who will be its stars?

We are living in an age of question marks. The darkness that surrounds us is not the darkness of bygone centuries, it is not the darkness of fear, it is not the darkness of superstition; it is the darkness of sordid materialism. Men worship at its shrine with an Eastern idolatry. Where next? What next? And by the time one question is answered, there wait scores to be answered.

But the light of the stars will shine on and on as long as the darkness of human need lasts. He who spake as one having authority, and not as the scribes and Pharisees, shall ever be our chief Source of light. Just as long as people cleave to old, unhappy, far-off things and dead creeds, so long will the revolutionary spirit of Copernicus, Galileo, Columbus, and Martin Luther be in operation. Just as long as the path of human souls is darkened and hindered by bigoted, formalistic churchmen, who make the simple gospel seem a thing unscripturally obscure, so will men rise in the likeness of John Wesley and raise a voice of protest.

Thus, the stars of this era must come from the youth of this era. "If youth could see and age would do," is a noble idea.

"When you're up against a trouble,
Meet it squarely, face to face;
Lift your chin and set your shoulders,
Plant your feet and take a brace.
When it's vain to try to dodge it,
Do the best that you can do:
You may fail, but you may conquer—
See it through!"

Heflin, Ala.

ATLANTA SEMINARY FOUNDATION NEWS.

The Atlanta Theological Seminary Foundation has closed its first year at Vanderbilt University. Two members of the foundation graduated—Mr. Jefferson Canoy, High Point, N. C., with the seminary degree, and Mr. Francis Emerson, Salisbury, N. C., with the M. A. degree.

Nine new directors were elected at the annual meeting of the foundation: Rev. M. H. Lichliter, D. D., Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Miles Krumbine, D. D., Cleveland, Ohio; Rev. Carl August Voss, D. D., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rev. Howard J. Chidley, D. D., Winchester, Mass.; Rev. John M. Phillips, Hartford, Conn.; Rev. J. Delman Kuykendall, D. D., Coconut Grove, Fla.; Rev. Wm. T. McElveen, Ph.D., Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. Machlin Davis, Nashville, Tenn. These men are profoundly interested in the work of the foundation and believe in the future of the foundation.

The relations with Vanderbilt School of Religion are good. The spirit of Christian co-operation exists between the school of religion and the foundation. The school of religion is happy to have the foundation as part of its bigger program, and the foundation is glad to have part in that program. It is an opportunity to demonstrate to the life of the South, and not the South alone, but to America at large, that a piece of co-operative work can be done; that different denominations can and are educating their leaders in one great school. It is an high adventure in Christian unity paving the way for a tomorrow of holy understanding.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

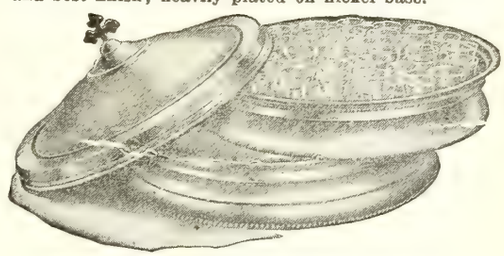
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00

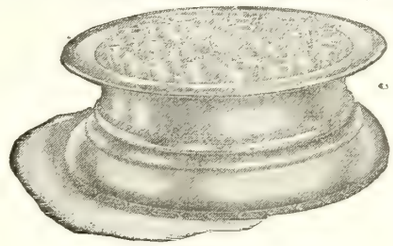
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90..	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

MISSIONS

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

(June.)

Dear Father, Thou workest and we work. Not as a matter of course, nor fitfully, may this day be occupied, but firmly may we, Thy helpers, choose every activity according as Thou dost call and lead. Silent, profound as unfolding dawn, and as real as daylight's deepening hue, may Thy voice of guidance come to us. Bring to Thine aid the service, even the bodies, of those who professedly carry the cross of Jesus, that high and sure it may be planted where shall fall the gaze of all men and whereupon to look as truly is to live! For Christ's dear sake. Amen.

PURPOSE OF A MISSIONARY INSTITUTE.

Our principal difficulty in the Church today is that we have too many missionary freight cars and too few locomotives. The difference between a freight car and a locomotive is that the former has no motive power of its own. It starts to move only when connected with an engine. When given a shove, it goes along until its momentum is exhausted and then comes to a stop. Locomotives can move, not only themselves, but cars to which they are attached.

We have a lot of people in the Church whose missionary activity is dependent on enthusiasm supplied by other persons. They never generate any enthusiasm of their own, nor arouse it in any one else. The only way to keep them interested is to get them to missionary meetings sufficiently often.

Some missionary leaders take it for granted that freight cars will always be freight cars, and that the onyy way to keep them moving is to multiply missionary addresses, to cover the country with touring speakers who will draw and stir the communities they touch.

Without doubt, much good may be done by this method, but the policy seems defective. Would it not be better to adopt the aim of manufacturing more locomotives instead of merely imparting to freight cars a momentum which is only temporary? We need missionary spellbinders, but we also need people who can help people to help themselves and others.

1. The missionary institute should measure its usefulness, not by the number of persons who attend and the enthusiasm they express, but by what people do on their own initiative after the speakers leave.

2. It should cater particularly to potential locomotives; those able and willing to work, and with capacity for leadership.

3. It should not consist of addresses which no local talent could possibly duplicate, or of missionary vaudeville entertainments, but should concentrate on suggestions for a program which can be carried out.

4. It should, of course, provide inspirational features, but should aim at permanent action rather than temporary uplift.

5. The institute should be long enough to give people definite ideas of how to teach and work. There should be several sessions for leaders of discussion groups.

6. The courses on different methods and grades of work should meet separately, so that they can deal with real problems.

7. It follows that leaders of the methods' courses should be those having had successful experience with the types of work they present.

8. There should be specific suggestions for the self-maintenance of interest by reading, enthusiasm, prayer, and effort.

9. The whole atmosphere of the institute should suggest, not temporary stimulus, but enlistment in expanding service.

10. It should be made clear that God intends His grace, not to terminate in us, but to influence others through us.—T. H. P. Sailer, in Missionary Review of the World.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JUNE 21, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,529.00
Roanoke, Ala.	1.96
Biscoe, N. C.	2.44
South Norfolk, Va.	18.00
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	.90
Ingram, Va.	3.00
Antioch, Elams, N. C.	2.30
Antioch, Elams, N. C.	5.83
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	3.15
Cary, N. C.	4.05
Durham, N. C.	25.54
Mt. Carmel, Zuni, Va.	2.65
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	1.50
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	4.10
Franklin, Va.	9.70
Dendron, Va.	5.00
Total	$ 3,619.12

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 5,734.69
Bennett, Ramseur, N. C.	4.77
Burton's Grove, Wakefield, Va.	5.00
Antioch, Elams, N. C.	5.50
Total	$ 5,749.96

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,866.11
A Friend, Waverly, Va.	10.00
Burlington Sunday School, N. C.	64.04
Total	$ 1,940.15

Dollar-a-Month Club.

W. H. Freeman, Star, N. C.	$ 5.00
Mrs. Lacy P. Wicker, Greensboro, N. C.	1.00
H. R. Morrison, Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Total	$ 11.00

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$17,502.00
Sunday Schools, regular	90.12
Individual and Church collections	15.27
Specials	74.04
Dollar-a-Month Club	11.00
Total to date	$17,692.43

J. O. Atkinson, Sec'y.

MISSIONS, A SPIRITUAL TASK.

(This address was read before the N. C. & Va. Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, at its recent session, by Mrs. W. M. Jay, for Dr. Atkinson, in his absence, and is published by request.)

Writing in a recent number of the Missionary Review of the World, Dr. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Missions, points out that which is immediately apparent, namely: missions is a spiritual task. Nothing but spiritual power can explain the motive of such men as Carey, Morrison, Livingstone and thousands of others who have turned the world upside-down by their preaching and the manner of their life, among people who knew not our Lord's Christ. No missionary could go out to fields afar simply for the money or the political or social prestige and power that such a life offers. Men and women dedicating their lives to such service could only be prompted by a passion for their Lord, to make Him and His message known to those who are dying without Him. If one wishes to know men and women who have been filled with the Spirit of God, who have risked all and given all for Him, the life He lived and the death He died, let one read the lives of missionaries. Such lives were impelled by the power of the Holy Spirit and were consumed with a passion for world conquest in the name of their Lord.

And then if one wishes to see unselfish, thoroughly Christian and spiritual giving both of time and means, one must look at those around us who give as liberally to missions, and even more liberal than to other causes; for in giving to missions one exercises a faith not required in any other sort of giving, for one must have faith in those who are to take, handle and transmit the funds given, and one must have faith in God and in our Lord Jesus Christ, for it is to make our God known, to tell of His creative and redeeming power, to carry the message of His Son, the death of His Son on the cross, to those who haven't it, that our mission money is given. We give to missions not primarily for the sake of our fellow-men, but primarily and fundamentally for the sake of our Lord. As such, it is a spiritual task.

2. It is a spiritual task, because the soul of the Church is spiritual and the task of the Church is spiritual and the power of the Church is spiritual. Now, the one task that the Church alone undertakes is the task of missions. The Church is responsible for every missionary at home and abroad today. The Church sends out and supports missionaries and builds other Churches, and the Church alone does this. Other agencies, other institutions, other organizations help the Church and the world in the relief of human suffering, in carrying food to the hungry, in giving shelter to the homeless. Benevolent societies, fraternal orders and a friendly state all join in assisting and doing this work of benevolence and of charity. However, only the Churc htakes up collections and offerings to support and send out the gospel, to build and maintain Churches, to make known the saving message of our Lord to those who haven't that message. Our Lord Christ seems to have reserved this work for His Church, that it might have a spiritual dynamic, a spiritual task and a spiritual power peculiar to itself alone. Unless the Church does the missionary work, it wlil never be done. Until the Church gives the gospel to the world, it will never be given. Christ Himself instituted missions, and He chose the Church as the one institution to carry on and do missionary work. The Church alone is engaged in the spiritual task of preaching the gospel of the Son of God to those who haven't that gospel. Theer are more than 50,000 missionaries preaching and teaching the gospel in what we may term the foreign fields today. Those missionaries were all sent out by the Church, and are being supported by the Church, and the Church of the living God alone sponsors and is responsible for the entire missionary enterprise. It was to His followers, His professed follower, those who constituted the initial Church that Christ delivered His full and final and most emphatic command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." It was a spiritual task entrusted to His Church.

3. It is spiritual, and so every professed or prospective follower of Christ may be and should be invited to have a part in it. Every child as well as every grown-up, every youth as well as every adult wh sohares the blessings and the benefits of our glorious songs, our gospel truths and our Sunday School teaching, may and should be invited to have a part in this holy task, this spiritual task. Our Lord, by inviting the children to Himself and declaring, "Of such is the kingdom of God," blazed the way for the Sunday School as well as sowed the seeds of a spiritual kingdom. It was a spiritual kingdom that He came to the earth to establish, and to the spiritual life of His kingdom He invited the child, the youth, the adult and old age. And He appointed His Church, which is His body, as the sole agent of this spiritual undertaking. Because this kingdom is spiritual, we should invite the children as well as the adults to have a part in its promotion, for they are the children not only of earthly but of heavenly parentage. The child has imagination, sympathy and the universal mind. The child has feeling and emotion and pity, and these are the very elements that enter into the making of spiritual power and progress. Since our Lord is building up a heavenly kingdom on earth, and since He told us that "of such is the kingdom of God," it behooves all who love Him and serve Him to train our children in the way of spiritual insight and activity. Ask them for their gifts for missions; ask them for their sympathy for missions; ask them for their interest in missions, because through missions our Lord Christ is building a kingdom on earth, such as is the kingdom of heaven; and the kingdom of heaven is made up of those who, like the child, have a faith and a sympathy and a pity that is universal, eternal and holy.

Teaching and learning is the business of the Sunday School. Then, why not teach and learn the needs and conditions in mission lands and thus strengthen our mission cause. Every age can be reached through the Sunday School from the cradle to the grave, and since the Sunday School is already organized—the biggest organization of the Church—which has the confidence, support and aid of all kinds and classes of Christians, this is the logical place to begin our missionary instruction. The influence on our boys and girls today largely controls our men and women of tomorrow, and if we reach the Sunday School for missions, we have opened up a way for an ever-increasing zeal, interest and enthusiasm.

Every Sunday School lesson of every Sunday in the year has some phase of missions in it if the teacher will look for it and apply it. I think it was George H. Truel who once said, "That in the hands of Sunday School superintendents and teachers lies the real solution of the missionary problem. They hold the key to the whole situation, and if they improve their opportunity, within a generation there will be Sunday Schools whose intelligence about missions and zeal for them have never been equaled in the world's history." Yes, the Sunday School is the teaching force and the training center of the Church.

What causes our indifference and why do we neglect to do and say more for missions? It is largely because we were not taught missions when we were children, and our youth of today is only waiting our guidance and are willing to be taught and to do. Then if we are convinced it is the proper and best thing, let us as adults see to it that we prepare ourselves and do some real studying too. We cannot teach successfully that which we know little about. Here is our opportunity, and no other organization of the Church offers such a promising field for missionary instruction.

The missionary responsibility rests heavily upon us as Sunday School leaders, and if our teachers can come to feel the missionary need and become intensely interested themselves, they will inspire their pupils to a missionary zeal and activity in which they will rejoice. There are several ways in which the Sunday School may become missionary in spirit and activity.

(1) Have a missionary superintendent, allowing him or her a few minutes before the whole school every Sunday, or once a month if preferred. In the larger schools where they meet in departments for separate opening exercises, there should be a missionary superintendent for each department.

(2) Have a missionary committee whose business it is to put on missionary programs from time to time and to work out ways and means to keep missions prominent in the minds of teachers and pupils.

(3) Have a mission study class composed of the teachers and officers of the Sunday School.

The goal of every Sunday School should be to undertake a real missionary program of instruction, of information and of learning about missions. If for the coming year every Sunday School would succeed in such a program, it would be the biggest gift to missions made in our Christian Church.

Missions is the work of the Church, is the task of the Church, and it is a spiritual task; and if the Church, through its Sunday School, would come into its full spiritual power and activity, it must of necessity undertake its spiritual task, the task assigned by our Lord as the source and the institution of His spiritual energy and power. We should ever and always bear in mind that our Lord, and not our mission boards, or any other human agency or institution, initiated missions and is solely responsible for missions. And from the day He instituted missions till this very hour, it has been and is the spiritual task of the Church, the Sunday School and the missionary society.

THE VALLEY MISSIONARY RALLIES.

The district missionary rallies of the Virginia Valley Central Conference were held in the five districts. At each point the attendance was good, considering the rain we had one day and the fact that two rallies were held in the midst of wheat harvest. It was encouraging to see some put kingdom work ahead of material interests. Our greatest handicap seems to be that there are so few societies. We are hoping to organize and put into action more societies before another year.

The pastors over the Conference were especially helpful in attendance and in giving addresses. They have been a wonderful help in making the day at each rally a day well spent.

The superintendents of each district took hold of the work in an unusually good manner. Those who helped on the program by reading papers or giving talks brought to our attention many good and helpful things. The young people of Bethlehem gave a pageant, "Do Missions Pay," at the Rockingham rally, and were kind enough to carry it over to the Shenandoah rally the next day.

We were so late in holding our rallies this spring that it will seem only a short time until we hold our Woman's Missionary Conference, which meets at Antioch August 1st.

MRS. B. F. FRANK.

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Total cost of material	$1,275.00
Previously acknowledged	1,090.25
Balance to be secured	$ 184.75

J. O. ATKINSON, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Mem'l.
Elon College, N. C.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Bāb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson I—July 6, 1930.

Abraham.

Golden Text: "By faith Abraham, when he was called, obeyed to go out unto a place which he was to receive for an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing whither he went."—Heb. 11:8.

Lesson: Gen. 12:1-5, 13:1-13, 17:1-8, 18: 22-33; Heb. 11:8-10.

The lessons for the next six months ought to be full of human interest and inspiration, for they are biographical sketches of representative men and women of the Bible. Biography is, literally interpreted, "the writing of life." These lessons will deal, therefore, with incidents from the lives of these great characters. There will be the human interest in them. They will be both interesting and instructive if they are studied in the right way. The important thing to be kept in mind is the fact that these men and women were human beings, men and women just like us. We are to profit by their good example and to avoid their mistakes. The series begins fittingly with Abraham, one of the towering figures of all time. Several splendid traits of character are revealed in the brief scriptural records given as today's lesson.

Faith.

Abraham is known as the "father of the faithful." His name is synonymous with faith. Living as he did in the midst of idolatry, he felt an inner urge to get away from it, and to worship in purity the God from whom he thought that impulse came. There was not much definiteness in the command, so far as destination was concerned. He was to go out to a land which God was to show him. And he went out, not knowing whither he went. It was an exceedingly hazardous journey which he made, an absolute venture of faith. The secret of it all lay in the fact that even though Abraham did not know where he was going, he knew with whom he was going. He was willing to follow that higher call, the best that was in him.

Out of that faith came courage. He was brave to undertake and strong to endure, for he knew whom he had believed. He who has a vital faith in God is not afraid of life or folks.

Then there was the note of reverence and devotion in his life. When he came into the land of Canaan, infested with idols and idolatrous worship, he builded there an altar unto the Lord. He kept alive worship in his life. Alas, that so many people allow their religious life to be neglected and to die when they leave their home communities and go elsewhere.

"In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." That is the open opportunity to every man—so to live that he shall be a blessing to those of his own day and to those who are to come.

Good Will.

"And Abraham was very rich in cattle and silver and gold." But Abraham did not allow his material things to come between him and God. When he came back to Canaan after being in Egypt, he again called upon the name of the Lord. Alas, how many there are who, in the pursuit of, or the enjoyment of material things, have forgotten God.

Abraham refused to quarrel over material things. He believed that life was too precious and too sacred to be wasted in quarreling, even if it cost him something to keep peace. He was generous in his attitude toward Lot. As far as in him lay, he had made up his mind that he was going to live at peace with all men.

Intimacy With God.

"God talked with Abraham." The man kept his ear open and his heart responsive to his God. In his day as in our day there were so many things that could have drowned out the voice and hardened the heart, but Abraham kept his life responsive to the divine. And because of that fact, the secret of the Lord was with him. Almighty God spoke to him of things that caused his heart to burn within him. It is thus today. The spirit of the living God still has secrets and resources for all those who keep a ready ear and a responsive heart.

Compassion.

When it was revealed to Abraham that God was about to destroy Sodom and Gomorrah, Abraham, with a compassion that shames many of us, intercedes in behalf of those wicked cities. Here is an instance of intercessory prayer like unto that which the Master Himself offered. Here was a man who shared the sorrows and sins of others, no matter how much they had forfeited, from the human standpoint, his compassion. This man of the dim twilight of early spiritual ideals can put many of us who live in the noon-day splendor of the gospel of Jesus Christ to shame by his large-heartedness and the warm-heartedness for those who have brought upon themselves the penalty of wrongdoing.

James says, "And he (Abraham) was called the friend of God." Here was one who reflected honor upon God by his manner of life and the measure of his service.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, July 6, 1930.

Topic: "Joys and Dangers when Away from Home."

Scripture Reading: Gen. 28:10-22.

Discuss questions from this list that will appeal to your group:

1. What is recreation?

2. What is a "sportsman"? Webster's definition is interesting. Look it up, if you do not know what he says.

3. Name five things that are true of a good sportsman.

4. Is a good sportsman's life well rounded? Give reasons for your answer.

5. What do we learn in play that enriches our lives? (Courage, fair play, good will, honesty, co-operation, obedience, etc.) Show how play develops these attributes.

6. Is recreation only for those who do not have to earn a living? Who needs recreation? Why?

7. What are some of the dangers in recreation? (Too much recreation becomes dissipation; wrong activities engaged in as recreation; our commercial recreation governed by money interests; trying to crowd a year's recreation into a summer's vacation, etc.)

9. What do you do when you are at leisure? Is it recreative?

10. Have you ever thought of "conversation" as a recreation? Do you know ways that you could improve your ability along this line? Name them.

11. What is the relation of recreation to character?

Fred and Frank graduated from high school this spring. They both want work for the summer. Fred is known as a clean sport. He played on the football team in high school. Frank was a good student, but showed no particular interests in school activities. Suppose both apply for the same position. Which do you think will be given the preference by a business man? Why? What does the fact that Fred participated in and enjoyed football four years in high school indicate to the average business man?

Do you like to attend the movies? Do the pictures that are shown satisfy you? Would you like them more "thrilling," or of a different type?

Motion pictures are the most popular form of all indoor recreation. At the present, a degrading type of pictures is the usual presentation to the audience. Up to the present time, the public has shown little choice in the type of picture it wants. Crowds go to both the good and the bad. The solution of the problem lies with the Church, the school and the home. When we demand better pictures we will get better pictures. The Jewish and Catholic women of America are making their wants known to the film producers. And they are being heard. The Protestant Churches are not organized in such a way as to make their influence felt with the producers.

Next Week.

We discuss hobbies. Come to the meeting prepared to tell about your hobby and why you chose it.

Begin finding material for the topic for July 30th, "Some Good Summer Reading."

CHURCH STATISTICS.

Dr. H. K. Carroll has published in the Christian Herald his Church statistics for 1929. The totals show 225,001 ministers, as compared with 222,202 in 1928; 237,290 Churches, as compared with 238,371 in 1928, and 50,006,566 communicants, as compared with 49,706,147 in 1928. There was an increase of 2,799 in the number of ministers, as compared with a gain of 4,998 in 1928. There was a decrease of 1,081 in the number of Churches, as compared with an increase of 2,380 in 1928. And there was a gain of only 300,419 in the number of communicants, as compared with an increase of 1,111,984 in 1928. The Methodists (16 bodies) show a net loss of 2,440. The Methodist Episcopal Church, reporting 4,589,664 members, shows a net loss of 24,433. Of the twenty-one Episcopal areas in the United States, only three report any gain at all. The Roman Catholic Church, reporting 17,173,147 communicants, shows an increase of 77,303. These figures are lower than the ones quoted from the Catholic Directory last week. Southern Baptists report 3,770,645, or a gain of 64,769. Northern Baptists show a decrease of 15,198, with a present membership of 1,404,685. The Southern Methodist Church reports 2,594,038 members, or a gain of 13,153. The Northern Presbyterians report 1,959,006, with a gain of 40,032, while the Southern Presbyterians report 455,988 members, and a gain of 9,331.—Ex.

BOOKS REVIEWED

By Dr. W. A. Harper.

An Adventure in Religious Education. By Walter Scott Athearn. The Century Co., New York City. $3.50.

A book by W. S. Athearn is an event in the world of religious education. There have been several events of this character, but none so noteworthy as this one. In this volume, Dr. Athearn tells the story of his wonderful work in the field of leadership training for Christian service in Boston University. In 1918, Dr. Athearn became dean of Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service. At this time there were enrolled in the school 105 students. Ten years later the school had grown to 607. That fact alone testifies to the outstanding leadership of Dr. Athearn.

At the end of ten years as dean, Dr. Athearn gives an accounting of his stewardship during the decade. (In addition to this, he made a far-reaching and scientific study of the status of religion and religious education in American institutions of higher learning.) The data which he has amassed are illuminating and present a convincing argument for academic recognition of religion and religious education in institutions of higher learning.

The reader is impressed as he emerges from this fascinating volume with the conviction that Dean Athearn has here indicated the foundation principles that should underlie the creation of a great institution for training workers in the field of religious education, and at the same time provided the blueprint with specifications for such an institution.

The reading of this book by persons of philanthropic disposition and Christian insight should immediately result in making available, under Dr. Athearn's leadership, a sufficiently large sum of money to found and endow such a training center for Christian workers. There is no greater need in American higher education today than such a school for the training of Christian leadership. And the philanthropist or group of philanthropists who may make this training center possible will make a national contribution to the program and advancement of the Christian religion in our day, a contribution that will be equaled by no other that could possibly be undertaken at this time.

Dr. Athearn has laid the world of Christian scholarship and religious education training under lasting obligation to him for his scientific and comprehensive study. The appearance of this book marks a milestone in the program of religious education, and assures it a permanent place among the major disciplines in the field of higher education. Dr. Athearn's book makes religious education a real profession.

The Liberal Arts College Conference. By Archie M. Palmer, editor, Association of American Colleges, 111 Fifth Ave., New York City. (No price listed.)

In this book, Archie M. Palmer, as secretary of the Association of American Colleges, has collected the addresses delivered at the Liberal Arts College Conference, held in Chicago, March 18-20, 1930. At this conference, 278 liberal arts colleges were represented and 13 addresses were delivered. Each of these addresses is incorporated in the volume. In addition to this, there is an introduction by the editor, a discussion reported by him on the financial problems of the liberal arts college, and the findings of the conference. There are two appendices, one of which gives the minutes of the conference, and the other the list of colleges enrolled at the conference.

The reading of the addresses given at this conference will convince of the importance of the liberal arts college in the American educational system, and many suggestions will be found for the strengthening and perpetuating of this typical American institution.

COMMANDER BOOTH ON PROHIBITION.

The officials of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment will never gain cr e-srshr

Among those who live by basic labor, prohibition has eliminated the worst evils previously originating from drink. The reason is economic. These men cannot afford to pay for reliable liquor at 75 cents a drink, and in any event reliable liquor is more difficult to obtain. It has been said that in the evasion of the eighteenth amendment, there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. The position of the Salvation Army is that drink is not a blessing of which prohibition deprives citizens who are entitled to it. We regard drink as a danger from which the citizen and his home have been wisely defended.

"The statement that indulgence in liquor and consequent evasion of the eighteenth amendment vary inversely as the wealth of the families involved means that the mass of the nation engaged upon the production and consumption of commodities is not to be held responsible for the bootlegging, the rum-running and the disobedience to law which have been so widely advertised for the purpose of discrediting a beneficent measure or reform."—Commander Evangeline Booth.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

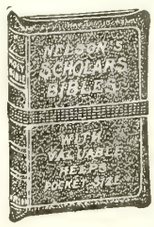
India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60



135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

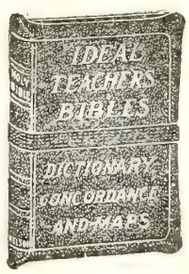
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5⅜x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.

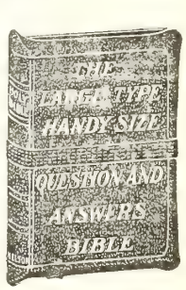


Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.



1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 E. Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

MONDAY.

HEARING AND DOING.

"Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only." —James 1:22.

The word of God saves only as it is obeyed. We must possess the desire to do what it says. He who is a hearer only, and a forgetful hearer at that, learns to know neither himself or God; he develops his own shallow ideas and deceives himself.

This message of Jesus has one solitary appeal: Let your conduct in word, thought and deed conform to the word of God, and the Lord will give you wisdom that is worth having. You will learn to know yourself and learn that the cure for all your ills is in the gospel. In it are the merciful counsels of God.

Prayer.—Lord, Thou dost work in us both to will and do Thy good pleasure; prompt us to take heed to life according to Thy word and do that which Thou dost command. Give us love in our hearts and adorn our souls with holiness throughout. Amen.

TUESDAY.

HOW DO HYPOCRITES PRAY? ....

"And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as hypocrites are."—Matt. 6:5.

How do hypocrites pray? When hypocrites prayed, they presented themselves before the people. They thought out fine words in order to win applause of the people. They prayed in order to be regarded as pious men. If you pray this way, you are guilty of the same hypocracy. Prayer is a condition of heart, and God is not moved with such prayer.

When thou prayest, present thyself to God and deal with Him only. Keep all of Thy thoughts and feelings set on Him. Let nothing else be on your mind, whether it be the beam in the ceiling or the stars in the heavens; your daily business affairs or your earthly joys and sorrows, unless it happens at the time that you are praying about these things. Neither shalt thou be thinking of people around you, nor the eyes that see you, for you are alone with God. If perchance there are diverting thoughts, the most they should do is grieve and humiliate you and turn your prayer to God for the proper devotion.

The Lord does not prohibit many words, or repetitions, but He does prohibit "vain repetitions. How excellent a thing is true prayer! How sweet are the hearts from which true prayer issues!

Prayer.—Give us, O God, the spirit and grace of prayer. Forgive us all the sins we have committed in our prayers. Forbid that we shall come to Thee with idle words of selfish motives, but make us always to pray in spirit and truth. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

AN ENCOURAGING GOSPEL.

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned." —Mark 16:16.

Instead of being a harsh one, this is rather a comforting message. It tells us that heaven is open; that hell is closed; that God's wrath is annulled, and sin and death are buried, while life and truth are let down in the laps of them that believe. It almost terrifies us to think that the high and eternal King is so gracious to us.

It is only when disbelievers despise the truth of it and spurn it, and when the horrors of death overtake them, they fall into the depth of despair and realize what it is to be damned.

Prayer.—Lord Jesus, send Thy Holy Spirit to the preaching of Thy word everywhere and create faith in the hearts of mankind. Amen.

THURSDAY.

OUR SPIRITUAL CONCEPTION AND THE KINGDOM.

"Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."—Acts 1:8.

We understand that the body of Jesus after death was a glorified body. It was an invisible body, and yet at the same time He had the power to make Himself visible. The forty days of such a body on earth seemed to be a period in which He was to reveal Himself to the disciples, to instruct them in the nature of the kingdom, give them a definite understanding of what the spirit-life is and prepare them to receive the Spirit.

In our lesson today we are told of His power and authority which He bestows on us. With a true conception of the spiritual life and the endowment with power from on high, we can hold fast to the truth of the habitation of God and live above earthly and material conceptions. This is the coming of the kingdom in our hearts.

Prayer.—Draw us after Thee, Lord Jesus. Take our hearts and fill them with Thy love. Give us Thy Holy Spirit, and let each of us be one in the army of Thy kingdom. Amen.

FRIDAY.

A GLORIOUS PICTURE.

"He lifted up His hands and blessed them. . . . And while He blessed them, He was parted from them and carried up into heaven."—Luke 24:50-51.

The picture of the ascension of our Lord while in the act of blessing the disciples gave them (and gave us) an eye of faith which they had never had before. If we now, with this eye of faith, can enter into the spiritual realm with Him, we shall know something of heaven's gift, celestial light, immortal life, and the peace which passeth understanding. As we gaze upon Him in this last scene ascending away from the earth with uplifted hands in a poise of blessing, it is a fitting climax to His life on earth. Behold, these hands are lifted up over the world to bless. They are full of life and strength, and every good gift dropping down upon the souls of humanity.

Let thy life be a Pentecost of fellowship with Him, and thy living and unceasing prayer for His blessings.

Prayer.—Open our eyes, Lord Jesus, that we may see Thee as Thou art in glory. Give us grace to lead an open life to receive Thy blessings and Thy kingdom. Amen.

SATURDAY.

A VICTORIOUS SITUATION.

"Sit Thou at my right hand."—Psa. 110:1.

"Sit Thou at my right hand" means, put the Lord at thy right hand. He who does this, whether his enemies are few or strong, can look with perfect composure at his fury and vain efforts and say, "There is one on my right hand who is strong enough to prevail against all of my enemies and help me in all my distresses." All of the enemies of the Lord are to be laid at His feet. Believe it or not, it is true just the same.

The cause of truth must triumph. However, many may be our enemies, and however victorious they may seem to be, He reigns still, and, if faithful, we shall reign with Him.

This is a day of many enemies to the Church. Are we among those who have put Him at our right hand and are standing by faithfully?

Prayer.—Dear Lord Jesus, rule Thou in our hearts. Help us to believe and trust in Thy grace and power. Clothe us with Thy purity and arm us with Thy righteousness, and make us willing in Thy service, that we may fight the good fight of faith and win the crown. Amen.

SUNDAY.

TO KNOW IS TO BE LIKE.

"He shall testify of me. And ye also shall bear witness."—John 15:26, 27.

The facts of Jesus Christ are so convincing that even they who deny them feel the sting of the truth of them in their hearts.

He that believes in Jesus knows Him and cannot help letting His light shine for him. He who believes lets the light of God permeate his life and govern his conduct even in the smallest details. He will live in holiness, suffer with patience, and not allow himself to be led astray from the path of self-denial, right and rectitude.

Prayer.—Heavenly Father, strengthen us daily and give us grace to shine for Thee. Give us the honor of being numbered among the faithful, and give us the willingness to suffer for Thy sake. Keep us from all manner of hypocrisy, let our lips speak the truth, and do Thou bless us in the coming of the kingdom. Amen.

THE ONE MEDIATOR.

"There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5).

Wonderful must be the qualifications on the part of the Being who mediates between guilty man and a holy God. He must fill, with His own merit, the gap between two worlds. He must bow the heavens, and lift up the earth to meet them. He must, with His divine arm, grasp the throne of the Infinite One, while with His human arm He lays hold of humanity, bringing God and man together in Himself. He must reconcile the rebel and the law, and glorify the Father by humbling Himself. He must die, in order that man may live, making His tomb the birthplace of our immortality.

It is said that England and Wales could not be united until a son of the King of England was born in Wales, making him "Prince of Wales." Then England could claim him as heir to the throne; while the Welch claimed him as their brother, a native of their soil.

Heaven and earth were united when a Son of the King of glory was born on the earth, making Him the "Prince of Peace." Heaven claimed Him as heir to the throne, while man claims Him as his Brother, born on his native soil.

"Both He that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one; for which cause He is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying, I will declare Thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of the Church will I sing praise unto Thee" (Heb. 2:11, 12).—Ex.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THE CHALLENGE OF OUR TIMES.

BY CHAPLAIN H. E. ROUNTREE.

"I am the way, the truth and the life."—John 14:6.

In his recent book, "Behold the Man," Dr. Rittelmeyer discusses the challenge of Jesus to our modern times. That challenge is a belief that Christ did live, that He does live, and that the eternal relation of the soul to God is the foundation for a true humanity.

There is a different point of view in our modern times which does not place its emphasis on the challenge of Jesus, but rather places it on the challenge of humanity to Jesus. That is to say, that one of the outstanding challenges of this generation which the critical world flings out to the Church is not that Christ did not live (most folks admit that He lived), but it is the challenge that He does not now live. They cannot see it. Some of them even repudiate any particular good that Christ ever did the world other than that of a great Man.

It seems perfectly natural for us to be like Thomas, who said, "Unless I can put my hand in His side . . . I will not believe." Perhaps you yourselves have discussed this matter at some time or other from this angle. Perhaps you yourself have even questioned the existence of Christ now. If you have not questioned it, it may be that you have accepted the fact merely because the Bible says so. To have such a faith with no surer foundation than that is far better than not believing in His resurrection at all. But it is blind faith, and while faith means believing in things unseen, it is not necessary for us to have a blind faith about everything that may be manifest. If we can see a few things, it will be easier to believe in more. It is believed that there are some things which are apparent, and this message is intended to set forth somewhat of the manifestations of Jesus in these times which may help to meet the challenge of proof.

The Challenge of Truth.

The first challenge of the present generation is the challenge of truth. Pilate asked Jesus, 'What is truth?" So does man today inquire for truth.

Dr. Rittelmeyer reminds us that God has spoken to the world throughout the whole course of human history. There is not a single period, ancient, medieval, or modern, profane or sacred, that does not bear the marks of the pervading spirit of God. If we admit that Jesus lived at all (all men do), and if we accept His life and teachings for their face value, even though we may limit it to the human element, we are compelled to admit that all things revealed and taught by God during human history are found to be embodied in the ideal figure of Jesus, and they are found to be alive and active in Jesus and in the New Testament. Our own knowledge of truth and our experience in life show us that a fair examination of these teachings proves the things He said to be true to life. For instance, we hear a great deal about the power of the gospel. We often get the idea from religious teachers that just the gospel itself has such a wonderful power that any earnest reader of it will realize some miraculous power from it. That isn't true. The mere reading of the word is as dry bones. But when the reader of the word combines his own knowledge of truth and his own experience of life into what it says, he finds that the gospel is true not because God says so, but that God says so because it is true to life. It is the truth of the gospel that makes it powerful.

Therefore, the most important thing for us to believe is not that Christ lived or that He does live, but that the Bible is true because it is truth. 'I am the . . . truth," says Jesus.

The Challenge that Jesus Lives.

The next important fact to our present generation is to believe that Jesus does live. Dr. Rittelmeyer reminds us that everything in our present age is what the past has made it. We are what the past has made us. If this is questioned, suppose we abolish the past, what would we be? We would discover that there is not a moment in our lives that is what it would be were we the first man. All our experiences are alive and mean something to us by reason of what has happened before. This being true, past humanity is alive in us, and apart from the living past, nothing could now exist.

Apply this to ourselves: Since Jesus embodies all revelations of God, and since God is the Source of all good, it follows that we draw all good from that period of life which has to do with Jesus, and whatever good we are at the present time is the embodiment of the living God through Jesus Christ our Lord; and he who says that Jesus does not live, does not comprehend life.

Again, suppose we take Jesus Christ and all that He has meant to the world away from the world, what would happen? We can't imagine what would happen. To say the least of it, religiously speaking, we would be most patheticallly blind and poor. As the religious world stands today, there is not a single revelation of God that does not come to us through the person of the Lord Jesus Christ; and there has been no other call of God to the world since the time of Jesus Christ, except that which was embraced in Him. In this He is our all in all.

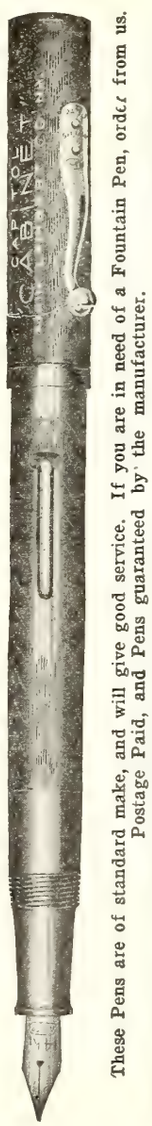
To say that Jseus was only a great Man with a few ideas is beside the point. No idea of Christ's, however ideal, would have given us what the living Christ has given us. The fact that to bank on ideas in Jesus for one's faith is falacious. Ideals do not move us. Merely wise sayings do not touch us. In everything we are taught by a person and by a character, and we are carried on to know by seeing it expressed in them. The Lord Jesus Christ is everything that concerns a man's body, soul, spirit and life. He covers the whole realm of human nature, and by Him our natures are ennobled, invigorated and made new as we allow Him play in our lives; and He is confering upon all who will thus allow Him a true humanity of which the race cannot be deprived. If ideas were the most important thing, then really the ideas of Jesus would take their place and Jesus Himself would recede to the background. They would take the place of God Himself. And that is what some would have them do. That is the basis of other religions. They are human ideas of doctrines and rules to be executed without the divine revelation of God behind them in a living divine person.

We forget that Christ's ideas are more than these. Christ's teachings are a gospel of living good. He calls Himself a 'Well" from which he who drinks may be satisfied. The chief concern of Christianity is not the development of ideas; it is the remaking of the inner man unto the likeness of Jesus Christ and God the Father, which is his salvation, and it takes the reality of a human life to do it. The greatest joy any one has is through the personal influence of some one else whom he may love or has confidence in. The divinest conception that ever man had is, that the greatest, happiest, and most glorious experience he is destined to have, is godliness streaming forth upon him from a human life, not with the cold radiance of ideas, but with a heart-warming love reflected in the character of a human being.

Thus Jesus brought something to mankind which it had not had before. It was living truth. That something has entered into the world and has sought to destroy that which is false and to establish man's life on the principle of love, goodness and forgiveness. Behind it all, there is a living power which transforms man from what he is to what he ought to be. In nothing is this brought more clearly to our lives than in the fifteenth chapter of John, where He illustrates the truth by saying, "I am the vine and ye are the branches." This illustrates the organic union of God and man. And as the fruit of the vine is dependent upon the maintainance of that relation, so is the ultimate of Christianity dependent upon our personal relation with Him. That is Christianity, and in that is the meaning that He still "lives to make intercession for us" until we shall be like Him.

When we learn to unite naturally the things

(Continued on Page 15.)



SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We had the pleasure of attending the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, held at Pleasant Ridge Church, in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, June 19th and 20th. The children of the Christian Orphanage were given a place on the program the first afternoon, and we carried fourteen of them to appear on this program.

It is always a delight for the children to have an opportunity to take part in these conventions, and it gives our people an opportunity to see what they are doing in giving fatherless and motherless children an opportunity in life.

It gives the children an opportunity to see something of the different working organizations in the Christian denomination, which is supporting the institution, giving them a home, shelter, training and care.

Since rendering their program, they have been invited to give a program at the Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, which is to be held at Liberty Vance Church in July. They have also been invited to visit several Churches and give a program. We hope to meet all these requests.

The Christian Orphanage has many bright boys and girls who made good use of their time in school and make good grades. We offered as a prize at the first of the last school term a red-letter testament to the boys and girls who would go to school every day and not have a tardy mark. Seventeen made the grade. We offered a second prize of a red-letter testament to the boy or girl who made the best grade on conduct. One little boy's report card showed "A" for every day. We offered a testament and psalms to the boy or girl who made the highest average for the entire year. Ethel Boone made an average of 94½ and won the prize. It takes good work to make such an average on all studies during the entire term.

We were very happy to give these prizes, and the little fellows appreciated them. Next school term, I feel sure many more will enter the race, and we are expecting to have many more testaments to give.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JUNE 26, 1930.

Brought forward $8,228.75

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Ingram	$ 3.00
Pleasant Ridge	1.39
Greensboro, Palm Street	6.00
Long's Chapel	1.60
Mt. Zion	1.91
	13.90

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Ashboro	$ 1.00
Wentworth	10.62
Mt. Auburn	5.85
New Center	3.00
Sanford	5.07
Christian Light	1.53
	27.67

Western N. C. Conference:

Shady Grove	$ 1.50
Zion	1.00
Antioch	.07
Rehoboth	8.15
Burlington	52.41
	63.71

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Oakland	$ 4.00
South Norfolk	11.27
Rosemont	10.00
Dendron	5.00
	30.27

Valley Virginia Conference:

Mt. Olivet	$ 3.09
Newport	2.01
Winchester	6.94
Leaksville	2.55
	14.59

Alabama Conference:

Forest Home	1.00

Special Offerings.

C. E. & S. S. Con., Valley Va. Con.	$18.85
W. A. Lee, support of children	7.50
Miss Celeste Penny, Chapel Hill	15.00
Refund on gasoline by State	25.40
Union, Southampton S. S.	2.26
	69.01

Grand total $8,448.90

HOME-COMING.

The second annual home-coming of Shallow Well Christian Church will be held on the fifth Sunday in the month, June 29th. We want each former pastor, members and friends of the old Church to be with us on this occasion. The program will start at 10 A. M. Dinner on the grounds and services in the afternoon. Come and enjoy the day with old friends.

FRANK F. WATSON.

A resolution opposing compulsory military training in American universities and high schools was adopted by the seventy-second General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church. The assembly awarded the 1931 convention to Youngstown, Ohio. Passage of the military-training resolution, by what was announced as a "substantial majority," came after a lively debate. It was introduced by J. J. Jamison, of Monmouth, Ill. Opposition was led by Ben Siebring, of Canton, Ohio.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5⅝ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh cryeth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gether: righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6⅛ x 4⅛ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, °O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better

a Gen. 15. 1. b Ps. 56. 1. A 57. 1. c or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07522x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x ... $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8¼ x 5½ x 1⅝ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [a][b]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

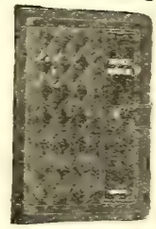
No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding



The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x .....

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅜ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition
No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from Page 13.)

of our lives that we are interested in and our zeal in them, and our highest joys, we will have learned what Jesus learned—true humanity. And in Him we see the pattern of what is possible for us to become. We will see that in His life, humanity is placed on the throne and that through Him human nature is to be at its best and purest and rule the world. True humanity lies in the realization of such an enthronement in our lives.

Now Humanity Has Failed.

We cannot talk about these things without realizing that humanity has made a miserable failure, so far, to attain this true humanity. Our inner life is still dominated by harbarism. Why? The answer is that we have not come to a hungering and thirsting for it. We are so constituted that we have not brought ourselves under continual discipline, and self-suppression, and self-evolution, and the result has been that our low desires overgrow our loftier ones, and they kill our better selves like weeds kill the farm crop, like water puts out fire. Some of us are so taken up with gratifying our lowest natures, that we leave our highest natures entirely uncared for. Bishop Crighton, of England, said: "I have no doubt that the greatest danger of the present age is the absence of high aspiration."

We must become thirsty before we can appreciate water. Nothing is more insipid than water when we are not thirsty. We must hunger and thirst after righteousness before we can appreciate it. We must thirst for the truth of the life of Jesus before we can realize that He is the "well springing up unto eternal life." One's character may be known by this very test. If you would know a person, ask him what he likes, what is his "taste"; and if he will give you a candid reply, you will know him body and soul.

Besides this, there is also the failure of our inner man. We ourselves are our own greatest enemies. It is easy for us to spend our whole selves on the external. The great life from without seems to draw us from within. There is such an abundance of things for us to do streaming by us from morning till night that they demand our whole time, luring us out of ourselves. There is the ceaseless round and strain of duties and diversions which engage us all the time. We know a lot and we can do a lot and a lot we try to do all by ourselves, and we lose our way in the material until the search for true humanity in the Lord Jesus Christ is entirely absent. The challenge of the outer world absorbs us, and it is carrying us along like a mighty tide.

Your Task and Mine.

"Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds, that ye may prove that good and acceptable will of God," said Paul.

In no Scripture is the task of mankind in this modern age better set forth than in the parable of Jesus regarding the sower. It is a magnificent illustration of seeking good and pursuing it, and of what is meant by Jesus being "the way, the truth, and the life." Only the parable of the mustard seed may be comparable to it, wherein is taught the power of life to develop true humanity; wherein is taught that if we turn our gaze toward Jesus and the kingdom of God, there will come into our lives a mysterious light which will shine against all the outer appeals of the world against which no darkness can prevail; but, on the contrary, the outer world will be set ablaze by this light. We are to go forth and sow, cultivate and reap. We are to use our talents to develop them to highest ends.

Our task is to have a high calling and "press on" unto it. Our task is "Come to Jesus" for it. This word "come" appears, we are told, three thousand times in the Bible. It is one of the first words Jesus used, and it was his last message to the disciples. Our task is to surrender to His way, His truth, His life, for the making of our lives, and be like Christ who went about doing good. It is the call to feel ourselves blessed and to communicate that blessing to others.

We have these conclusions to draw: That as the present is made up of the living past, so is the Christ alive in all the realities of life today; that in the Christ's life, we have set forth the very highest privileges of man; that the life of Christ is true to human nature and that it lives to make that nature what it ought to be; that the life of Christ is to make us new in a new world and to make that world complete. We are all agreed that the world ought to be a little better in some way by reason of our living in it. There is no need to bind ourselves to feel that we are a failure and that there is no hope, that we are an empty, disappointing husk and serve no purpose, bringing deeper hopelessness to ourselves.

The world is waiting for that new life, and we are learning but slowly that from nowhere does the power come to make the world new except from a desire of man to see Jesus and the fixing of its gaze upon Him, obediently walking in His way, in His truth and in His life.

Would you be perfect? "I am the way." Would you understand and believe? "I am the light." Would you know? "I am the truth." Would you have everlasting life? "I am the life."

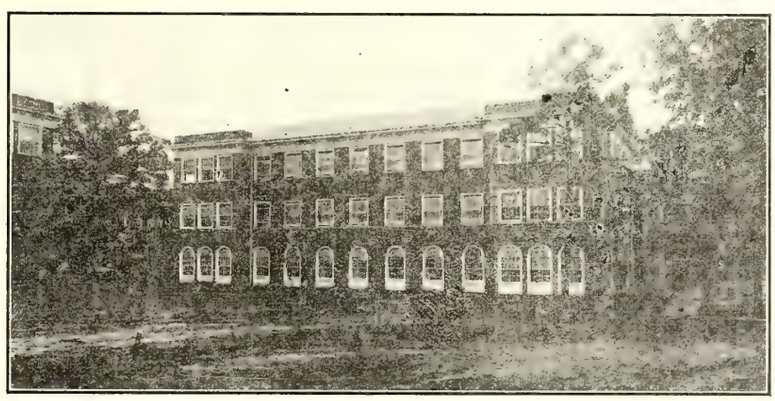
ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.



CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL. D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

OBITUARIES.

BAKER.

Robert R. Baker was born March 17, 1876, and died May 11, 1930, aged 54 years, 1 month, and 24 days. Bro. Baker was a quiet, unassuming man, honest and of good report, and a member of Palmyra Christian Church. He is survived by his widow and several children. Funeral services were conducted at Palmyra, May 12, 1930, by the writer, assisted by Rev. B. J. Earp. A. W. ANDES.

JOHNSON.

Thomas H. Johnson died at his home, Colosse, Isle of Wight County, Va., June 5, 1930, aged 27 years. The funeral services were conducted at the home by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. Sydney Cobb, pastor of Colosse Baptist Church. The burial was in Cedar Hill Cemetery, in Suffolk. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Esther Holland; a four-year-old son, Tommie H., Jr.; a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Johnson, of Colosse, and one sister, Mrs. W. L. Smith, of Suffolk.

The deceased was a member of Antioch Christian Church and was a good man, much beloved by his neighbors and friends. May our Heavenly Father comfort and keep His loved ones in their hour of sorrow.

N. G. NEWMAN.

MICHAEL.

Mrs. J. W. Michael was born May 1, 1881, and died May 27, 1930; age 49 years and 26 days. In early childhood, Mrs. Michael joined Lowe's M. E. Church, and in later life was true to her early convictions and did much for her Master.

She was first married to G. P. Walker. To this union were born two children, Harry and Rosa (now Mrs. John Dockery), who survive, with a granddaughter, Hazel Grey Dockery. Mr. Walker preceded her to the grave several years ago.

She was married to Bro. J. W. Michael in the early part of 1930. The companionship was short but beautiful. She is survived by the two children, one grandchild, a husband, three sisters, four brothers and many friends.

The funeral was conducted at the home in Reidsville, at 2 P. M., May 29th, with Rev. J. H. Dollar, Rev. R. A. Whitten and W. R. Harris officiating. The body was interred in Lowe's Cemetery. May God bless and comfort the bereaved.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

666

Relieves a Headache or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, checks a Cold the first day, and checks Malaria in three days.

666 ALSO IN TABLETS.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

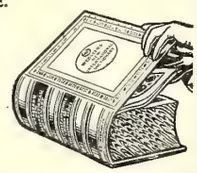
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11, 1929

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $65.50.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ 17 From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information. Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible. Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ From that time Jē'sus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 1956.
Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1930. NUMBER 27.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Dr. W. C. Wicker.

WILL THE WELLS RUN DRY?—

Diggers of oil wells are concerned these days about America's production of petroleum. Last year something over a billion barrels of this dynamic product was taken from the earth, which was an increase of more than a hundred million barrels over 1928. The oil-well diggers claim that this is too much increase, but even though production has increased so rapidly, there is little chance that the American oil wells will run dry or that we shall have to pay 50 cents a gallon for gasoline. Latest estimates concede that some 550 billion barrels of crude oil are still available in American soil, and to further hearten the consumer or the tourist out for his summer vacation motoring, a new process has been discovered by which 100 gallons of crude oil will be made to produce 100 gallons of gasoline. There are in the United States at the present time about 300,000 oil wells, and half of the nation's oil comes from only 7,000 of these wells. In spite of the fact that American gas is coming largely from American wells, explorers are penetrating the ends of the earth in search of new sources of gas for the supply of the future.

CONCENTRATING IN CITIES.—

With the nineteenth century and the rising tide of immigration, the cities of America began a rapid growth. As late, however, as 1880, the great mass of the population still lived on the farms or in communities of less than 2,500, with only one-third of our total population in cities and towns of more than that size. Fifty years have passed since that time, and the conditions have greatly changed. In 1920 the cities claimed 51 per cent of the 105,000,000 people, an increase of 28 per cent in ten years. In the meantime, the rural population had increased only 3 per cent.

The most striking fact that will be revealed by the 1930 census will be the further growth of cities. It is said that the last ten years will show in the 1930 census a loss from the American farms of 4,000,000 people, and it is estimated now that our total farm population is only about 27,000,000. Statisticians predict that the census report will show 57 per cent of America's population will be found to live in cities. Many of those yet living in the country are cityfied by the use of the motor car, good roads, rural electricity, and modern conveyances. Our cities and rural districts will be brought closer together by all these conditions. "No man liveth to himself."

CONSERVATIVE SCOTLAND.—

In the very year that in which the American Presbyterian Church rejects an overturn which would have opened the pulpits to the ministrations of women, the General Assembly of the conservative United Church of Scotland has decided that women are eligible for ordination and induction as ministers. The overture passed the Scottish Churches by an overwhelming majority, with only eight of the presbyteries voting in the negative. In vain was the appeal made to St. Paul, and some of its proponents are reported in the press to have declared that if St. Paul's policy on the status of women in the Church were to be accepted as final, then there were as much reason for denying them employment in the Sunday School as teachers and as missionaries as there is in keeping them out of the pulpit.

If the practice of trying women out as preachers is to be tested, there is surely no place in the world better prepared to do so than in Scotland, the land where great preachers are made and great preaching is done. With Christ, there is neither male nor female, bond nor free, Greek nor Roman, but all are equal before Him. Woman was last at the cross and first at the grave and first to publish the evangel of the resurrected Saviour, and she is the incarnation of the tenderer virtues of the gospel and by nature can proclaim them to the world.

DR. JOHN R. MOTT RETURNS.—

This man of God and missionary leader has made many visits to mission fields, but he has never done greater service than on his last and longest visit to the British Isles. He concentrated his attention upon an intensive to the boards of the missionary societies, the younger ministry, the universities, and groups of laymen with whom he had unhurried and intimate fellowship. He visited all the boards in Scotland, England and Ireland, some of them for prolonged session or sessions. He visited Oxford and Cambridge, where he deeply impressed groups of selected laymen. In his own impressive way, he has shared his grave and kindly spirit and experience with them and shown them in the light of all he has seen and known how they may deal successfully with their problems. To sum up his service in a word, he has told them to see their tasks in a large world setting and inspired hope for ultimate victory. He would advise missionaries to reduce their budgets to projects. There is nothing to fire the heart of a would-be giver in a list of figures or in the thought that he is keeping a cause from dying out; a project, a plan for advance, a definite need to be met, a challenge to this one thing for Christ's sake will grip the soul as nothing else. We should have a sense of the urgency of the world situation, but should realize that in the heart of it there is a divine purpose that cannot fail.

THIRTY YEARS' MINISTRY.—

Dr. Jefferson for thirty years was pastor of one of the down-town New York Churches and closes his ministry with this Church by his own motion. He gives sound advice which would be wise counsel for many American ministers to ponder and practice. He says, "People are tired on Sunday. They have seen enough shows through the week. They have had all the entertainment they care for. What they want on the Lord's Day is a quiet conversation with an earnest-minded man who is interested in the high things of the Spirit and who knows how to interpret the words of Jesus and the signs of the times. Declaration is a bore, oratory is an offense, fireworks of every sort are an impertinence, but a quiet talk on the deep things of God is always strengthening and healing. A preacher who is content to speak in every-day language to his people Sunday after Sunday about Jesus Christ, and the application of Christian ideas to their personal experiences and to the problems of their generation, can be interesting and fresh at the end of thirty years."

With this conception of preaching put into practice with an intensely spiritual personality back of the message and with an intimate acquaintance with the deeper needs of the people through an intimate and interested insight into their perplexities, repressions, complexes and conflicts, the minister could become a comfort, consolation and cure to many sin-sick souls that he never reaches by methods of self-display.

ELECTRIC POWER.—

Rural America is becoming electrified at a rapid rate. Electricity was first provided for lighting plants and vacuum cleaners, but this has now been extended until in the last six years the number of electrified farms in the country has more than tripled. More than 558,000 farmers now use electricity. It is predicted that this number will be doubled within five years. With the extensive building of power lines in sparsely populated districts, the initial stage in the electrification process has been passed, and with the accessibility of power, the various uses to which electricity will be put will increase. Some of the applications of electricity to farm jobs that may be mentioned are milking the cows, churning the milk, pasteurizing the milk, grinding the grain, cutting the wood, sawing the lumber, grading the potatoes, peaches, apples and bulbs, drying the grain, small seeds and the fruit, refrigerating fruits, vegetables and butter, husking and shredding the corn, baling the hay, threshing the grain, grinding the tools, shearing the sheep, pumping the water, and harvesting, not to mention hundreds of other things.

"All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Water power, steam power, motor power, gas power, electric power, moral power, and spiritual power, all are given unto Him, and we are using His power when we use any power, physical, mental, moral or spiritual, and He should receive gratitude for its use.

NOTES-PERSONALS

During our absence last Friday, Rev. F. C. Lester was a visitor to THE SUN office. We haven't seen Bro. Lester for some weeks and are sorry that we missed him.

Dr. C. C. Ryan, who recently underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils, was able to preach Sunday. Dr. Ryan was quite sick from the operation, but is much better now.

Mr. P. J. Carlton, of the Richmond Church, who, with Mrs. Carlton, has been in Europe on business and pleasure, returned home last week. His many friends were glad to welcome him.

We were very sorry to learn of the death of the mother of Mr. F. M. Webb. Mr. Webb has been quite an active member of our Richmond Church since its beginning, and our sympathy goes out to him in his bereavement.

The First Christian Sunday School, Richmond, Va., will go on its annual picnic to Buckroe Beach on July 11th. Other schools participating in the picnic are Boulevard and Centenary Methodist, and Westhampton Baptist. These schools have been holding a joint picnic for several years past, and a good time is expected by every one.

THE SUN learns, with regret, of the death of Mrs. Annie Green, wife of Rev. Geo. F. Green, business manager of the Richmond Christian Advocate, who died on June 29th, at Stuart Circle Hospital. Mrs. Green was a native of Elizabeth City, N. C., but had made Richmond her home for several years. Rev. Mr. Green has been pastor of Churches in Norfolk and Suffolk, as well as in Richmond.

We learn that Rev. J. W. Fix, of Franklin, has been extended a call to supply the pulpit of Oak Square Methodist Church, Boston, Mass., during the month of July. Rev. and Mrs. Fix will leave from Norfolk on July 8th on the Merchants and Miners steamship "Chatham," and will remain in Boston till after the first week in August. This is quite an honor as well as an opportunity for doing summer work at either Boston University, Harvard, or Dr. Walter S. Athearn's School of Religious Education. We wish for Bro. Fix a most pleasant "vacation."

NOTICE.

The Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention will hold its annual session at Liberty (Vance) Christian Church July 15th and 16th. Some splendid speakers will appear on the program. It should also be of interest to the people of this Convention to know that the Higgins sisters' quartet will appear a number of times on the program. This is a real attraction. I trust that a special effort may be made by all pastors, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor workers to boost this Convention and help us make it a real contribution to the cause of Christ.

R. L. HOUSE, President.

NOTICE.

All ministers and delegates expecting to attend the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention at Liberty Vance, July 15th and 16th, and desiring entertainment, will please notify the undersigned. Those coming by train or bus will please so state, and they will be met at station. We are planning for you. A welcome awaits you. Come.

G. W. EAVES,
Henderson, N. C., R. 6. Ch'n of Committee.

NOTICE.

The Sunday School Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet in Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 22nd and 23rd.

The Educational Committee of the Conference will meet in the afternoon on July 22nd, in Waverly, and all persons with any business with the committee will please take notice and meet the committee at that time and place.

W. W. STALEY,
N. G. NEWMAN,
I. W. JOHNSON,
Committee.

NOTICE.

We urge that all ministers serving in this Conference attend the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, July 15th and 16th, at Liberty Vance, and see that your Churches send a full delegation, with a good report from each Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society. The success of this convention depends upon your co-operation. Our record will be blank without your reports. May we count on you to do your part? Visiting ministers and friends will be given a hearty welcome. Meet us at Liberty Vance.

MRS. R. J. NEWTON, Sec.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED.

The North Carolina and Virginia Christian Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, in session at Pleasant Ridge Church last week, passed the following resolutions for action of the schools and societies for the coming year:

Missions.

Resolved, That since it is necessary to have a missionary Sunday School before we can have a missionary Church, we recommend that every Sunday School in the Convention take a once-a-month offering for missions, and on the Sunday that such an offering is taken, at least five or ten minutes be given by the whole school to a missionary program.

Secondly, that since our field for doing missionary work has been so much enlarged by merging with the Congregationalists, it is recommended that the facts of this enlarged field be laid before our Sunday School from time to time, which facts may be had by a request sent to the mission office, Elon College, and that we seek to increase our offerings for missions to meet the demands and opportunities of the larger field.

The Sunday School affords the most promising field that we have within our reach for the seeds of missionary instruction, for if we are to develop or build Christian character we cannot begin too early with the job. Since the child grows and changes from year to year, this instruction must be graded to fit the growth and change in the child. Among the most successful methods used for getting this information across, we mention the story, songs, pictures, objects, lantern-slides, posters, dramatization, books and biographies. A book we recommend for missionary committees is Gilbert Liveland's "Training World Christians."

We recommend that the monthly offering for missions be adopted by all our schools and on the Sunday on which this offering is taken, the worship services of the school be a missionary service. We recommend that every school have a missionary superintendent or a missionary committee, whose business it shall be to see that useful missionary knowledge is imparted to the pupil; that right missionary attitudes are developed, and that pupils shall be trained to meet the social problems of the day in the Christian way.

We recommend that the special effort of our Mission Secretary in the "Dollar-a-Month Club" receive the support of our people and be presented through our Sunday Schools.

Sunday Schools.

Children's division: Any Sunday School desiring to make the most of its opportunities for training its children for service should welcome the proper divisions—adult, young people's, children's—with consecrated superintendent for each department. Children under nine years need a different worship program. Songs, prayers, responsive readings and all discussions should be within their understanding. Children's minds, as well as their physical bodies develop rapidly, and impressions received early help to mold their futures. How important, then, that every Sunday School make the most of these first few years of childhood and train for Christian service and leaders of tomorrow. Children are won for any cause much more easily than adults, so if we want to go forward we must begin now with our children. Serious consideration must be given in selecting Sunday School teachers for children. It is not always wise to give a class to some new member just to get him busy or to make him feel at home.

Young people's division and adult division and Endeavor resolutions will be published next week.

CHRIST IN KHAKI.

Somehow you just can't put Jesus Christ in khaki; you can't line Him up in the ranks of the military machine. Jesus was not a killer and the government that is in facto Christian is not a killer. The possibility of the Christian as a soldier did not exist for the first one hundred and fifty years and the early Church was one great peace society during that period. Many of those first Christians, following the teaching of Jesus, were thrown to the lions because they refused to "goose step" with the legions of Caesar.

The great present task of the Christian Church to which she is addressing herself is the setting forth the doctrine of good will as Christ preached it. The Church is having heart-searching and is engaged in the thrilling adventure of framing up a new world wherein dwelleth peace.—From sermon by Rev. Robert A. George, D. D.

ON THE CROSS.

(A Hymn.)

BY REV. L. L. LASSITER.

On the cross, where they nailed the dear Saviour,
Where He died to redeem us from sin;
There He wrought out the plan of salvation
By the gift of His life for all men.

CHORUS.

I will look to the cross for my ransom,
I will look with delight on His face;
Oh, the joy in my soul! for His love is untold—
I am saved by His infinite grace.

On the cross where He suffered for sinners,
Where He shed His own blood for my soul:
I will gaze with delight and with rapture
On His face, for He maketh me whole.

From the cross on Calvary's mountain,
Where the Saviour in agony bled,
There flowed from His side, like a fountain,
That life-stream which was crimson and red.

At the cross I will kneel in surrender,
I will always keep close to His side.
I will welcome His smile, O so tender!
In His love I will ever abide.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

Rev. E. C. Gillette, Editor; Rev. F. P. Ensminger, and Rev. M. J. Sweet, Associates.

ORANGE CITY, FLA.: Rev. Thomas H. Derrick was elected department chaplain for Florida of the Spanish War Veterans and chairman of the hospital visitation committee. Mrs. Derrick and her class of young people spent a week at the Y. M. C. A. Camp Waneta, near Deland.

DR. ROBERT A. GEORGE, of Memphis, is on his eleventh year of the pastorate of the First Church, Memphis. He has done much to strengthen the organization and has built the handsome parsonage. The annual Church outing was held on June 7th. The pastor and his wife will drive to Cleveland, Ohio, on their vacation and will go to Canada on his annual fishing cruise.

NEW DORMITORIES AT ROLLINS: The work has begun on two new dormitories for women at Rollins College. They are being constructed on the west end of the campus and will be connected by a loggia. A Mediterranean style of architecture will be followed similar to Rollins Hall, the dormitory for men, completed last January. These two women's dormitories will constitute the two or three units in the new building programs. One is given by Cornelius A. Pugsley, president of the Westchester National Bank, of Peekskill, N. Y., and a member of the board of trustees of the college; the other is being given by an unnamed donor.

REV. GEORGE W. BLOUNT, pastor of Union Church, Chattanooga, Tenn., which was organized in 1893, is from Wilson, N. C. He is a graduate of Wake Forest College and of the Divinity School of Yale University. The Church, which is the third largest in the Conference, has been leading in union movements in East Lake, a Chattanooga suburb. Union prayer-meetings of the Churches have been out of the ordinary. Under the leadership of Pastor Blount, the Methodist and Disciple Churches met with the Congregational folks at sunrise in the park on the nineteen hundredth anniversary of Pentecost, and seventy-five people partook of the Communion of the Lord's Supper together.

"IMMORTALITY" is the title of a little booklet of three sermons preached in Plymouth Congregational Church, Coconut Grove, Fla., during the Easter season of 1930, by the pastor of the Church, Rev. J. Delman Kuykendall, D. D. These three sermons are entitled "The Dream of Immortality," "The Assurance of Immortality," and "The Practice of Immortality." Dr. Kuykendall is a deep student of modern problems of philosophy and religion and he faces this great theme as one familiar with the questions raised by many modern students, but his note is one of strong faith and assurance and will be a great help of those who have been led to doubt by the trends of modern thought.

REV. CHAS. W. SMITH, of Phoenix City, Ala., was a contractor before he heeded the call to the ministry. His former occupation has enabled him fully to build five Church-houses and to assist in the construction of a sixth, besides improving a number of others. On June 8th the United Church dedicated its fine edifice at Phoenix City. Valued at $7,000, it would have cost $10,000 under contract. In these times of dull business, the construction of such an edifice was marveled at in the community. It is a brick-veneered structure, with extreme dimensions of 44x63 feet, having an auditorium seating two hundred and fifty, and four class-rooms, located near the city high school. There are ten art-glass windows. The woodwork of the interior is trimmed in silver gray. There had been no service in the Church until the day of dedication. It was consecrated without debt, but will return installments on the loan to the revolving fund of the Church Building Society.

ANOTHER GUEST BOOK will be issued this fall. The Congregational readers of this paper who used the Guest Book of 1929 will be glad to know this. It is declared to be new and more informing than ever, and contains twenty-eight imaginary conversations (many actually in the words of the guests), with twenty-eight men and women who in all parts of the world are seeking to interpret the spirit of Jesus. Those who did not see the book will naturally feel that its wide use last year commends it strongly. A sample copy will be sent to every pastor about September 1st, and its circulation will presumably proceed through pastors and missionary committees. If for any reason this is not done in your Church, please write directly to the State Office or to the Commission on Missions. Last year about 200,000 copies were circulated, and it is expected that a larger number will be used this year.

REUNION AT GRANDVIEW.

On July 20th, a thousand people will gather on the old campus of the Grandview Normal and Industrial Institute, near the edge of Walden's Ridge, at Grandview, Tenn., in loyalty to the school which was closed when so many of the young men students went to the World War. The widening of an old railway grade into a wide highway up from Spring City and the descent of the road on the other side to Grassy Cove and Crossville will put this valuable but unused school property on a desirable highway between Nashville and Asheville. Rev. James W. Davenport, pastor of the Grandview Congregational Church, is vice-president of the Alumni Association. Students from Pleasant Hill Academy are conducting a voluntary daily vacation Bible school for the home community at Grandview.

NEW PIPE ORGAN.

It is expected the installation of the pipe organ at Circular Church, Charleston, will be completed early in July. The entire rebuilding and enlargement of the organ has prolonged the work, but an organ of unusual range and beauty is assured. The instrument will have twenty stops, and chimes in addition. It will be one of the largest two-manual organs in the State. The case is of black walnut, and will itself add much to the attractiveness of the Church. The basis is an old organ by Henry Knauff, with very fine workmanship and materials. The console is said to be the last one made by the Roosevelts. Some of the wood pipes are of unusual size and volume. There will be over a thousand actual speaking pipes, metal and wooden combined. The builder is Mr. James N. Reynolds, of Atlanta.

Why not send in your subscription to The Sun now? The Sun is your Church paper—you need it and it needs you.

FLORIDA YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE.

Camp Immokalee, the beautifully located Y. M. C. A. camp on Lake Brooklyn, near Keystone Heights, was the scene of the fifth annual Florida Congregational Young People's Conference, from June 10th to 20th. There were over one hundred in attendance, including the faculty of the camp. Camp Immokalee has come to be a beloved name among Florida Congregational Young People, and the efforts they will make to send their delegations and the eagerness of the young people to attend is a testimonial as to its benefits and its joys.

This was Miss Pattie Lee Coghill's first year as young people's leader in Florida, and she had a great deal to do in planning the program and stimulating interest, and in arranging the many details. She also taught a popular course on "Programs and Projects." The conference is under the general direction of the State conference committee on religious education and young people's work, of which Mr. C. A. Hoyt, of Jacksonville, is chairman. In a very real way, Mr. Hoyt is the maker of Camp Immokalee.

For the second year, Rev. Don G. Henshaw, pastor at Coral Gables, was the dean, and his enthusiastic leadership was one of the chief factors in the success of the conference. His brother, Mr. Earl Henshaw, of Miami Shores, was director of athletics and recreation and taught an elective course in recreational leadership. Other teachers were Rev. Harry Thomas Stock, of the Congregational Education Society, who gave a vital course on "Young People's Problems"; Rev. O. T. Anderson, of Fort Myers, gave a course on "The Story of the English Bible"; Rev. Thomas H. Derrick, of Orange City, on "The Story of the Church"; Miss Martha Race, of Jacksonville, well known as a writer of religious pageants and plays, taught and directed pageantry and dramatics; Mrs. Lubelle Hodgman, of Coral Gables, was dean of girls, and gave a course in "Teacher Training."

The conference sermon was preached by Rev. E. F. Montgomery, of Lake City, who had charge of two Presbyterian conferences held in the vicinity. Rev. Harry Stock preached at the Presbyterian conference in the fraternal exchange.

The afternoons were spent in rest and recreation, and in the evenings, after the vesper services, conducted by Mr. Stock, there were interesting pageant and council-ring programs. One of the most significant events is the council-ring initiatory service in which the older students pass on the torch to the newcomers. The student leaders are selected from the symbolic figures, the "Spirit of Immokalee," and the representatives of the four-fold life, "physical," "social," "mental" and "spiritual."

Miss Bryl Wheeler, of Miami Beach, was given the highest honor as the "Spirit of Immokalee"; the others were Earl Ward, of Winter Park; Miss Beth Cutter, of Fort Myers; Miss Mary Pelzer, of Lake Worth, and Harry Mauck, of Tampa.

This conference was the largest and, in many respects, the best of the series. These conferences have come to be of immense value in the life and work of our young people and our young people's societies.

NOTICE.

I am open at present for supply work, and will be glad to supply for any minister while he is on his vacation. Also I shall be glad to assist in revival meetings, either do the preaching or take charge of the singing. If any minister should desire my services, I shall be glad to communicate with him from 505 Raleigh Street, Oxford, N. C.

Geo. A. Pearce.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR
E. C. GILLETTE
117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL J. E. MCCAULEY
NEWS EDITOR
W. C. WICKER

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

MAKING OTHERS HAPPY.

If I were called upon to express my philosophy of life in a sentence, I would express it in these words: "So act that your conduct will contribute the largest net happiness to humanity." This philosophy of life would necessitate a definition of happiness and a discrimination of happiness from pleasure. Happiness might be tentatively defined as the emotional experience or affective tone resulting from the well-being of the total self. The proper integration, unification, organization of all the instincts, capacities, habits, tendencies, skills, and attitudes of the self in the process of the realization of true selfhood as revealed and incarnated in Christ will bring true happiness to the self.

Pleasure is the emotional experience or affective tone of any part of the self—instincts, appetites, desires, capacities, habits, tendencies, or attitudes—acting independently of the other parts and possibly in antagonism to the better interests of the total self. Such a course of conduct for pleasure will result in conflicts, mental disturbance, moral unrest, neurasthenic condition, compunctions of conscience, self-condemnation, nervous breakdown and anxiety conflicts, or spiritual and mental unbalance if mere pleasure runs its course and bears fruit according to its kind.

Weigh the Christian religion by the standard of happiness for others and you will find that no higher standard can be found. Christ spent his time in healing the sick, restoring peace to the troubled, forgiving the sin-distressed, and bringing the gospel of salvation to those who were lost. The history of the Church as it has followed Christ has followed this principle of life. If this doctrine of making others happy in the largest possible sense be adopted and practiced by the Church, the home, the school, the parent, and the State, there will be less of despotism and more of democracy, less of bondage and more of freedom, less of hatred and more of love, less of antagonism and more of co-operation, less of indifference and more enthusiasm, less of pride and more humility, less of selfishness and more altruism, and less of self-display and more of meekness—less of self and more of Christ.

Take the difficulties of the Church, whether local or general, and apply this principle and these problems will be solved by the miracle, mystery and magical power of the Christian spirit. Take the question of the mission field, its needs, its support, its enlargement, its evangelization, and all other problems and this principle put into practice will solve all these difficulties. We should so act that our conduct will contribute the largest net happiness to those who are denied the light of the Gospel of Christ. This would contribute to them the largest net happiness. It might make them have to give up some of their cherished customs, revise some of their religious ceremonies, exchange their methods and objects of worship which would bring them temporary pain and a sense of deprivation, but in the end and in the large, such changes would bring them the largest net happiness.

There is no better way to promote the goodnses of others than to seek their greatest happiness. Perfect goodness on their part will result in the greatest happiness. Christ placed happiness at the foundation of His system of religion in the Beatitudes, for He knew that there could be no greater appeal to the human spirit than the way to happiness. With this incentive in the servant and the served both work together and all their inherited powers and acquired abilities co-operate in striving for such ends of conduct and acquiring such habits of character as will result in a happy life which can result only in a good life.

If this spirit becomes operative in our religious educational system with all administrative officers, all teachers, all students, all contributors, without let or hindrance, without pretense or deceit, but with genuineness and reality, then and only then can we hope for complete co-operation and unstinting support with finances and faith, with love and loyalty until we shall reach the goal which Christ would set before us. W. C. W.

"THE CHRISTIAN SUN" AND THE CHURCH.

Few members of the Church realize the value of THE CHRISTIAN SUN as a Church paper. It is the medium through which all real information reaches the Churches. The Churches would not know when and where the annual Conference will meet if there were no CHRISTIAN SUN. There would be no monthly Sunday School offerings for missions and the Christian Orphanage were it not for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. The same is true of the Elon College quarterly offering through the Sunday Schools. In fact, there would be no missions, no Orphanage, no college, no information on these important institutions if it did not come to the members of the Churches through THE CHRISTIAN SUN. THE CHRISTIAN SUN came into existence before the Southern Christian Convention—THE SUN started in 1844, and the Convention in 1856. Both work together for the development and service of the Church. It is important to pay the pastor for his service; it is equally important to pay $2.00 a year for THE CHRISTIAN SUN. It should be in every family in the Southern Christian Convention. The pastor of a Church can render no better service than to try to get every family in his congregation to subscribe for and then read THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Every faithful reader of THE SUN is loyal to the Christian Church, well informed as to its work, and interested in all its institutions. A congregation with no reader of THE SUN would not know how to select a pastor, nor when the Sunday School Convention will meet this summer.

One thing may be said of THE CHRISTIAN SUN without pride or boasting, as it can be said in truth, and that is that it is one of the best Church papers published in this country. It cannot boast of the greatest editorials in the scholastic sense, but it keeps in touch with the people, the movements of the Church and the times, and appeals to the common sense and spiritual aspirations of true souls. There are other Church papers that are more literary and appeal more to the educated, but none of them can claim a higher standard when the needs of the Church and the obligations of Christians are studied in the light of a Church paper. It could be improved by more pastors, and laymen, too, reporting in condensed form the work of the local Churches. Such information would be of interest to all readers of THE SUN.

The religion we profess is really personal in its origin, growth, and influence. Jesus said: "Follow me." He did not say, learn of the world, but He said, "Learn of me." The whole scheme of the Christian religion is personal in its genesis, its experience, and its service. THE CHRISTIAN SUN, as a Church paper, is especially personal in its writers, its object, and its pages. Science, philosophy, literature, and business are life to those engaged in those fields; THE SUN'S appeal is, "Love God, love one another." W. W. S.

WHAT ABOUT IMMIGRATION?

There is a diversity of opinion as to the Christian attitude twoard the immigration question. The religious press of the country seems to be in favor of being less strict in this matter. The secular press, politicians and laboring classes are advocating a more rigid law on immigration. It seems that these two views should at least claim sincere thought and interest of every citizen of the United States. The following questions must be taken into consideration:

Is the country free for all comers? Does the nation have a right to restrict its comers? Is it in keeping with the national policies of other nations to control its territory and resources? Were our forefathers justified in giving their lives for this country and establishing its government on the principles that she is founded on? Is it Christian or non-Christian to restrict immigration? It is the last of this series of questions that is of most interest to me.

It seems, from our national history, that we have already been too lax with our immigration laws. Some of our large cities have become a cesspool of iniquity because of allowing people of every clime and race to come together faster than they can be trained in our customs and religion. These people come from all parts of the world, with their social customs, educational, or lack of educational, standards and religious beliefs. History will prove beyond a doubt that such a state of affairs is not good for any nation. If we allow these people to continue to come faster than they can be Christianized, it is detrimental to both the foreigner and our country. Just here it should be borne in mind that every country that has allowed such conditions to continue, fell. The city of Corinth, the Roman empire, and even the Jewish nation fell. If the mixing of the races was not the direct cause of their fall, it certainly was one of the contributing causes.

Humanitarian sympathy can very easily be mistaken for Christian activity in this matter. We see and read about the destitute circumstances in other countries. Our emotions are played upon. We, then, think of our own country with its vast resources, and feel that it is a Christian act to allow all who can and wish to do so to come to this country. But I am persuaded that it is an unwise policy for any one to allow his sympathy to cause him to take an undesirable character into his home to live just because he sympathizes with him. It would be more un-Christ-like to jeopardize one's own family than it would be to demand the attainment of a certain standard of living. It seems to me that what our nation needs to do is to make our restrictions more rigid, setting a certain goal, fostered by the ideals of Jesus, and live up to it. Then allow only those who strive toward that end to become immigrants.

If we notice the names of the leaders in the industrial disturbances, the leaders in the gang outrages, and the agitators of anarchism, we are aware of the detrimental effect of the foreigners, for it is usually a foreigner's name that heads up these disorders.

It is the nation's duty to protect its citizens and to keep its house in order just as much so as it is the father's duty to protect his family and keep his home in order. I take it to be our Christian duty to see that those who desire to come into the country become of the country. We must do so or suffer ruin. J. E. McC.

PRESBYTERIAN Y. P. CONFERENCE.

The Young People's Conference and School of Methods of the Orange Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church of this section, which has been meeting on the Elon College campus since Monday of this week, will close the young people's work tomorrow and then take up the intermediate and senior groups for special courses in their work. A good attendance of the young people has been had on these courses, and an even larger group of seniors and intermediate students are expected tomorrow for the intermediate courses.

This conference in young people's methods in Church work is a new feature of the religious education work of the Presbyterian Church in this section, and has been headed up by Miss Kate DuBois, of Greensboro, director of religious education for the Orange Presbytery. This school grew out of camp work and life-work conferences held in past years in a small way, and the idea of using the college plant here for a regular school in this work has proven very staisfactory for this meeting and may be made a permanent feature of the Orange Presbytery.

Two Bible courses have been given, one by Mr. Carl Pritchett, Reidsville, N. C., director of the Y. M. C. A. at Davidson College next year, who taught the course entitled 'The Life of Christ"; Rev. H. H. Fleming, pastor of the Hawfields Church, at Mebane, taught the course in Philippians. A course in vocational guidance is being taught by Prof. Edgar McBain, of the Greensboro High School faculty, a course in foreign missions by Rev. R. P. Richardson, missionary to China, who is at home on furlough. He is using the book, "The Field is the World," by James I. Vance.

A course in home missions is being taught by Miss Margaret Tyson, of Asheboro, and a course in young people's methods by Mrs. W. M. Baker, who is the secretary of the young people's work.

Rev. J. W. Mann, of Cedar Grove, has been conducting a series of vesper services for the conference, and Rev. J. R. McGregor, of Lexington, and Dr. W. A. Harper, president of Elon college, has made special addresses at the evening sessions of the conference.

C. M. CANNON.

GOD WITH US.

The words of the dying Wesley often come to mind, "The best of all is 'God is with us.' " They breathe the spirit of an ever-present Pentecost, which, after all, is the most worthy way to celebrate the natal day of the Christian Church.

The Day of Pentecost opened a new area of light and privilege on the question of man's relationship with his Creator. Is it not revealed in the Scriptures that from the day of the creation of the human race, God has desired to dwell with men, but their sins and rebellion often made it impossible?

In the Garden of Eden there was a period of happy fellowship, but sin entered, and with it fear and shame in God's presence. The state of original innocence was broken up, and as it vanished so did the primitive relationship of joy in the divine presence. Henceforth the approach must come through the atonement, anticipated in the Old Testament period, realized in the New Testament in Christ's death. But now and again throughout the centuries God drew near and there were intimations of the great yearning He felt toward mankind. He sent angels to help in times of special need, and occasionally as the years passed, the Jehovah presence came to earth on some mission to chosen persons whose heart state would bear the divine visit. The Shekinah light dwelt with Israel, first within the tabernacle, and later in the temple, and remained until one sad day when the glory light was seen to lift from the temple, linger a little over the eastern threshold and then depart.

The Lord Jesus considered the privileges of the oncoming dispensation of the Holy Spirit greater than the marvelous days of His bodily presence here. "It is expedient for you that I go away," He said to His followers (John 16:7). The writer of the letter to the Hebrews saw in the new covenant a "better" revelation than all of the previous periods. (The keyword of Hebrews is the word "better.") The reason is that redemption had advanced to the point where sin could be adequately handled and cast out of the human heart and the way opened for the Spirit of God to make His dwelling there. St. Paul says of this fact: "Ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, 'I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God and they shall be my people' " (2 Cor. 6:16).

Looking forward to the full measure of Israel's blessings, one of the prophets declared: "The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; He will save, He will rejoice over thee with joy; He will rest in His love, He will joy over thee with singing" (Zeph. 3:17). Here we discover somewhat of His joy in finding hearts where His presence is acceptable and where He may abide.

Rev. Don O. Shelton says: "Great is His might in the midst of those who in all things seek to do His will. He forgives all their sins. He cleanses their unrighteousness. He has a plan for them. He bids them walk with Him. His word to them is clear. His Spirit also leads them. His own strength He gives them. All who come to Him through Christ, and trust Him fully, know how great is His might.

"All who know that God is with them have a sure cure for fear. When He is near, and known to be near, hearts are strong and brave. His nearness guards us from any blow the foe of our souls can strike. Even in death's dark vale, David knew his heart would find peace and strength. Our Lord, with us, leads us step by step in paths sure and safe. No word man can speak is so great as this: God is with us."—Wesleyan Methodist.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles ..... $ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles ..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges ..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges ..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges ..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 — The three wise men

carrying away into Băb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Băb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms ..... $ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

"Let it alone," might be a good suggestion in many of the experiences of life. Many evils are made worse by picking at them. A small pimple on the back of the neck, if picked, may become a carbuncle; "let alone," it may pass away without pain. Many sores are produced by picking at pimples and secret itchings and pains in many parts of the body. Maladies are often produced by picked-at, innocent sores. But physical troubles are not the only ones that are made worse by picking at them.

Mental, social and business conditions may be made worse by picking at them. Some little worry over business may become a great strain on the human mind, causing the loss of sleep, reduced capacity for service, and even a weakening of the whole man. In such cases, it is better to "let it alone." Brooding over losses, disappointments, failure in crops or business, is like a hen on eggs; it will hatch out a brood of troubles that will grow and make bad matters worse. The best thing to do with unavoidable misfortune of any kind is to "let it alone." Strength should not be spent in worry over troubles, but used in repairing losses and recovering strength. In case one is unable to "let it alone," when trouble comes, the best thing to do is to take it to the Lord in prayer. There is no way of relief equal to private prayer. When God takes the place of trouble, the mind is at rest. Worry never improved business nor restored loss. It only increases the conditions that cause worry and reduces the capacity of the individual for good service.

The social world is another field in which differences, misunderstandings, and injuries, and even imaginary wrongs, creep in and worry men and women. Remarks are made that cut to the quick, remarks are repeated in bad spirit, and social evils break up the good feelings of neighbors and worry honest souls. In such cases it is better to "let it alone." If you do not stir the fire in the grass or the leaves, it may die; but if you pick at it, it may spread. If you hear something that smacks of evil, the best thing to do is not to repeat it, but to "let it alone." Bad reports, like all sounds, soon die if not repeated. The repetition of false reports is the curse of human society. Silence is a sign of peace.

The tenderest spot, after all, is the Church. Nothing is harder to handle in a congregation than difference between members. Investigations often make bad matters worse. A still tongue, true prayer, the spirit of "let it alone" is the safest for all. The parties at variance will hardly keep a broil alive long in a congregation if all others keep silent. "Let it alone is the best method of dealing with individual differences between members of the Church. If one is angry with you and expresses it in sharp speech, the best thing to do is to say nothing. Let the angry person do all the talking and you do all the listening. If you talk back it justifies the angry person in saying more; if you say nothing, he talks out, and that ends it.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

I have been roving around a good bit recently and making certain observations. For example, I attended the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, in Pleasant Ridge Church, Guilford County, the morning of the second day. Under the leadership of Mr. W. B. Truitt, of Greensboro, this Conference has taken on new life and enthusiasm, increasing in its outlook as well as in attendance.

Reports were made by various department secretaries, including all the divisions of the modern Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, and then secretaries for the several enterprises of the denomination. I was impressed by the insight and thoroughness of these reports, but I was particularly impressed with the fact that every one of them was made by an Elon alumnus or alumna, except one report, and that one was made by a mother whose son is a member of the Elon student body.

This fact brought to my mind a statement made to me by one of the outstanding laymen of our Church recently. Said this distinguished layman: "I believe in all the enterprises of our Church, and regard them as necessary, but I regard the college as fundamental. It must furnish leadership for the several enterprises of our denomination or they will die." It would seem that the observations of that layman who has held high positions in State and nation as well as in the professional and business world are supported at least by the situation as I saw it at the Sunday School Convention.

And last Sunday evening I went down to the Church service of our Christian Church in Burlington. The minister of the Church is an Elon graduate, as is also the choir director. There were eleven members in the choir, every one of them, with one exception, being an Elon alumnus or alumna. Both the organist and pianist were Elon alumnae. I looked over the congregation and counted twenty-two who had been students of Elon at one time or another. As I meditated on what this situation means to the Christian Church at Burlington, it occurred to me that if the Elon-trained workers of this Church were eliminated, the Church would be in a bad way to carry forward its excellent program.

This week, the Presbyterian Church, or rather the Orange Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church, is conducting at Elon College a young people's conference. Two courses in Bible, two courses in missions, a course in young people's methods, and a course in vocational guidance make up the curriculum, together with a daily discussion period, vesper services, and platform addresses at night. The thing that has impressed me particularly about the conference is the strict way in which it is carried on. There are three class periods and two of them are required of each one who registers, and the pressure that is brought to bear on those who attend makes the elective course almost without exception also selected, so that it becomes practically a required course.

Then, again, members of the conference are not allowed to leave the campus. They are not allowed to have visitors at meals; they must be in their rooms at 10 o'clock and the lights go out at 10:30. I have heard it said again and again that young people present distressing problems of discipline, especially young people of high school and college age, as these young people are. But if there has been any resentment of the regulations under which this school is operated, I have not been able to discover it.

The college is glad to welcome these young people and help them in any way it can. Elon is patronized by all the denominations, and when any one of them wishes to make use of its plant in the summer-time it is very glad to have them do so.

W. A. Harper.

PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE LETTER.

The college faced seemingly more difficulties this year than any previous year, and yet we have lived through it all and are greatly encouraged to go on.

The future looks brighter than any time before, for increased student body, more efficient work, and larger finances. Dr. Frank E. Jenkins takes full charge of financing this institution on July 1, 1930, and those who know how much money he has raised for the various enterprises he has fostered or sponsored, feel sure he will do great things for Piedmont Junior College.

Our faculty did excellent work, and while some will not be with us another year, we bespeak for them success wherever they go and wish them much larger returns materially and spiritually for their labors.

The student body was fine, and all seemed to work with singleness of purpose which knew no defeat. Laboring under the greatest of handicaps, they were more determined to see their way through to a successful finish, and they did.

Our commencement was the banner for the school. The graduating class was the largest we have ever had in the college department. The out-of-town speakers could be no better—Dr. Axtell, of Piedmont College, and Mr. Milford, of Huntsville, Ala. The class exercises were above the average.

If our good friends will come to our rescue with the funds in a few weeks we want to finish and equip our buildings by the time school begins this fall, which will be September 3, 1930. We have a few vacancies to fill on our faculty for next year, but hope to fill them soon.

Summer School of Christian Education will be held here July 6-11, 1930. We are assured a good faculty, an interesting and helpful program, and anticipate the largest attendance we have ever had. Come prepared to stay all week and enjoy the good things with us.

Wadley, Ala. S. L. Beougher.

REV. G. D. HUNT'S LETTER.

Our meeting at East LaGrange Church is progressing nicely, with good congregations, good music, and splendid co-operation by all who attend. I am anxious that this meeting shall inspire the membership to a greater undertaking for the Lord and His kingdom in this part of the city. This Church is needed here, and they have a fine piece of property in a growing section of the town. However, they feel embarrassed on account of a debt that hangs over the property. I think, however, that the debt can be provided for, and the Church saved if the people here can be induced to put forth a consecrated effort along that line. A volume could be written on the failure of some in the Church, but that would not amend the matter. The past is past, and we must now face our responsibility as though there were no past. The Church here is weak financially and numerically, but consecration in the kingdom of God will work wonders. "Where two or three are gathered together in His name, there He will be," and every earnest effort will be blessed of Him. I believe, under the leadership of the Holy Spirit, we may discover a plan by which the program of God can be carried forward. We are going to do our best before we give up the effort.

G. D. Hunt.

FRIENDSHIP WITH THE DIVINE ONE.

Human friendship is one of life's greatest boons. Unhappy indeed is the lot of that person who is unable to count as a friend one of his fellow-beings. But helpful and precious as is earthly friendship, there is a friendship that is far sweeter and more valuable—the friendship we may have with the one who is both Creator and Redeemer.

The skeptical may think it a think incredible that the Creator of the universe should condescend to be the Friend of man, or to count man as His friend; but this is one of the mysteries of divine love that are so baffling to those whose minds are unenlightened, and whose hearts are untouched by the Spirit of God.

The Lord Himself has told us that such a relationship is not only possible, but that it actually exists between Himself and those who have responded to His invitations of love. Through the prophet Isaiah, He declares: "Thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy: I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones" (Isa. 57:15).

There are numerous instances in the Bible that wonderfully illustrate the realit yof God's friendship for man. Of Enoch, the seventh from Adam, we are told that he "walked with God; and he was not; for God took him" (Gen. 5:24). In the epistle to the Hebrews this is explained thus: "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God" (Heb. 11:5).

Of Noah also we are told that he "walked with God" (Gen. 6:9). This expression certainly conveys the thought of a wonderfully intimate relationship—true friendship. Abraham enjoyed this walk with God, who Himself referred to him as "Abraham, my friend" (Isa. 41:8). Joh, too, experienced the friendship of God, for he says: "The friendship of God was upon my tent; when the Almighty was yet with me" (Joh. 29:4, 5). The word translated "friendship" in the American Revised Version occurs also in Prov. 3:32 and Psa. 25:14, where we read: "The perverse is an abomination to Jehovah; but His friendship is with the upright." "The friendship of Jehovah is with them that fear Him; and He will show them His covenant."

When the Lord Jehovah, who had entered into friendship with Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Job, and others, became the man Jesus of Nazareth, He entered into an even more intimate friendship with men. So tender and compassionate was His love for even the outcasts of society that His critics charged Him with being "a friend of publicans and sinners." But it is toward His true followers and disciples that He shows Himself the Friend of friends, and it is they whom He counts as His friends indeed. "Greater love hath no man than this," He declares, "that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth; but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you."

Jesus Christ, then, our Creator and Redeemer, is also our Friend. And what a wonderful Friend He is! Page after page could be written ascribing praise to Him in this respect, but in this article we shall note but three of His attributes as a Friend:

First, He is an ever-present Friend. "Lo, I am with you always ("all the days," A. R. V., margin), even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:20). "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock, if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me" (Rev. 3:20). "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. . . . If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him" (John 14:21-23).

He is also an all-powerful Friend. He is the one "mighty to save" (Isa. 63:1); "wherefore He is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for them" (Heb. 7: 25).

And further, He is a Friend who is all-wise. Those who listened to Him during the days of His earthly ministry were astonished, and said, "Whence hath this man this wisdom?" And the apostle Paul declares that Christ is not only the "power of God," but also the "wisdom of God."

What rare privileges, then, the Christian has of fellowship, counsel, guidance and protection from this "Friend that sticketh closer than a brother" (Prov. 18:24). He has proved His love by laying down His life for His friends (John 15:13), and as the resurrected One He now offers us His friendship for eternity.

"One there is above all others—
Oh, how He loves!
He is love beyond a brother's—
Oh, how He loves!
Earthly friends may fail or leave us:
One day soothe, the next day grieve us,
But this Friend will ne'er deceive us—
Oh, how He loves!"

—Review and Herald.

BIRTH RATE SHOWS LARGE DECREASE.

In an average group of 200 Americans in 1915, five children were being born each year. In that same average group in 1928, less than four children were being born.

These figures are based on the returns from States embracing 91 per cent of the population, where the registration of births is required by law. In 1915 the birth rate in the registration area was 25.1. In 1928 it was 19.7, a decrease of 5.4, or 21.5 per cent.

The result, says the office of education of the Department of the Interior, now is being felt in the schools. Actual decreases in the number of children in the lower grades in communities that are increasing in population are being shown.

In Chicago, for example, at the end of September, 1924, there were 260,872 children in the first six grades of the regular day schools. The corresponding figure for 1929 was 254,666, an actual decrease of more than 6,000.

In the nation there were 4,320,000 children in the first grade in 1926, while in 1926, with a population increase of 10 per cent, there were less than 4,000,000.

NOTICE.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will hold its regular annual session at Waverly, Va., July 22nd and 23rd. The Sunday School superintendents will please take note and see that delegates from their schools are present. The program for this convention will appear in a later issue of THE SUN.

Preachers, officers and delegates will also note the following: Owing to the fact that we received no invitation under the old plan, it was necessary for the executive committee to offer the convention on the Harvard plan. Waverly was the only Church to extend us an invitation. It is expected, therefore, that the delegates and visitors will pay for dinner and supper the first day and dinner the second day.

JOSEPH E. MCCAULEY,
Executive Secretary.

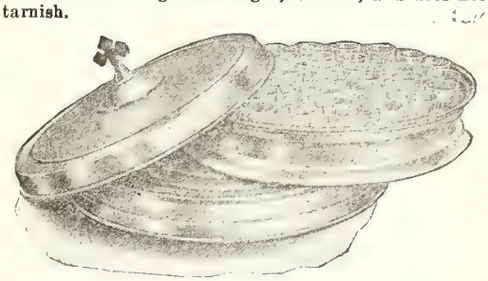
COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.



Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

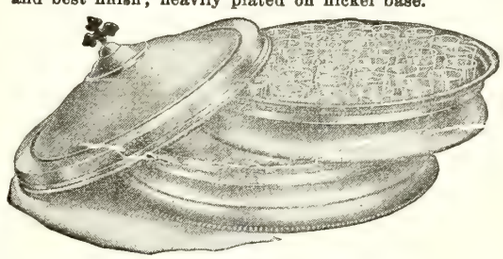
SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very lightest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.



Style No. 85.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00

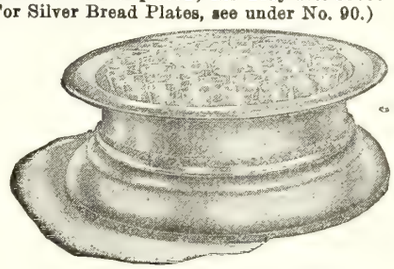
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)



Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad rim	9.00
Filler—Silver lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

A DAILY PRAYER.

JULY.

Father, Creator, we thank Thee that, in the capacity and aspiration of humankind, it is innate to learn. Both prophecy and promise decreeing "all shall be taught of God," we deplore prevailing spiritual ignorance and acknowledge its scope as within our own election. Turn us, O God, and give to Thy Church open ears and awakening minds, willing to study to show ourselves approved. In instruction of youth, give, we pray, to leaders and teachers the tongue of them that truly are taught of Thee, that each may know how to speak the word in season. Make us workers unashamed. In Jesus' name. Amen.

WIDENING HORIZONS.

All too many regard missions as a narrow and circumscribed subject, whereas in reality it carries us far afield in imagination, in new knowledge and in fresh interests and understandings of peoples and countries.

Mission study should, therefore, be ever lifting and widening our horizons for us, giving us new insights and far vision of God's workings today among men and women, youth and children. Such study gives us a new awareness of the problems being created in America and around the world by the changing times in which we live. It develops a new understanding of peoples and conditions as they are influenced by the changing world currents today; it presents the need for changing attitudes, methods and policies in the face of these new conditions—yet it ever presents the same message of a sufficient, universal, unique Saviour to meet the needs of this day as He has met the needs of every day and every age.

Foreign Missions—India.

The mission-study themes for 1930-'31 exemplify the foregoing statement. They take us to India to see there the changes and problems that a strong nationalistic urge and the ever-growing desire for self-determination are creating for India, for the British government, for the missionaries and for our boards.

Dr. Oscar MacMillan Buck, who has written the more advanced book for adults, "India Looks to Her Future," loves and knows his India, having been born there of missionary parents and having visited India some years ago and again recently.

Our foreign mission texts, with two exceptions, are being published by the Missionary Education Movement. These two are "A Cloud of Witnesses," by Elsie Singmaster, and a junior book, "The Treasure Hunt," by Margaret R. Seebach, published by the Central Committee on the United Study of Foreign Missions—Missionary Review of the World.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JUNE 28, 1930.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$3,619.12
Fuller's Chapel, Henderson, N. C.	2.63
First Church, Norfolk, Va.	2.04
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	16.00
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	2.20
Ramseur, N. C.	7.00
New Elam, New Hill, N. C.	1.72
Ebenezer, Cary, N. C.	7.30
High Point, N. C.	2.46
Philathea Class, High Point, N. C.	3.00
Newport News, Va.	13.00
Wood's Chapel, New Market, Va.	1.00
Windsor, Va.	2.50
Bethlehem (Nans.), Suffolk, Va.	2.69
Randleman, N. C.	3.00
North Highlands, Columbus, Ga.	1.70
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	8.00
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	1.75
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.90
Wakefield, Va.	3.45
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	4.53
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	4.52
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	5.66
Beulah, Keezletown, Va.	1.00
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.	2.77
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	6.00
Total	$ 3,727.05

Individual and Church Collections.

Previously acknowledged	$ 5,749.96
Mt. Pleasant, Overhills, N. C.	2.75
Beulah, Keezletown, Va.	1.00
Newport, Harrisonburg, Va.	1.50
Bethel, Harrisonburg, Va.	10.92
Timber Ridge, Harisonburg, Va.	4.00
Total	$ 5,770.13

Dollar-a-Month Club.

Previously acknowledged	$ 11.00
Miss Nancy Branch, Garner, N. C.	5.00
Total	$ 16.00

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$17,692.43
Sunday Schools, regular	107.93
Individual and Church collections	20.17
Dollar-a-Month Club	5.00
Total to date	$17,820.53

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

THE LITTLE GATE TO GOD.

In the castle of my soul
Is a little postern gate,
Whereat, when I enter,
I am in the presence of God.
In a moment, in the turning of a thought,
I am where God is.
This is a fact.
When I enter into God,
All life has a meaning,
Without asking I know;
My desires are even now fulfilled,
My fever is gone
In the great quiet of God.
My troubles are but pebbles on the road,
My joys are like the everlasting hills.

So it is when my soul steps through the postern gate
Into the presence of God.
Big things become small, and small things become great.
The near becomes far, and the future is near.
The lowly and despised is shot through with glory.
God is the substance of all revolutions.
When I am in Him, I am in the kingdom of God
And in the Fatherland of my soul.—Walter Rauschenbusch, Federal Council Bulletin.

NEWS NOTES.

BY MRS. W. M. JAY.

The Young People's Missionary Society of Cypress Christian Church is doing a splendid work and is indeed progressive. They are hoping and planning for the most important year of their history and, by Conference, are aiming to be a banner society.

Their meetings are held on the first Sunday night in each month at the Church, at which time a splendid program is rendered. This is a public service, and the interest and benefit derived is evidenced by the well-filled house at each meeting.

In addition to this, a social meeting is held in the home of one of the members once a month, at which time a general good time is enjoyed. This is a fine way to get the young people together and to hold their interest in a good cause. Much interest is shown in the mission-study class which is now in progress.

A three-act play was given in May, and they are planning to give a pageant in August. Miss Ophelia Harrell is the wide-awake president of this society.

On the second Sunday in June, the Woman's Missionary Society was reorganized at the Berea Christian Church, of which Dr. W. M. Jay is pastor. This society had previously elected officers, but for months they had not functioned. With the assistance of their pastor, new life was instilled into the society and a real program of work was outlined. About fifteen agreed to be enrolled as charter members and a program was arranged for a meeting on Friday night following. This meeting was led by Mrs. W. M. Jay, and splendid interest was shown.

There was also a desire for a Ladies' Aid Society, so it was unanimously agreed to make the society a Missionary Aid Society, giving half of their dues, money and interest to the local work and half to missions. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Jessie Shepherd, president; Mrs. Margaret Pritchette, vice-president; Miss Flora Taylor, secretary; Mrs. L. D. Kernodle, treasurer.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS FOR JULY.

Woman's Society.

Theme: "Peace."

(Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. For one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren.)

Song.

Prayer.

Business.

Devotional period: Isa. 60:17, 18; Rom. 13:1, 7; Rom. 12:9; Matt. 22:37-39; Zech. 8:16; Isa. 58:6; Eph. 6:13-18.

Heart-to-heart message.

"Progress Toward World Peace" (in Herald of Gospel Liberty).

"General Pact for the Renunciation of War."

A soliloquy: "Books, Books, Books."

Flag salute: Fourth verse of "America."

Missionary Society Suggestions.

Do not forget to take the offering for the literature fund. And, remember also that the Woman's Missionary Board is asking for at least 10 cents per member from your society. It is the literature fund that provides the free literature for you.

Stress the devotional period with earnest prayers for peace.

The heart-to-heart message will be sent to you in time for your meeting if you have the envelope of helps.

Assign the number "Progress Toward World Peace" to some one who will study the recent papers and magazines to gather the facts of interest on the subject and present them in an interesting way on your program.

A copy of the peace pact is found in the envelope of helps. This may be read and after the reading have some one tell how women can work for peace.

A copy of "A Soliloquay" is in the envelope of helps (other copies can be had at 3 cents per copy). This should be given by three younger women, and by careful thought and preparation can be made very effective and helpful.

Young People's Society.

The Christian Churches of Other Lands.

Purpose: To study the Christian Churches of other lands, to discover their extent and nature, and to learn from them.

1. Hymn: "The Whole Wide World for Jesus."
2. Psalm 100.
3. "Where Are Our Churches?"
4. "Building an Indigenous Church."
5. Debate, or open discussion.
6. "Learning From Other Lands."
7. Special music (if possible, number written by one of another land).
8. Report of the project committee.
9. Hymn: "The Church's One Foundation."

Poem: "I am the Church."

Prayer (for the Church at home, for the Church of the world).

Hymn: "Faith of Our Fathers."

Suggestions.

Poster: Prepare an outline map of the world, with lines drawn from your Church to Dayton, our national Church headquarters, and then from Dayton to all countries where the Congregational and the Christian Churches are now at work (as indicated in leaflet you may secure from our Foreign Mission Department). Below the map place the words, "Building the Church in All the World," with place, date and hour.

3. Secure information from the Foreign Mission Department concerning the enlarged overseas service which we hope to be rendering by this time, and with the map prepared for the poster locate world fields.

4. See Chapter X, Y. and W. O., pages 49, 50. Appoint some one to present facts here, and anything else available regarding the building of an indigenous Church, where the people of the land are leaders. "The Christ of the Indian Road" and "The Christ of the Round-Table," by Stanley Jones, will give suggestive material.

5. Question for debate or discussion suggested in questions on page 48, Y. and W. O., especially 1 and 2.

6. Ask one member to come ready to discuss this theme. Stress lessons regarding Christian unity which Churches of other lands teach us.

7. Include in report any facts regarding Christian or Congregational Churches in foreign lands which can be found.

Junior or Willing Workers' Society.

Theme: "Good Citizenship."

Song: "When Morning Gilds the Skies."

Call to worship (same as last month).

Offering. Vary by letting the children march forward by rows and drop their offering into basket. Then all stand while short prayer is made.

Talk on what it means to be a good citizen. Let the children suggest rules which a good citizen will keep. Write these on a blackboard. Let the children put them in their notebooks. Lead the discussion to show how ministers and missionaries aid people to be good citizens; ministers by helping us to find right laws here, missionaries by carrying the laws to other countries.

Begin a summer-time project. The boys may make the box which will carry the gifts you plan to make, or earn money to buy materials, etc. The girls will like to make little garments to send to Porto Rico. Co-operate with your vacation Bible school in doing this as a part of their handwork. If your treasure chest is not complete, this will be a splendid project. Write for full information if you have not already secured it.

Close with flag salutes.

American Flag salute: "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and the republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Sing first verse of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Christian flag salute: "I pledge allegiance to the Christian flag, and to the Saviour for whose kingdom it stands, one brotherhood, uniting all mankind in service and love."

Sing first verse of "Fling Out the Banner."

Cross flags, Christian flag uppermost. Sing as a prayer with bowed heads, the last verse of "America."

O'KELLY MEMORIAL.

Total cost of material	$1,275.00
Previously acknowledged	1,090.25
Balance to be secured	$ 184.75

J. O. Atkinson, Treas.,
Committee on O'Kelly Mem'l.
Elon College, N. C.

"God led inspired men to use such language, as without revealing scientific facts in advance, accurately accommodates itself to them when discovered. The language is so elastic and flexible as to contract itself to the narrowness of human ignorance, and yet expand itself to the dimensions of knowledge."—Dr. A. Pierson.

When you go to preach in the city, take your best coat. When you preach in the country, take along your best sermon.—Bishop Jos. F. Berry.

"Extravagance is mother of want."

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges ---------- $2.75
01693 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark ---------- $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4⅞ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles ---------- $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5⅛ x 3⅜ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. | 10 Mercy and truth gether; righteousness kissed each other.
11 Truth shall sprin

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4⅝ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, [a]O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better [1]
[a] Gen. 15. 1. [b] Ps. 56. 1. & 57. 1. [1] or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03573x -- $5.00

OUR LEADER

Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 ¶ [16]Jĕ-hôi'-ă-chĭn was e years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark ---------- $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x--------

As No. 03255x, with concordance.
No. 03276x -- ----$6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1⅛ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on m

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible ---------- $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition ---------- $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges ---------- $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

INTERNATIONAL UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Lesson II—July 13, 1930.

Jacob.

Golden Text: "For what shall a man be profited if he shall gain the whole world, and forfeit his life? or what shall a man give in exchange for his life?"—Matt. 16:26.

Lesson: Gen. 25:19-34, 27-33; 46:28-47:12.

The story of Abraham was a story of faith and faithfulness; the story of Jacob is a story of selfishness and sordidness. And yet out of this rough material the Lord fashioned one who became the father of the twelve tribes of Israel, which ultimately gave to the world the Saviour. God moves in mysterious ways His wonders to perform.

The Matter of a Birthright.

Esau represents the man who lives for the present, "whose God is his belly," as Paul says; who barters abiding values for passing pleasure and satisfaction; who sells his soul for material gain, or the temporal things. One need not wonder why a man could do such a thing; he needs only to see a demonstration in more or less measure of the same thing in his own life.

And Jacob is just about as bad as Esau. He took advantage of his brother's weakness; he brought tremendous pressure to bear on his dull-witted victim; he used his superior ability in gratifying his own selfishness. He finds his type in all those who exploit the weak and capitalize unlawfully human appetites and passions.

Bethel.

One sin leads to another. Jacob had bought Esau's birthright, but he had to deceive his father in order to get the blessing. He who is dominated by selfishness, stops at nothing. There is something sordid and repulsive about the way Jacob takes advantage of his blind father in order to get the blessing. And it does not help the picture any to see the part which Rebekah plays. Alas! for the home in which parents and children are pitted against each other in a grand grab-game for the spoils.

As a fugitive from the wrath of his brother, Jacob stops for the night at a place, which became a veritable "house of God." Here he had a vision of a ladder between earth and heaven and angels ascending and descending and the Lord Himself standing at the top. Here was the dawning of that great truth that there was open and immediate access between earth and heaven and between the human and the divine. The old selfish trait remains even after his great experience. His vow reveals the presence of the bargaining spirit. "If God will do this and if God will do that"—how modern it all sounds! There are still those who think in religion in terms of what they will get out of it.

A Love Affair.

Jacob had no material possessions to give for his beloved—it was the custom in those days to give presents for and to the bride—so he worked seven years for her. There is a beautiful statement to the effect that the seven years seemed as but a day because of the love he had for her. What a difference love makes! There is a lesson here for young people of today. Why need a fellow have material possessions when he marries the girl of his heart? What more does any red-blooded girl want than the love of a man who is willing to work? This idea which some girls have that a man must have so much and be making so much before they will marry misses the point.

A Man's Past.

Be sure your sins will find you out. Chickens have a way of coming home to roost. Jacob had robbed Esau, but there was a day of reckoning coming. It was this spectre of his past that brought Jacob to his senses. At the brook Jabbok, that night, his better nature gained the ascendency. His name was changed because his character was changed. He was no more Jacob, but Israel, for he had prevailed.

Reconciliation.

Some of the finest virtues are often to be found in the least-expected places. Good-natured, pleasure-loving, coarse old Esau had the spirit of forgiveness and good will. He puts many so-called Christians to shame in his free and ready manner of forgiving injuries and personal wrongs.

Jacob later bore testimony that the days of his life had been few and full of evil. The evil in his life had been due in large measure to his persistent policy of pursuing selfish ends. The way to enter into life is to live for others.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By Jewel Truitt.

Sunday, July 13, 1930.

Topic: "Worth-While Hobbies."

Scripture Reading: Psa. 8:3-9.

Why Have a Hobby?

1. When one is finding out something new about one's hobby, one is educating one's self. One cannot hope to learn everything from books. Discovery of interesting things about one's pet hobby is one fascinating way of teaching one's self to study. One will likely learn to be very observant if one has a hobby.

2. Worth-while hobbies will be recreational. If one farms or engages in some other manual labor, one should choose reading, music, or some hobby that will not cause the muscles to be overworked. The person who works in an office will choose tennis, baseball, hiking, or nature study for a hobby. One's hobby should help to fill in the things that are lacking in one's work for a well-rounded life.

3. A hobby may be a character-builder. One's hobby may require minute accuracy. Such a hobby might be the collection and classification of butterflies, where the differences in coloring, shape and peculiarities of the butterflies would have to be known. Or perhaps one's hobby is the directing of plays or recreation, or even the participation in plays and games. Here one has to know how to deal with people as well as to know how to do the things required in the hobby. Hobbies that include other people are rich in their results.

4. Friendships are built up through hobbies. Even when hobbies are of the type that does not necessarily include other people, friends are often won through hobbies. Business men often win a customer or make a deal through the interest of the two parties concerned in a certain hobby.

For Discussion.

1. Should people be expected to work all of the time? Why?

2. Suggest some of the hobbies that Christian Endeavorers might take up.

3. What are some of the requirements of a worth-while hobby, or way to spend leisure time?

4. Let each member of the society suggest the hobbies that he is interested in. Let the group test them by this recreational yardstick:

(1) Is it recreational?
(a) Does it build up body, mind, nerves?
(b) Does it exercise unused faculties?
(c) Does it rest overworked muscles and nerves?
(d) Does it conserve a surplus of physical and spiritual energy?
(e) Does it demand active participation?
(2) Is it social?
(a) Can it be shared by all?
(b) Does it foster a wholesome social atmosphere?
(c) Can all ages and sexes enjoy it?
(d) Does it develop teamwork and co-operation?
(e) Does it have a helpful influence?
(3) Is it educational?
(a) Does it build character?
(b) Does it develop loyalty, courage and self-confidence?
(c) Does it teach self-control and self-discipline?
(d) Does it give opportunity for self-expression?
(4) Is it spiritual?
(a) Is it inherently wholesome?
(b) Does it give mental and social satisfaction?
(c) Is its appeal more than merely physical and sensual?
(d) Does it contribute to the religious life?
(5) Is it practical?
(a) Does it require minimum equipment and preparation?
(b) Can it be easily learned and used time and again?
(c) Does it keep within the financial resources of the participant?
(d) Can it be learned in youth and played with enjoyment through life?
(e) Does it maintain a proper balance between work and play?

VALLEY S. S. CONVENTION.

The Valley of Virginia Central Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention was held on June 12th and 13th, at the Linville Christian Church.

The opening session was featured by an address by Rev. Minor C. Miller, State secretary of the Council of Religious Education, on the theme, "The Progress of Christianity." Mr. Miller made a plea for a greater emphasis on religious education in the Churches and among the people in the country. He traced the struggle of the Church, which he declared has aided in the solution of many difficult problems.

Most of the first day was given over to enrollment of delegates from Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor Societies, reports from departmental secretaries, and helpful discussions pertaining to the work of the Church. Every Church except one was represented at some time during the Convention. A large percentage of young people prevailed throughout the sessions.

Rev. F. C. Lester addressed the Convention at the evening session on "The Building of the Church."

At the Friday morning session, Mr. Chas. D. Johnston spoke on behalf of the Christian Orphanage; Rev. R. A. Whitten told about the work of our college, Elon; Rev. F. C. Lester presented the work of the Board of Christian Education; Miss Jewel Truitt, field secretary of the Board of Christian Education, spoke on the theme, "Our Young People at Work," and closed the session with a worship program which presented the challenge of the Church to young people.

Rev. Joe French conducted the five opening worship programs of the Convention, using a specially prepared group of worship programs.

At the afternoon session, certificates of recognition were awarded to the Churches attaining the standards set by the Convention at its last session. The following Churches received certificates: Antioch, Bethlehem, Leaksville, Linville, Mayland, Mt. Olivet (Rockingham), Newport, Winchester, Wood's Chapel, and Mt. Olivet (Greene).

Roy A. Larrick, of Winchester, was re-elected president of the Convention, with J. E. Foster, Luray, vice-president; R. Roy Hosaflook, Linville, secretary, and R. O. Rothgeb, Luray, treasurer. Rev. R. L. Williamson was elected to deliver the annual address next year, and Bethel Christian Church was chosen for the 1931 place of meeting. J. V. T.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Eastern North Carolina Christian Conference, to be held at Liberty Christian Church, Vance County, N. C., July 15, 16, 1930:

TUESDAY, JULY 15, 1930.

Morning Session.

Theme: "Building With Christ" (Eph. 2:20-22).
Call to Order (10 A. M.)—Rev. R. L. House, President.
Song Service.
Devotional—Rev. H. C. Hillard.
Roll Call and Enrolling of Delegates.
Address of Welcome—Mr. G. W. Macon, Jr.
Response—Mr. R. M. Rothgeb.
Business Session:
1. Report of Executive Committee.
2. Miscellaneous Business.

President's Annual Address—"Building the Sunday School."
Special Music—Higgins Sisters' Quartet.
Address—"Building the Christian Endeavor," Mr. H. N. Truitt.
Adjournment for Lunch on Church Lawn (12:10).

Afternoon Session.

(Devoted to the Sunday School.)

Call to Order (1:30).
Devotional—Rev. B. J. Howard.
Convention Divided Into Sections:
1. Children's Work Leader, Mrs. Murdock Newman.
2. Y. P. Work Leader, Miss Ruth Johnson.
3. Adult Work Leader, Mr. Grady H. Leonard.
4. Music in the S. S. Leader, Miss Higgins.

Convention Reassembles (2:20).
Music by Higgins Sisters.
Reports of Departmental Secretaries:
Home Department—Miss Elizabeth Green.
Cradle Roll—Mrs. E. W. Boshart.
Primary and Beginners—Mrs. Murdock Newman.
Junior—Miss Regina Carter.
Intermediate—Miss Myrtle Bridges.
Adult—Grady H. Leonard.
Teacher Training—F. M. Harward.
Literature—Rev. J. E. Franks.
Missions—Mrs. T. F. Ayscue. (This report will be given Wednesday A. M. before Mission Address.)
Organization and Expansion—R. L. House.
Music—George McCullers.

Discussion and Adoption of Reports.
Adjournment 4:15.

Evening Session.

Call to Order (8 o'clock).
Song Service.
Worship Service—Conducted by C. E. Society of the Henderson Christian Church.
Address—"Building Stewardship in Sunday School," Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.
Music by Higgins Sisters.
Address—"The Trained Teacher," Prof. H. E. Spence.
Adjournment 9:45.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1930.

Morning Session.

(Devoted to Institutions Sponsored by the S. S.)

Call to Order (9:30 o'clock).
Devotional—Rev. J. E. Franks.
Address—"Missions a Spiritual Task," Miss Ruth Johnson.
Address—"Our College Training Leaders," Dean A. L. Hook.
Music by Higgins Sisters.
Program by Representatives of Christian Orphanage.
Address—"The Work of Our Church," Miss Jewel Truitt.
Adjournment 12:10.

Afternoon Session.

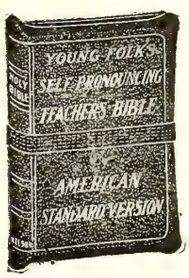
(Devoted to Christian Endeavor.)

Call to Order (1:30 o'clock).
Song Service.
Devotional—Rev. J. A. Denton.
Reports of C. E. Departmental Secretaries:
Junior—Miss Zola Winn.
Intermediate—Miss Lizzie Bell Newman.
Senior—Mr. Ray Dickens.

Address—"The Place of Christian Endeavor in the Church Program," T. F. Wright.
Music by Higgins Sisters.
Pageant—"Youth's Conquest for Companionship," presented by Liberty Christian Endeavor.
Announcements and Unfinished Business.
Adjournment 3:50.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.



These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3-4x3-8 inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¾x5⅜ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps $2.50

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7-8x 7 Inches, and 1 3-8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7-8x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold $1.60

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 15-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4¾x 7 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

Printed from clear, large, black-face type, 32 full-page illustrations in sepia and colors, 4,000 Questions and Answers, Harmony of the Gospels, How to Study the Sunday School Lesson, 25 outline Maps, 12 full-page colored Maps.

4152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

AMERICAN STANDARD VERSION.

TEXT BIBLES.

Printed from Easy-Reading Type, on Good Bible Paper, for Sunday School and Church Use.

Minion Type, Size 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick, 25 Outline Maps, Bound in Black.

101—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, title stamped on back in pure gold...$1.10

112—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title on back in pure gold $2.75

India Paper Edition, Only ⅞-Inch Thick.

112X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

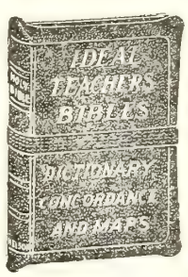
Reference and Text Bibles also in minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, pica and English type.

Thumb index cut on edge, 50c extra; name printed on any Bible in gold, 40c extra; extra wording, 40c per line.

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5¾x8¼ Inches and 1⅜ Inches Thick.



Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With concise Bible dictionary, combined concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold $4.75

RED LETTER EDITION

With all the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands, title stamped on side and back in pure gold $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations. Special book for Sunday Schools 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent post paid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 E. Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If thou wilt make the Almighty thy treasure . . . then shalt thou delight thyself in the Almighty . . . and thou shalt make thy prayer unto Him and He will hear thee."—Job 22: 25-27.

MONDAY.

THE AMBITIOUS ANTS.

"They had disputed one with another on the way, who was the greatest."—Mark 9:33-42.

Two tiny ants met each other on an ant runway, and would not let each other pass. As I bent over them watching, I imagined that I could hear them talking to each other in ant language. "Get out of my way!" said the first ant. "I don't see why I should," said the second ant; "I'm as big as you are." "You are no such thing," said the first ant; "I'm half a head taller than you." "But I'm wider than you," the second ant replied, "by the breadth of a whole human hair." And so the fierce conversation went on, as I imagined, until the two ants crowded by each other and went angrily on their ways. Yet, in spite of all they said, the two ants seemed to me to be exactly alike and both of them almost too small to be seen.

Thus God must look upon us human ants as we strive for precedence, each judging himself greater than the other. All disputes are silly, but none is so absurd as this.

Prayer.—Pardon us, our Father, if this folly is ever ours. Give us a sense of our own littleness. Show us the pettiness of our ambitions. Grant that we may seek large things in a large way, and so become truly great. For the sake of the Son of God and for His kingdom. Amen.

TUESDAY.

COUCHING AT THE DOOR.

"If thou dost not well, sin coucheth at the door."—Gen. 4:3-13.

Sin is a wild animal, lying in wait at the door of life, ready to give the fatal spring. Do well, and the beast shrinks away; it has no liking for such a house. Do ill, and the beast fairly lives at the door, keeping its fierce, red eyes fixed upon it, never relaxing its watchfulness, day or night. It is waiting at the door of the home, and even at the door of the Church. Begin to sin, and the beast follows you everywhere.

Prayer.—Lord Jesus, Thou only canst send the beast away and rid us of it forever. Thou only canst free us from this fearful watch, this deadly companionship. For Thou wilt be to us the Door. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

VERY PRESENT.

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."—Psa. 46:1-11.

The Bible has created its own language, and the English-speaking world has adopted it, to its vast enrichment. An example is "very present." For if one is present, how can he be more than present? how can he be "very present"? But the Bible says that God is "very present" in time of trouble, and the Bible is always right.

Seated at my office desk, totally absorbed in some editorial work or problem, I have often discovered some letters or papers on the desk that were not there when I began. Some one has opened the door, entered and laid them there, gone out and shut the door, and I have known nothing of it. They have been present evidently, but not very present, not present enough for me to realize it.

But to the Christian in trouble, God is a very present help. He enters like a burst of sunshine. The air, as He enters, becomes fragrant and vivifying. He enters to put His arm around the Christian. He enters to say, "I know all about it, my son, and I am here to give you just the aid and comfort that you need." This He does, joyously, abundantly, victoriously. He is indeed very present.

Prayer.—How often, our Father, our elder Brother, Thou Holy Spirit of all help, have we realized this blessed presence of Thine! Come, for we need Thee. Come, for we exult in Thee. Come, for with Thee we can do all things. Amen.

THURSDAY.

OUR JERUSALEM.

"Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, . . . if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."—Psa. 137:1-6.

There is a man in Boston who thinks so much of the old town that he has not taken a vacation from it for thirty-five years. He says that the only way to force a vacation on him would be to ship him to Australia on a non-stop boat: for if the boat made a landing anywhere he would be sure to get off and come back. He is a busy doctor, has a wide acquaintance, and thinks that not only is there no city like Boston, but that there are no people quite so fine as the Boston people.

That is a delightful, wise, and rare spirit. The town is fortunate that can inspire it, and a person is fortunate who can cherish it. It is the feeling that David evidently had for Jerusalem.

But many of us are constantly grumbling at our environment. Nothing suits us. We are all the time talking of leaving and going elsewhere. We wear blue glasses at home and look away through rosy glasses. It is a foolish way to live. It chains us in the prison of unhappiness.

Prayer.—We can find Thee in any place, O Thou Omnipresent, and where Thou art is joy and satisfaction. Be Thou with us, and any place will be our adored home. Amen.

FRIDAY.

SELF-SNARED.

"Thou art snared with the words of thy mouth, thou art taken with the words of thy mouth."—Prov. 6:1-11.

Words are like a lariat, which a man can throw forth in such a fashion that it coils around his own feet and catches and throws down himself. No one is likely to do such a silly thing with a lariat, but hundreds of men do it every year with the ropes of words which they fling forth out of their mouths.

We seem so thoroughly the master of our words, it does not seem possible that they can ever master us. We utter malicious or false words so easily, it does not seem possible that so much harm can come from them. Yet many a careless sentence has proved to be a life-time fetter.

Prayer.—Keep Thou the door of our mouth, O Thou who didst give us the inestimable faculty of speech. We may do so much good with it, and ah! so much harm. Establish a guard over our words, and let none go forth that are not kind and wise and true. Amen.

SATURDAY.

MAN'S IMPERFECT LAWS.

"The law of Jehovah is perfect."—Psa. 10:7.

In Connecticut, by a single court decision, 1,493 laws have been invalidated. These include all the laws passed under the last four Governors (those from 1915 down to the present) which have been signed by the Governor more than three days after the adjournment of the Legislature. The Legislature will meet at once in extra session to pass those laws over again, but the situation is complicated because of payments that have been made and taxes that have been collected under the laws thus declared illegal.

We hear not seldom of errors in human laws, many of them caused by faulty punctuation when the laws are printed, and there is a sharp conrtast between our man-made, imperfect laws and the laws of God which are always perfect. No one has ever discovered a flaw in a divine law, whether it be a natural law or one of revelation set down in the Bible. We must yield obedience to our human laws, faulty as they sometimes are, but we should hold in deepest reverence those perfect laws which come to us from above.

We cannot honor and keep God's laws without knowing what they are. We cannot know what they are without reading and pondering the Bible. The more we do this, the nearer to perfection will our lives come. Few of our duties and privileges reach down farther, reach up higher, than that of reading God's Word.

Prayer.—We bless Thy law, O Jehovah. It is our strength and our joy. It is our guide through life and our hope for the life to come. It is perfect and perfecting. May we know it better and do it better as the days go by. For Christ's sake. Amen.

SUNDAY.

"SLOW BACK."

"He that believeth shall not be in haste."—Isa. 28:11-16.

Bobby Jones, the golf champion, says that his chief fault in the game which he plays so marvelously well is his tendency to hurry the backward swing of the club which comes just before he strikes the ball. This is a common fault with all players. It is likely to ruin the stroke, because it destroys the perfect balance of the body, which is the secret of success. A good golf player must relax, be leisurely, let himself go, and thus make his swing a perfect circle.

Golf carries with it many lessons for life, and this is perhaps the chief one. If we are to live our life well, we must constantly say to ourselves, "Slow back." We must cultivate the habit of patience.

This attitude of mind is greatly promoted by trust in God. "He that believeth shall not be in haste." Accept God's plans. Await God's time. The clock of the universe is never too fast and never too slow. The swing of God's purpose is always a perfect circle.

Prayer.—May our lives beat with Thee, O Heart of the universe! May we ever be at peace. May we look to Thee and be restful. May we work with Thee and be calm. May the stillness and confidence of nature enter into our souls. May we believe, and not be in haste. Amen.

The annual drink bill of the world is about twenty billion dollars. That enormous sum measures the extent of international pressure upon the United States to do away with its prohibition laws. A gigantic conspiracy against the eighteenth amendment exists, in which the liquor-maker and liquor-seller of all lands have a conspicuous part. They cannot afford to let the United States remain dry, for that in time would mean a dry world.—The Way of Faith.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

Rev. Joseph W. Fix, Preacher.

"LIFE'S PRISON."

"What is in Thine hand?"—Ex. 4:2.

One of the saddest stories in all English history is the life-story of Lady Jane Grey, and can be related in a moment; in fact, so short is the sad story of her life that the great English-woman wrote it upon the window-pane of the English castle in which she was imprisoned. Her story was written with her diamond ring upon the window in two words, and here they are, "Life's prison." With a light heart and a merry soul, she entered the castle, but after a brief while her lord failed to give her his sympathy or to ever offer her a cup of human kindness or break life's tiny box of love over her soul. Hers was a castle, land, titles, maids, and dresses, but not happiness; and so her young soul pined away in dreamy captivity.

We live in a world where life's greatest gifts and sweetest blessings are to be found in the little things. Take away love, and the food that satisfies, and the daily work, and gold would be contemptible and palaces would be prisons. Oh, for the presence in our lives of the little things! The song of a bird is a little thing, yet it brings us a wealth of joy. A ray of light is a little thing, yet it lightens the drearest spot. The laughter of a child is a little thing, yet it touches the weariest heart. The smile on a face, a cheerful "good-morning," the clasp of a friendly hand, and the good will that comes from a kindly word are all little things, but how much they mean! In fact, in this big world of ours, each human life has its share to provide through the ministry of little things, for these make up the big things.

There is no satisfaction equivalent to that which comes to a person as a reward of having contributed his little bit in a worthy manner to the great whole of things. And the beauty of this thought is that all of us may contribute by doing our best with what we have.

In the fourth chapter of Exodus, the second verse, the great law-giver, Moses, is asked of the Lord the question that all of us need to consider: "Moses, what is that in thine hand? And Moses answered, a rod." This rod which Moses held was just a plain staff. It had no power in itself, nor could Moses endow it with power, but how wonderful it became when God willed that it should be used in His service. Let us recall two instances wherein Moses used what he held in his hand for the glory of God. Let us turn to Exodus 17:9 and there hear Moses saying unto Joshua, "Choose you out men and go fight with Amelek: tomorrow I will stand at the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand. So Joshua did as Moses had said and fought with Amelek, and it came to pass when Moses held up his hand that Joshua prevailed, and when he let down his hands Amalek prevailed." So, with a shepherd's rod in his hand, Moses was enabled to inspire Joshua to win a victory over his enemy.

Again in the same chapter we have the account of Moses leading the children of Israel through the wilderness, and they say unto him: "Give us water, that we may drink," and because Moses had led them away from their homes and was now with them in the midst of the wilderness, wherein they thirsted, they murmured against him. But the Lord said unto Moses, "Go on before the people, and with the rod in thine hand stand before the rock in Horeb," and with the rod thou shalt smite the rock and water shall come out of it, that the people may drink. So it was that by obeying God and using what he had, Moses was enabled to reveal the will of God to the people and thus show that God would provide for all their needs, if they, like Moses, would live by faith.

And God spake to Moses, saying, "What is that in thine hand, and he said a rod." And he waved the rod over the Red Sea and at once the waters parted and the children of Israel went through on dry land and were saved. Hence, in all things Moses made use in a noble way of the little things which he possessed, even a rod consecrated to God. And his success was not short of wonderful, because of his willingness to obey God's command.

Every person since the beginning of time has, like Moses, held something in his or her hand which might be used in revealing God to man. Let us listen to the voice of God as He asked the question to men, women and children of long ago, asking, "What is that in thine hand?"

"What is that in thine hand, David?" And David answers God, "A sling, with which I am going to slay a giant." And David, the shepherd lad, bravely fought and killed a giant who was ten feet tall and who wore a hundred-and-fifty-pound armor and carried a seventeen-pound spear. For a long time, Goliath had defied the Israelites. For six weeks the challenge came from Goliath, saying, "Send out a man to fight with me, and if he kill me my soldiers will be your servants." But even Jonathan, son of King Saul and a man of great courage, faith and skill, refused to venture, and the Israelites continued to be very much humiliated. Even King Saul knew not what to do. But when young David came to visit his brothers who were in the army, to bring them good, he went forth to challenge the giant, and with his little sling in his hand won a victory. At first, Saul refused to allow the boy David to fight the giant, but David said: "You view strength by earthly standards, but he who has faith in God can move mountains. With God on my side, even with this little sling in my hand, I can defeat the enemy that has so long given God's chosen people trouble." The fact that David used what he had, even though it was apparently an insignificant thing, is no surprise to us, for it was God working through a consecrated youth.

As we turn to the New Testament, God's voice speaks to men and women, asking, "What is in thine hand?" For God had given to each one that which each particularly needed to do his part toward bringing about the new kingdom of God. All these people make their contribution by the faithful use of the little things which they possessed.

Let us think first of Peter, who one day on his way to the temple finds a begger lying without the gate. Peter did not give him alms, but said to him, "Such as I have, give I unto thee, and he reached down and lifted him up, and in the name of God caused the man to be healed of his infirmities." What is that in thy hand, Peter? And Peter answered, "Faith in God, and a desire to help a fellow-man."

The voice of God asked two women, "What is in thy hand?" and they answered, respectively: Mary says: "A box of ointment." Just a little thing, but very fragrant, which I have been saving for this occasion when I might show my Lord how much I love Him by anointing His head. And even though some complained, saying that it was a waste to thus use, Jesus said: "She hath wrought a good work on me." The poor widow says: "Just two mites in my hand, and she cast them into the treasure chest." And because she gave her all, even though it was small, Jesus said: "She has cast in more than all the others who have given out of their liberality."

What is that in thy hand, little lad of twelve years of age, and he answers, "Only five loaves and two fishes." And most willingly the lad gave his lunch to one of the Master's disciples, and therefore Jesus blessed and His disciples distributed the food unto 5,000 people. So Jesus may take the smallest gift we possess and magnify it 5,000-fold if we, like the lad, are willing to let Him.

Finally, God is asking the membership of His Church, "What is in thine hands that may be used to spiritualize my holy institution?" The older men of the Church may answer, "Spiritual experiences gleened from years of fellowship with Him, prayers answered, faith strengthened, temptations overcome, life's responsibilities borne cheerfully." As the older men look back to Moses, let them say: "We hold thy rod and thy staff in our hands with which we inspire and encourage the young men to win victories for God."

The young men of the Church may answer: "We hold opportunities for service, and, as Peter used his all to lift fallen man, so we shall be faithful in rendering help in the name of God. We hold in our hands conviction that evil shall not

(Continued on Page 15.)

SUBSCRIBERS TO THE CHRISTIAN SUN

These Pens are of standard make, and will give good service. If you are in need of a Fountain Pen, order from us. Postage Paid, and Pens guaranteed by the manufacturer.

MEN'S PENS—Capitol, $2.00; Mercantile, $2.50; Cardinal, $3.00. LADIES' PENS, $2.00.

COMBINATION OFFER: To a new subscriber or for renewal, $3.25, either Gentleman's (Capitol) Pen or Lady's Pen, with guarantee of manufacturer. And to "Sun" subscribers, not in arrears, any Pen at one-fourth off. Address:

THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 EAST BROAD STREET, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Christian Orphanage

The new barn at the Christian Orphanage, a cut of which appears in this issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, takes the place of the large barn which was destroyed by fire last November, containing practically all the crop of hay stored during the year. For twenty-three years the Orphanage had never had a fire. The old barn had been filled with hay from year to year, and the beautiful Holstein cows had enjoyed the fine hay stored for them, and gave in return most excellent milk for the little children to drink. And our pretty cows had to suffer in the cold.

Your superintendent being absent at the time, critically ill in the hospital, Mr. J. M. Darden, our chairman, took in the situation and called the board of trustees together quickly to lay plans to raise funds to rebuild. And this splendid barn, with the cow-shed, modern in every way, stands today on a beautiful location as a monument to their plans and labors. Our good friend, Mr. J. M. Darden, was made treasurer of the building fund and led the campaign to raise the money with which to rebuild. When the call was made and our people saw the Orphanage in distress, the response was beautiful and the money came into the treasury to help meet the need. Bro. H. A. Carlton secured plans from the State College free of cost, which was quite a saving to us; and was a member of the building committee, and assisted in buying material at a reduced price, which helped us very much.

NEW BARN AT CHRISTIAN ORPHANAGE.

Mr. John A. Hall, a member of the building committee, gave us of his time and assisted very much in making the contract for building the barn and assisted in getting the work done in a satisfactory manner.

We are greatly indebted to the entire board of trustees, and especially to Mr. Darden and Mr. Carlton and Mr. Hall for the active part they took in assisting us at a time when we needed help.

And we could not forget our friends, L. A. Sharpe and Worth Bryan, who worked when the weather was bitter-cold and rough, to help us get our cattle in a warm place to stay, and who did the work so well and built us a barn that the entire Church may well feel proud.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

REPORT FOR JULY 3, 1930.

Brought forward	$8,448.90

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

N. C. & Va. Conference:

Bethel	$ 1.19
Third Avenue, Danville	4.53
Liberty	3.29
	9.01

Eastern N. C. Conference:

Damascus	$ 1.35
Fuller's Chapel	2.79
New Elam	3.07
Henderson	4.27
Liberty Vance	6.80
Morrisville	2.00
Auburn	4.50
	24.78

Western N. C. Conference:

Pleasant Grove	$ 3.06
Big Oak	1.00
	4.06

Eastern Virginia Conference:

First, Portsmouth	$10.93
Mt. Carmel	5.97
First, Norfolk	6.69
Windsor	2.00
Bethlehem	3.69
Berea, Nansemond	10.00
Holy Neck	10.00
	49.28

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Linville	$ 7.00
Mayland	2.11
Concord	2.22
	11.33

Alabama Conference:

New Hope	1.79

Special Offerings.

Interest on loan	$ 7.50
Sale of corn	52.15
Alamance County	150.00
	209.65

Grand total	$8,758.80

PARABLE OF THE SILENT PIANO.

I sat beside a business man, and he said, I am now an has-been. I am retiring from business, and not very gracefully. I am getting out while the getting out is bad, but before it getteth worse.

And I said, What is that business from which thou art so precipitately retiring?

And he said, It is the piano business.

And I said, That is a business that deserveth to succeed.

And he said, Yes; and we have spent years building up an honest business; look at us now!

And I said, Why is it thus, and what is the cause of this thusness?

And he said, It is canned music. First, there is the piano that folk play with their feet.

And I said, I render very excellent music in that fashion.

And he said, Yea; and being able to play with thy feet instead of with thy brain and hands, thou shalt never learn.

And I said, I learned a little before there were any player-pianos.

And he said, It is not simply the player-piano, but the phonograph and the radio. People have grown too lazy even to play a piano with their feet.

And I said, I fear thou art telling the truth.

And he said, The twilight of kultur is in the fact that we have come to a point where we insist on getting all our knowledge and our art and our kultur canned, and few men care to go to the labor of creative artistry in music or other of the fine arts.

And I said, I fear the evil doth not stop there. For I behold that colleges do now spend their hundreds of thousands for a stadium where forty thousand people may yell themselves hoarse while two and twenty men get the exercise and the drill.

And he said, Thou wilt be a voice crying in the wilderness if thou preach that doctrine.

And I said, I am too astute a man to preach it; for I think I can read the handwriting on the wall that declareth that this craze for vicarious kultur is to cease to be the bone and sinew of a college education.

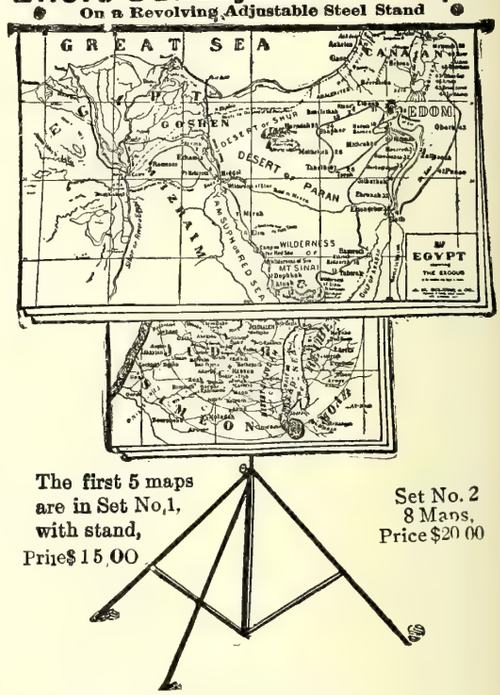
And he said, The passion for this gaining of canned kultur by proxy hath gone far toward taking possession of all of us, and of the things that are most sacred to us.

And I said, There are people who think to gain their eternal salvation in that way.

And he said, They have got a large-sized surprise coming unto them, with charges collect.—The Congregationalist.

Eilers Sunday School Maps

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand



The first 5 maps are in Set No. 1, with stand, Price $15.00

Set No. 2 8 Maps, Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, 16 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf.—The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites the

Series No. 2—Eilers' Edition

Eight large Maps in six colors each, size 36x57. Greatest value for the money. Each set consists of the following Maps: Map of Egypt and Exodus of Israel, Palestine divided among the 12 Tribes, New Testament Palestine, Map of Western Asia and Bible Lands, Roman Empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's travels by colored lines, the Divided Kingdoms of Judah and Israel, the Persian control of Palestine and the Pathways of our Lord showing by colored lines each journey He made. This set of eight fine Maps which cover all Bible Geography in the different periods on adjustable folding steel stand only prepaid.

RELIGIOUS BOOKS

Reviewed by

W. A. HARPER, BOOK EDITOR.

(Any book reviewed in this Department may be had of The Christian Sun at the publisher's price.)

OBJECTIVES IN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION. By Paul H. Vieth. Harper & Bros.; $2.50.

In this book, Dr. Vieth, who is director of research and service of the International Council of Religious Education, has gathered the conclusions of a Ph.D. dissertation at Yale and of several years of investigation for the International Council. The result is the most authoritative statement of objectives yet produced. He does not, however, state the specific objectives of religious education, though he indicates how they may be developed. The book is devoted to a consideration of the comprehensive objectives of this most recent arrival in the religious field.

The writings of the ten persons adjudged to be the leaders in religious education were consulted to ascertain the seven objectives described. The objectives then were subjected to the criticism of a large group of college professors, directors, editors, and ministers, before their acceptance as representative of present-day thought and ideals in their field and their incorporation in the list.

The seven objectives are then described and elucidated in as many illuminating chapters. They are as follows:

A consciousness of God in human experience; an understanding and appreciation of Jesus Christ; the continuous development of Christ-like character; the building of a Christian social order; the inculcation of a Christian philosophy of life; Church membership; utilization of the racial religious heritage as a guide for present Christian experience.

Dr. Vieth has done his work well and his book will exert a wide and wholesome influence. His fundamental position that men can know God and Christ and be known of them, is most encouraging and steadying in a book like this. He has done the cause of religious education real service.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION IN STATE AND CHURCH. By Harold S. Tuttle. The Abingdon Press; $1.50.

Prof. Tuttle is glad that the public schools have seen the need for character education, but he is equally insistent that religion must motivate life, or the resultant character is fundamentally defective. He discusses practical ways for the co-operation of Church and State in this great enterprise. Being himself a prime mover in the cause he has espoused, his book is not an argument only, but a blueprint. We need more such books.

SPEAKING IN PUBLIC. By Arthur Stevens Phelps. Richard R. Smith, Inc.; $2.00.

While this work is intended primarily for ministers, its wisdom and breadth makes it eminently a book for all professional men who realize that effective public address is not only an art but a necessity today. Prof. Phelps writes in a gay, pictorial vein, which brings out with unmistakable clarity his many excellent ideas and suggestions. A feature of exceptional value is the author's power to relate public speaking to the whole field of human experience. He does not consider it as a mere performance to be governed by set formulae, but a practice which must at all times be close to life and reality. The result is a book which enables the reader to cultivate from his own reading and experience a growing power of self-expression.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from Page 13.)

prevail, and, as young David used his sling to defeat the dreadful giant, so we shall not permit the coming generation to become a victim of worldliness."

The women may answer: "We hold in our hand not only a box of ointment with which to anoint the head of our Master, and not only a few small mites with which to place within the treasure-chest, but we hold within our hearts a mother's love for the children of mankind."

The children may answer: "We hold lives of purity and simplicity, and a willingness to give all that we have to Him, even as the lad of twelve gave his meager lunch to be multiplied by the Master."

What do you hold in your hand that you can use for Him? On one occasion, Jesus held in His hand a basin and a towel, and with them He washed the disciples' feet as an example for all people to follow. Will you not use whatsoever you hold in your hand for the glory of God and good of humanity?

Franklin, Va.

WHEN IN RICHMOND EAT AT

Mrs. Cook's Cafeteria

805 E. Grace Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Opposite Richmond Hotel.

ELON COLLEGE

CO-EDUCATIONAL

1889—1929

ELON COLLEGE is a pioneer in the field of Religious Education.

Buildings and equipment new and of the most modern type; laboratory facilities equal to any college in the South.

CARLTON LIBRARY BUILDING.

A member of the Southern Association of Colleges, ELON is a tool for progress in the building of Character. Though well serving the Church in the today of hustle, yet she is concerned with the tomorrow of achievement. ELON offers superior opportunities for an education in a Christian atmosphere.

For further information, address

C. M. CANNON, REGISTRAR

ELON COLLEGE, :: :: NORTH CAROLINA

"Christian Character First and Always at Elon College"

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Associate
W. A. HARPER, LL. D.....Associate
Rev. S. C. HARRELL.....Associate
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....News Editor
P. J. KERNODLE....Managing Editor
C. D. JOHNSTON..Circulation Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00
Introductory (Three Months) ..... .50

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows the date of expiration. Change in the label will appear on wrapper the second week, month following renewal, provided it is received before the 25th.

Change of Address: Give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

Remittances: Make all remittances for subscriptions and renewals to The Christian Sun, C. D. Johnston, Circulation Manager, Elon College, N. C.

Advertising Rates: Prices quoted upon request.

Remitances for advertising and all other business matters should be addressed to the "Managing Editor," 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

When subscriptions are made for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of the year.

Obituary and Marriage notices of 100 or less words are published free of charge; all over 100 words, at 1 cent a word. Remittances should accompany copy. Please write names distinctly.

MARRIAGES

A DOUBLE WEDDING.

Saturday evening, June 14th, at the home of the writer, in Lynchburg, Va., he united in holy wedlock, in the presence of only a few close friends, Mr. Burley Braxton Harris and Miss Marietta Elizabeth Dunn, and Mr. James Oliver Newcome and Mrs. Isabelle Dunn Hendrick. The brides were sisters and both wore suits alike and were beautifully and handsomely dressed in a white ensemble suit, with hat, slippers and accessories to match.

These young folks are all from Lynchburg and enjoy a wide circle of friends, all of whom wish for them a long and happy life. May God's smile ever be upon them. They will make their home in Lynchburg.

G. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

MARTIN—BALLARD.

Friday morning, June 20th, the writer was called to Danville, Va., to unite in marriage Mr. Daniel Jarvis Martin and Miss Virgie Loviena Ballard. The bride is a sister of the writer's wife and is very popular among her class, a native of Guilford County, Colfax, N. C. The groom is a native of Stokesdale, N. C., and a young man highly respected among all who know him. Only the bride's sister witnessed the ceremony.

They will make their home in Stokesdale, N. C. The writer wishes for them all the happiness and pleasure that can come to them. May God bless these young folks.

G. C. CRUTCHFIELD.

An old divine on the frontier once wrote to Princeton, "We want strong oxen here; we have plenty of roots." Leaders are attracted by hard tasks.—A. Burns.

The glass of which a bottle is made prevents the contents from running out and being wasted. Home influences around us help to keep us from running wild. We tend to try to live up to our reputation.—Macleod.

"To sin against light, to know better, yet to call good evil and evil good, is to sin against the Holy Ghost. It is to trample down one's spiritual instincts. Much modern political propaganda is of this character."

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

666

Relieves a Headache or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, checks a Cold the first day, and checks Malaria in three days.

666 ALSO IN TABLETS.

"SUPREME AUTHORITY"

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Because

Hundreds of Supreme Court Judges concur in highest praise of the work as their Authority.

The Presidents of all leading Universities, Colleges, and Normal Schools give their indorsement.

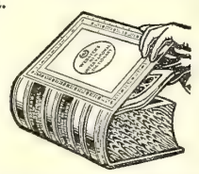
The Schoolbooks of the Country adhere to the Merriam-Webster system of diacritical marks.

The Government Printing Office at Washington uses it as authority.

WRITE for a sample page of the New Words, specimen of Regular and India Papers, FREE.

G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield, Mass.

Get The Best!



PIEDMONT JUNIOR COLLEGE

WADLEY, ALABAMA

AN ACCREDITED CO-EDUCATIONAL COLLEGE

EIGHTH ANNUAL SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 3, 1930

It is thoroughly Christian, but absolutely non-sectarian. A school for the student of very limited means.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Total expense for boarding students, $260; for non-boarding students, $72.00.

Piedmont Junior College is affiliated, as a Junior College, with Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and its courses are co-ordnated with those of Piedmont and accredited by that institution. Piedmont College is a charter member of the Association of Georgia Colleges and a member of the Association of American Colleges.

For Catalog and other information, address S. L. Beougher, President.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.

¶ m From that time Jē´ to preach, and to say, n I the kingdom of heave

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Wedding or Gift Bible

FOR THE HOME

Holman Self-Pronouncing Home Study Edition

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

Full Bound size, 8½ x 6 inches; nearly 1800 pages. Authorized Version with Marginal References.

Large Print—Easy to Read

The Helps are the latest and most practical published — prepared by the most reliable and well-known authorities, and consist of a TEACHERS' NEW READY REFERENCE HAND BOOK, which gives the salient and essential information needed in Bible study.

Illustrated Self-Pronouncing Bible Dictionary—Containing 150 illustrations.

Oriental Light on the Bible (Containing over 100 illustrations). A new kind of illuminating Bible help.

Treasury of Biblical Information.

A New Series of Maps. A selection of the most used, with Special Maps, the results of the most recent explorations.

A New Practical Comparative Concordance, with nearly 50,000 references.

Four Thousand Questions and Answers on the Bible.

ABSOLUTELY DURABLE BINDINGS that will not break in the back.

Specimen of the Print. Full size of the page is 5½ x 8 inches.

Specimen of Type.

17 ¶ m From that time Jē´sus began to preach, and to say, n Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at

A BEAUTIFUL PRESENTATION PAGE Marriage Certificate and Family Record makes this special edition a most desirable Bible for a wedding gift.

No. 4914. French Morocco, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker..... $5.50

Postage Paid

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street
Richmond, - - - Virginia

Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southern Christian Convention and the Congregational Churches of the Southeast.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY. IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY. IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXII. RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1930. NUMBER 28.

Mrs N T F

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By Dr. W. C. Wicker.

BIBLE IN NEW LANGUAGE.—

The Book of Genesis has been translated into the Maranao dialect of Mindanao, one of the Philippine Islands. The translation was made by Seventh Day Adventist missionaries of that district, and the American Bible Society is doing the printing.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE GARDEN.—

The International Peace Garden is proposed to be laid out on land extending across the boundary between the United States and Canada, in honor of the more than a century of peace between the countries. It is to contain specimens of all the varieties of trees, shrubs, and flowers that can be grown in this latitude. Contributions are solicited in small amounts from school children throughout both countries. The idea is a beautiful way of sponsoring thoughts of peace, and suggests the beautiful figures used in Holy Writ for those who have accepted God's salvation and are nurtured by His Holy Spirit into the divine nature. "He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water." "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord . . . for he shall be as a tree planted by the waters." "That they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord."

LEAVEN OF LIBERTY.—

More than fifty treaties have been negotiated with various nations, containing provisions for freedom of conscience and religious liberty. Our statesmen, in passing these treaties in the United States Congress, have demonstrated beyond doubt the esteem with which these principles are held in America. And as these principles have been read and studied in other countries, the seed of liberty have been sown. Eventually an abundant harvest has been produced, and other nations are feeling the urge to satiate the thirst for equality and liberty.

Benjamin Franklin was one of the first men sent to other countries to speak for liberty. The fires of freedom were burning in him, not only for his fellow-countrymen who might be found at some time in these countries, but for the citizens of these countries as well. When he came to write a treaty for Sweden, he did not forget this important matter, but incorporated these remarkable words: "There shall be granted a full, perfect, and entire liberty of conscience to the inhabitants and subjects of each party." "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

APPRECIATION OF PRESIDENT.—

Mr. Fred B. Smith, Miss Jane Addams, Hon. Raymond Robbins, Mr. William Allen White, Mr. Roger Babson, and Dr. James L. Barton were among a party of thirty-six who called upon President Hoover, May 28th, requesting him to send a message through the American delegation to the International Congregational Council, which is now in session, holding its fifth decennial meeting, in Bournemouth, England, July 1-9th, this year. The American delegation consists of 600 representatives from the Congregational and Christian Churches. Premier MacDonald is to address the council. The letter presented to the President by his thirty-six guests began with a tribute to his leadership, as follows:

"As representatives of the National Council of the Congregational Churches of the United States, we are glad to avail ourselves of this opportunity to present the greetings of our Churches and to express our high appreciation of you and your administration. We find ourselves in genuine, enthusiastic accord with the measures which you are advocating for the interests of our people in domestic affairs, and for the larger welfare of the people throughout the world as evidenced in the advanced movement in behalf of international good will and enduring peace."

Among the delegates attending this council in England are our own Dr. J. O. Atkinson and Dr. L. E. Smith. We shall have a full account of the meeting in The Sun when they return.

INDIA AGITATED.—

Eyes turned toward the Orient are focused on India, not on China, though in the latter country the usual summer session of war is starting on a grander and bloodier scale than ever before." India is greatly agitated over problems complicated in politics and religion, and its saint-leader, the mystical and mysterious Gandhi. Tremendous possibilities are hanging in the balance, and the fate of the Anglo-Saxon empire seems on the verge of uncertainty.

Opinions, conjectures, guesses, and prophecies are being expressed as to the immediate outcome of the issue. Will it be a final outcome, resulting in Indian -domination status or absolute independence? Matatma Gandhi and his close followers and imitators have been arrested for defying the salt laws. Serious riots, much bloodshed, numerous killings, and mob-like uprisings have occurred in many widely separated centers. Wild Afghan tribes hover on the northwest border, ready to attack at the first sign of weakening British rule.

Human beings have a love for freedom, and a right to it. India is demanding that right, and while benevolent rule of Great Britain in India has greatly benefitted the country, although her "genius for government" has sometimes erred, at best, all agree that India has a right to seek that freedom to which she is entitled as much as other nations who have won their independence. Great Britain, wise by this time in dealing with subject people in their growing feeling for independence, will be able to grant a gradual independence which will be best for the present and future of India, but not the radical type that their radical leaders want. Gandhi's methods seem, in the main, Christian methods, and they are what make him so remarkable a figure in Hinduism. The Christian methods may not prevail soon against materialism, but they will eventually prevail.

BIBLE UNRIVALED.—

As literature, the Bible stands without a rival. The charm of its narratives, the faithful delineation of its character sketches, the beauty and pathos of its prose and poetry, the directness and forcefulness of its style, the exalted standards of morality, and the atmosphere of infinite love permeating all, place it in a class by itself, never equaled or approached by human genius.

The Bible is a personal book that speaks alike to king and peasant, pagan and prince. Its teachings are marvelously adapted to every need and experience of mankind. It has instruction for the young, comfort for the aged, counsel for midlife, wealth for the rich, help for the poor, and freedom for the oppressed. For the student, the teacher, and the scientist, wisdom; for the farmer, the mechanic, and man of business, strength; for the slave, the judge, and the legislator, guidance; for those of every clime and race, enlightenment. It has a message for the cultured and the ignorant; for the believer, the skeptic, and the infidel; for every soul in discouragement or grief, or tottering to the close of life's journey. It presents God's sovereign remedy for sin, the acceptance of which brings pardon, peace, and power, an enriched appreciation of nature, a deeper enjoyment of life, a keener appreciation of heaven, and a hope of complete happiness here and hereafter.

The Bible is a book of cyclopedic completeness. It "contains the mind of God, the state of man, the way of salvation, the destiny of the righteous and the wicked. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its histories are true, and its decisions are immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be right, and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you, comfort and cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword, and the Christian's character. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, and the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart, and guide the feet. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory, and a river of pleasure. It is given you in life, will be open at the judgment, and be remembered forever. It invokes the highest responsibility, rewards the greatest labor, and condemns all who trifle with its holy contents."

NOTES-PERSONALS

Mr. Jesse F. West, Jr., of Waverly, was in Richmond on business the first of the week.

Dr. W. W. Staley was in Richmond Tuesday of this week, attending committee meetings and visiting with friends. Dr. Staley seems to have completely recovered from his recent illness.

Quite often THE SUN receives requests that a certain notice be gotten in "this week's issue." We always try to comply with the request if possible, but it is not possible to do so, except in rare instances, when the notice reaches the office later than noon Tuesday preceding the Thursday of publication. Please bear this in mind when sending in notices.

We learn with deep regret that Mrs. W. A. Harper, while at Blue Ridge, N. C., on July 2nd, broke her ankle, both bones being fractured just above the ankle and the joint being seriously dislocated. She was taken to the Memorial Mission Hospital, at Asheville, N. C. THE SUN sympathizes with Mrs. Harper in her suffering, and wishes for her a speedy recovery from her accident.

The Sunday School orchestra of First Christian Church will go to Buckroe Beach Friday of this week with the joint picnic given by Boulevard and Centenary Methodist Churches, Westhampton Baptist and our own Church. The orchestra will give a concert in the pavilion during the day. The orchestra goes on invitation from the other three schools, which is quite a compliment to the orchestra as well as to the Christian Sunday School.

The sad intelligence of the death of Mr. James D. Proctor, of Lumberton, N. C., was received Sunday, June 29th. Mr. Proctor was the son-in-law of Mr. J. D. Kernodle, of our Graham Church. The many friends of Mrs. Proctor, who was Miss Sarah Kernodle, known to many of the alumni of Elon College, where she graduated, sympathize with her in her bereavement. Mr. Proctor was a lawyer of fine ability, a member of the board of trustees of the University of North Carolina, attorney for the Thomasville Orphanage, an excellent Christian gentleman, a devoted husband and father, a faithful member of the Masonic fraternity, and a man of public affairs. The sympathy of a host of friends is extended to the widow, the two daughters, and relatives.

July 1st saw the transfer of over 2,500 prohibition employees from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice, where they will look to G. Aaron Youngquist, Assistant Attorney General, as chief. The Treasury Department will co-operate with the Department of Justice to control the industrial alcohol output. Attorney General Mitchell, said to be the driest Attorney General in prohibition history, has summoned his district attorneys to Washington to consider ways and means to make prohibition enforcement more effective.

Age has found a champion in Henry Ford, who recently declared that if all men of fifty-five were removed from industry there would not be left enough brains to carry on the business. This is true of the Church, as well. Youth has been greatly imposed upon during the past decade or two by being given tasks which it was poorly prepared to perform. Now we are coming to realize that maturity has its advantages; that an experienced and trained head, especially in the pulpit, is often better than an adventuring one, even though the former has gray hairs.—Christian Advocate.

H. George Robertson, who until recently was director of religious education of the First Christian Church, Richmond, Va., was ordained to the Christian ministry on June 26th, in Providence, R. I. Mr. Robertson is a member of the Elmwood Christian Church of that city and returned there for his ordination. The Rhode Island and Massachusetts Christian Conference, in which he first was licensed to preach, was in a special session at the time, and the evening service was given over to the ordination. Rev. W. G. Sargent, pastor of the Elmwood Christian Church, preached the ordination sermon. Other ministers assisting in the service were Revs. Arnt L. Schoning, Thomas Kidd, Frank H. Gardner, Uel Anderson, H. Milton Hainer, H. Russell Clem.

Three bills intended to improve prohibition enforcement, principally through the relief of congested Federal courts' dockets, were given the approval of the House Judiciary Committee. One measure would authorize the summary prosecution of offenses, elsewhere defined as misdemeanors, before United States commissioners without a jury. Whatever the action of the commissioner, it must be confirmed or disapproved by a member of the Federal bench. Another would amend the United States code to define a misdemeanor as an offense calling for a maximum penalty of six months in jail, a fine of $500, or both, and a felony as an offense punishable by imprisonment for not less than one year. The third measure would amend the Jones law to define a misdemeanor under the prohibition laws as an offense committed by one who is not an habitual violator of the dry statutes and a case involving not more than one gallon of liquor.

HOME-COMING.

Shallow Well Christian Church held its annual home-coming service June 29th. Bro. Frank F. Watson, the Sunday School superintendent, had charge of the program. A large congregation assembled for the service, and the program consisted of special music, congregational singing, quartets, and solos were rendered which were enjoyed by all who were privileged to be present. The devotional service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Denton. Rev. T. Fred Wright, pastor, made an address on the history of the Church, and an offering was received toward payment of the cost of building Sunday School rooms and improvement of the Church building, amounting to over one hundred dollars. Rev. J. Lee Johnson made an inspiring address on "Home-Coming," which was enjoyed by all present. A sumptuous dinner was served in picnic style at the noon hour.

In the afternoon, Rev. G. R. Underwood, Rev. J. L. Foster, and Rev. W. C. Wicker, old pastors, made addresses concerning their service as pastors of the Church. The day was enjoyed by all who were privileged to be present, and a good day was filled with delight and inspiration for the promotion of the interest of the kingdom. Old acquaintances were renewed and new acquaintances were formed. This is one of the original Churches of the Christian faith in North Carolina. One hundred and twenty-five years of history is represented by this grand old Church. It now has a splendid Church building, a beautiful cemetery, beautified Church grounds, a prosperous Sunday School, a large congregation, and a bright future and a prosperous people.

NOTICE.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will hold its regular annual session at Waverly, Va., July 22nd and 23rd. The Sunday School superintendents will please take note and see that delegates from their schools are present. The program for this convention will appear in a later issue of THE SUN.

Preachers, officers and delegates will also note the following: Owing to the fact that we received no invitation under the old plan, it was necessary for the executive committee to offer the convention on the Harvard plan. Waverly was the only Church to extend us an invitation. It is expected, therefore, that the delegates and visitors will pay for dinner and supper the first day and dinner the second day.

JOSEPH E. MCCAULEY,
Executive Secretary.

NOTICE.

The Eastern North Carolina Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention will hold its annual session at Liberty (Vance) Christian Church July 15th and 16th. Some splendid speakers will appear on the program. It should also be of interest to the people of this Convention to know that the Higgins sisters' quartet will appear a number of times on the program. This is a real attraction. I trust that a special effort may be made by all pastors, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor workers to boost this Convention and help us make it a real contribution to the cause of Christ.

R. L. HOUSE, President.

NOTICE.

All ministers and delegates expecting to attend the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention at Liberty Vance, July 15th and 16th, and desiring entertainment, will please notify the undersigned. Those coming by train or bus will please so state, and they will be met at station. We are planning for you. A welcome awaits you. Come.

G. W. EAVES,
Henderson, N. C., R. 6. Ch'n of Committee.

NOTICE.

The Sunday School Convention of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet in Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 22nd and 23rd.

The Educational Committee of the Conference will meet in the afternoon on July 22nd, in Waverly, and all persons with any business with the committee will please take notice and meet the committee at that time and place.

W. W. STALEY,
N. G. NEWMAN,
I. W. JOHNSON,
Committee.

NOTICE.

We urge that all ministers serving in this Conference attend the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, July 15th and 16th, at Liberty Vance, and see that your Churches send a full delegation, with a good report from each Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society. The success of this convention depends upon your co-operation. Our record will be blank without your reports. May we count on you to do your part? Visiting ministers and friends will be given a hearty welcome. Meet us at Liberty Vance.

MRS. R. J. NEWTON, Sec.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

Rev. E. C. Gillette, Editor; Rev. F. P. Ensminger, and Rev. M. J. Sweet, Associates.

COUNTRY LIFE ACADEMY: An important special meeting of the borad of trustees will be held at Star, N. C., at 10 o'clock, July 25th.

THORSBY, ALA.: A very successful daily vacation Bible school was recently held, with an enrollment of over one hundred. Miss Margarite Davidson and Miss Lorena Primm assisted. On July 9th, the Church celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Church with appropriate and interesting exercises. Rev. Joseph E. Each is in his seventh year as pastor of the Church. This Church is the United Protestant Church of Thorsby, Inc., but belongs to the Congregational Conference.

ORANGE CITY, FLA.: Rev. Thomas H. Derrick, the pastor, writes that the ladies of the Church had installed a new ice machine and a new hundred-dollar gas range in the parsonage and had given the trustees of the Church $100 toward the redecoration of the interior of the Church, so as to be "spick and span" when the Conference meets next April. Mr. Derrick is a pastor who appreciates his Church. "I am proud to be its minister, as they are always doing something worth while."

COLUMBUS, GA.: Rev. Neil McQuarrie, D. D., is serving the Rose Hill Christian Church, in this city, for several months. Congregationalists have had two Churches in Columbus, but they are both now defunct, though there is still property unsold. The Christian people are strong in the hope that, under the leadership of Dr. McQuarrie, the Congregational people may be again brought in for the formation of a United Church —Congregational and Christian. The Rose Hill Church has a good brick building, seating around 400, with good Sunday School rooms.

APPRECIATION of Camp Immokalee and the Young People's Conference held there was expressed by one pastor who this year had his first opportunity to see its life from the inside and who had had some prejudices in favor of another location and type of conference. He writes, "Whatever thoughts I may have had of Immokalee in a negative fashion in regard to its work, location or manner of being conducted, have been entirely dispelled, and you can count on me as a rooter for it from henceforth and forevermore. I shall do my utmost to send at least a half-dozen of my young people there next year."

MISS DORA BRACKEN is now Congregational Sunday School extension worker, taking up the work which was formerly carried on by Rev. J. F. Blackburn. After a month's service with the First Congregational Church, at Tampa, she began work at Macedonia Church and Trinity Church, in Georgia. She was associated with Miss Hazel Maddox. Mr. Arthur Swartz, of Atlanta Seminary Foundation, is serving as pastor for the summer of this group of Churches. At Macedonia Church, a teacher-training school was conducted with marked results, and at Trinity Church, where services had not been held for some time, a Sunday School was organized and services resumed. Miss Bracken has gone to the group of Churches in the South Georgia Association, where she will have as her associate Miss Annie Campbell, recent graduate of Hartford School of Religious Education. Miss Bracken, who is thus beginning service under the Sunday School Extension Board, is a native of Headland, Ala., a graduate of Thorsby Institute and of Piedmont College.

STUDENT SUMMER SERVICE.

One of the distinctive phases of our Congregational service during the past ten years has been the Student Summer Service—the sending out under the auspices of our Congregational Church Extension Boards of college and seminary students, commissioned for service in pioneer missionary fields, the scope of their work including Church services, Sunday School teaching, organization and leadership of young people's work, Church vacation schools, and parish visitation. During the past nine summers, Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, in connection with his service for the Sunday School Extension Society and, since 1826, as Secretary of Missions for the Eastern Division, has been privileged to select 266 young people from 117 different educational institutions. They have served in 39 different States. Of the total number, 151 are included in those who have entered the ministry at home or overseas, or are preparing for such service in Church, mission station, social service or educational institution. Fourteen are serving in Greece, India, Turkey, Africa and Japan.

Many of these students have served in the Southeast, bringing to rural Churches and Sunday Schools inspiration and vitality because of their youthful enthusiasm and devotion. This summer, 22 young people will be serving in our Southeastern territory. These students come from 17 separate institutions. We are pleased to publish herewith the list of the young people who will be working in this territory and the colleges and seminaries from which they come, and to express herewith our welcome to them and our prayer for rich blessings upon them and upon those whom they serve.

Miss Annie Lou Arthur, Piedmont; Miss Barbara Chase, Providence College of Music; Miss Azilee Johnston, University of Chattanooga; Mr. William D. Pratt, Michigan State College; Miss Mildred E. Taylor, Ohio State College; Mr. Geo. W. Penn, Piedmont College and Atlanta Seminary Foundation; Mr. Robert I. Blakesley, Amherst College and Union Seminary; Miss Hazel Maddox, Piedmont College; Miss Lorena Primm, Alabama College for Women; Mr. Gerald Smith, Thorsby Institute; Miss Alice Benedict, Schauffler Institute; Miss Sallye Brogden, Maryville College; Mr. Floyd M. Price, Vanderbilt School of Religion; Miss Muriel Warren, Oberlin College; Mr. Donald Lee West, Vanderbilt School of Religion; Mr. George Wessling, Vanderbilt School of Religion; Mr. A. W. Loos, Carleton College; Mr. Arnold Slater, Atlanta Seminary Foundation; Mr. Sidney H. Davies, Atlanta Seminary Foundation; Miss Dorothy Allen, Rollins College; Miss Annie R. Campbell, Rollins College and Hartford Seminary Foundation; Mr. Arthur G. Swartz, Atlanta Seminary Foundation; Viasta Chlumska, Schauffler Institute.

THE THORN IN EUROPE.

The explosive outbursts of Mussolini and the situation that he is creating in Italy are being viewed by the world with increasing alarm. His actions and war-like speeches are becoming a menace to continued peace among the countries of Europe. As long as his activities and their effects were confined within the limits of Italy, the rest of the world was inclined to adopt a policy of hands off and to regard with indifference his egotistical, arrogant behavior.

But now it is realized that with his glorification of war, his demands that the youth of Italy be taught that they are superior to all peoples and that they should ever be ready to assert themselves by force of arms, he is, in effect, manufacturing a bomb that the slightest happening may explode and again involve the world in the bloodshed and horrors of another great war.

France Uneasy.

Especially has France become alarmed at the power-crazed Duce's manifestations and has ceased to ignore the fact that Italian youth is being taught to hate France, his continued preachings of the necessity for expansion of Italian territory. As a result, the French armies on the Franco-Italian borders are being maintained at war-time strength. The frontiers are being strongly fortified.

In respect to this situation, Frank H. Simonds writes in the July Review of Reviews that "Mussolini is today inflaming Italian nationalism to the point at which a killing in Tirana—where France's ally, Jugoslavia, is in collision with Italy —a collision on the Saharan frontiers of the two countries, might arouse a passion in the peninsula which Mussolini, with the best intentions in the world, would be powerless to control. He has convinced the Italian people that they are superior to all others, and that they are the old Romans reincarnated. He has steadily inflated their self-confidence and exaggerated their grievances."

Growing Resentment.

Those who up to the present time have been inclined to regard Mussolini with favor, have been blinded by his apparent reorganization of national affairs in Italy. It is not to be denied that he has created a strong party, but he has done this by destroying the liberties of the general populace and by keeping them subdued with tyrannical methods. By means of a strict censorship of the reports of conditions in that country, a favorable front has been maintained. But it is known that the finances of the counrty are far from being in good shape in spite of heavy taxes imposed on the people. What must be more disturbing to Mussolini is the growing resentment of the citizenry against his iron-handed methods. It is reported that riots have broken out in several different places recently and that these are becoming of a more and more serious nature.

The Duce is in a dilemma. He must either go ahead, talking of war and urging conquest, thus rallying about him certain groups, or adopt a policy of conciliation. If the former, the whole of Europe is endangered; if the latter, Mussolini is bound to lose power. With his evident love of power and show, it is hardly possible that he will adopt the latter. Indeed, it is difficult to see, in spite of many plans for continued peace, how Europe will avoid another turmoil unless some method is found to curb the tendencies of the Italian self-styled modern Caesar. H.

NOTICE.

I am open at present for supply work, and will be glad to supply for any minister while he is on his vacation. Also I shall be glad to assist in revival meetings, either do the preaching or take charge of the singing. If any minister should desire my services, I shall be glad to communicate with him from 505 Raleigh Street, Oxford, N. C.

Geo. A. Pearce.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR
J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR
E. C. GILLETTE
117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.
CONTRIBUTING EDITORS
W. W. STALEY W. A. HARPER
S. C. HARRELL J. E. MCCAULEY
NEWS EDITOR
W. C. WICKER

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship, and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cesae to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to commune or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

EDITOR CONTINUES JOURNEY.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

At Sea, June 21, 1930.

It was Saturday noon, one week ago now, our good ship, the "Adriatic," steamed out of New York harbor. Shortly a dense fog obscured the face of the waters, and our sea monster had to feel its way and creep along for twenty-four hours. All night long, at intervals of one minute only, the doleful fog-horn sounded its warning and alarm. About noon Sunday, the fog lifted, or was left behind, revealing a friendly and far-spreading sea, a clear sky and a balmy sun. Since then, the weather has been, for the most part, clear, but uncomfortably cool, and the sea has not been angry. I see by the "log" at noon today that we are 2,687 miles out from port, and as we are scheduled to dock at Loverpool Monday, the 23rd, that port must not be more than about 800 miles away.

One who lives constantly on land has varied meditations and contemplation when on the sea. I am traveling with about 500 other pilgrims on a good-will tour to the "mother country." It is 300 years now since the first pilgrims came across the same waters we now traverse, in quest of religious freedom and to plant on our American shores an independent and self-governing Church. While those former pilgrims have planted an empire and helped build the greatest democracy on earth and left their marks and monuments, all over our land, this sea they and we traverse is just as unmarked, unmarred and as trackless now as it was a thousand years ago. Man has built his big ships and sent them across the seas; but the seas remain unpolluted and wholly unperturbed by their presence, and go on their way just as before man touched or traversed them.

God dug out the mighty ocean and planted the waters there, and to this day He holds the deep in the hollow of His hand and wills and reigns in undisputed might and majesty there. To look out on the ocean, as I have all the days of this week is to think of infinite and eternal might, majesty and dominion.

This ship is interesting, and is a fit palace to dwell in while luxuriating from shore to shore. She has a capacity of 24,679 tons, carries a crew of 500, and a passenger list of 1,340. Her length is 726 feet, breadth 75 feet, depth 58 feet. There are two spacious dining-rooms which seat 300 each at a sitting. There are two sittings in our dining-room each meal, and so 600 of us eat there three times a day when all are able to be up and out. The food on ship is proverbially and everlastingly elegant, abundant, well-cooked and graciously served. And the furnishings of the great trans-Atlantic liner are luxurious and palatial to the last word. The ship is your world for seven or eight days, and the best that art and taste and money can do is done for your comfort.

Besides a place of dwelling, great stores must be carried. Think of the food supply that must be laid in before leaving port to feed 1,300 people three elegant meals a day for eight days! And then the coal to propel the ship—400 tons of it a day, the engineer tells me; about 3,000 tons for the journey. It has all been a different but a very pleasant world to dwell in these seven days, and we shall leave the sea and the ship with reluctance, for out away from the world and the multitude, God seems very near, very dear, and very good. J. O. A.

CHRIST ENTHRONED.

The Christian life is Christ's way of living, and involves Christ enthroned in the heart and life of the individual. The natural, unregenerated man is possessed of inherited tendencies, such as reflexes, instincts, capacities which endow him for living the life according to nature. These powers enable him to adjust himself to his natural needs of self-preservation, procreation, and maintenance of his status in his social group. He is active by nature, and these powers urge him to act for the natural life. Being possessed of intelligence, he develops sentiments, dispositions, habitual tendencies toward a higher life than the natural man. He acquires ideals toward which he may develop a higher life by sublimating these natural inclinations in the direction of self-development in the spiritual realm. He may adopt as his ideal life the life of some worthy or unworthy character as his model, and endeavor to shape his life according to his chosen model. By the use of intelligence, he may inhibit such tendencies of his nature as hinder the realization of his chosen ideal, redirect these tendencies and align them with his chosen ideal, modify them so as to make them re-enforce his disposition to realize his ideal, strengthen them in realizing his purpose, and control his whole life in its development into a unified personality.

Christ may be chosen as the supreme Ideal. His teachings, His example, His character, His personality are all included and incorporated in such an ideal. In Him is vested the faith, the confidence, the trust of the Christian. Christ is enthroned within the soul. He becomes the standard of conduct; He gives the inspiration for the life; He is formed within the hope of glory, and in Him is centered the purpose, and the whole life is ordered according to the revelation of the life of Christ. The life of the individual is no longer controlled in part by instinct; it is no longer at the mercy of environment, no longer blindly directed by appetite and blind impulse; but is intelligently controlled by purpose centered in Christ as the ideal and goal of attainment. What Christ would do becomes the ideal or standard of conduct; what Christ would approve becomes the basis of judgment; what Christ would do becomes a challenge to the soul, and as the life becomes identified with Christ's purpose and devotes itself to the promotion of that purpose, it experiences joy and realizes happiness. This exhilerating experience of consciousness identified with Christ inspires the soul to greater undertakings and urges to self-denial, self-sacrifice, humility, obedience, loyalty, and faithfulness in the discharge of all Christian duties.

With the growing sense of oneness with Christ, with a consciousness of Christ enthroned within, with a realization that Christ lives in the soul, duty becomes divested of its restraining and restrictive nature, the sense of legalistic repression gives place to the sense of freedom, self-expression, spiritual growth, and self-realization. The negative side of the spiritual life is overcome by "the expulsive power of a new affection," and the inspirational power of a new devotion gives growth, advancement, development, and achievement of the Christian life. Christ becomes enthroned within and gives a sense of liberty, life, and happiness with every advance in the direction of the fullness of the Christian religion. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." We learn to love the right, to delight in the law of the Lord, day and night, and Christian growth no longer seems restrained and repressive, but becomes natural, free and happy.

In order to reach this State of the Christian life, no less place than the first in our hearts must be given Christ. He will occupy no other place in our lives. We must serve no other gods before Him. We must not love parents, or children, houses, stocks or lands before Christ if we would have Him in our lives. He must have the first place or none. He must be enthroned within. All other things must be for Him and for His glory. He then becomes our life, for we live in His life and He lives in our life." W. C. W.

EVERY-DAY RELIGION.

Religion is for every day, or it is for no day. There is no such thing as periodic life; and religion is life. It is life lived with Christ in God. Those who have the hardest life, need religion most. Religion is not a sedative, but a stimulant. It does not quiet people, but awakens them. It is not temporary in its operations, but permanent in its actions. It does not grow in the bright days only, but grows best in the dark days.

The housewife needs every-day religion, as her work is every-day work. Cleaning, feeding and beautifying engage her thought and use her strength. Religion cleans the heart, feeds the soul, and beautifies the character. There is no life so clean, so strong, and so beautiful as Christian life. No other woman equals the good housewife. She is the maker of home, and home is the greatest institution in the world. No great nation was ever developed without good homes. Home work is every-day work, and religion must be cultivated by daily living for Christ to make the best home.

Farmers produce the food of the world by daily toil. They plant, cultivate, watch the growing crop, and they reap what they have sowed. They have faith in the seed, the soil, the seasons, the sunshine, and God. Their work suggests faith in God and man. Their religion is every-day religion in the practical application of "diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." "First the blade, then the ear, and then the full corn in the ear." The great cities would starve if the tillers of the soil did not produce the food that millions consume. Every-day religion is just as essential to the spiritual life of man as the grain that makes bread to sustain life. Religion can no more be developed by spasms than the harvests of the world. The soul's needs are every-day needs, and every-day religion is the only way to supply those needs.

The mechanic is in a position to influence his fellows, not only by good workmanship, but to influence their charcater by religion that works at the bench, on the foundation, the scaffold, or the roof. Character is a building, and the architect is Jesus Christ. The plans are mapped out in the Bible, and the Holy Spirit interprets the plans to those who labor daily to build on the foundation—even Jesus Christ. The most beautiful religion is that which speaks through the trowel, the hammer, and the saw. The painter puts on the finishing touches, and true faith adorns the Christian life. All true builders follow the architect in material, form, and finish; and man can do the work of character-building only by obeying Jesus Christ. The builder may use wood, clay, stone, steel, or combine them all. Sunday dress looks better, but work under every-day clothes feeds, houses and educates mankind. Sunday religion attracts more attention and sings sweeter songs, but every-day religion wins sinners to Jesus Christ and the Church and sends missionaries to heathen lands. W. W. S.

A HUNGRY AGE.

There are unmistakable evidences that the age in which we live is recovering its appetite for spiritual things. It is true that this age is somewhat like a man who has passed through a long illness, where all the vital forces have been used up in a grim fight against disease; a disease which introduced so much poison into the system that the very processes by which poison is eliminated and strength renewed have been paralyzed. In such an illness, there is no desire for food, and if strong food should be taken, the system is too enfeebled to assimilate it. But a return of appetite is a sign that life is winning its struggle against death.

Every one is aware that the diet of one who is convalescing from a dangerous illness must be guarded with studious care. But there is hope for a return of strength only through the taking of nourishment. The preachers of our day are the dietitians of a social order that has been through a dangerous disease where death seemed to be lingering just around the corner. The challenge to the ministers of our day is to nurse society back to a wholesome and healthy vigor, where the tasks of civilization may again be resumed.

It has sometimes been assumed that the age of doctrinal preaching has passed. It is true that there is no longer occasion for the preaching of the identical forms of doctrines that met the needs of former generations; but our generation must have a firm foundation of belief if it is to live and do the work that needs to be done in the world. And many of us do not know what we believe, nor do we see what is capable of being believed with a firm and unshakable conviction.

Altruism has been dealt a terrible blow during the past fifteen years. It has looked at times as if the most sublime sacrifice of humanity that the world has ever seen has gone for nought. It is not surprising that the world should show an inclination to return to the ways of selfish living and to the task of taking care of the interests of No. 1. We saw humanity, following the close of the war, take up the philosophy of eat, drink and be merry. And we have lived to see the day when large sections of humanity are realizing that hope does not lie in that direction. Eagerly and earnestly men and women are seeking a higher and better way.

It should not be in the least surprising that the world, even though it is seeking the better way, should be a bit skeptical of that which is offered. The doctrines that were most firmly believed a generation ago have failed in the hour of greatest crisis. Institutions that were felt to be equal to any emergency have been shown to be powerless in the face of situations that have arisen. Men have a perfect right to demand every possible proof that the ways in which they are called to walk will lead to peace and light.

Many of the pulpits of our day are preaching a message of service and sacrifice. It must needs be remembered that before such a call can stir the depths of man's soul, it must be shown that the service will accomplish an end worthy of the labor expended, and that the sacrifice shall not be in vain. There has been too much publicity given to the conservation of natural resources for men to invest that which is even more precious than the physical resources of earth, unless there be an adequate hope of reward.

Despite all the bitterness and death through which the world has passed, I believe it is possible for humanity to come to a larger and firmer faith than it has ever held in the past. Though many of the most cherished hopes of the human heart have vanished in thin air, it should be possible to build upon the ruins of former dreams larger hopes for the future. Our age is hungry for that which may assuredly be believed, and it is waiting for ideals to which may be dedicated the highest powers of the soul. It is always a delicate task to enkindle faith in the disillusioned heart, even when the ideal sought for must have, to most men, seemed impossible. It remains for the leaders who go in the name of the Lord to lay foundations of belief that shall be stronger than life and deeper than death, and when this task is done there will be millions who will be found ready to give themselves to life or death with such an ideal before them. S. C. H.

WISCONSIN AND STATE RIGHTS.

Wisconsin Democrats have selected three candidates for nomination as Governor of the State. Possible nominees for other State offices were also named and a platform was adopted declaring for State control of liquor. The platform favored submission by Congress to State constitutional conventions an amendment and repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment so that the control of the liquor problem might be restored to the States.

This is especially interesting, coming from Wisconsin, in view of the fact that that State deliberately surrendered its State rights in the matter of prohibition when it repealed its own enforcement law and put the whole burden of enforcement upon the Federal government. It can readily recover these rights by enacting an effective State enforcement law, and until that time the Federal government will continue alone in administering absolute authority in dealing with Wisconsin dry law violators.—American Issue.

If young people help the pastor, he will help and stand by them. The pastor's influence should be used to win new members.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2⅝x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cā'nā of Gāl'i-lee; and the mother of Jē'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles	$ .50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges	.85
VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges	1.10
RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included	1.35

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE 3⅜x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jē'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3⅜x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms	$ .90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges	1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included	1.90
RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges	1.50
INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms	3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red	3.25

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x⅜ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2	The three wise men
carrying away into Bāb'-ў-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'ў-lon unto Christ are fourteen	ing interpreted is, God with us. 24 Then Jō'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges	$1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included	1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms	2.60

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x⅜ Inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jē'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included	$1.50
THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS Same Large Print as Above
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included	2.95
RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included	3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Tomorrow is July Fourth, adopted as Independence Day in 1776 by the Continental Congress. King George III of England was born June 4, 1738, and died January 20, 1820, at the age of 81 years, 7 months, and 16 days. His arbitrary and aggressive financial policy toward America caused the American Revolution in 1775, and the war ended upon the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, October 19, 1781. To prove this right to declare independence, the thirteen colonies had declared what they considered twenty-seven facts concerning the actions of King George III. From that day until this, July Fourth has been observed as a legal holiday. In the early days of the republic, public meetings were held, orations were delivered, and patriotism expressed itself in processions, salvos of artillery, fireworks, and the explosion of firecrackers. The day had the appearance of military history and military allegiance. Such observance of the day resulted in numerous accidents and deaths. Efforts have been made to reduce the fatal accidents and with some success. But a table has been compiled showing the killed and injured during the years of 1903 and 1910, a period of eight years. The total killed in the eight years was 1,662, and the injured 35,620, making a total of 37,282. Even the celebration of Independence Day with military methods is at the cost of human life and human safety. The nation has turned away from the historic celebration to engage in sport. It is freedom from obligation, indulgence in freedom from work, pleasure of all kinds, and the enjoyments offered by resorts.

A saner way to observe the Fourth of July would be to hold patriotic meetings in public buildings, have delivered addresses filled with historic information that would turn the mind of the new generation to the source of America's progress, prosperity, education, and character, as an independent nation. The only way to develop the best in a man or people is to look backward to the past and forward to the future. The enjoyment of the present day is not all there is in the best life. The ideal in religion is to look backward to the cross and forward to the crown. Too much pleasure destroys the capacity for enjoyment. "I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit" (Eccl. 1:14). Pleasure may surfeit as well as food or drink; there are many forms of intoxication and many go staggering down the pathway of life who never indulge in intoxicating liquor. No sensible person objects to recreation, innocent pleasure, sensible sports, enjoyment in limited ways. It is the excessive indulgence that deserves and receives disapproval. The great days of the year contain lessons of great value, and suggestions for great effort in matntaining loyally the causes they represent and celebrate. To make such days simply a means for indulgence in the lighter things of life is akin to the desecration of the Sabbath. "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." All great days contain great blessings if they are properly observed.

W. W. Staley.

ELON LETTER.

For many years the Missionary Education Movement (inter-denominational) has been conducting a summer school for Christian leadership, with emphasis on missions, at Blue Ridge. The Congregational Church has taken a deep interest in the school, as it does in all inter-denominational matters; but other Churches, too, co-operate through a territorial committee. For example, this year Disciples of Christ, M. E. (South), Presbyterians (South), Lutherans, Cumberland Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and perhaps others, besides the Christians and Congregationalists, are here.

The Christian-Congregationalists outnumber all the rest, and the Congregationalists really control the school and set its pace.

Each morning, at 7 o'clock, are the voluntary prayer groups gathering on porches, around the springs, or the rocks for which Blue Ridge is no famous. Breakfast is at 7:30; classes begin at 8:10 and run for fifty minutes, with intermission of five minutes between until 12:50. Ten to eleven, however, is for study. Lunch is at 1 P. M. At 1:30 the denominational groups meet for their special programs for one hour. From 2:30 till 6 is for recreation, hikes, good fellowship or study, or all duly compounded. Dinner is at 6 P. M. Vespers from 6:45 to 7:30. From 8 to 9 is the open forum or a formal address. Lights are out at 10 P. M.

So Blue Ridge days are strenuous ones—filled with spiritual uplift and social fellowship of the highest type. You can never escape the spell of the place, once you have felt it.

I have come to know intimately so many fine Congregational leaders and young people this week that I have learned to love them and to rejoice anew in the union of our two groups.

Miss Pattie Coghill and I have been on the teaching staff, with twenty-one others of all the co-operating denominations.

W. A. Harper.

FROM REV. G. D. HUNT.

We closed a fine meeting at Lowell, in Roanoke, Ala., last Sunday night. Services were held each night for a week. Crowds were large and attentive, and a deep spiritual atmosphere prevailed at each service. The music by both the senior and junior choirs was inspiring. The co-operation of the Methodist and Baptist pastors and their people was beautiful indeed.

